Prisoner Tells Of Gambling Run By "Strongest Men" In Each Dormitory

RUMMY FAVORITE

Claim Meat Left By Prisoners Is Piled Up In Kitchen Until Enough For Hash

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 15 (C.P.).—A 24-year-old prisoner in Ontario Reformatory told the Madden Prison riot inquiry to-day he saw between $300 and $400 on the table at one time in a gambling game in the Reformatory.

One of many prisoners who said dissatisfaction with food and sanitary conditions was a major cause of the January 17 riot, the young convict told of gambling games in which the prison population engaged. He never saw more than $400 involved, however.

"I've seen bigger games since then, but not so much money," he said, referring to the "big game" of July, 1935.

"Strongest men" in each dormitory ran the games, he testified.

Whether prisoners sleeping in dormitories at Ontario Reformatory have fresh air at night depends upon how the "bigger fellows" feel about having windows open, two prisoners of 18 said.

"If the bigger fellows want the windows open, they are opened, but if they want them closed, they stay shut," one told Judge James E. Madden. "There is no rule in the matter."

The boy, who started a 12-month term when he was 15 and who is in the Reformatory for the second time, said the meals were "half-cooked" and "never hot."

He added to the list of prisoners who told the inquiry that little attention is paid by Reformatory officials to desire of prisoners to learn a trade. He said he had worked at steamfitting since he was 12 years of age, and asked Sergeant A. Maguire to be assigned to that work in the Reformatory.

"Sergeant Maguire said he would give me that work on the new building, but he forgot," the youth said.

Feared the Guards.

A boy of 18, who will be released in June on three years probation showed the fear that marked some prisoners last week before Judge Madden and Commission Counsel Gordon Gillanders rebuked a guard for "intimidating" prisoners about to give evidence and gave warning that guards must stop doing so.

"I am not making any complaints about anything," the youth told the inquiry. "I might be saying something that would get me in trouble here."

Assured he would be protected, the prisoner said he never ate the meat, because it was sour and too black.

"I don't like the place and I don't intend to come back," he said.

The guards "throw prisoners around as they feel like it," exaggerate fault of prisoners who make mistakes, and "ride" or "pick on"

BROTHER, SISTER FEARED DROWNED

Smithville Parties Concentrate Search In Waters Of Nearby Creek

SMITHVILLE, Ont., Feb. 15 (CP).—After two nights and a day of searching, no trace has been found of Fred and Audrey Dancer, 11 and six-year-old children of Fred. J. and Mrs. Dancer of South Grimsby.

On Saturday the tots left the farmhouse and are believed to have walked on the thin ice of Twenty Creek, near here. The surface evidently gave way, and the bodies were swept under the ice by the swift current.

Search began late Saturday when the children did not return home. When it seemed certain that they were drowned, appeals for help were sent to Grimsby, Smithville and St. Catharines, and before evening hundreds of persons were on the scene.

Ice-cutters stripped the creek for hundreds of yards and dragging operations started. When darkness came flares were burned, and huge bonfires lit the shore, but the hunt proved futile. Sunday more volunteers took part in the search.

Boats were brought by truck from Grimsby and St. Catharines, and Provincial and local police, armed with grappling irons, combed the water as ice-cutters removed the frozen top.

HIS WEEKLY RAFFLE

OLEAN, N.Y., Feb 15—(C.P.).—Edwin M. Forbush, Springfield, Mass., credit man, is authority for this retort by a harassed debtor to a dunning letter.

"Each Saturday night I make out a separate slip for the amount owed each of my creditors. These I put in a hat and draw out one slip," Erwin quoted the debtor. "That bill I pay immediately.

"So one more letter out of you like the last and I take you out of my Saturday night raffle."

France Warns Italy Of Open Invasion In Spain

Claims Pledge Broken By Landing Of Troops Outside Malaga City

Holds Such Intervention Threat To Her North African Communications

12,000 MEN INVOLVED

Calls On Powers To End Bickering Over Isolation Of Spanish War

PARIS, Feb. 15—(A.P.).—Premier Blum warned Italy to-day that France will not tolerate the "open invasion of Spain."

Informed sources disclosed the Socialist Premier, in a long talk with Vittorio Cerruti, the Italian Ambassador, declared the reported landing of Italian troops near Malaga from an Italian warship was a flagrant violation of Italy's non-intervention pledges.

He also told Cerruti that France regarded such intervention as a potential threat to her North African communications.

International reports have stated the landing of at least 12,000 Italians preceded Spanish insurgent capture of the seaport of Malaga.

Wants End of Bickering

PARIS, Feb. 15 (CP)—France today demanded an end of bickering over international efforts to isolate the Spanish civil war.

An indirect warning by Premier Blum to Italy and Germany that his Socialist government would not tolerate open intervention on either side in the conflict dramatically prefaced Ambassador Charles Corbin's trip to London to renew neutrality negotiations today.

Corbin, French representative on the international non-intervention committee as well as ambassador to London, carried France's warning she would consider herself free to aid the Socialist government unless machinery to halt aid to the insurgents was set up quickly.

Unformed sources in London said the sub-committee hoped today to receive "constructive suggestions" from Portugal whose objection to a supervision of her Spanish frontier to halt foreign aid was the latest stumbling block.)

Tame $100 Fox Stolen From Pen

Sarnia, Feb. 15. (CP)

PROVINCIAL Police are on the lookout for a silver black fox, worth about $100, reported stolen from the pens of Andrew Kerr of Alvinston. Entry to the pens was gained by breaking the lock on the gate. The fox taken was the only one of four tame enough to approach.

Earlier in the week a mink valued at $150 was taken from the farm of Howard Lett, three miles north of Alvinston.

BRITISH WARSHIPS FIRE ON SPANISH BOMBING PLANE

Craft Suspected Rebel Machine Drops Six Explosives, Missing Each Time

OFF ALGERIAN COAST

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP) — Two British destroyers opened fire when an airplane, "believed to be a Spanish insurgent plane," attempted to bomb them off the coast of Algeria, official circles disclosed today.

The plane dropped six bombs near the destroyers Navock and Gypsy while vessels were stationed near Cape Tenez, it was officially announced. The bombs did no damage to the ships.

Official protests against the bombings were immediately dispatched to the insurgent authorities at Palma, Mallorca Island, and Salamanca, administrative headquarters for the government of General Francisco Franco.

Believed German Machine

"The British government is convinced it was an insurgent plane from the type of machine and the fact it flew off in the direction of the Balearic Islands after the destroyer opened fire," they added.

(Spanish insurgents have held airdromes and fortified positions in the islands off the eastern coast of Spain almost since the start of the civil war last July.)

The destroyers were enroute from Gibraltar to Malta to join their squadrons, naval officials declared. The formal protest was requested by Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse, commander-in-chief of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

The British consul at Palma was instructed to protest to the insurgent authorities at Palma and Sir Henry Chilton, British ambassador to Spain, will transmit a foreign office protest to Salamanca.

WHILE HE SLEPT

Policeman Snoozes at Home and Burglar Steals His Billy

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 15—(C.P.)—Policeman Frank Dwyer slept while his wife attended church. She returned home to find the house ransacked and called her husband.

Dwyer's blackjack and a wrist watch were taken from a dresser in the room where the officer slept. Two purses also were missing.

LIVING COSTS UP IN GREAT BRITAIN

Newlyweds Find Year's Delay To Mean 10 P.C. More For Furnishings

LONDON, Feb. 15 (CP Cable).—The cost of living is on the upward grade. Prophets predict it will go still higher. Housewives are paying considerably more than a year ago for clothing, linen and cotton goods. Mr. and Mrs. Newlywed are now regretting they did not decide sooner, for furnishing costs have risen 10 to 15 per cent. during the last twelve months.

In France the cost-of-living graph is climbing a still steeper incline. The rise in prices there threatens to wipe out the profits of the recent devaluation. It is giving the Blum Government serious concern. Charles Spinasse, French Minister of National Economy, is preparing special legislation.

Winnipeg Police Crack Down On All Sunday Store Sales

SMOKERS HURDLE LAW

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15.— (CP). — Housewives flocked to market here to-day to replenish larders depleted by their families' week-end call for nourishment, but there was little indication anyone had lacked seriously because of the police commission's edict for strict enforcement of Sunday "blue laws."

The commission decided Wednesday to enforce the Lord's Day Act, permitting only drug stores and restaurants to remain open for business and decreeing nothing could be sold in the restaurants except for consumption on the premises.

A majority of the corner stores were closed yesterday and police said they would not know the number of offenders until reports were checked. North end police said they found but one store open—a fruit store — and the proprietor's name was taken for possible prosecution. Fort Rouge police reported no stores open in that suburb.

One hundred and twenty-five north-end storekeepers, calling themselves the Community Food Stores Association, voted last night in favor of keeping their shops open on Sundays for the purpose of selling all commodities stocked.

P. Shafranski and F. Ingebsun, with one other still to be appointed, were named a committee to co-op-

No Runaway Glacier Scares This Woman

Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 15 (AP).

A COURAGEOUS Alaskan woman whose roadside inn home lies in the path of runaway Black Rapids glacier, refused to be frightened today by the approach of the thundering ice mass.

"I'm not afraid," she said, pausing from her duties as hostess to scientists and excursionists.

"The glacier's not moving fast now. It does make a lot of noise and sometimes shakes the house, but that doesn't keep us from sleeping."

PLOT JUST A "HOAX"

Police Satisfied No Such Conversation Ever Took Place.

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (CP)—A reported plot to kidnap two of the Dionne quintuplets was called a "hoax" today by Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck after he conferred with General V. A. S. Williams, commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police.

"I am satisfied no such conversation took place," the Attorney-General said in reference to a report two men were overheard discussing the kidnap plot on a bus near Toronto last week.

Cap-Gun Woman Bandit Slips Up on Her Third Job

HAD JUST TAKEN $14

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—(A.P.).—A 25-year-old woman who, police say, held up two restaurants recently with a cap pistol, was captured early to-day.

She gave the name of Norma Parker, a housemaid. She said she was born in New Orleans, but was reared in New York.

This morning she entered a restaurant, drank two cups of coffee, cast an eye over a half dozen patrons of the place, and left. Later she went in again, ordered some coffee, drank it and approached the cash register. Thomas Cosopus, the night manager, alone except for one patron, heard her ask for change for a quarter.

The woman whipped out something that looked like a firearm. Cosopus had no time to examine it minutely.

"Let me have what you've got," she commanded.

Cosopus took $14 from the register and put it on the counter. At that moment another patron came in. The woman wheeled, Cosopus quickly seized her. The newcomer and Cosopus forced the woman into a telephone booth. When the police came they discovered her holdup "weapon" was a cap pistol.

Taken to a restaurant on Broadway, which was held up by a woman only a few days ago, she was identified as the robber. She was charged with assault and robbery.

PRISONERS ESCAPE

RALEIGH, N.C., Feb. 15.—(AP).—Four or more prisoners kidnapped a captain and steward at Caledonia prison farm in Halifax county today and escaped.

Capus M. Waynick, chairman of the Highway and Public Works Commission, said Captain R. O. Hinton, in charge of personnel at the farm, and Stewart W. L. Roberts were overpowered and taken by the "heavily-armed" prisoners who commandeered a State prison truck.

All telephone lines to the farm had been cut, Waynick said.

Last Minute News Flashes

LONDON—Britain today warned Soviet Russia that it must halt propaganda activities of the Communist International in British territory. A statement on the issue was made in the House of Commons by Viscount Cranborne, foreign affairs under-secretary.

VALENCIA, Spain—Semi-official estimates today placed the casualty toll of last night's insurgent naval bombardment of Valencia at 20 killed and 60 wounded, some of them gravely. Six of those killed were children.

TORONTO—Nova Scotia miners who volunteered and performed rescue work in the Moose River mine cave-in were dissatisfied with the distribution of rewards for their day-and-night efforts underground, Billy Badoux, president of Stellarton, N.S., Draeger crew, said today. "One of the Stellarton men with the second rescue crew worked with me as second man to the face," said Badoux. "But he got less money than any of the others on the same crew. Why some got twice as much as he did."

Trio Lose Heads On Chopping Block

Berlin, Feb. 15. (AP)

Three times the top-hatted headsman swung his gleaming axe to execute one man for high treason and two others for "non-political" murders. Ot least six more remain in Reich jail cells waiting a similar fate.

Secrecy enshrouded full details of the executions, but custom dictated that the professional headsman wear formal dress and snow-white gloves that are never used twice.

RENFREW NORTH LOSES MEMBER

First Elected In 1921, Returned To House In Election Of 1935

HEART VICTIM

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—(CP)—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Dr. Matthew McKay, Liberal member of parliament for Renfrew North and former noted athlete, who died here last night after a short illness. He was 78.

First elected as Liberal member for North Renfrew in 1921, Dr. McKay was defeated in the general elections of 1926 and 1930. However, he was returned to the House of Commons in 1935 with a substantial margin over Conservative and Reconstruction opponents.

Noted figure in all provincial and federal elections in the constituency, he was a vigorous campaign speaker. He campaigned more than once against the late Hon. Peter White.

In 1908 Dr. McKay contested the riding as a Liberal candidate in a three-cornered fight but was defeated. In subsequent years he was offered the nomination in both legislature and Parliament but declined until 1921.

Son of a Simcoe County, Ont., farmer, he capped a brilliant record in public, secondary and Normal schools by graduating from the Royal College of Dental Surgeons in 1887. Before that he graduated from Queen's University.

Dentist In Pembroke

For years he practised as a dentist in Pembroke, where he served on the high school board and for five years on the town council. He had earlier worked as a teacher, traveller, agent and clerk to obtain his dental degrees.

In his final year at Queen's Dr. McKay won the Prince of Wales scholarship and was awarded the gold medal in the literary department.

While attending the university he was one of its outstanding athletes. A noted sprinter, he carried off the Intercollegiate 100 and 220-yard dashes for three years in succession. He also captained both the Queen's soccer and lacrosse teams in the Intercollegiate leagues.

Death of Dr. McKay reduces the Liberal representation in the House of Commons to 176. He was the third member of parliament to die within a month, Dr. Charles Marcil, veteran Liberal representing Bonaventure, and H. E. Wilton, Hamilton West Conservative, being the others.

REBEL RAIDER SCORES 30 HITS VALENCIA CITY

Warship Is Finally Driven Off By Gunboat And Shore Batteries

HOSPITAL IS STRUCK

Attack Comes As Refugee-Crowded Port Is Peacefully Sleeping

VALENCIA, Spain, Feb. 15.—(CP).—Thirty heavy calibre shells hurled into Valencia from an unidentified insurgent warship cut a new path of destruction along the Mediterranean seaboard to-day.

Sirens wailed as the shells from the sea raider disturbed the sleeping capital. The firing immediately precipitated a pounding artillery duel with shore batteries and the government gunboat Laya defending the port.

A direct hit from the attacker battered the chapel of the Provincial Hospital. Others exploded near the Cinema Theatre and a railroad station, inflicting an unestimated number of casualties in the refugee-crowded city.

The vessel blazed away for 30 minutes until the government gunboat Laya put it to flight. The terror spread by the attack was a grim sequel to Premier Francisco Largo Caballero's declaration a few hours earlier that "discipline is the most vital factor."

OTTAWA PRINCESS NOW LOIS BOOTH

King Christian Annuls Marriage After 13-Year Trial

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 15.—(C P Cable). — Official announcement was made to-day that King Christian X had annulled the marriage of Prince and Princess Erik. It will be effective February 12.

The Princess before her marriage was Lois Booth, of Ottawa. They were married at Ottawa on February 11, 1924. Since then they have spent most of their time in Europe and in California, where they maintained a chicken ranch.

On November 15, 1934, announcement was made that the couple had filed a petition with King Christian asking permission to seek a divorce. It was made known at the time that the King, cousin of Prince Erik, was trying to dissuade them from ending the union.

Princess Erik, under the terms of the annulment, will cease to be a member of the Danish Royal House and will lose her title of Princess and Countess of Rosenborg. She will also relinquish the style of address, "Her Royal Highness."

SHIPS IN COLLISION

C.P.R. Liner Sinks Japanese Freighter.

SHIMONOSEKI, Japan, Feb. 15 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia was in collision today with the Japanese freighter Akashi Maru, a wooden steamer of 456 tons gross.

The Japanese skipper and his crew of 24 took to a lifeboat and reached shore safely. The freighter, struck amidships by the 16,810-ton Empress of Russia, filled rapidly and went to the bottom.

Indians Carve Police Chief When His Car Strikes Squaw

Caughnawaga Band Become Excited After Crash—Officer Has Ear Sewed

PLANS NO CHARGES

MONTRÉAL, Feb. 15 (CP).—Captain Arthur Hebert, chief of City Hall police station, was injured today when Indians showed resentment after an auto accident at nearby Caughnawaga in which an Indian woman was hurt.

Hebert reported he rendered first aid to the woman, struck by his skidding car, and had her removed to Montreal in an ambulance. The woman, Mrs. Angus D'Allieboust, 30, suffered a fractured shoulder.

At the hospital two stitches were taken in a cut in Captain Hebert's ear.

"It was all in the line of duty," he said. "I was only scratched up a bit. They must have become excited. Anyway, I made no arrests and am not laying any charges."

NINE GIRL FRIENDS

School Youth Claims He Had To Steal To Entertain Them.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 (CP)—Police had a high school Casanova in the lineup—by name Adam Jablowski.

"I needed the money to take out my girl friends," he said in accounting for a series of robberies during recess periods.

"How many girls have you," he was asked. "Nine," he replied.

Attendants 'Worried' About His Condition Friend Informs Press

Throne of Austria Said Offered Edward

London, Feb. 15. (CP-Havas)

THE magazine "Leader" reported in its current issue today that the Duke of Windsor has been offered the throne of Austria.

The review said the initiative had been taken by the Austrian Peasant party which, it stated, is opposed to the restoration of Archduke Otto of Hapsburg.

The leader added that the Duke who renounced the British throne, would be unlikely to accept that of Austria. In addition, the magazine said, acceptance of the offer would necessitate his conversion to Roman Catholicism.

3 MORE BUFFALO WOMEN ATTACKED DURING WEEK-END

Commissioner Adds Six Men To Homicide Squad Seeking Knife-Slayer

AFTER "CURB CRUISERS"

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 15—(A.P.).—An 11-man homicide squad was assigned exclusively to search for the knife-slayer of Mary Ellen Babcock, 18, to-day as three new attacks on women stirred further alarm in some neighborhoods.

Police Commissioner James W. Higgins added six detectives to the original five-man squad and told them to "stay on the case" until it is solved.

Meanwhile, Assistant Dets. Ive Frank J. Leigh asked women to report the license numbers of "curb cruisers"—male motorists who molest women pedestrians.

"Give us the number of any curb cruiser's car and we will pick him up with a radio car in five minutes," Leigh said.

Two attacks yesterday and one today brought the total number of attempted assaults against women to eight since the body of Miss Babcock was found in a field February 5.

Miss Galitzdorfer told police she accepted a ride home from a restaurant early to-day with a man she knew slightly.

Two other new attacks were reported over the week-end. Police said they did not believe any were connected with the slaying.

TRUCK DRIVER HURT

Heavy Transport Leaves Highway East of Trenton.

Lad Kills Himself With 'Unloaded' Gun

Barrington, N.S., Feb. 15 (CP)

FIFTEEN - YEAR - OLD Francis Hogg was instantly killed Saturday when a rifle which he believed to be unloaded discharged.

Hogg was showing youthful companions how his new rifle worked during an outing at Scott's Lake, eight miles from here, when the accident occurred. He had placed the muzzle of the gun against his chest and pulled the trigger, believing the weapon to be unloaded, his companions told police.

Authorities Refuse To Discuss Case Of Famous "Country Doctor"

DR. G. CAMERON IN CHARGE

In Three Days In Downtown Hotel Before Being Moved

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—(CP)— Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets, is in Toronto General Hospital with influenza, it was learned today. Here on a visit, Dr. Dafoe was taken ill last week at his hotel.

Dr. Allan Dafoe

Under care of Dr. Gordon C. Cameron, the famous "Country Doctor" from Callander rested more than three days in the hotel room and was taken to hospital today when his condition gave some concern.

Hospital authorities refused to discuss Dr. Dafoe's illness but Fred Davis, companion of the doctor on his visit here, said the sickness "worried" attendants.

Gets Chill During Drive.

The famous country doctor took a chill while driving his motor car from Callander to Toronto last Wednesday, and went to bed in his hotel room on arrival. He remained there, attended by a nurse, until today when he was driven little more than a mile to the hospital. He made the trip in the back seat of a car.

The grey-haired little physician, who attended the momentous birth of the quintuplets, and now is one of their guardians, was not too ill Friday and this morning to broadcast on a commercial radio program from his bed. The efforts taxed his strength, however, and further scheduled speeches have been cancelled until his recovery.

FREEZING WEATHER TAKES FOUR LIVES

Blizzards Tie Up Dakotas And Minnesota—Dust Sweeps Oklahoma

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—(AP).— At least four deaths were attributed to-day to freezing weather and snow storms that visited the north-west and far west portions of United States over the week-end.

Highway traffic was virtually paralysed by snow in parts of Minnesota and the Dakotas. Southern California suffered drenching rains and a dust storm swirled over the Oklahoma panhandle.

Two Minnesota motorists were killed in traffic accidents during a blinding snow storm. A South Dakota farmer lost his way in a snow storm and perished within a mile of his home. A man missing for two weeks was found frozen to death west of Grants Pass, Ore.

The frozen bodies of a man and a woman were found in a snow bank on a side road near Dodgeville, Wis. The man, Charles Fetterman, 46, had been shot to death with a shotgun, found near his body, and the unidentified woman had been beaten to death.

NO COLONY RETURN

British House Is Assured German Proposal To Be Turned Down.

LONDON, Feb. 15—(CP Cable)—Viscount Cranborne, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in the House of Commons this afternoon gave a blunt denial to reports Britain is preparing to cede territory to Germany.

Vyvyan Adams, Conservative, first asked the foreign secretary whether "to dispel ill-founded German expectancy, he will state in unmistakeable terms that His Majesty's government cannot contemplate cession to Nazi Germany of any territory whatsoever under British political control?"

Lord Cranborne: "As previously stated, His Majesty's government have not considered and are not considering any such project."

BOOSTED DEFENCE OUTLAY PREDICTED TO STIR FIREWORKS

C.C.F. Solidly Opposed--Social Credit Ranks Likely To Split

BELIEVE TORIES IN FAVOR

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (C.P.). — Parliamentary members and the nation generally to-day awaited eagerly the long-expected House debate on increased estimates for defence expenditures. Observers believed it would provide the session's brightest fireworks.

Solidly arrayed against the increase, designed chiefly to provide an enlarged military air force, will be the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, led by bearded pacifist James S. Wordsworth, whose neutrality resolution was beaten more than a week ago.

The Social Credit ranks may split. P. J. Rowe (Athabaska), recently read out of the party, announced he was opposed to the increases, while J. H. Blackmore, Leader of the group, has taken the position Canada should do proportionately as much for defence as other parts of the Empire.

The Conservatives are expected to support the increased estimates, although criticism may be advanced as to the methods in which the money is to be spent. Government supporters are said to have discussed the estimates at considerable length in the party caucus, but there has been no indication any of them will oppose the votes the ministry is asking.

Signal For the Debate.

The debate, according to present plans, will come when the Government next moves the Commons into committee of supply. The House rules enable any member to launch the general discussion when such a move is made.

The plans are for Grant MacNeill (C.C.F. Vancouver) to move a no-confidence resolution. Mr. MacNeill was formerly secretary-treasurer of the Great War Veterans' Association. Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of National Defence, also representing a Vancouver constituency, will be the leading supporter of the Government's policy.

The legislation providing fur a company to operate the Trans-Canada Airway has yet to be brought down. A week ago it was stated the Bill was ready for introduction, but for some reason it has not made its appearance on the order paper.

Airway Discussion

Air traffic may come in for much consideration on Parliament Hill this week. The Senate committee on Railways is considering the bill which would place this traffic as

London, Feb. 15. (AP)

WHEN Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin retires—which may possibly be after the Coronation of King George VI in May—he will be rewarded with an Earldom for his services to the nation, the Sunday Referee said yesterday.

The newspaper said it had this information "on the highest authority." It said he probably would take the title Earl of Bewdley, that being his seat in Worcestershire.

DR. SCRIMGER, V.C. DIES IN MONTREAL

Surgeon-In-Chief At Victoria Hospital Is Victim Of Heart Attack

MONTREAL, Feb. 15 (CP)—The ranks of Canada's Great War heroes were bereft today of Dr. Francis A. C. Scrimger, V.C., soldier, surgeon and educator.

Death struck swiftly Saturday at the 57-year-old surgeon-in-chief of Montreal's Royal Victoria Hospital and assistant surgery professor at McGill University. He died soon after suffering a heart attack.

As a surgeon, he was known as one of Montreal's finest; but it was his heroic act in gaining the Victoria Cross that made him best known throughout Canada. His rescue of a gravely wounded officer near Ypres in 1915 made him the first medical officer to gain the Cross while serving in the Canadian forces during the Great War.

Dr. Scrimger, medical officer of the 14th (Royal Montreal) Battalion, carried to safety Captain Harold F. McDonald of the 16th Canadian Scottish after enemy shelling had fired the field dressing station at Wieltje, two miles from Ypres.

The Captain, now a Brigadier-General and chairman of the Canadian Pension Commission, was brought by Dr. Scrimger through a barrage of shrapnel and high explosive at imminent danger to the rescuer's life. More than once, the doctor sheltered his wounded companion with his own body until a safe place was reached.

Guardsmen and Workers Make-Up

Forty-four days of dangerous tension and suspicion ended in a burst of good fellowship at this Flint, Mich., plant of General Motors corporation when news spread that a truce had been signed ending the long and calamitous automobile strike. This National Guardsman, who a few moments before stood as a grim symbol of authority with a bayonetted rifle, is now the "pal" of every worker in sight. The jubilant men crowd around him at his post outside the plant, as glad as he is himself that the tension is over. National Guardsmen will remain on duty however until the plants have been evacuated of strikers and are back under working conditions.

DUKE'S DECISION TO WED IS FINAL SISTER DISCOVERS

Princess Royal And Earl Of Harewood Return From Visit To Windsor

SANDRINGHAM SOLD

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(CP).— The Princess Royal and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, returned to London to-day from their visit with the Duke of Windsor.

The Associated Press stated authoritative information preceded them that they brought the former King's irrevocable decision to wed Mrs. Wallis Simpson as soon as her divorce is made final.

The Vienna meeting of brother and sister, the Associated Press quoted authoritative circles as believing, resulted in a settlement of financial problems. It was reported the Duke of Windsor agreed to the sale to Queen Mary and the King of the estate at Sandringham, which he personally inherited from his father, King George V.

A source "close to the Royal family" told the Associated Press the Duke of Windsor had decided he would not return to England for at least three years. This person also revealed, the Associated Press said, the Duke will decline an invitation to attend a meeting of the Knights of the Garter at Windsor Castle in June and he has no intention of taking his seat in the House of Lords.

At Vienna yesterday the Duke of Windsor met the honeymooning Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her husband, Prince Bernhard. They chatted for about ten minutes in a hotel dining room, mostly about skiing.

PRIEST FINDS GOLD TURNS PROCEEDS OVER TO CHURCH

Congregation Poor So Priest Started Prospecting For Pay For Sawmill

AT BIG SANDY LAKE

BIG SANDY LAKE, Ont., Feb. 15 (C.P.).—For the glory of the Church and, incidentally, to pay for the sawmill that built this isolated Roman Catholic Mission, Father J. Dapau went prospecting and struck it rich.

The 65-year-old prospecting priest arrived at Big Sandy Lake, 380 miles northeast of Winnipeg, four years ago. At his request, a sawmill was sent to his mission, in the Episcopal district of Kenora. He was expected to pay for it as soon as possible.

But the Indians in this bush country are poor. Church collections were slim. So Father Dapau studied geology and went out to look for gold. He found it, not far from his newly-built church. For the six claims he staked, Father Dapau received $250 cash as an option and was promised $50,000,000 and 100,000 shares in the company soon to be formed to develop the property. The money and shares were turned over to the church.

LION AND UNICORN GIFT TO CANADA

Stone Carvings Off British House Now Erected At Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—(CP).—Century-old stone carvings of the lion and unicorn, weighing a ton each, formerly decorations of the British House of Parliament, are now temporarily erected on either side of the entrance to the Parliamentary Library here, awaiting inspection of members.

If the location is suitable the plate which accompanied the sculptures, part of the Royal arms, will be erected with this inscription in French and English:

"This lion and this unicorn forming part of the Royal coat of arms, were removed from the stone work of the House of Parliament, Westminster and presented to the Dominion Houses of Parliament by the Empire Parliamentary Association, United Kingdom Branch."

For the past seven years the British Parliament has been undergoing restoration made necessary by the corrosion caused by the saline atmosphere of the Thames district. By a special process huge corroded block were withdrawn and new ones substituted, so that a patched appearance resulted and scraping and remodeling was necessary. About 50 carvings had to be removed, among them the lion and the unicorn, about five feet, eight inches in height, joined by the shields which was smashed in removal.

Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons, saw them in the yard of the Speaker's quarters in London when he was in England for the Silver Jubilee ceremonies in 1935. On his return to Canada he opened correspondence with Sir Howard D'Egville, secretary of the United Kingdom branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association, seeking to obtain them for Parliament here. They were presented to the Canadian Parliament as a gesture of friendship and goodwill and as a historic link between the two parliaments.

LOSE THEIR SHOES

Campbellford Fans Find Excitement on Hockey Special

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 15. — A large number of Campbellford hockey fans boarded the special train here on Friday night to take in the Trent-Peterborough game. The fact that one citizen returned minus a shoe and his hat, while another reports the loss of his shoe and a pair of badly-bruised knuckles would seem to indicate that there is still plenty of the good old hockey spirit left in the town yet.

TROTZKY GROUP LOCATED

PARIS, Feb. 15—(CP-Havas).—A new group of alleged Trotzkyists plotters, accused of conspiring against the Soviet regime, has been uncovered in the autonomous Jewish region of Birobidjan, near the Manchoukuo frontier, the Rightist newspaper Le Matin reported from Moscow to-day.

The president of the autonomous region, named Liederberg, has been arrested on charges of Trotzkyist agitation and conspiring with "foreign enemies," it was said.

RUSSIA IS RE-BORN AS WORLD POWER ON STALIN PLAN

Chief Of 175,000,000 People Ruthless In Methods But Skilful Builder

STARTED FROM SCRATCH

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin, Soviet chief, who rose from a hovel, has marked a dozen years of supreme leadership with monumental works.

Many other nations question the beauty and desirability of some of these works and bitterly condemn Stalin's methods of building. But the structures, good or bad, are great pyramids in Russian history, and the "Steel Man" has in large measure accomplished the mighty tasks which he laid out for himself.

Perhaps his outstanding achievement has been making a vitalized unit of 175,900,000 people of various creeds and races—largely illiterate, poverty - stricken, down - trodden peasants who were plodding aimlessly and hopelessly through life.

Stalin started from scratch in solving the great problem of educating and unifying the masses. He hasn't solved it yet, for that will take generations, but he has turned Russia into a world power—a world-menace, Germany and other anti-communists call it.

Ended Private Trading

One of Stalin's first moves when he assumed power was to start rebuilding the economic structure of the country. He ended private trading and instituted collectivized farming.

Then, in 1928, he launched his five-year plan for industrialization of Russia—and the outside world laughed. He began constructing and operating great steel plants, electric works, automobile and tractor factories. He built ships, railroads, canals and hydro-electric plants. He opened mines and established foundries and smelters.

Because all this was new to Russia, technical experts were called from American and other countries to teach the Russian workman his job. This program required immense expenditures abroad. The money could only come from exports, and Russia started to dump her products on the markets of the world, wheat being one of the large exports.

Stalin shortly encountered trouble from the kulaks, the larger and more prosperous farmers, who refused to co-operate and supply the government with produce. They slaughtered cattle for feasts and refused to plow their ground for grain.

It was then the Steel Man showed the streak of ruthlessness which is in him. Soviet agents seized from the kulaks the amount of grain to which the government would have been entitled from a normal crop. Since there already was a scarcity of grain, millions faced dire want. Estimates of deaths from starvation went to more than a million. "The kulak is the enemy of the government," said Stalin. "He is to be liquidated as a class."

Speeded Reconstruction

Under Stalin's driving power the five-year construction plan was completed in four years. The leader promptly embarked on another five-year construction drive, the object of which was to consolidate what had been done and to increase production and improve quality. The measure of success which Stalin achieved was recorded in a report of the international labor office at Geneva in 1936. This stated that the Soviet Union has attained a level equivalent to 300 per cent. of its 1929 output.

While Stalin was remodeling the economic and industrial structures, he also was creating a great, modernized army and air force. Russia today is said to have one of the most powerful military machines in existence. Some 11,500,000 trained soldiers reportedly are available for action. Munitions and instruments of war have been provided.

The Union has a veritable armada of airplanes, but the total is not known. Moscow has said that there are more than 7,000, but unofficial estimates run as high as 10,000.

Stalin closed 1936 by giving his people a new constitution, providing for "soviet democracy." It granted universal suffrage and permitted any citizen to be a candidate for membership in a two-chamber parliament. This document was said to prepare the way for pure communism when there should no longer be need for a government which would be an organ of compulsion.

The congress of soviets in Moscow unanimously adopted the constitution which Stalin characterized as "the most democratic constitution of those existing in the world." In presenting this historic document to the congress, the leader made the second speech in the more than 12 years of his regime.

Has Wandered Far

Stalin has wandered far since his lowly beginning in Tiflis, December 21, 1879 and his 57 years have been filled with hardships, dangers and vicissitudes. His mother, who is now 76, was a Caucasian beauty who inspired her shoemaker husband to find the hard-earned pennies to start young Joseph on the road to education.

The parents wanted Joseph to be a priest, and when he was about 15 he was sent to a seminary. But the ferment of revolt already was in him. He joined an underground Marxian group and although a mere boy he soon became a teacher of the revolutionary doctrines. For this he was expelled from the school, whereupon he started out as a full-fledged rebel against Czarism.

Between 1902 and 1913 he was arrested, jailed or exiled sixteen times. On five occasions he was consigned to prison in Siberia, and just as often he escaped. Stalin fought through the civil wars which gave birth to the Soviet government, and became a trusted lieutenant of Lenin. The steel man's defence of the city of Tsaritsin (now called Stalingrad in his honor) was one of the mile-posts in the October revolution of 1917.

When Lenin died in 1924 Stalin stepped into the place of his leader. The obscure Georgian lad had, in 30 years of struggle, climbed to control of an empire.

ARMY COUNCIL ENDS.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 15 (C.P.).—Attended by more than 700 delegates, the 14th annual district convention of the Young People's Councils of the Salvation Army ended here last night.

Outside centres represented included Essex, Chatham, Petrolia, Kingsville, Leamington, Wallaceburg, London and Toronto. Sessions began last night.

Morning, afternoon and night sessions were conducted by Brigadier and Mrs. Rufus Spooner. Brigadier Spooner is territorial young people's secretary for Canada, Newfoundland, Bermuda,, and Alaska.

3 MORE GERMANS DIE UPON BLOCK

Executioner's Axe Swings At Dawn To Bring Total To Six For Weekend

BERLIN, Feb. 15—(A.P.).—The white-gloved, frock-coated executioner of Berlin's Ploetzensee prison swung his axe three time at dawn to-day, beheading three Germans accused of high treason against the Third Reich.

The victims were Friedrich Richter, 29; Guenther Galgan, 25; and Johannes Eggert, 39.

Although the executions were not announced in newspapers, the news was prominently posted on billboards at the busiest interesections in Berlin, apparently as warning that punishment is still stern and swift for active enemies of the Nazi regime.

The three decapitations brought the number of week-end executions to six. Of the three men beheaded Saturday, one was sentenced to death for treason, and two for "non-political" murders.

POLARIZED LIGHT TO BE SHOWN HERE

House Of Magic Opens In Collegiate Auditorium Tuesday Afternoon

Polaroid—the new material that makes light travel in only one plane—will be publicly exhibited for the first time in the General Electric "House of Magic," which will be brought to the Peterborough Collegiate on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

This new material promises to eliminate the glare and the danger of blinding auto headlights, makes the internal strains in glassware instantly visible, creates sun-glasses that cut off the glare-light without changing the color of the view, and promises to bring about a whole new science of eye-saving, extra-efficient illumination. When two sections of this glass-like material are placed against each other, one of them can be turned so that full light, dimmed light, or no light will pass through them. With the aid of Polaroid, the invention of Edwin H. Land, Boston scientist, startling and spectacular color effects can be obtained from ordinary transparent celluloid and cellophane.

FINDS NEW SMALL COMET.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 15.—(AP).—Dr. F. L. Whipple of Harvard Observatory last night announced discovery of a new small comet in the constellation Canes Venatici (the Hunting Dogs).

Dr. Whipple said he found the comet in examining a photographic plate taken February 7. The comet, he added, is not visible with the unaided eye.

The body has a tail about "one degree long"—rather short, and is of the 12th magnitude.

DICK GETS A NEW PARTNER

OF course, children should never drink tea or coffee. But do you realize that the caffeine in tea and coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too? If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffeine may be to blame. Why not try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help.

FREE! Let us send you your first week's supply of Postum free! Simply write Consumer Service Dept., General Foods Limited, Cobourg, Ontario. P7-37

Fashion Service

There's flattery in the rever collar and the trim panel-like line, that makes you appear tall and slender. The skirt has a decided swing. The tied bow-sash at the back and huge decorative useful patch pockets are other details of interest.

This model is equally attractive in plain or printed linen, rayon challis print, etc.

You'll wear it for local shopping or the beach when summer arrives.

Style No. 3033 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

THE whisperer is more to be dreaded than an open slanderer, because he endeavours to accomplish his malicious purposes secretly, and his victim has no chance of frustrating them.—Dr. Davies.

Dear Friends:

If you are annoyed with anyone, do you go straight to them and have it out, or do you go around telling everything you know about them in whispers? Do you think it is your business what your neighbors do, or who their friends are, or how they spend their income, or do you mind your own affairs, and let others mind theirs?

If there is anyone I have a contempt for, it is those who come whispering things to me. To be candid, I will not listen to them. If they have not decency enough to air their grievances, but must go pulling another to pieces in whispers, I have no use for them, and neither should you, for if they can do that to someone you now, they won't be long before they do it to you.

If you saw a snake in your path, you would either try to kill it, or you would go out of your way to avoid it, and these sort of people are worse than snakes, because a snake cannot speak and pour out venom to everyone they meet. A snake strikes and is done with it, but this sort of person gets more satisfaction the more they get to listen to them.

If you catch a snake, you can pull its fangs so that it cannot do any more harm. And you can pull a person's fangs who goes around whispering slander, by telling the slandered one about it, or by asking the whisperer to produce proof of what they are saying.

Some will not come right out and say a thing, but shake their heads so wisely, and say "if I told you all I knew about so-and-so, you would never have anything to do with them," leaving you to think the most awful things that come into your mind.

Press them to be more frank, and you get nowhere. All they want is to discredit the other in your eyes, and once they see your faith in your friends is broken, they go on their way, pouring out some more venom to another listener.

And why stand for such a thing? Have you no faith in your own judgment? Have you ever found the one who is being slandered to be as the other is making them out to be? Demand proof, and if it is not forthcoming, tell the slanderer of your utter disbelief in what they say.

Only in this way will you be able to stop it, and if you are stopping it for another, you are stopping it for yourself, because this sort of creature never tells what they have said themselves, but always tell the few remarks you may have dropped.

In the course of my life, I have been told the confidences of thousands of people. (I mean thousands.) But the whisperer gives me a wide berth, because they know I will not listen, nor do I hesitate to tell them what I think of them.

How many hearts have been broken by malicious whispers, and yet if there were not those who give credence to these things, and pass them along to others, these snakes in the grass would soon shut up.

So, if you would hate to think that someone would spread tales about you, do not listen to those who spread them about others. If you have trusted anyone unwisely, and some friend gives you a little warning, that is an entirely different thing. After all, what they have done before you met them is no affair of yours, but what they might do to you, is certainly your business. If they act decently to you, that is all you need care about, but for pity's sake, nip the whisperers in the bud, before they can do damage to those who do not get a chance to defend themselves.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

A.Y.P.A. BOX SOCIAL ENJOYABLE EVENT

Westwood Anglican Young People Guests At Birdsall Home

WESTWOOD, Feb. 15. — The monthly meeting of St. Michael's A.Y.P.A., Westwood, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, on Tuesday evening last. The meeting opened with the president, Miss Helen Bray, in the chair. After a short devotional service, the business of the meeting was discussed. Following this, several games were enjoyed, the weather preventing the skating party which had been planned. The gathering then took the form of a box social. Mrs. F. E. Birdsall made a capable auctioneer and the attractive boxes were soon disposed of.

The gathering broke up with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" after a very enjoyable evening. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bray on the evening of March 9.

WARKWORTH HAS SPLENDID SERVICE

World Day Of Prayer Fittingly Observed By Women

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Feb. 15. — The World Day of Prayer was fittingly observed in St. John's Anglican Church on Friday afternoon, with a splendid attendance from all the local churches. Dartford and Norham were also represented. The meeting opened with the beautiful hymn "Hail to the Lord's Anointed." Mrs. (Rev.) Floyd acted as leader for the service and the choir consisted of members from the different choirs, with Mr. William Mowat as organist.

The prayers for the service were given by the following ladies:

Mrs. W. J. Harper gave the prayer for the Church.

Mrs. C. Kay prayed for Home and Foreign Missions.

Mrs. (Rev.) Flatt for Temperance.

Mrs. C. Meiklejohn, prayer for Youth.

Mrs. Arthur Ward for King and Country.

Miss Maud Cooper gave the address on "The Purpose of the World Day of Prayer."

During the offertory, Mrs. W. McLaren contributed the solo, "Consolation," which was much enjoyed. The closing hymn, "The day Thou gavest, Lord, is ended" completed a very helpful service.

Personals.

Mrs. Wallace Baker is spending a few days in Kingston visiting her sister Laurel, who is ill in the hospital there.

Mrs. Henry Thyman was called to Toronto on Friday owing to the serious illness of her husband.

72 Years on One Street

There have been records made for all manner of things, and many of them are of the sort which are duly and officially chronicled and recorded. Others are not, and it remains for some person to make note of them and get it printed in the newspapers.

To illustrate: We read the other day of Mrs. Harry Chapman, of Mitchell in Perth County. She and her husband have been living together for some 56 years or so, but that is not a long record although an enviable one. Mr. Chapman learned to set type 60 years ago, and since then has been printer and correspondent for a number of papers, but that is not a record.

The record came in Mrs. Chapman's remark: 'I'm 72 and I've lived here on this street since I was six months old. And 55 years in this house."

There indeed is something with which to conjure. The full measure of three score years and ten and then a couple more and all on the same street, and in an age when people seem bent on shuffling here and there. At least we will refer to it as a record until we hear of something which exceeds it.

Young Men in the Commons

It all started when some person made the claim that T. C. Douglas, M.P. for Weyburn, Sask., who visited Peterborough at the week-end, was the youngest member of the House of Commons. Then there was a request for information and that comes by using the thumb on the pages of the Parliamentary Guide. In there it seems to be possible to find much about the members; who they are, where and when born, when married, the nature of their business and so on. And that little search showed that Mr. Douglas is not the youngest member of the House, and it also revealed that there are more young men than usual at Ottawa today, and a number of them came on the crest of the Social Credit wave.

Eric Joseph Poole, Red Deer, Alberta, Social Credit, is 28; Hugh John Flaxton, Liberal member for Trinity, Toronto, will be 33 on March 16. Rene Antoine Pelletier, Social Credit member for Peace River, Alberta, is 28. Archibald Hugh Mitchell of Medicine Hat, Alberta, a Social Credit member, is 33, and so is Paul Joseph James Martin, Liberal member from East Essex. John Charles Landeryou, from Calgary East, and the only member whose occupation is that of a chef, is 31, and Social Credit in his political inclination; another Social Credit member of similar age is Walter Frederick Kuhl of Jasper-Edson, Alberta. Thomas Clement Douglas, B.A., M.A., from Weyburn, Sask., about whose age the question was first raised, will be 33 in October. The youngest Conservative member we believe is Azelius Denis, B.A., LL.B., and he is the one member who sits for a riding bearing his own name, St. Denis, Montreal; he will be 29 on the 26th of March. Sarto Fournier, B.A., Liberal member for Maisonneuve-Rosemount, reaches similar age on February 15.

Going in the other direction the doyen of the Commons is Robert Smeaton White, member for St. Antoine-Westmount, Montreal. He was born in Peterborough in 1856.

But none of these age figures equals that of one member of the Ontario Legislature, Farquhar Oliver, member for South Grey. U.F.O. member, he was elected in 1926, 1929 and again in 1934. At the time of his first appearance in the Legislature he was but 22 years of age.

"I Never Said That"

Things have been going along almost too comfortably in debates at Ottawa. Mr. Bennett has been agreeing with Mr. King and Mr. King has been finding no error in Mr. Bennett. It was too good to last. It broke the other day on the agricultural head of Hon. James Garfield Gardiner. Mr. Bennett assailed him and he in turn assailed Mr. Bennett. It was all regarding what some person had said and Mr. Gardiner said the usual thing "Hansard will show tomorrow what I said." Hansard is the daily publication which contains a verbatim report of everything said in Commons.

Mr. Bennett was not satisfied. We judge he was a long distance removed from a state of satisfaction and demanded that the Hansard reporter read right then from his notes exactly what Mr. Gardiner had said. Then the war was on. A member's word must always be taken as the last and final statement regarding what he said, and it is not proper for a Hansard reporter to be placed in the position of contradicting a member. And such was the ruling of Mr. Deputy Speaker.

It may be necessary to have some such ruling as a working basis, but any person who knows and appreciates the standard of reporting done in the Canadian House of Commons knows well enough there is a considerable degree of plain nonsense in the ruling.

Shorthand writers who work on Hansard can stand up with anything the country produces. Plain truth is they are good and if that staff were to walk out some day it would be difficult to the point of impossible to replace it suddenly. There are always two of them on the floor of the House, and they will take anything in English or French, and they will keep pace with the fastest speaker in the place. They take down speeches for about 15 minutes at a stretch and then retire to transcribe their copy, but always there are two Hansard men at work.

They have no interest in the day's work apart from being correct in their work, and when Hansard reporter's notes show that a certain member made a certain statement it can be accepted as a fact that he said just that and nothing else. Members are allowed considerable liberty in making changes between the unrevised edition of Hansard and the revised copy, and when they do so they are actually taking out things which do not look so well in print although they may have sounded brave enough in utterance.

So that may be a very excellent rule which says it is necessary to take the word of a member or minister regarding something which he said regardless of how the Hansard reporter has recorded it, but there is a good deal of nonsense woven into that same ruling.

Here Is Accomplishment

There was a picture in the London Free Press a few days ago, and it showed one man and three ladies at a tea which had followed a meeting. All were standing up and all were holding tea cups. The man in the picture was Dr. Donald S. Hodd, who is in charge of the Harrington Hospital in Labrador, part of the Grenfell undertaking in that country. It appears from the picture that the Doctor has actually balanced a cup and saucer in one hand and on the side of the saucer it looks as though there were a sandwich or a piece of cake. The other hand is entirely free, as though he were using it to make certain explanatory signals while conversing with the ladies. That we are moved to regard as the utmost in masculine accomplishment.

There are some men who can juggle a cup and saucer in one hand and stack up bits of sandwiches and cake around the edge, but their number is few. It requires a certain decision in maintaining the exact point of balance and a certain technique with which few are abundantly gifted. More often the average man laden with his tea cup and sandwich has a certain amount of suppressed misery written upon his face. He fears calamity which may never come, nor is he happy until he has edged himself over toward a window sill or the top of a radiator or the piano bench. If he has opportunity to see his tea and light victuals securely deposited upon something which has within it the requisite degree of solidity then peace comes to camp upon him, to enfold him and to make him happy.

This doctor from Labrador, though, seems to have done the tea cup movement perfectly. In the picture he is not even looking at the thing, and there is an assurance and ease in his poise which would be the envy of men the world over. We regard such performance as nothing short of remarkable.

P. J. Rowe Is Shoved Out

P. J. Rowe, Social Credit member for Athabaska, has been read out of the Social Credit caucus at Ottawa. It is explained that the meaning of such a move is that any statement which Mr. Rowe now makes in the House or out of it will be his own affair; he will not be speaking on behalf of the regularly organized Social Credit group.

There are a good many people in this district who know P. J. Rowe. He was born in Bowmanville and attended high school in Port Hope. On several occasions he has spoken in Peterborough. He was here on the 21st of February last year and his theme then was Social Credit. He was an enthusiast, his explanation of the situation being that Social Credit was not a political matter, but was brought into politics in Alberta because there was no other way open by which action could be secured. When Mr. Rowe was last here there appeared to be no good reason for doubting his sincerity; he seemed like an excellent propagandist for the new order of things, and his enunciation of the Social Credit articles of faith was all that an ardent believer could desire.

The trouble is that P. J. Rowe has been critical of what Premier Aberhart has been doing. He cannot see in it the development of Social Credit at all. As we understand his position, Mr. Rowe has not lost faith in Social Credit but he has lost faith in Mr. Aberhart, and apparently that ranks as the unpardonable sin in the bailiwick of Social Credit. There must be no criticism of Mr. Aberhart.

Mr. Rowe is not the first man who has been turned out of a party caucus, but in making this man a political Ishmaelite there has been no refutation of the charges which he has made. Mr. Aberhart is hopelessly out of touch with the British school of Social Credit. He made the definite promise in his campaign of 1935 that Social Credit would be in operation in 18 months from election day, which was on the 22nd of August. That deadline is just about exhausted, and it will come and go without seeing Social Credit in actual operation. Mr. Rowe may have been run out of the party caucus at Ottawa, but those who ran him out have not yet shown where he was wrong in the charges he made.

It Might Help

People who drive cars should read the newspapers. They should watch for the results of some of the many court cases in which motor accidents furnish the central theme. They might learn a great deal.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey gave two decisions in damage claims in London. In one case a retired farmer and his wife had been struck when crossing a street in London, and the amount awarded there was $12,000.

The other was related to an automobile smash near Wingham in June of 1934, and the amount involved there was $20,500.

The average man does not possess $12,000, nor could he raise it. The number who have $20,500 or any hope of ever accumulating that amount is smaller, and yet these are the figures which are being dealt with in auto smash cases in the courts today.

It might do no harm to stick those two figures some place in the car where you can look at them when you are inclined to step on the gas and take even a small chance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Brantford authorities have decided to ban all bingo games in the Telephone city. In short—Bingo!

The thermometer has failed to get below the zero mark here this year and up to the present there has been no public protest.

P. J. Rowe has been read out of the Social Credit caucus but the indictment he charged against the Aberhart government is not to be disposed of so readily.

The founder of the Dominion Life Assurance Company has died at the age of 95. If all the risks were as good as his life insurance would indeed be a profitable venture.

Among the motorists who might advantageously be placed on the suspended list are the drivers who like to speed through pools of water and slush and drench the folk on the sidewalks.

According to a reporter who is visiting the mining camps in the northwest territories four kinds of pie can be bought in the restaurant at Chipewyan. But only one kind of crust.

Dr. Dafoe has had to take a cut in his salary as township medical health officer. We imagine however that the wolf is still a long way from the door of the country doctor.

That whale which attacked and almost sank a Norwegian whaling vessel seems to have heard the old sporting theory that the best defence is a strong offensive.

Canadians smoked six billion cigarettes last year and as that figures out at the rate of 545 for every man, woman and child in the country the part the fair sex is playing in piling up such a total is fairly evident.

Oshawa presbytery has asked for a referendum on the sale of wine and beer, but in view of the frequently expressed opinion of Premier Hepburn on this subject the Presbytery resolution seems destined to wind up in a pigeonhole.

Hon. R. B. Bennett suggested that Dominion might pay off its national debt by going into the gold mining business. Always ready to help along a good work we believe we have some shares in a gold mine which we will let the Government have for exactly half the amount paid for them.

SAFETY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When I drive in my pink sedan, I am a very careful man, because the horn won't blow; I've messed about with wires and springs, and tightened up a lot of things, but still it will not go.

¶ I fear some officer will come, and point at me a nasty gun, and he will run me in; for as I drive why I should toot, to make the people hop and scoot, and make an awful din.

¶ And so I drove my pink sedan, to leave it with an expert man; I told him what was wrong; I'd press the button on the frame, no toot or blast from out it came, 'twould sing no warning song.

¶ And when I called for my sedan. I met again the expert man, his hair's like yellow corn; and worried like he scratched his head, and then he up and plainly said, I didn't need a horn.

¶ He'd run the thing around the block, to listen to some wheels that knock, he called them too by name; he talked about the brakes and clutch, and said things rattled on so much, folk jumped before he came.

¶ He said that when he shifted gears, it grated on the neighbor's ears, for they were stripped and worn; so when my pink sedan would go, 'twould groan and jump and rattle so—they'd never hear the horn.

House Building Is Under Debate

(Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. MASSEY: Will the minister be good enough to state in what parts of Canada these houses were constructed? Was it pretty much all over the country or was it concentrated in any particular areas?

Mr. DUNNING: I could give it by provinces and the figures for some of the larger cities, but it is a pretty long list.

Mr. MASSEY: Just generally.

Mr. DUNNING: In Ontario the number of family units is 472; Quebec, 503; New Brunswick, 13; Nova Scotia, 101; Prince Edward Island, 6; Manitoba, 13; Saskatchewan, nil; Alberta, nil; British Columbia, 11.

With respect to the lower cost houses, I was interested in the remarks of the hon. member for Greenwood (Mr. Massey) with respect to Sweden's experience. I have read quite a bit regarding their scheme. While I have not had the privilege, as my hon. friend had this summer, of seeing it, I have, as I am sure he has, studied most of the authorities with regard to it, and I was particularly interested in my hon. friend's citation of figures with respect to the rental cost. I take it he was referring to the lowest cost plan now in force in Sweden in the city of Stockholm.

Mr. MASSEY: Correct.

Mr. DUNNING: And the rental cost was $20?

Mr. MASSEY: Twenty dollars a month for the first ten years; $17.50 for the next ten years, and $7.50 for the last ten years.

Mr. DUNNING: And that included taxes?

Mr. MASSEY: It included everything one can think of, even chimney sweeping.

Mr. DUNNING: The only comparison I can make of what is possible under the Dominion Housing Act is to say that an approved house—that is, all the specifications have been approved by the housing administration of the Department of Finance—containging a living room, kitchen, bathroom, three bedrooms, full basement, central heating, insulated and well constructed—incidentally, the criticism that we have had is that our specifications are too stiff—can be built on an average lot for approximately $2,700. An eighty per cent mortgage would amount to $2,160, leaving an equity of $540 to be supplied by the owner. There is the difficulty. The monthly cost to pay interest and amortise the principal on that house would be $14.12. I submit that $14.12 to amortise a house of that kind puts it definitely in the category of low cost housing.

Mr. MASSEY: It does not include taxation?

Mr. DUNNING: I am just coming to the joker. The main reason why people who have $500, and who could get a home of that kind of which they would be proud, are not going into the scheme, is not because of any interest factor, not because the $14.12 per month is too much for them, but because the local taxes are what they are, and again I say that is within provincial and municipal jurisdiction.

Mr. HEAPS: The minister stated that the house including the lot could be built for $2,700, and that it comprised six rooms, fully modern. Am I correct in that?

Mr. DUNNING: I prefer my own description, if my hon. friend does not mind, because I know it is accurate. I shall give the description again: "Low cost housing plans have recently been approved"—it is definite, you see—"for a house which can be built in many sections of Canada at a cost of $2,400." I allowed in my statement, when I said $2,700, $300 for the lot. This house contains living room, kitchen, bathroom, three bedrooms, full basement, central heating system. It is also insulated and well constructed.

Mr. HEAPS: With full plumbing?

Mr. DUNNING: I said bathroom. I do not know how one could have a bath without plumbing.

Mr. HEAPS: That is all right, but the cost seems to me extremely low. I have had some experience in housing, and if it can be done at that price it is a revelation to me.

Mr. DUNNING: I shall not dispute with my hon. friend regarding it. I simply say that these matters are necessarily under continual study by the housing administrator, who is a qualified architect. I have already said that one of the criticisms we are receiving is that our specifications are too stiff. At the same time we are anxious, as I put it, not to start building new slums with dominion government aid. We must have minimum standards and decent homes. But one cannot expect a rush to build under a scheme which rests, as I pointed out, on a degree of willingness on the part of private lenders to cooperate. We have not had 100 per cent cooperation in that regard; and I admit it frankly. A number of the great insurance companies have cooperated splendidly, in working under the Dominion Housing Act. Others have not. May I say for the benefit of those who complain of what great corporations do or refuse to do that the least cooperation we have had has been from the local financial institutions in various parts of Canada. The local institutions have not cooperated under the dominion housing scheme to anything like the same extent as the great insurance companies doing business from coast to coast in Canada have done.

LEAVING THE SHIP.

(Lethbridge Herald)

WE DOUBT very much if anywhere in the British Empire a parallel to what is happening in Edmonton can be found. Here is a Government which has the support of more than 80 percent. of the legislators. Here are Cabinet Ministers who are drawing down salaries well over $7,000 a year. One would have expected that they would have been glad to hold on to such positions under the circumstances. But instead, we find them leaving the ship at the rate of one a month.

Something must be radically wrong, but so far Mr. Aberhart hasn't vouchsafed any explanation whatever. It is about time that he gave the public some reason for the break-up of his Cabinet.

HORRORS!

Canada Needs Houses.

(From the Brantford Expositor.)

MR. DENTON MASSEY'S motion in the House of Commons asking for a national housing plan with a view to slum elimination in the cities of Canada met with immediate constitutional obstacle as a result of recent rulings of the Privy Council. However that point does not detract from the merit of the principle enunciated, and may only furnish one more strong argument in favor of certain amendments to the British North America Act.

That slum areas do exist is only too true. That they should be eliminated is equally clear. As Mr. Massey has said, the need for decent housing accommodation at low rent is a national need. The Federal Housing Act, already in force, has proven of considerable benefit and will continue to do so, but it by no means meets the entire requirement. As Hon. J. E. Lawson, former Minister of National Revenue suggested, Dominion co-operation in a legislative scheme which would make homes costing approximately $2,400 available for rental on a reasonable basis, would be most welcome at the present time.

There can be no question but that there does exist an acute housing shortage, that is to say a lack of small dwellings to rent or sell at a fairly low figure. In Brantford, alone, it is competently estimated that there is room for about two hundred such homes. The depression has seriously hampered normal building activity in the last few years and while it is currently picking up, construction lags far behind. The situation as it affects lamentable slum conditions, also aggravated by the slump, has been made distressingly clear by the Lieutenant-Governor, Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, who has given admirable and timely leadership in what has become virtually a crusade against this evil.

Both from the standpoint of the social welfare of the Canadian people and from that of economic stimulus, any sound plan, whether Provincial or Federal that would result in the supplying of what is, in fact, a crying need, would be most desirable. Even if the B. N. A. Act, as it now stands, makes Mr. Massey's particular motion inapplicable, the fullest consideration might well be given to alternative schemes entailing Federal and Provincial co-operation with a view to attaining the same end.

Uniform Policy Required.

(From the Montreal Star.)

PREMIER DUPLESSIS' proposal to call an interprovincial conference between Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick with the object of establishing an agreement as to uniform methods and regulation of forest exploitation has much to commend it. He told the Quebec Forestry Conference at its opening session in the Capital yesterday that the time had come for co-operation and collaboration, but also for action—and immediate action; that the Government was willing to co-operate with companies engaged in forest exploitation, but that they in turn must do their share to protect and develop the forests. He also warned bluntly that "abuse of a good thing will lead to its destruction."

These are frank words, but none too frank. There has been in the past, in this Province at any rate—and in all other Provinces mentioned above, according to their own Government reports—an exploitation of our forest wealth that has taken properly into account neither conservation nor future development. Timber has been cut down "regardless," and there has been no systematic general scheme of adequate reafforestation adopted. Each Province administers its own forest lands, and although there have been several efforts to secure uniformity in regulations and for the purpose of development, so far that ideal has not been attained.

When it is borne in mind that each year the annual consumption of standing timber in our Canadian forests amounts to about 2,970,000,000 cubic feet; that for the past decade fire has caused an annual loss of about 261,000,000 cubic feet of merchantable timber, and—what is even more important—the young growth on 550,000 acres, while destruction by insects, fungi and windfall amounts to about 700,000,000 cubic feet each year, it will be seen that the depletion of our forest wealth, which it is estimated by Government authorities is proceeding at the rate of about 4,188,000,000 cubic feet per annum,—a tremendous figure,—is a most serious, even alarming, feature. The average annual increment is by no means keeping pace with such a terrific drain. This is one factor in the general forestry situation that might well be far better handled by an interprovincial agreement as to reafforestation than by each Province individually.

Would Enrich Country.

(From the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

THE Ontario Hunters' Game Protective Association is sponsoring a survey of King township in southern Ontario, with the idea of demonstrating that the countryside can be made to produce wild life resources, both plant and animal, in a way that will make it a more desirable place of residence for human beings. There is to be a year's experiment, with Aubrey Davis of Newmarket directing operations as president of the Hunters' Association.

The realization that the older parts of Ontario have been largely denuded of wild life is inspiring action to repair the damage and a majority of the population will co-operate in measures calculated to be helpful in reforesting the waste land and in that way providing shelter, refuge and food for the wild animals and birds that have been crowded out by short-sighted and destructive policies of development.

The part of Ontario referred to in the proposals for rehabilitation and conservation was at one time a paradise of wild life. When white settlers came to that area it had magnificent forests of virtually all kinds of trees known in Canada. The streams and lakes were teeming with fish, and the woods were full of wild animals and game birds of many kinds. These resources were of great value to settlers. They provided shelter, clothing and food. The resourceful newcomer had an unfailing supply of necessities, provided by nature without in live stock, equipment. At $200 per family—a low estimate surely and making no allowance for the subsequent support of the settlers who failed—the outlay would be $50,000,000.

RUNS INTO MONEY.

(Ottawa Journal)

MR GARNET H. NEFF, of Grenfell, Saskatchewan, has a scheme to settle 250,000 British families in Canada during the next five years. Despatches speak of him travelling to Ottawa "where he will seek Government aid."

"Government aid"—that's the rub. All roads, it seems, even good ones, lead to the Government. To some kind of paternalism.

Mr. Neff's scheme may be an excellent one. Also his objectives. Certainly Canada could do with 250,000 British families, which, if they could be settled successfully, would mean an additional million of population, a lot more production, more purchasing power. A million more of population, too, would mean much for our railways.

But how could we settle 250,000 British families—successfully? If they were to be brought here by the Government, or through Government agencies, there would have to be money for their passage over, railway transportation to their destinations, investment in their lands

AID FOR WEST.

(Lindsay Post)

ACCORDING to a report released by the joint committee of churches for Western relief, 158 carloads of fruit and vegetables have been shipped by Easterners to their fellow Canadians in Western Canada during the past year. The division of this merchandise was as follows: 20 cars to Alberta, 124 to Saskatchewan and 14 to Manitoba points from Ontario. Quebec and the Maritimes. Further shipments went from British Columbia.

The United Church's committee reports shipments of a total of 1,789 bales of used clothing. Of these bales, 392 went to Alberta, 1,069 to Saskatchewan, 172 to Manitoba and 169 to Northern Ontario. The railways of Canada have co-operated by shipping the food and clothing free of charge.

THEN AND NOW.

(Toronto Star)

THE old stone schoolhouse a couple of miles west of Walkerton was recently destroyed by fire—that is to say, all the wood in it was burned and only the stone walls stand. When built, sixty years ago, it had on its roll 110 pupils. When it met its death by fire its roll numbered 30 pupils. This gives some idea of the depopulation of rural parts that has gone on during the past half century.

The farming that used to employ men is now largely done by machinery. There are about twenty counties in Ontario that have smaller populations than they had sixty years ago.

These counties do not produce less now than they did half a century ago. The production is even greater, but fewer workers are needed. The new population has gone to the cities, to the west, to the north and to the United States.

Ontario seems to need domestic and local handcrafts which will employ the young and the old in the homes or in the village centres.

NOT OVER 45 YEARS.

(Windsor Star)

THE finance committee of the London City Council has made the interesting recommendation that no person over 45 years of age be hired for city work.

Surely it will not be argued that a man past 45 has lost his usefulness, that he is no longer capable of doing a good day's work, of returning full value for the money paid him. Indeed, it has been said that life really begins at 40 and it is contended by one of the world's greatest industrialists that no one has really attained clear judgement before that age. To make a hard and fast rule, then, that a city should engage no person over 45, for any work, would seem to be going rather too far. One is inclined to think that those in control would be breaking their own regulation not long after making it.

Moreover, if the city is to engage no employees beyond the 45-year-limit, someone will be suggesting that the same rule should apply to candidates for aldermanic and other offices.

"You advise a man to attend to his business?"

"Certainly," answered Mr. Dustin Stax.

"Suppose he is making a business of stock speculation?"

"That isn't attending to his business. That's trying to guess other people's business."

240 THEATRE FOLK FIND EMPLOYMENT

Former Actors, Stage Hands Now With Broadway Productions

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (CP)—Two hundred and forty workers on the Works Progress Federal Theatre Project, including actors, stage hands and writers, found employment in private industry during the last year, it was announced today. The total does not include clerical or other employees who left the project during the same period nor those who found temporary private employment and later returned to the project.

Former WPA actors, scene designers and stage hands are now represented in many Broadway productions, including "King Richard II," "You Can't Take It With You," "White Horse Inn," "The Eternal Road," "Dead End," "Red, Hot and Blue."

Those Splitting Headaches
A Symptom of Disease

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

The cause of headache is the accumulation of poisonous matter in the blood which spreads with it, every moment, to all parts of the body.

This poisoning of the system must be cleared up before you can get rid of the headache, which is a symptom of an unhealthy condition of the body.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15. — Heavy profit-taking failed to scale down the gains on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange on Saturday as reports of dust storms in the south-west sent the price of wheat to within ¼ cent of the season's best levels.

Rebounding from early-session losses of more than a cent, values closed at the highs for the day, ⅝ to ¾c advanced. May was at $1.30½, July $1.24⅞, and October $1.14½. May wheat set the season's best price last December 31 at $1.30¾.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were confined to odd-lot movements but this had little influence on the prevailing bullishness in the face of reports that told of dust storms sweeping large sections of the United States bread basket.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (C.P.). — Cattle traded slowly at steady to firm prices on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day. Calves and sheep were steady with no sales reported on the lamb section by early afternoon. The hog market was unsettled at mid-session. There was no cattle holdover from Thursday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 2,700; calves, 640; hogs, 1,580; sheep and lambs, 1,670.

A few choice weighty steers sold between $8.75 and $7.35, one lot reaching $7.50. Good butcher cattle brought $5.50 to $5.75. A few top steers reached $6. Cows were strong at $4 to $4.50 for tops, with plain ranging down to $3. Bulls were from $3.50 to $4. Choice fed calves traded between $7.50 to $8, mediums as low as $6.

Choice calves were priced from $9.50 to $10, with common grades downward to $5.

Indications were the hog market would close near previous levels. Previous close on off-truck bacons was $8.25 to $8.50. Packers were quoting $10.75 to $11 as a basis price for delivered rail-grade hogs. Sheep brought $2 to $5.50 cwt.

SUFFERS ARM INJURY.

With a deep gash in his arm, suffered when he presumably fell against a window at the rear of the Canadian Legion Hall when a dance was in progress on Saturday night, Joseph Collins, 585 Romaine Street, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital and was attended by Dr. Robert Young. Inquiry today revealed that Collins received his discharge from hospital and returned home on Sunday noon.

SURPRISED AT JOB CRACKSMAN TURNS GUN UPON OFFICER

Has C.N.R. Safe Combination Broken When Sudbury Constable Appears

ESCAPES IN CHASE

SUDBURY, Ont., Feb. 15.—(CP)—Interrupted in the offices of the Canadian National freight early today, a safe-cracker engaged Constable Doyle of the Canadian National Railways police in a running fight and escaped into the darkness.

Although the combination of the safe had been broken off it had not been opened.

Making his rounds on the railway property, Constable Doyle noticed a flashlight reflection on the walls of the office. As he went to open the door the burglar saw him and threw a hammer.

Escaping through a door at the back of the office, the burglar eluded the constable who chased him some distance.

LOST WATCH AND PRISONER

Wadsworth, man-mountain of the Ottawa Roughriders' football line, last night surprised a man attempting to break into the rear entrance of a store. The man fled, Wadsworth after him, and hurdled a fence.

Wadsworth slipped as he sought to leap the fence. The man escaped. A short time later Wadsworth reached for his watch. It had bounced out of his pocket, he believes, as he hit the ice.

TELEVISION IS NOT ROUND THE CORNER SPEAKER DECLARES

Many Problems Still To Be Overcome W. A. Gluesing Tells Rotary

SPEAKS ON ELECTRONS

That television is not just around the corner, unless the corner is a long way off, was one of the many interesting things told the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel to-day by W. A. Gluesing of the General Electric research laboratory at Schenectady, N.Y., who is here in charge of the famous General Electric House of Magic which is to be shown at the Collegiate Institute to-morrow and Wednesday.

Mr. Gluesing, who spoke on the general subject of Electrons gave an informative and entertaining address that was followed with close attention by a large turnout of Rotarians.

He was introduced to the club by Kiwanian Archie B. Gates, who in turn was thanked by President Graham for his assistance in making it possible for Rotary to hear Mr. Gluesing to-day.

The speaker began by pointing out that wherever it was possible to convert any fundamental entity into an electrical entity it was possible to transmit that entity. Thus when it was discovered how to change mechanical energy into electric energy the problem of transmitting it was quickly solved until to-day it was possible to transmit direct current at very high voltage for almost unbelievable distances. The conversion of sound into electrical energy and its tranmission had been made a practical thing, and it was not beyond the bounds of possibility that odor and taste might in time be changed into electrical energy. As a matter of fact, he said, the laboratory at Schenectady had developed an electric nose that was being used to detect the presence of mercury vapor, the fumes of which were very dangerous.

Difficult To Understand.

It was, Mr. Gluesing said, very difficult to understand electrons fundamentally, but a great deal had been learned about their effect. It was known that certain metals when heated gave off electrons and thus was developed the vacuum tube so essential to radio. It had also been discovered that light would drive off electrons from other metals and this had led to the perfection of the photo-electric tube, the magic eye, which was the principle upon which television was based. Before the latter became a practical thing commercially he said many difficult problems would have to be overcome. It was not difficult to transmit a single picture, but to transmit a series of them at the rate of sixteen per second was a much more difficult matter.

In conclusion, Mr. Gluesing after pointing out that certain methods gave out electrons on their own account, dealt briefly with the effect of electrons upon the health, and explained certain interesting experiments that had been carried on in that diracelon.

Rotarian Ross Dobbin in expressing the thanks of Rotary to the speaker, advised the members to see the House of Magic display.

It was announced that the anniversary of Rotary would be observed next Monday. It will be Ladies' Night and the speaker will Charles Peaker of Toronto, former local organist.

CREDIT BALANCE OF TWENTY CENTS

C.C.F. Club Considering Plan Of Group Insurance For Members

A credit balance of twenty cents remained after the C.C.F. Buying Club recently decided to wind up their purchases of coal which have averaged from two to three car loads a month this winter.

"We were not trying to make a profit," Dr. Lorna Cotton told the Examiner. "Our idea was simply to illustrate the advantages of the practical application of co-operation. Call it socialism, because that is really what it amounts to. The members of our club got their supply of coal at $13.10 a ton which included the cost of handling. They had the experience of the responsibility of buying and delivering these rather large quantities, and it is surprising how some of them have developed."

Dr. Cotton said she believed in socialism, an adherence which she publicly announced on various occasions in the recent past, but she has no sympathy with ideas that involve violence. Public services have been expanding steadily upon a socialistic basis, she said, and the co-operative buying of coal was simply another form of it.

"I believe that the surest method of progress is to demonstrate to people how it works. That was really the purpose behind our venture into buying coal. Now we are considering group insurance. We have five hundred of our members in the city and district who are prepared to go into an insurance plan by which we would each pay $2, providing $1,000 which we would put into the bank. If any member died that sum would go to a beneficiary. We would then put up another $2 each. The plan would also include a sinking fund, putting up $2 each a year which would be set aside against the day when as members grow older the mortality rate would be higher."

Dr. Cotton stated that this was the system adopted by the original mutual insurance companies, on a larger scale. The legal aspects of the scheme are being considered, and it may be found that the members will be able to proceed with the plan.

WIRE-HAIR TERRIER BEST DOG OF SHOW

English Import Is Tenth Of Breed To Win At New York Since 1907

Flornell Spicypiece of Halleston, a trim, white, three-year-old bitch imported from England last autumn, had the crown for the best of the show in the Westminster Kennel Club's 61st exhibition—the 10th wire to take the highest honor since 1907.

To get to the top she beat four other best of varieties, including the sole contender from last year's Westminster, the greyhound White Rose of Boveway.

The climax to the three-day show came swiftly before more than 10,000 in the straw carpeted ring of Madison Square Garden last night.

Greyhound Second.

Next in line was the greyhound, best of the sporting hounds.

There was the ink-black Torohill Smoky, young cocker spaniel who rocketed to the top in the gun dogs division; the sturdy Boxer Dorian V. Marienhof of Maselaine, who scored an unusual victory for his breed in the working dogs class; and the fluffy Pekingese, Tang Hao of Caversham Catawba, best of the toy dogs.

West worked swiftly and then nodded to Roberts to take the terrier to the honor spot for a victory popular with the crowd. The terrier is owned by Stanley J. Halle, of Chappaqua, N.Y.

It was her second important triumph of the day—she had been judged by George S. Thomas as the best of the terriers a short time before. Earlier in the week she won the terrier specialty show.

BRUCE McNEVIN IS RE-ELECTED HEAD FARMERS' MUTUAL

CLAIMS DECREASE

Bruce McNevin, M.P., was re-elected president of the Farmers Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company at its 42nd annual meeting Saturday at Lindsay.

The other officers, who were also elected by acclamation were J. J. Robertson, Dunsford, Vice-President; and Miss Pearl M. James, Lindsay, Secretary-treasurer; and the Directors: Thomas Brown, Peterborough; Wesley Campbell, Nestleton; F. H. Clayton, Beaverton; Fred A. Eason, Otonabee; R. S. McElwain, Gelert; J. A. McGillivray, Brechin; and A. E. Rich, Little Britain.

Claims for insurance last year totalled 109 for the amount of $26,267.65, as compared with 134 claims for $46,710.57, in 1935.

Mr. McNevin, in his annual report, said that last year was one of the most successful in the company's history from the standpoint of loss ratio and underwriting profit.

"The total assets of the company entirely independent of the premium note reserve have reached the figure of $152,681.00. After setting aside the required reserve for unearned premiums of $41,878.17, and $207.89 representing premiums collected in advance of their due date, we have a balance of $110,594.94 representing the surplus of assets over all liabilities, for the protection of the policyholders. This is an increase of $29,687.02 over last year's surplus of $80,906.86, practically all of which may be attributed to the reduction in losses.

The amount of revenue earned during the year, from all sources, was $67,967.68 an increase over 1935 of $5,187.36. Operating expenses of $12,592.80, together with fire losses and adjusting expenses totalled $36,609.24, a reduction from the previous year of $18,499.82. After allowing for the necessary depreciation and although the rates were reduced during the year, the profit on the year's operations amounted to $29,164.93.

The amount now invested in bonds and debentures of $125,275.50 represents an increase over the previous year of $29,757.50.

The net insurance written during the year of $6,466,547.00 representing 2,296 policies, is an increase over the amount written in 1935, of 162 policies and $851,178,000.

Due to the continued improvement in the cash position of the company, the board of directors authorized a reduction in the rate of premium on two of the classes of risks which, the company's statistics show to have been the most profitable risks from an underwriting standpoint. A new classification of risks was introduced known as the "preferred" risks, and such risks will now be insured at a lower rate. Although only certain improved risks will benefit by this reduction, practically every policyholder will benefit indirectly by the further reduction which was effected in the rate on schools, churches and halls, which are the property of the various groups of our members, who either in their taxes or gratuitously contribute to the insurance premium and other expenses necessary to the maintenance of these buildings.

While the company has not made compulsory the use of spark arresters and fire extinguishers, yet where the risk can be further protected by this means, we strongly recommend the use of these fire preventive devices."

certain prisoners they dislike. He said he took no part in the disturbance because he had "only two months to go."

The principal card game played by prisoners is rummy, the inquiry was told. Witness had been punished when caught playing poker, in which the "ante" was the tobacco issued by the institution. He declared power was not generally played, said rummy and bridge were popular.

One of the few prisoners learning a trade was a former messenger, aged 24, who was learning to be a machinists at the reformatory tailor shop. He said he liked the work, had been employed there seven months.

Another complaint of dirty blankets was brought out by Mr. Gillanders when witness told him he had been using the same blankets continuously since May when he entered the reformatory.

He said it was stuffy in the dormitories at night and that smaller prisoners often yelled for windows to be opend but that bigger prisoners had kept them closed.

Most dishes returned by prisoners after meals contained "a lot of meat and vegetables" not eaten, the inquiry was told by a prisoner of 18 who had been working in the kitchen for a week prior to the hunker strike and riot January 17.

He said the kitchen was "not so clean as it could be. The floor was clean, but the food could have been kept cleaner. A found a match stick and a pin in food. Cooked food left over when not served to prisoners was ground up into hash."

Witness had been punished for playing dice made out of the soap.

"Is that why you wanted to get your own soap in?" asked Mr. Gillanders after the prisoner had objected to ban on parcels of toilet articles from friends and relatives.

Meat Saved Up For Week

Unused cooked meat is collected and saved from day to day for about one week until a quantity accumulates and is then served as hash or meat pie, the inquiry was told by a prisoner aged 21, who had worked several months in the kitchen. He is one of two brothers in the institution.

"The odd ends are piled up in one corner of the kitchen and much of the meat is rotten, it has fermented," the witness told the inquiry. "It is not kept frozen in the ice box but just placed in corner of kitchen. It should be thrown out."

Witness said his job had been to pick up bread left on the table by prisoners. It was made into toast for throwing out tea-spotted bread, didn't know what inmate handled the bread, and some had tea spilled on it," he said. "I've got into trouble for hrowing out tea-spotted bread, and a guard has picked up and put in the basket some bread I had thrown away."

The young prisoner said he was afraid to name the guard who had retrieved the bread. Judge Madden told him he should name the guard so that the practice could be stopped, but the prisoner said, "I don't want to get into trouble."

Farming Picking Up Stones

During nearly two years at an industrial school a prisoner 18 years old studied farming and liked it, but he told the inquiry he didn't want to farm at the reformatory. "Farming here is mostly picking up stones," he said.

He works from choice with a pick and shovel in the "bull gang," preferred it to the kitchen, he said.

"If a kitchen worker does anything wrong some fink or rat tells a guard right away."

From complaints received the commission feels Guard Griffin is unpopular with prisoners, many of whom dislike his "hollering and yelling at everybody."

"Do you mean he is a nagger, always jawing at prisoners?" Judge Madden asked witness, a boy of 18.

"Yes, he doesn't talk decently to any of us. He's always yelling for no reason."

Witness said he had been locked up with seven others on the night of the riot and that the following day two guards had told him there was no complaint against him and he could return to his dormitory and to his work.

"I refused to go because I didn't want the others to think me a fink or rat," he said. He has since regretted his decision having been on short rations since, he said.

Pies were sneaked from the kitchen by prisoners working there who received 25 cents to 40 cents cash for each pie, witness told the inquiry. Cocoa, powdered milk and sugar were taken for drink and sliced ham was taken for sandwiches, he said. These were eaten in the beds at night.

"I like to fool around pipes," said a prisoner aged 22, who declared he would like to learn plumbing.

Afraid To Complain.

He was another prisoner to show fear of making complaints. He said he would say nothing.

"Other prisoners say they won't say anything, and we have to drag it out of them piece-meal," said Ralph Bone, assistant counsel.

Some of the prisoners locked up since the January 17 riot have been given tobacco by guards friendly to them although others are not allowed tobacco, the witness said.

"This has been going on right along?" asked Mr. Bone.

"Yes," was the reply. "Other boys go to the hospital for an enema and get a cigarette there afterwards. I went up last week and had a tooth pulled and got a cigarette."

Soviet Russia's Red army aeroplanes sweeping over Moscow — Japanese soldiers, equipped with wartime kit, on parade in Tokio. — British sea power—a fleet of warships in manoeuvres — France's marching men and (BELOW) an aerial gunner in action — Italian 'iron cavalry'—baby tanks by hundreds—on display at Bolzano — Germany's anti-aircraft guns with aeroplanes as targets.

Leaving his retreat in Kingston, Jamaica, where he has spent a two months' vacation, and returning to an England striving mightily to match other European nations in a race for armament supremacy, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, who was chancellor of the exchequer in 1914 and became the head of Britain's wartime government, declared: "The world is going mad. It is the same thing that happened in 1914—some day or other they will fight. Ten years ago the world spent $3,500,000,000 for armaments and now they are spending $12,500,000.000. Almost quadrupled in the last ten years, and still going up." The scenes ABOVE tersely illustrate the situation that caused the former statesman's utterance.

SCOTTISH STONE IS CHAIR INLAY

Coronation Stone Replete With Various Traditions In Britain

BROUGHT TO ENGLAND

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(CP)—The chair in which King George VI will be crowned was made for King Edward I. It is of oak and dates from the beginning of the 14th century. Originally it was brightly decorated with gilt and glass mosaic. The supporting lions are comparatively modern.

Enclosed in the chair is the "Stone of Scone," on which the Scottish Kings had been crowned. Edward I brought it from Scotland in 1297, and on it has been crowned every subsequent King of England.

This block of reddish sandstone from the west coast of Scotland is traditionally regarded as Jacob's pillow at Bethal, afterwards the "Lia Fail," or "Stone of Destiny," on the sacred hill of Tara in Ireland. It is also said to have been the pillow of St. Columba in Iona.

Only twice has the Coronation chair left the Abbey—when Cromwell was installed as Lord Protector in Westminster Hall, and when, during the Great War, it was placed for safety in the crypt below the Chapter House.

The State Sword and Shield, also used in the Coronation ceremonies, date from Edward III, who reigned in the 14th century.

TWEED IS FLOODED BY SUNDAY RAIN

Considerable Damage Is Done Through Washouts—Ice Cutters Busy

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 15.—With the heavy downpour early Sunday morning, the precipitation for the first half of February was increased to two inches, being .35 inches above the average for the month. Of this amount 6.2 inches was snow and 1.38 inches actual rain. Out of the 14 days, there has been rain or snow on ten days. The highest temperature to date for the month has been 45 degrees on the 8th and the lowest one below zero on the 3rd and 4th.

The heavy downpour of Sunday flooded several sections of the village during the morning, and in many places the walks were under several inches of water.

The property of Mr. Badgely, through which runs a small stream, suffered considerable damage. Several weeks ago, the top soil to a depth of about twelve inches was completely washed into the lake, leaving only a few rocks, and on Sunday a considerable amount of the sub-soil of his garden went into the lake, as the water rushed through the garden. In many places lawns and roads were under from 10 to 16 inches of water, and the road on South Metcalfe street, became dangerous for vehicular traffice, as the small stream threatened to undermine the road, as the culvert was unable to take the rush of water, and it overflowed onto the road. In other parts of the village the roads were considerably weakened and cave-ins occurred.

Although an open winter, and very little snow, one of the best crops of ice in many seasons is being harvested on Stoco Lake. It is free from the effects of snow, and is approximately twenty inches in depth. The local storage houses plan to cut 5,000 cakes of ice this season.

Although there has been considerable precipitation this month, the Moira river has not risen to any appreciable extent, and it is not expected that any serious flood menace will occur on the lower stretches of the river.

MARMORA

JAMES McINROY RECALLS SHANTY DAYS IN RAWDON

Started In Woods When 12—Tells Of Selling Wood In Stirling At $1.25 Cord

NEARS 85TH BIRTHDAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Feb. 15.—Days long since past when potash was drawn from Rawdon township and the surrounding country into Stirling to realize $3 a hundred loomed largely in the picture which James McInroy, who lives just outside the southern corporation limits of Marmora, drew for the Examiner representative, who accepted the splendid hospitality of this hardy veteran and his kindly spouse on a recent evening.

Mr. McInroy, who if living on April 18th will have attained to his eighty-fifth birthday, went into the woods with his father when twelve years of age. Cordwood at that time was delivered in Stirling for $1.25 a cord.

Like many of the old settlers of Canada's Confederation period, he enjoys telling the younger generations of the days when large piles of elm, maple and beech about ten feet high, were burned to ash and this leached into potash kettles and later boiled down for the period of four to five days until, as he says, "all the strength was out of the ashes."

Shanty in Huntingdon.

Mr. McInroy's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald McInroy, were born in Scotland and with three children eventually took up residence in a shanty in the township of Huntingdon. Four children were later born, including James. He was born at the residence of his uncle, John McInroy, who also had left Scotland to reside in this country. When James McInroy was a boy, his family moved into a shanty which his father erected in the then densely wooded Rawdon township. Later the shanty gave way to a frame, which was destroyed by fire. Afterwards James McInroy's older brother, Ned, built the family residence, which was to endure for years.

Though only having to walk the length of a concession to reach school, young James McInroy did not attend for many years. In the winter so often referred to by old worthies as that of the deep snow, he recalls that the first morning of that noted storm, the lady teacher was drawn in a sleigh to the school and as he was the only scholar to turn up, both returned to their respective abodes without much delay.

At the age of sixteen he was driving his father's team of oxen and later on he was a shantyman for the two well known lumber companys of that day, the Gilmour and the Rathbun

Two Shanty Games.

The two games he remembers best as having been played in the shanties and which brings a laugh as he recalls them, were "Fat sheep" and "Shuffle the brogue."

He and his brother Ned were considered good step dancers in their day, the latter, who is only deceased a few years, winning for his first prize for that act, a handsome pair of knee boots at a picnic put on by the congregation of the Sacred Heart church, Marmora about sixty years ago. James has also won prizes for step dancing, the last at Marmora Fair when he was 81 years of age. Both brothers were fiddlers for many years.

Though he never favoured hunting as a pastime, James McInroy used to keep an old musket and it would afford him a thrill to fire desultory shots at the odd bear which would occasionally come into the corn patch or other food-producing areas. For the period he lived in Marmora township, nigh unto seventeen years, he has turned to angling in Crowe river as a very satisfying pastime.

Will Be 60 Years Wed.

Next September, Mr. and Mrs. McInroy hope (God willing) to quietly celebrate their diamond wedding. In a Methodist manse in Belleville in 1877 they were married by the Rev. Harper. Mrs. McInroy, before her marriage, was Elizabeth Huff of the 10th concession of Rawdon township. She modestly related to the Examiner how her father, the late Isaac Huff, who died at the advanced age of 92, was a soldier who was close to General Brock when the latter fell in battle. He was given a captain's commission but never used it. His birthplace was in Duchess county, in the U.S.A.

Except for rheumatism, Mrs. McInroy, who was 79 years of age last November, could claim perfect health. She was a diligent reader throughout her lifetime and is a conversationalist of the modest and refreshing type. Out of twelve children born to their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. McInroy have nine living. Two sons served in the Great War, William being killed in action, and James, who returned to his native land, dying a few years later.

Before moving to their present address, Mr. McInroy operated a lime kiln in Rawdon township for nine years, the kiln having been erected by George Wellman, now of Marmora, but formerly of Rawdon township.

FENELLA

TWENTY MEMBERS HAVE GONE AHEAD

Fenella Women's Institute Honors Memory Of Those Who Have Passed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FENELLA, Feb. 15.—Mrs. John Cowling was hostess to the regular monthly meeting of Fenella Women's Institute which was held in the Community Hall on Thursday, with a goodly number of members despite the icy roads. Miss Ruby Herrington kindly offered her home for the library again this winter. Arrangements were made for a euchre party to be held in the Community Hall on Friday, February 26, the committee elected for the tables and prizes were, Mrs. D. Adams, Mrs. Ray Eagleson and Mrs. M. Lonsberry; doorkeepers, Mrs. C. McNaught and Miss R. Herrington; tea committee, Mrs. Frank George and Mrs. H. Sherwin.

The next month's meeting will be held in the Community Hall with Miss L. Jibb as hostess and Mrs. A. Waldie and Mrs. Roy Smith in charge of the program. Mrs. C. McNaught thanked the hostess for her hospitality.

A remembrance day program was then enjoyed. Mrs. Tucker, the secretary, read the list of the members who have passed away during the thirty years in which the Institute was first begun, the number being twenty, followed by prayer by Mrs. Frank George, the president. Reading, "Why Do We Wait," Mrs. Ray Eagleson; pianoforte solo, Mrs. E. Tucker; reading, "Remembrance of Mothers Who Have Gone Before," by Mrs. W. Rogers; solo, "Bells of St. Mary's," by Mrs. E. Lonsberry; reading, "The Unforgotten," by Mrs. W. H. Sandercocks; an address on "Remembrance" by Rev. L. W. Scott. Mrs. Lonsberry tendered a vote of thanks to Rev. L. W. Scott.

Y.P.S. Holds Meeting

The Young People's Society of Fenella United church held their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening with Rev. L. W. Scott as leader in the absence of the president, Miss Donna Talling. Miss B. McNaught acted as the secretary in the absence of Miss L. Leach. The meeting was in charge of the missionary convenor, Miss R. Herrington. Reading by Mrs. Jas. Curtis; solo by Mrs. E. Lonsberry; scripture lesson was read by Merlin McNaught. The missionary topic was given by Rev. L. W. Scott.

Arrangements were made for a crokinole party to be held in the hall on Friday, February 19.

Personals

Mr. Potter, Oak Heights, was a recent visitor at the home of his daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Merriam and daughter Lena spent a day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. McNaught recently.

MILLBROOK

DAY OF PRAYER IS WELL OBSERVED

Millbrook Women Gather In Grace Church For Annual Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 15.—Mrs. S. E. Eakins, president of the Women's Missionary Society of Grace Presbyterian Church, presided at the annual world Day of Prayer observed this year in Grace church. Representatives of the various organizations were in attendance and assisted with the program.

Miss Ruth Thorndyke gave piano accompaniment for the singing of hymns and the call to worship was voiced by Mrs. Z. Seaton and followed by responsive reading.

Special prayers were offered by Miss Estella Hetherington, Mrs. D. Lunn, Mrs. J. R. Thompson, Mrs. T. Campbell and Mrs. (Rev.) Siscoe.

An inspirational address based on "The Purpose of the World Day of Prayer" was given by Miss P. Macnamara and Miss Vaneta Ingram rendered a vocal solo "He keeps on loving us still" accompanied at the piano by Miss Ruth Thorndyke.

EAST EMILY

ARE ENTERTAINED BY BETHEL SOCIETY

Fifty Guests Enjoy Program When W.A. Stages Interesting Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

EAST EMILY, Feb. 15.—On Monday evening about fifty people gathered in the basement of Bethel United church when the members of the W.A. entertained the W.A. and the Guild from St. John's and St. James' Anglican churches. The president of the Bethel Society, Mrs. Ira Switzer, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Oswald Ruth gave a talk on the first two chapters of the study book, taking for her subject "Circle of Friendship." The program was as follows: Solo, Elva Boate; solo, Miss Mildred Magee; reading, Miss Dorothy Dayman; solo, Elva Boate; reading, Mrs. W. Howden; duet, Misses Jean Faulkner and Gwenyth Harrison; instrumental, Elva Boate.

Miss Helen Andrew put on two most interesting contests after which refreshments were served and a social hour spent. The attendance was very good despite the very bad roads and wet night.

Enjoyable Meeting

The weekly meeting of the Bethel Y.P.S. was held on Thursday evening with a good attendance. The president, Ralph Hanbidge, took charge of the business period. The Omemee young people accepted the invitation to come down on Wednesday, February 17. Rev. Mr. MacTavish suggested that the young people of Bethel take charge of an afternoon church service some Sunday in the near future. It was decided to get Homer Borland for the speaker. The meeting was then turned over to the missionary convenor, Arthur Darling. Mr. Johnston of Omemee gave a very beneficial and interesting talk.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Sherin spent Thursday visiting with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith, of Reaboro.

Mr. Harry Jackson has returned home from the Purina exursion to St. Louis.

The members of St. John's Anglican church held a most successful pancake social in the school on Tuesday evening and despite the very icy roads it was most successful.

Blow to Small Men.

"We want to have a free Sunday, but we cannot afford it," said J. E. Fenson, representing a number of associated retail stores. He told the meeting 50 per cent. of the small storekeepers would be forced to close if the Act were enforced strictly.

Numbers of one-room dwellers and occupants of small apartments, accustomed to buying only enough food for one meal, were inconvenienced on finding their favorite stores closed yesterday, but most of these persons had been canny enough to break their rule and lay in extra supplies.

One mother, somewhat indignant, reported that, finding the milk she was about to feed her baby had soured, she had been forced to scout around the city for almost an hour before obtaining a fresh supply.

Smokers found little difficulty obtaining cigarettes, however, and bottled soft drinks could be purchased at many restaurants or lunch counters for outside consumption. Some cafe operators took measures to evade the law.

At some restaurants cigarettes were sold without restraint, but the package seals were broken before being passed across the counter.

One man who ordered a cup of coffee and toast, regularly 10c, and a 10-cent package of cigarettes, at a lunch counter, said he had been informed the cafe was "giving away" cigarettes with Sunday lunches, but the price of coffee and toast had risen to 20 cents.

CROWNING LIVENS BRITISH PROGRAM FOR NINETY DAYS

Varied Festivities Will Run Through Three Months In Great Britain

VISIT TO SCOTLAND

LONDON, Feb. 15 (CP)—May, June and July, the best months of the English summer, will be packed with Coronation events. Each week some great festivity will be held.

From the beginning of May until nearly the end of July one event will succeed another. A week before King George and Queen Elizabeth are crowned in Westminster Abbey May 12 two Courts will be held at Buckingham Palace.

On the Monday of Coronation week convoys and deputations from abroad will arrive. The following day the Dominion prime ministers, and the representatives of India and the Colonies, will present addresses of congratulation to the King. On the same day all official representatives of the Commonwealth will lunch with their Majesties at Buckingham Palace. In the evening the Duke of Gloucester will give a dinner party.

Next morning will come the Coronation itself, with the royal procession to and from the Abbey, the ornate and solemn ritual of consecration. In the evening the King himself will broadcast a message to the Empire.

A state banquet, a dinner at the Foreign Office by Foreign Secretary Eden, a Court Ball, and the departure of the foreign envoys will complete the events of this crowded week.

In the following week the King and Queen will lunch at the Guildhall on Wednesday, driving through the City financial district—and on Thursday will review the Fleet.

On Empire Day, May 24, their Majesties will attend a service at St. Paul's Cathedral. In the days following there will be a Court Ball at Buckingham Palace, an evening reception by the London County Council, a levee, the Trooping of the Colors, another levee, a garden party and, at the end of June, a review of ex-service men.

In July there will be the visits of the King and Queen to Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, and finally on July 22 a second garden party at Buckingham Palace.

A lawn of Khartoum Cathedral, in the Soudan, has been converted into a playground with swings and miniature railway.

OBITUARY

ALBERT ERNEST CARVETH.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 15.—The funeral of Albert Ernest Carveth, who died suddenly following an attack of pneumonia within two weeks of the death of his wife, was held last Monday from the family residence, Cavan. The service was conducted by Rev. A. L. Siscoe, pastor of St. Andrew's United church, Millbrook and the pall bearers were Messrs. Moore, Cavan, Earnest Barton, Lakefield, Henry Barton, North Monaghan, Joseph and Harold Tedford and Hillard Darling, Warsaw. Interment was made in the family burial plot in the Warsaw cemetery. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Mr. Carveth, who was in his fifty-seventh year, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Carveth of Dummer township, where the late Mr. Carveth was born and educated.

Following a period of residence at Peterborough he removed to his late residence, Lot 14, Concession 6, Cavan, where he has been a highly respected citizen of the township for a number of years. His many acts of kindliness and willingness to help others in need endeared him to the hearts of many. He was a member of St. Andrew's United church.

3 KILLED BY BOMBS

MADRID, Feb. 15.—(AP).—Insurgent planes bombed Aranda, strategic point on the Valencia highway 17 miles southeast of Madrid, today, killing three persons and wounding 26 others, it was announced.

Two bombs fell on a hospital, government commanders reported. They wrecked the main ward, from which all patients had been removed.

FORMER ATHLETE ALMOST A CRIPPLE

Now "Right as Rain" After Taking Kruschen

Read this letter from an athlete, telling how he obtained relief from rheumatic pains:—

"My knees were so stiff with a kind of rheumatoid trouble that I could only rise from a chair with pain and difficulty. This had been growing worse and worse for about two years. It was all the more galling because in my young days I had played for two counties at football and held my college record for the 100 and 220 yards. Naturally I tried all sorts of embrocation, but with absolutely no perceptible effect. Then I decided to try Kruschen Salts, and to cut a long story short, I am now as right as rain."—W.S.T.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to stimulate the excretory organs to healthy, regular activity, and so enables them to eliminate this excess acid from the system.

well as highway, lake, and river traffic under the proposed Board of Transport, and Wednesday has been set aside to obtain the views of the airway companies on the legislation.

The decisions of the Privy Council in London on Canadian Social legislation submitted to it will be thrown open to a full-dress debate in the House, it was learned. Some of the observations of their Lordships have sent constitutional lawyers here into a huddle and there is wide difference of opinion as to whether the Statute of Westminster did in fact what it purported to do, place the Parliament of Canada on a status equal to that of the Parliament at Westminster.

Justice Minister Lapointe has intimated the Government's view of the judgments would be made known in due course. The law officers of the Crown will advise on whether, in view of the Privy Council's decisions the acts found ultra vires should be repealed. They will also advise whether Canada should take any action to supplement the act passed in Westminster providing for a regency under certain circumstances.

More on Gas Chamber

The House Committee studying the proposal of J. K. Blair (Lib., Wellington North), that lethal chamber be substituted for hanging of persons condemned for murder will meet again Tuesday. The country apparently is concerned about this measure. George W. McPhee (Lib., Yorkton), chairman of the committee, has received a sheaf of letters, mostly from women, protesting against any change that would make death easier for a murderer.

On the other hand the majority of letters received by Dr. Blair support the lethal chamber idea. At the last meeting Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce), suggested Warden Lawes of Sing Sing Penitentiary be asked to give evidence. No action was taken at that meeting and it probably will be considered further Tuesday.

The special committee on the cost of farm machinery will meet this week to decide its program. The investigation is a hang-over from last session and the committee will start where it left off at prorogation.

KINSMEN HANDLED 245 EYE PATIENTS PAST THREE YEARS

New High Of 87 Cases In 1936 Were Looked After By Service Club

COST WAS $543

Marked progress is reflected in the report of the Sunshine Committee of the Kinsmen Club bearing on the work of the eye clinic for under-privileged school children.

The widening scope of this activity since its inauguration in 1934 is shown by the fact that 87 cases were disposed of last year as compared with 82 cases in 1935 and 76 cases in the previous year. A total of 245 cases have been handled during the past three years with an approximate expenditure over that period of $1,300.

According to the treasurer's report the outlay for the eye clinic in 1936 was $542.83, an amount considerably greater than that spent in either of the two previous years.

Chairman's Report

In his report as chairman of the Sunshine Committee for the past year, H. H. P. Johnston notes:

"Of the total of approximately $543 expended, $466 was for medical fees, as follows: cost of new glasses supplied, $387; repairs to glasses, $42; change of glasses, $37; total, $466.

"The balance of $543 was required to meet expenses chargeable to the Sunshine account, details of which are available from the treasurer's records.

"An interesting feature noted in 1936 was the increased cost of repairs as compared with the experience of former years. That was to be expected with the increasing number of glasses supplied, however, the experience of those handling the records indicated in many cases lack of responsibility on the part of children or their parents to take proper care of the glasses.

"All patients requiring repairs were cautioned and the schoolteachers with whom the committee has contact were requested to cooperate with us by further cautioning the children against carelessness.

New Card System

"During the year improved types of case record cards were experimented with. The large sized card instituted in 1934 was reduced to a much smaller one which is more easily filed and carried the information which experience has found to be essential.

"The system now in effect for the handling of contacts was tried out in 1935 and put into effect in 1936 and is working satisfactorily. Under the present system the school nurses refer all deserving cases to the member of the Sunshine Committee in charge of records and particulars of the case are taken. Cards are issued to be presented by the patient to the doctor. By this method delay in investigation is eliminated, cases receive prompt attention (in most cases the same day as recorded).

"In this connection the committee expresses complete satisfaction with the services of Dr. C. C. Cragg and Dr. N. D. Buchanan and its appreciation for the splendid cooperation and assistance of the School nurses, the Misses M. V. Jory and Jessie Deyell, in bringing the cases to the attention of the committee.

"The foregoing covers the main phases of the club's spending activities. The year 1936 was the best yet. Such a performance was made possible by the combined interest and loyalty of the club members and the generous support of the public in the raising of funds to carry on service work. The Sunshine Committee is merely the agency through which the work was done and as such is grateful for the support given it."

OBITUARY

HENRY GOULD

Henry Gould of 136 Lock street died at St. Joseph's Hospital early Sunday morning after an illness of a month's duration. He was in his 82nd year. A native of London, England, Mr. Gould had resided in Peterborough for 35 years. Prior to his retirement he was foreman of the Induction Motors Department at the C.G.E. He was a member of St. George's Anglican Church. Besides his widow (the former Ester Floyd), he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Harry Alexander, Winnipeg, Man.; Mrs. D. J. Kerns, Summit, N.J.; a son, John Gould, Kansas City, and a step-son, W. E. Parks of this city. The funeral is to be held from the family residence on Tuesday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. T. S. Gault, rector of St. George's, officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

ARCHIE MILES REID

Well known to the Peterborough public through his partnership in the Reid Brothers service station at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, Archie Reid passed away at his home, 485 McDonnel street, Sunday. He was in his 44th year, and had been ill for some time.

He was born in Springbrook, Ontario, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William M. Reid. Eleven years ago he came to this city from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, and entered the service station field here. He was a member of the Orange Order and of All Saints' Anglican Church.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Maude Summers; three sons, Billie, Eddie and Allan, all at home; and one brother, Burleigh Reid of this city.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock from All Saints' Church to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. D. Paterson will officiate.

Purchase Printing Plant

MAX SWANSTON

DONALD CLARK

The job printing department of the Peterborough Examiner has been purchased by Max J. Swanston and Donald S. Clark who have been in charge of that branch of the business for more than a year. The new proprietors are young men who have been associated with commercial printing for years. They plan to operate under the name of the Peterborough Printing Company.

Two Peterborough Men Buy Job Printing Department

Max J. Swanston And Donald S. Clark Take Over Examiner's Plant

MOST MODERN EQUIPMENT

The job printing department of the Peterborough Examiner Limited has been purchased by Max J. Swanston and Donald S. Clark, who have been in charge of that branch of the business since the former company's interests passed into a new ownership nearly a year and a half ago.

The important transaction announced to-day transfers to Messrs. Swanston and Clark possession of the old Examiner building on George Street, together with the plant equipment, stock, and goodwill. It is understood that Mr. Clark will continue as office manager and Mr. Swanston as sales manager in control of a long-established printing and book binding enterprise which carries with it the asset of a splendid reputation in the field of printing in this province.

The new proprietors are young men who have been associated with the business on George Street for years. They have already had the benefit of more than a year's experience in the responsibility of conducting this branch of the Examiner's business which was bought from Messrs. R. M. Glover and R. R. Hall, K.C., in 1935, and have demonstrated their ability to manage it successfully. In this connection they were given a free hand by the management of the Peterborough Examiner Limited, and they have received every encouragement in the opportunity to acquire the printing branch of the business for themselves. The volume and the quality of the work they have been producing afford ample guarantees of the standard of printing which may be expected from the new George Street firm in the future.

It will be a matter of satisfaction to the citizens generally and especially to the many friends of Mr. Swanston and Mr. Clark that this old Peterborough printing establishment is remaining in the hands of local men, young executives who are fully qualified to carry it on successfully. The equipment is thoroughly modern and during recent months has been reassembled in the north half of the old Examiner building. Business will be continued with only a minor and superficial change, the new name will be The Peterborough Printing Company. The south half will be completely renovated for rental.

DR. A. H. CARLEY IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Noted Stockman And Veterinary Once Practised In Warkworth—Ill Only Week

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—Well known by the leading stockmen throughout the Province, Dr. Arthur Andrew H. Carley, Inspector of Health of Animals, the Dominion Department of Agriculture, died Saturday. He had been ill only a week.

Born in Prince Edward County, Dr. Carley was a graduate of the Veterinary Department of the University of Toronto in 1912. Following private practice in Warkworth, Ont., he was appointed to the Health of Animals Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, at Chatham, and in 1917 went to Brantford in the same capacity. He came to Toronto in 1919, being appointed to the Harris Abattoir, in charge of the inspection of the health of animals. Later he was transferred to the offices of the Field Work Department, Toronto, where he remained until his death.

He was a member of Unity Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and a member of the Royal Arch Chapter. He was a member of the Board of Stewards of Humbercrest United Church. Surviving is his widow, formerly Sarah A. Barr; one son, Alderson, and one daughter, Nadine. His father, Philip Carley, of Prince Edward County, and three brothers, Wray and Ross Carley of Prince Edward County, and Forest C. Carley of Montreal, also survive.

Currie, Alex Chivas, Charles Jeffries. 12th, St. Paul's South End: E. H. Sturrock. Central Rover Crew: F. Symonds, Mr. Crough, and others mentioned in group attended.

A short talk was given by the District Commissioner on troop committees, their objects and relationship with group. Miss Farr gave a tap dancing number. The Central Rover Crew went into discord. Rovers Grady, Rose and Symonds gave a short sketch on Serenading, followed by the Rovers chasing one fish ball into musical arena.

At St. John's Rover Crew, a knotty problem was tied up. What with reef and sheet and bowline on the bite. After which, Gordon Clegg gave a vivid talk on the 4th Scout Law: A friend to all. Remember the story of the Good Samaritan, a man injured by the wayside. The Good Samaritan stopped and tended him, took him to the inn, and saw all that could be done for him. That is what we Scouts have before us to follow.

No matter what color, race or creed, we are one in God.

The Central Crew received an invitation from their Skipper, Gordon Langley, to attend the House of Magic on Wednesday; also held a spelling match of words taken from the St. John First Aid Manual. If the ice holds out a skating party will be held at the Sacred Heart rink on Thursday, February 18.

Travelling up north, I sought the headquarters of the 11th. Feeling my way through the darkness of the lower floor, I crept up the ladder, hoisted the hatch and entered a veritable pirates' lair. Up in one corner a patrol was learning knots; whilst in another a tenderfoot was being put through his pacings.

Boys, what a den, and what a splendid bunch of boys. I had a merry time, and am looking forward to my next visit. Good scouting to the 11th.—The Skipper.

JAMES GRADY WAS FAITHFUL MEMBER OF SACRED HEART

Requiem Mass Is Celebrated At Funeral Of Aged Parishioner By Rev. J. J. O'Brien

BISHOP O'CONNOR PRESENT

The funeral of James Grady this morning from the family residence on High street to St. Peter's cemetery was attended by many of his friends. At the Church of the Sacred Heart, of which he had been a member from the time the parish in the south end of the city was formed, a requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, assisted by Rev. Dr. Masterson and Rev. J. C. Maloney. Bishop O'Connor was present in the sanctuary with Rev. Dean O'Sullivan and Rev. V. J. Corkery. The pall bearers were William J. Grady, John J. Howden, Robert A. Dobbin, Fred W. Jopling, A. J. Rose and Joseph P. Grady.

The late James Grady was one of the last of the residents of the southwest community of the city and its suburbs. For forty years he had carried on a meat business on Charlotte street, and during the early stage of that period and prior to it had been a contemporary of George Webber, Harry Winch, N. T. LaPlante, J. J. Howden and others who are remembered by the older citizens of that time when business was entirely an individual enterprise. As a boy he had lived on the old homestead at the gore of Lansdowne street and the Peterborough-Port Hope highway, opposite the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, the old Webber farm.

At the conclusion of the Mass, Rev. Father O'Brien spoke of Mr. Grady as a charter member of the Church of the Sacred Heart, quoting St. Matthew's verse: "Well done thou good and faithful servant; because thou hast been faithful over a few things I shall place thee over many."

He Was Faithful.

"These words are most applicable to the late James Grady," Rev. Father O'Brien said. "He was faithful over a few things in this life; and all the affairs of life are but as a few things in the sight of God as compared with eternity. By his fidelity we feel assured that he has earned a place in heaven. For the worldling and the atheist death is a tragedy. They discover that life has been a failure, for "what will it profit a man to live unless he live forever. To the just man death is a triumph. It is forbidden to pronounce a eulogy on the occasion of a funeral, but to hold up his life as an example is I think permitted. When this church was built 27 years ago Mr. Grady was an enthusiastic and generous parishoner. And he made use of the church, not only on Sundays and holy days, but also on week days as far as it was possible. He regularly and frequently received holy communion. His attitude in church was most edifying. He believed in God, and in God's church. He hoped in God and his life seemed to speak in loud terms the words of Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." James Grady loved his neighbor for the love of God and because he knew that his neighbor was made in the image and likeness of God. We hope that he has earned the prize of heaven. His life of faith, hope and charity was an example to his family and to all who knew him."

$1,173.71 GIVEN TO FLOOD RELIEF

Money Not Spent In Supplies To Complete Car Sent To American Red Cross

In addition to generous donations of vegetables, canned and package goods, clothing, blankets and medical supplies made to the United States Flood Relief Fund sponsored by the Peterborough Kiwanians, cash donations of $1,173.71 are gratefully acknowledged by the club's Public Affairs Committee.

Out of the total amount contributed through the various agencies in cash, the committee expended the sum of $846.56 on supplies to complete loading of the freight car load of produce that was consigned to the Kiwanis Club at Cincinnati, Ohio, for victims of the flood in the Ohio Valley.

The balance of $327.15 has since been forwarded by the Kiwanians here to the American Red Cross Society (Flood Relief Headquarters) at Columbus, Ohio.

Donations in cash are itemized as follows: Cash received by The Examiner from employees of The Western Clock Company and the C.G.E., and through the Kirma Question Box, $143.37; Bank of Nova Scotia account, $269.87; collected through Al. Sharpe, president of the Kiwanis Club, $159.22; donated through Richard Hall Limited, $11.25; total, $1,173.71.

How Helen Keller 'Saw' Europe

Back from a tour of Europe, during which she examined its greatest art treasures, Miss Helen Keller, who triumphed over blindness as well as deafness and inability to speak, is shown as she demonstrated to her secretary how she "saw" the things she went to "see." She is passing her sensitive hand over the secretary's face, showing how she was thrilled by similarly touching Rodin's "The Thinker," now on exhibition in the Rodin Gallery, Paris.

Canadians Able To Enforce World Peace With Monopoly On Nickel Open Forum Told

Rev. Thomas C. Douglas, M.P. Addressed Open Forum On Sunday

IMPORTS INCREASED

Enforcement of world peace by Canadians through Canada's near-monopoly on the world's supply of nickel so necessary in the prosecution of modern warfare was urged by Rev. Thomas C. Douglas in addresses to Peterborough audiences over the week-end. C.C.F. member of parliament from Weyburn, Saskatchewan, and Canadian delegate to the World Youth Congress in Geneva last year, he appeared before a Peterborough gathering of the Canadian Co-operative Youth Movement Saturday evening and the Open Forum in George Street United Church Sunday afternoon.

The fact that 90 per cent. of the world supply of nickel is found in Canada, should be regarded as an act of Providence, he declared. Canadians should look upon custody and administration of the supply as a trust not to be taken lightly, he said.

"To those nations wishing our nickel to make articles which will contribute to the happiness of their peoples and aid in the progress of civilization, we could offer all the nickel they wish to buy,' he said. "To those who want the nickel to make weapons of war we could say not one ton of nickel leaves our shores for such purposes"

Imports Up

He demonstrated the dependance of the war-making nations on Canadian nickel with statistics. Germany's purchases of nickel here have increased 600 per cent. since the nation embarked on its mad program of re-armament, he said. When Mussolini made preparations for its war in Ethiopia, its purchases were increased 300 per cent., he said. Nickel figures in the manufacture of almost all weapons of land, sea and air warfare, he declared.

Such a judicial stewardship was one practical contribution Canadians could make toward world peace in the present state of things, the youthful member of parliament continued. A policy of isolation has been suggested for Canada but the complexity of international commerce and the present ease of transoceanic transportation by air renders that policy impractical, he said.

Where and When

Mr. Douglas reported his personal observations of conditions in Europe in saying the people of Europe no longer talk of the possibility of another war. The sole question in their minds now is where and when the war is to start, he said.

"What has happened to bring the world so close to the brink of war?" he asked. "Three significant events have occurred during the past six years to ruin the promise of peace." He cited the aggression of Japan in Manchuria, the Japanese ignoring all treaties and distaining even the formality of declaring war; the Italian conquest of Ethiopia, despite the sanctions of the world, and the present attack on the government of Spain by mercenaries of Italy and Germany.

"The picture is changed and the faith of the people in the ability of the world to maintain peace is gone," he declared. "The world has returned to the belief that the only assurance of peace lies in armaments."

No Nation Ready

He said he did not personally expect a war within the next year or eighteen month since no nation is yet ready for the prolonged conflict which the war necessarily will be. The present uncertainty of the European alignment of powers is also a check, he said.

"There is one bright spot in Europe and the world today," he continued. "The bright spot is that there are hundreds of thousands of persons like you and me who do not want war. Even in Germany there is a heavening under-current of opinion in favour of peace."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, February 16

According to this day's planetary configurations, there will be much activity, with probable disturbance or commotion of an undesirable nature. The influences seem to be of an adverse character, with sudden upsets, removals, journeys, obstacles and postponements.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very active year, but one calling for discretion, foresight and wariness against deceit, fraud, treachery and all manner of subtle and undercurrent attacks.

A child born on this day may be clever in a shrewd or crafty way, keen minded, but prone to expediency rather than principle in gaining its ends. It may be restive and erratic.

MARION TURNBULL IS HURT IN CRASH

Sustained Cuts To Her Face When Two Cars Collide

Marion Turnbull, 21, of R.R. 1, Peterborough, sustained cuts to her face and required a stitch in her forehead, when the car in which she was a passenger, was involved in a collision with another vehicle at the junction of Reid and Stewart streets around five o'clock Sunday afternoon. She received attention at the surgery of Dr. A. W. McPherson and was later allowed to proceed to her home.

Eric Dinesen, 248 Munro avenue, in whose car Miss Turnbull was riding, was going around the curve in the direction of Chemong, he claims, when another car coming towards the city in the opposite direction and driven by Roy Hofstetter, 29 King street, Kitchener, collided with the rear of the local car. In an unsuccessful attempt to avoid the accident Dinesen declares he drove his car straight ahead toward a driveway.

Frank Millard Has Been Adjudged Ablest Candidate For Liar's Club

How big a liar are you? If you can tell a big enough whopper, there's a chance you might get yourself elected president of the newly-formed Peterborough Liar's Club.

The club was formed today by a group of youthful habitues of the city's business district. Following a brief lying contest, Frank Millard, clerk in a local brokerage firm, was adjudged the ablest candidate for the office of president and was duly installed.

He won the post with the following yarn:

"Last summer I was down the Otonabee fishing and my supply of worms got very low. When I came to the last worm it looked as though I would have to give up fishing for the day but I got a bright idea. I greased a board thoroughly and slanted it from the edge of my skiff down into the water. At the top of the incline, I dangled the last worm. Jumping for the worm, the fish slithered up the board and into the boat so fast that the skiff was piled high from stem to stern in five minutes."

The club decided to throw its membership open to the public. Any sizzling, whopper of a lie will entitle the teller to membership. A big 12-cylinder, super-charged lie will render the liar eligible for an executive post. The presidency will be readily transferred to the current champion.

Entries may be made to The Examiner and will be forwarded to the club.

AUTOS COLLIDE

When B. Croft of 548 Harvey street was driving his car west on McDonnel street with the intention of turning south on Aylmer street at 12.30 a.m. Saturday he was struck from the rear, according to police report, by another auto driven by Edward Trotter, 489 Park street. As a result of the impact the Croft car skidded into a parked car owned by Lionel Browne, 665 Bethune street.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

On Friday evening February 12th the 'teen aged girls of the city met in a body at Trinity United Church. The president of the Girls Council was in the chair with Miss Walker of St. Paul's Church assisting. During the course of the program Miss Helen Hetherington rendered a splendid solo, "This is My Task." The guest speaker for the evening Mrs. L. J. Pettit gave an inspiring address on "Prayer." Miss Clarry offered her helpful assistance at the organ.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

Officers of the Peterborough Milk Producers' Association were re-elected at the annual meeting Saturday: Ed. Butler as president; C. E. Moore, vice-president, and V. S. Milburn, secretary-treasurer. Delegates to attend the Ontario convention are: Harold Cathcart, Joseph Mann, Harry Young, Ed. Butler and W. Roseborough. Problems relating to the milk-producing industry in the county were discussed.

SOUTH-END COLLISION.

Cars driven by A. E. Pavy, 315 Townsend street and William Davis were slightly damaged after being involved in collision at Chamberlain and Park streets at 9.40 a.m. Sunday. It was reported that the Pavy car had halted for the stop sign before proceeding on to Park street, and that the Davis car was in the act of turning west on Chamberlain street at the time the accident occurred.

LIKE MOTHER HUBBARD.

An employee of a local hotel bought a case of beer Saturday, wrote his name on it, and sent it to the home of a "lady friend" as a gift which he hoped to share Sunday. Meanwhile a traveller in quest of beer after hours ran into an oasis.

The town seemed dry, but someone thought of the case that had gone out to the lady. She was prevailed upon to sell it. Sunday morning the man who bought it in the first place was engaged in the round of sweeping and cleaning. Consider his surprise when he identified the empty case by his name on it, and realized that his money had paid for those empty bottles.

FRIENDLESS MAN DIES IN HOSPITAL, ILL THREE WEEKS

Name And Age Is All Authorities Know About Dead Transient

AUTOPSY PERFORMED

Except for his name and age and a document he carried certifying he was suffering from an enlarged heart and was unfit for work, the authorities here have no information relative to the death at St. Joseph's Hospital over the week-end of James McLaughlin, 63-year-old transient.

When he called at the city police office about three weeks ago and complained that he was ill, McLaughlin was ordered into hospital by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health.

In view of the man's condition, Relief Officer Art Metheral sought to find out where McLaughlin's relatives or friends might be found, but was told the man had neither kin nor friends. He stated he had been wandering about for several years and had no home.

Dr. C. B. Waite performed an autopsy at the hospital on Sunday after which the remains were prepared for burial at Belleghem's Funeral Home.

Adjutant Neil Warrander, in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, is to officiate at the funeral services at one o'clock p.m., on Tuesday, and interment is to be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

The dead man, who is believed to have been at Kingston General Hospital last summer, is described as follows: Height 5 feet 7½ inches, weight 148 pounds, dark complexion, black hair of fine texture, black moustache.

BLIND FARMER GOOD PATIENT

Nothing Definite Can Be Said As To Results Of Operation

CAN SEE LIGHT

"Nothing definite can be said yet," Dr. Charles M. Scott commented to-day in reporting on the condition of Peter Robertson, blind Otonabee Township farmer, who underwent an operation for restoration of his eyesight after 12 years of blindness, in Nicholls Hospital last Thursday. "In view of the fact he was blind so long, we have yet to learn whether or not his optic nerves will function."

Dr. Scott said the elderly man has been an excellent patient and that up to the present he has been recovering satisfactorily from the operation.

"When I removed the bandages to-day he told me he could see twice as much light as the first time," the doctor said. "It is necessary to be very cautious, however, lest false hopes should be raised."

Mr. Robertson was in excellent spirits and was glad that he had taken the chance of the operation when Examiner reporters paid him a visit Saturday.

CAGE TITLE WON BY ST. ANDREW'S

Capture Church League Juvenile Honors Over St. Paul's By 54 To 28

Sweeping through St. Paul's for a 26-15 win on Saturday night in the "Y," St. Andrew's Juveniles won the Church Basketball League championship for the fourth straight year. The score on the round was 54 to 28 and a good number of fans saw this second struggle with Coach Allen's classy crew coming through handily.

Behind 15 points from the first game, St. Paul's fought for a lost cause, but put up a splendid battle. With better shooting they might have won the second game. The Presbyterians adopted a long shooting style that was unsuccessful owing to poor marksmanship and St. Andrew's strong defence which roped in the rebounds. The Unitedes' fiveman attacks were more successful, and, though they had but half as many scoring chances, they capitalized on many of them.

Trail From Start.

St. Paul's were behind 10-3 at halftime. They drew closer in the second half for a time when Ascott moved up on the front line and got three quick baskets. Later, St. Andrew's pulled well ahead. The winners' scoring was spread around evenly with Cutting and Weir getting seven points each and the other three four points apiece. Weir, Cragg and Johnston did most of their defensive work with the former having Sedgewick, St. Paul's ace, well under check. The latter was strong defensively, but had no luck on the attack for the losers. W. Ferguson and Ascott proved next best for that side. The teams:

St. Paul's — Sedgewick, Ascott, W. Ferguson, Morrow, Taylor, R. Ferguson and Dunford.

St. Andrew's—R. Johnston, Cragg, Weir, Cutting, McPherson.

Referee—C. Davern.

Scorer—R. Rogow.

COOPER CAPTURES HOUSTON LAURELS

Leads Pack With 280 For 72 Holes—Wins $700 In Cash

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 15 (UP)—"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, Chicago professional, won the Houston open golf tournament and $700 at River Oaks Country Club here yesterday, with a total of 280 for the 72 holes. He led the pack throughout the meet.

Cooper clung to a four-stroke lead over Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Paul Runyan of White Plains, N.Y., tied with 284 to split $600 in second money. Winners divided $3,000.

Jimmy Demaret, young Houston pro., and Byron Nelson of Ridgewood, N.J., wound up in third place and took $250 each. Nelson was three strokes over par on his morning 18, came back with a sparkling 32—three under par—on the out nine of the afternoon round, and then returned to the clubhouse in par 36.

Three amateurs tied for first place in their division—Hack Williford of San Antonio, and Reynolds Smith and Don Schumacher of Dallas, who carded totals of 299 for the three days' play.

Keene And Canadiens Battle To a 1-1 Tie

KEENE, Feb. 15 — Keene and Canadiens played to a 1-1 tie in a West-end League, on the former's ice.

The fans were treated to a fast, rugged, exciting game, with Keene having the edge and leading 1-0 until four minutes to go. J. Richardson scored for Keene and Hunter for Canadiens. D. McCarthy, Renwick and Shearer for Keene, with Craig, Dinesen, Hunter and Townsend for Sprcats' Canadiens showed up well. Line-ups:

Toronto Gymnasts Give Exhibition

A group of six gymnasts from Toronto Central Y.M.C.A., headed by Jack McLeod who won the 1934 Dominion Senior Gymnastic Championship, put on a thrilling exhibition on the Flying Rings, the Parallel Bars and the High Bar before a crowded gallery in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium Saturday evening. The audience was treated to a grand display of upstarts, handstands, cut-offs, angel-swings and a variety of intricate and difficult exercises. The team was introduced by Jim McClenaghan and included, Jack McLeod, David Coyle, Jack Leach, Maurice Godfrey, Bill Wellington and Frank Hillock.

Previous to the exhibition the Central boys were entertained at supper by the local Y.M.C.A. leaders' corps headed by the president, Jack Wolstenholm.

Champion

Mrs. W. R. Walton of Toronto who is the new Ontario women's badminton singles champion. Mrs. Walton on Saturday defeated Miss Ruth Robertson the 1936 champion in straight games 11-7, 11-4.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THE GROUP champion Fliers are here tonight to wind up their schedule with the Petes in the Brock St. rink. We are sorry to say that the intermediate hockey season in Peterborough ends tonight. The Fliers clinched group honors Friday in Belleville, but they're finishing the schedule here this eve. We look for a big crowd of fans who like to see fast, rugged hockey. These teams will dish up another dandy display of the puck game—as they have been doing all season. The Petes promise, in their curtain call, to even up a bunch of old scores. Though the tussle hasn't any bearing on the final standing, it'll be another hockey classic, one well worth seeing. And the last appearance of the Petes this year.

* * * * * *

OUR CONGRATS to the Fliers: they have a good team and earned their victory over the Petes. And our sympathy to the locals. They turned out to be a fine bunch of fellows, and a gang of fighting puckists. They refused to curl up at anytime and battled those better-conditioned Airmen right to the finish. An earlier start this year and more games would have made a big difference—and the Petes might now have been swinging and singing in the canary's perch. But it wasn't to be, and they put a period to their abbreviated season. Better luck next year, gang.

* * * * * *

OUR JUNIOR Colts begin their group playoffs in Belleville on Tuesday and come back here Thursday in the return clash. Coach Buckland agreed to play the first game in Belleville but would have liked the next one here Friday. However, the Quinte intermediate team may be playing that e'en so Skipper Thomas held out for Thursday. The local coach phoned Secretary Hewitt of the O.H.A. asking what team the Belleville-Colts' winner would meet in playdowns, and was advised that the Whitby-Kingston victor (they're playing this week) would be next. Seems junior "B" squads up this way aren't ready yet—so it looks to us like the Colts and Kingston in the playdowns next week. If Belleville or Whitby don't upset the dope.

* * * * * *

THREE SENIOR City Hockey League games will be run off at ye Brock St. puck parlor tomorrow (Tuesday) night. Millbrook meets Westclox at seven, Lakefield tangles with Outboard Marines at eight, and Bewdley bucks into Mayfairs at nine. With no O.H.A. practises that night there, the Blood and Thunder Loop games should be started smack on time for a change. Looks like this league will wind up its schedule this week and be set for playoffs, so tomorrow's contests are highly important. They should draw a real crowd this time.

* * * * * *

KING EDWARD took a 6-0 win over King George to end their School Hockey League schedule Saturday a.m. at All Saints' rink. Some of the other teams in this circuit have one or two more tilts yet, and these may be caught up through the week. Then, first and second teams in the standing play home-and-home games in the Brock for the school title. It sort of looks like Central will cop the duke this season as they haven't lost or tied a game so far. King Edward, Prince of Wales and Queen Alex are all sitting in a bunch in second place at present and there's no telling which crew will grab off the other playoff berth. More again on the puck situation as it concerns the young students.

* * * * * *

JIM LEHANE will pilot his Kadunks from here in the big open Fenelon Falls' puck tournament the last four days of this week. A number of O.H.A. players are on this squad—pretty much the same team that copped the Felt Trophy in Lindsay last year. But the Falls' affair will be much tougher as a dozen smart squads will be entered, likely some from Toronto. The Fenelon folk are really staging a neat affair. Besides plenty of hockey, there will be ski-ing, snowshoeing, tobogganing, curling, ice baseball (we'd like to see a game of that) and dog racing. We trust they have better luck with weather than did our Winter Sports Meet officers. "The unfortunate paucity of snow at that time created much mental anguish and acute economic distress in Peterborough," as Lord Tweedsmuir so aptly failed to express it over a nation-wide hookup at the time.

* * * * * *

A SENIOR ball meeting will be called for here during the week and the situation gone into thoroughly. Peterborough will have to get busy right away if we're going to have a good team in the C.O.B.L. The loop meets the second week in March and, among other things, will send nominations to the O.B.A.A.—which meets in Oshawa, April 3rd—for a life membership in the Ontario body for R. A. Elliott of Deloro, and executive offices for Ernie Gibbard of Napanee and Max Swanston of Peterborough. It is to be hoped that Central and Eastern Ontario will be strongly represented at the big session in Oshawa this Spring. It is their meeting.

* * * * * *

ST. ANDREW'S won the Church Basketball League juvenile title for the fourth straight year Saturday night at the "Y", defeating St. Paul's by a 26-15 score to win the round 54 to 28. A fine record, with three of this year's players being on all four championship teams, R. Johnston, O. Weir and T. Cragg. H. Cutting has been on three and D. McPherson and J. Roper on two. Coach N. Allen of this team played on the '34 squad. Dope on this tussle and the two Senior City Loop cage contests played there Saturday eve are in tonight. The Toronto gymnastic team put on a fine exhibition for a good crowd of fans between games.

St. Paul's Win 27-11 Over Neill Cagers

St. Paul's copped a 27-11 decision from Neill's in a Senior Basketball League game in the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday before a big gallery. The winners showed too much class for their rivals, outplaying them with fast passing, accurate shooting and effective defensive play. They had a 16-3 lead at the half way mark and held off a strong Neill's attack in the second stanza to outscore them by an 11-8 margin. D. Sedgewick of the Saints drew four fouls while his team cashed in on five of 14 free tosses as Neill's clicked on five of 13 in the hardfought tussle. V. Holmes and Wolstenholme led the losers with three points apiece. Marsh topped the victors with 12 points in a nice performance and Thorburn trailed him with eight. The teams:

St. Paul's: Marsh, Pulkinghorn, Thorburn, Sedgewick, Morrow, McIntyre, Ascott, Weir.

C.G.E. Basketeers Beat P.C.I. 19-12

C.G.E. defeated P.C.I., 19 to 12, in a snappy Senior City Basketball League fixture Saturday night before a big crowd of fans at the Y.M.C.A. The Electrics piled up a 14-5 margin in the first half but were outscored by a scrappy gang of Students in the final frame. It was a fast, close-checking contest with plenty of penalties called. Of the 17 free throws for the losers, only four were capitalised, while C.G.E. scored five out of nine chances. Some smart passing and neat ball-handling was dished up in this contest. Gemmell led the P.C.I. squad on the attack with seven points, while Richardson was main sniper for the winners with eight. The teams:

C.G.E.: Richardson, Holmes, Hunter, Cameron, Magee, Archibald, Williams, Palmer, Crowe.

Over King George King Edward Wins

King Edward and King George wound up their School Hockey League schedule on Saturday morning at All Saints rink with the former team gulling out an easy 6-0 win. The ice was soft and full of holes and this slowed the play up a great deal. The game started out slow and developed into a shinny match with neither team being able to make much headway in the sloppy going. King Edward carried the play constantly to the east-end crew and finally they began to get the scoring range. King George battled hard throughout but were simply outplayed. Self led the goal getters with two tallies, while Jobe, Henthorne, Roberts and Reader notched the other markers. Downer, for King George, turned in a nice effort. He was the only player for the losers who seemed able to pierce the south-enders' defence successfully.

The teams:

King Edward: Goal, Shea; defence, Henthorne and Roberts; centre, Jamieson; wings, Self and Jobe; subs, Reader, Hodson and Cox.

JOHN I. RANKINE GOLF PRESIDENT

Plan To Alter Constitution To Allow Provincials Membership In Dominion Organization

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (C.P.) — Before the start of the 1936 playing season officials of the Royal Canadian Golf Association hope to have the association's constitution altered so provincial associations would have membership with the dominion organization.

When the annual meeting was held here Saturday, retiring President Robert Jacob announced his support of an amended constitution and he was backed by John I. Rankine, Montreal, who was named 1937 president.

Mr. Jacob declared under the present constitution various clubs in Canada make up the R.C.G.A. The executive was picked from provincial representatives. He stated, in the interest of golf the men most vitally interested from each province should be on the executive. For this reason he supported making provincial association's members of the R.C.G.A., thereby taking in practically all the clubs in the Dominion from which could be picked the men to support the game on the R.C.G.A. executive.

West Ready to Line Up

Western provinces showed a desire to fall in line with the new step to place golf under one body. Alberta and British Columbia associations approved the amendment but had not had the opportunity so far to obtain the approval of the member clubs. Manitoba favored membership in the R.C.G.A., and Mr. Jacob expected Saskatchewan to do so. By next convention time the amendment to the constiution would be ready for presentation.

Another important matter of business of the convention was the decision to support Canadian professionals wishing to play in United States tournaments. If a Canadian pro. wins a qualifying place in district play he will have his expenses for the qualifying play and also for the main tournament paid by the R.C.G.A. The pro. must, however, win out in the qualifying play.

Until the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrew's rules on the proposal to limit to 14 the number of clubs to be used by a player, the Canadian body will make no decision. The Old Country ruling is expected in May.

1936 CHAMPIONS IN BADMINTON ARE DETHRONED

Jack Storey Defeated Rod Phelan To Capture Singles' Honors

MRS. WALTON WINS

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP).—Four new Ontario badminton champions reigned last night as Toronto and Ottawa players divided honors in the annual tournament which concluded here Saturday in the presence of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir.

Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., of Toronto, was the new women's singles titleholder; Jack Storey of Toronto, the new men's singles champion; Jack Sibbald and Joe Zaharko, new men's doubles holders, and Ruth Robertson and Beverley Mitchell, Ottawa, new mixed doubles champions. Isabel Bryson and Betty Snell of Ottawa retained their women's doubles crown.

Storey, looking tired, gathered his weakening forces late in the closing stages of the third game to score five straight points to win the men's singles crown from the defending champion, Rod Phelan of Toronto, 18-17, 7-15, 15-12.

Mrs. Walton, 1936 Canadian singles champion, defeated Miss Robertson, the defending champion, in straight games, 11-7, 11-2. The loser held her own in the many long exchanges until 6-6 was reached in the first game. But from this point on, Mrs. Walton gradually assumed a lead she never relinquished.

The all-Toronto men's doubles final saw Sibbald and Zaharko defeat Jim Forsythe and Dudley Reburn, 15-2, 18-17. The losers never got going in the first game.

Distinction of being the only holders to retain their crown fell to Miss Bryson and Miss Snell, who scored over Ruth and Margaret Robertson 15-0, 9-15, 15-12 in the all-Ottawa women's doubles.

Bev. Mitchell played an outstanding game in pairing with Ruth Robertson to take the mixed doubles crown, defeating Mrs. Walton and Zaharko in straight games 15-14, 15-6. The losers centred their attack on Mitchell, but he never tired.

Doris Gray and Dr. Ray Cramer of Guelph took the mixed doubles in consolation play. Allan Harris of Ottawa defeated Robert Morgan of Ottawa, 15-1, 18-14, in the men's singles; Betty Snell, Ottawa, won over Marjorie Devine, Ottawa, 11-9, 11-5, in the women's singles; Harris and Terry Giles, Ottawa, defeated J. Millikin, Kitchener, and Dr. Cramer, 15-7, 3-15, 15-13 in the men's doubles, while Betty Harris and Jean Maclean, Ottawa, defeated Mrs. H. Green, Toronto, and Mrs. W. N. Keenan, Ottawa, 15-7, 15-4, in the women's doubles.

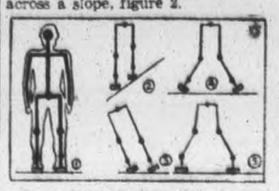
KING OF WINTER SPORTS
Ski-ing
By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

43—MEANING OF EDGING THE SKIS

The terms "Edging" and "Flattening" will, it is thought, stand more explanation. These terms have reference to the relative positions of the running surface of the ski and the general surface of the snow. They have no bearing on the position of the ski surface with reference to the horizontal plane. As long as the ski surface is parallel to the surface on which it is supported, it is flat, if it is at an angle to the supporting surface, it is edged. The angle referred to is, of course, that between the line of the ski's width and the snow surface, not the line of its length.

Irrespective of any lateral inclination of the body or the relative position of the skis, the natural carriage of the foot without any lateral bending of the ankles is called the "normal" position, that is, the running surface of the ski is, transversely, at right angles to the leg. If the surface of the ski is at an angle to the snow surface, it is the "normal edged position"; if flat, it is the "normal flat position" Thus it will be seen that the normal flat position on the level, figure 1, becomes the normal edged position across a slope, figure 2.



On a level surface the skis are edged normally by having the legs at an angle to the surface; either parallel, figure 3, or divergent from the hips, figure 4, such as snowplow position. Figure 5 illustrates the snowplow position with the skis flattened by bending the ankles outward. On a slope skis may be flattened by bending the ankles outward from the slope, such as when side-slipping.

Only under exceptional conditions is it ever necessary to bend the ankles for the purpose of edging the skis. One example would be the necessity for running a steep icy slope at slow speed when increased edging is required for greater braking power.

The ankles, as a weak part, should be strengthened for skiing through special physical exercises.

INDOOR RECORDS CRASH AT BOSTON

Don Lash Runs Two-Mile Event In 8.58—Allen Loses To Donovan

BOSTON, Feb. 15—(A.P.)—Three world indoor records crashed while the star-studded international track and field forces thrilled a packed crowd of 12,682 at the 48th annual Boston A.A. games at the Boston Garden Saturday night.

Time was bested by Don Lash, Indiana star, when he gained a smashing two-mile victory in 8.58 flat, 1-5 second under the market set by Paavo Nurmi twelve years ago, and also by Sam Allen of Bristow, Okla., the United States A.A.U. indoor hurdles champion, who turned in a 5-7 seconds heat in the 45-yards tall timber events, only to be nosed out in the final by Dartmouth's Johnny Donovon, intercollegiate champion.

Allen's time was one-tenth second better than the 5.8 record established by Monty Wells back in 1927. That old mark has been equalled many times since, the last time by Donovan when he broke the tape an inch or so ahead of Allen in the final.

Height was conquered by George Varoff, the University of Oregon star, and he added the world's indoor pole vault record to his outdoor mark, when on his second try, he cleared 14 feet 4⅞ inches. That mighty flight was ⅞ inch higher than the previous best vault, made by Keith Brown, former Yale star, three years ago.

Bruins Take Hawks 2-1 In Sunday Game With Aid Of Schmidt And Dumart

MAROONS 5, CANADIENS 1

Americans Trounce Rangers 5-4—Have Chance To Take Third Place

By A. E. Fulford
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—Perhaps it would be just as well not to count New York Americans out of the playoffs yet. For weeks they have looked like sure things to end up behind the eight ball, but now they come along with a two-game winning streak.

And their chief opposition, Toronto Maple Leafs, are not travelling so well. While Americans were beating New York Rangers 5-4 in Madison Square Garden last night, Leafs were losing a three-goal lead and letting Detroit Red Wings tie them 3-3. That followed a 3-0 beating Boston Bruins gave them in Toronto Saturday.

The result is Americans are only five points behind Leafs to-day and they have 12 games in which to take third place in the National Hockey League's Canadian division from Conny Smythe's team. It may all be decided when Amerks and Leafs clash in a two-game series next week-end in Toronto and New York.

Bruins Step Up

Bruins, bolstered by the addition of Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart from Providence, strengthened their hold on third spot in the American division by taking the win from Toronto and beating Black Hawks 2-1 in Chicago last night. They are only two points down to Rangers and are 11 up on Hawks.

The fifth game of the week-end saw Maroons defeat the Canadian section leaders, Canadiens, 5-1, before a sell-out crowd in Montreal Saturday night. That brought Maroons to within seven points of their intra-city rivals.

The week-end was one of the best of the season from an attendance standpoint. The crowd of 11,000 in Montreal was the smallest of the five. The attendance of 15,361 at New York led the rest and in all 65,343 persons saw the five contests.

Americans piled up a 4-1 lead in the first two periods of the game, with Rangers and successfully withstood a strong closing attack by Lester Patrick's team. Art Chapman, Tommy Anderson and Eddie Wiseman tallied before Rangers hit the score sheet through Butch Keeling. Joe Jerwa and Carr got the other Amerk goals and Babe Pratt, with two, and Keeling finished up the scoring.

Clapper Given Credit.

Bruins won the game with Toronto by scoring through Dit Clapper in the first period and playing defensive hockey. Leafs had every man up on the attack in the last two minutes of the game when Bill Cowley and Cooney Weiland broke away for the other Bruin counters.

Clapper scored the first goal again at Chicago and Schmidt aided in it just as he had in Toronto. Paul Thompson made it tough for Bruins when he tied the game up in the second, but in that same period Charlie Sands took Ray Getliffe's pass for the winning counter.

The 13,962 persons who saw the Toronto-Detroit game formed the largest crowd of the season here. They saw Toronto take what looked like an unbeatable lead in the first period when Jimmy Fowler opened the scoring and Bill Thoms beat Norm Smith twice.

But Marty Barry, Larry Aurie and Hobbie Goodfellow took over command in the second. Barry scored two goals and Goodfellow the other, Aurie assisting in two of them. The two points Aurie and Barry each got put them in a tie for leadership of the League with Harvey Jackson and Sweeney Schriner of Americans two points behind them.

Little Aurel Joliat played the 650th game of his National League career in the Maroon-Canadien game. The Maroon win tied the teams for the Kennedy trophy, emblematic of the city championship, with two wins and two ties each.

Maroons had three goals before Jack McGill scored the only Canadien counter in the second period. Marven Wentworth and Earl Robinson each scored two goals for Tommy Gorman's team and Jimmy Ward rifled in the other.

TENDERS ACCEPTED.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13 (C.P.) — The Bank of Canada announced today on behalf of Finance Minister Dunning that tenders had been accepted for the full amount of $25,000,000 Dominion of Canada treasury bills due May 15. The average discount price was $99.81106 and the average yield .775 per cent.

598 HOCKEY GAMES 13 YEARS, RECORD FOR TELEGRAPHER

Montrealer Misses First Saturday Night Through Business Call To New York

SEES MOST OF PLAY

By Bob Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, Feb. 15. — (CP) — Never a cent has he paid for admission, yet Jack Raymond has seen every National Hockey League game but one played in Montreal since the Forum, home of Maroons and Canadiens, was built.

Bespectacled and with thick, grey-touched hair, Raymond missed his first professional game in 13 years when he failed to attend the intra-city clash here Saturday night which Maroons won 5-1.

A telegraph operator, Raymond attended 598 successive games during that 13 years span. For years before that he witnessed, without a break, games at the Mount Royal arena, old stamping grounds of Canadiens, then Montreal's sole representatives in big time hockey.

Business reasons made it necessary for Raymond to travel to New York, thereby falling for the first time to take his customary place in the little room under the stands at the Forum's south end where the busy clacking of telegraph sounders tell of the game's progress as written by newspapermen.

But let Raymond, an impulsive, quick-talking French-Canadian tell part of the story; of the time last year when his consecutive game sequence nearly came to an end.

"I had been to my brother-in-law's funeral at La Chevrotiere," said Raymond, "and wanted to get back to Montreal in time for the game that night. But La Chevrotiere (about 30 miles east of Quebec) is only a small place and fast trains do not usually stop there.

"Well, I got in touch with my boss and told him I wanted to get to the game and he said he would see what he could do.

"Anyhow, the train stopped and two porters, thinking it must be some big railway official getting on, marched off and looked around."

Says Raymond, "I walked right by them with a little travelling bag in my hand and got on board—using a pass for the trip."

Raymond and the other operators who work at the Forum generally manage to be on hand at the rink-side to see a lot of the action during crucial contests and it isn't many an important goal they miss.

Of course the biggest thrill during all the time he has watched major league hockeyists perform was in seeing his son, Paul Marcel, play with Canadiens a few years ago. Paul is now with Springfield Indians of the Int.-Am. League.

SMYTHE CHOOSES ALL-STAR OUTFIT

Seems Partial To Red Wings—Gives Adams, Four Players a Place

DETROIT, Feb. 15. — (CP). — Canny Conny Smythe, Toronto Maple Leaf boss, is apparently most partial to Detroit Red Wings and their coach, Jack Adams. Anyway, Conny named an all-star National League team last night that had Adams and four Wings aboard.

"And the coach of that club is Jack Adams," Smythe said. "He should have been picked last year. The Wings have smarter plays, they make smarter plays and they think out goals."

"In two years of watching him I've counted two dozen goals against the Wings. Good, sound, orthodox goals that no goalie has a right to stop. Then I'd look up and discover that Smith, through some remarkable trick, had twisted his foot or arm in some manner to knock them out. There's no one like him."

Apps Best Rookie.

"Gord Drillon, Apps and Jackson have been a good line this season," Smythe said. "Neither Apps nor Drillon is a major league star yet but this is their first year. Their work, considering their inexperience, has been more than satisfactory. The same is true of Goalie Turk Broda.

"Broda will have to learn a lot. He's only played two years and he's not a finished goalie by any means. But he keeps improving," said the Leaf manager.

Smythe believes the Stanley Cup playoffs will be among New York Rangers, Montreal Maroons and Detroit Red Wings. He makes no mention of the sensational Canadiens nor his own pets.

"The Wings will be the club to beat for my money from the start of the play-off finals," he said. "I think the club is a little too much for the rest."

Petes End Schedule With Fliers Tonight

The last O.H.A. intermediate "A" game of the season here will be held tonight (Monday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It is the wind-up of the scheduled series between the R.C.A.F. Fliers and the Petes, the former squad having copped group honors. While tonight's tilt here will have no bearing on the standing, it should draw a good crowd of fans since these two teams have been dishing up grand hockey games all through and will wind it up with another torrid tussle. The Petes claim they will settle up a few old scores and a rough, bruising and hard-fought contest can be expected. They both play fine hockey.

The Petes will be at full strength and will, probably, again use seven forwards and three defencemen. With Clarke in goal, Weir, Magee and Williamson will alternate on defence. Calladine, Burton and Vitarelli will comprise one front line; with McDougall, Creighton, Gardner and Coughlin relieving. The Fliers, too, will have their regular outfit on hand to finish the schedule before they go into the O.H.A. playdowns, Referee "Army" Armstrong of Oshawa has been named to officiate this game in Peterborough. A fair sheet of ice has been promised and it shapes up as a fitting puck conclusion for the local intermediates.

Tends Goal

ANDY GOLDIE.

When England ices the team she hopes will win the international amateur hockey championship in the tournament starting February 17, Andy Goldie, former Toronto Mercantile ace, may be in the nets. The goal-keeping assignment will be between Jimmy Foster and Goldie, with both netminders likely to see action during the series. Kimberly Dynamiters, 1936 Allan Cup winners, will represent Canada. Goldie qualified for the team under the residence rule. He has been playing hockey in England for some time.

PUCK CHASERS TRY SIT-DOWN STRIKE

New York Team Balks Half-Hour When Free Tickets Cut Off

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (CP)—The Canadian boys who compose New York Rovers Hockey Club today were bitten by the sit-down strike bug but it didn't dull their knowledge of what should be done with the puck.

The players sat down last night in their dressing room for a half an hour refusing to don uniforms and skates after it was announced they had been cut off the free-ticket list. Finally Frank Nighbor, one-time "Pembroke Peach" of the National League and now Rover coach, engineered a withdrawal of the sit-downers to the arena where, in fighting mood, they scored the season's first victory on home ice, by 6-3 over Hershey Bars.

Tom Lockhart, member of the Amateur Athletic Union's hockey committee, said the players had to be denied their usual pair of complimentaries. Standing-room was being sold for the Sunday afternoon amateur games, usually sellouts here, and that was a breach of the New York fire law. To help handle the paying guests thus denied admission, the "Annie Oakley" list was reduced drastically.

That left the players' friends, mostly female, out in the cold. The boys sat down and when things seemed blackest Coach Nighbor stood up. He promised to seek collective bargaining rights for the skaters and do everything possible toward having their friends admitted free to future games.

The Rovers recanted, but their anger didn't. They greeted the Hershey Harriers with teeth-loosening checks. Kilby McDonald, of the Rovers' star brother-act from Ottawa and understood to have been a ringleader in the sit-down, slammed in three goals and helped on another.

SYRACUSE STARS GOING GREAT GUNS

Given Even-Money Chance To Cop Title—Trim Ramblers 3-1

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—(CP)—Syracuse Stars today were even-money choices to take the International-American Hockey League pennant, as they swung down the home stretch at peak strength. Only team in the circuit with a perfect week-end record, Stars moved up as co-favorites with Philadelphia Ramblers to win out.

A farm club for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league, Stars were often weakened this season to help the major outfit but now the system is working out to Coach Eddie Powers' liking. Well out in front of the western group race, Stars have acquired Art Jackson and Bud Jarvis.

The Maple Leaf pair got into action Sunday night as Stars came from behind to bump Pittsburgh Ramblers 3-1 after drubbing Ramblers the previous evening. Neither of the new players figured in the scoring but Powers figures they will be big assets to the team's attack.

Int.-Am. leading scorer until Leafs recalled him, Jackson will likely finish the season in the minors. Jarvis, purchased by Leafs from Buffalo Bisons when that club folded up, has been going well in the big-time of late but the Toronto club has a surplus of forwards with injured players returning to the fold.

Ramblers' mad pace was not halted for long, however, and Sunday they moved into New Haven to paste the lowly Eagles 6-1. It was a disastrous weekend for Normie Himes' men, for they took a similar licking at the hands of Springfield Indians Saturday night.

Springfield failed to face quite so well Sunday when Indians faced Providence Reds. The game ended in a 2-2 tie. Playoff hopes of Cleveland Falcons took another severe jolt as they failed to match strides with Hornets in a Saturday fixture at Pittsburgh and lost 3-1.

Remember When—

Montreal Canadiens, setting a blistering pace in the National Hockey League, helped the cause along with a 2-0 shutout over New York Americans at New York six years ago tonight. The Flying Frenchmen captured the double that year — league and Stanley Cup honors. Incidentally, they are on top of the Canadian section this year.

ONTARIO BONSPIEL OPENS IN TORONTO

Entry List From All Parts Of Province Is Restricted To 124

TORONTO, Feb. 15 — (C.P.). — Lacking the winner of recent Ontario Tankard, but with entries of most of the provinces' other outstanding rinks, the Ontario bonspiel opened here to-day as play began in the main event, the Royal York. The entry list was restricted to 124.

All competitors were scheduled to play in the primary event. Winners in to-day's morning and afternoon draws will also take places in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie contest, and losers will go into the North American Life competition.

The 'spiel is being conducted under auspices of the Ontario Curling Association, which will hold its annual banquet to-morrow.

Included in the lineup of competing fours are 28 from Toronto, 12 from Northern Ontario and four from the United States.

A. E. Dunker, Kitchener, who won the tankard, withdrew his entry to the bonspiel a few days ago. There was a good-sized list of rinks waiting to replace any others that decided to drop out.

HERE'S WHAT THE CRITICS SAY:

Mail-Globe.—Roly Young
DEANNA DURBIN, the delightful new star, will sing her way into thousands of affections before THREE SMART GIRLS has unreeled for the last time. She's lovely to look at, delightful to see.
I have only seen one other picture that exceeded the same joy and happiness. You owe yourself the treat of seeing this new Canadian star.

Toronto Telegram

Photo Play
DEANNA DURBIN, a newcomer of 13, sings and acts divinely and walks away with first honors. A knockout.

Screen Play.

Jimmy Fidler—Noted Radio Columnist, says:

Movie Mirror.
One of the best pictures of the month. It is a downright honey. No ifs about it. DEANNA DURBIN with the million dollar voice is a find. Your reviewer says the best comedy in town. Don't pass this up.

Los Angeles Examiner.
THREE SMART GIRLS will take its place with "LIBELED LADY"—"MY MAN GODFREY"—"THEODORA GOES WILD" and other top-notch comedies. It's a honey of a picture. It introduces little DEANNA DURBIN, who fairly sparkles. At the age of 13 she has the screen presence of a GARBO and the voice of Grace Moore.

WHO SHOULD BE HEAD OF HOUSE?

Various Answers To Questions Raised By Police Magistrate Of Calgary

CALGARY, Feb. 15.—(CP).—The question of "Who should be the head of the family, the husband or the wife?" is one that brings varied answers but Mrs. R. R. Jamieson, Calgary police magistrate, believes marital relationships should be based on partnership and consultation.

A score of men and women were asked the question by an enquiring reporter here. All gave an opinion; few would permit use of their names.

"I think it should be a 50-50 arrangement," said Mrs. Jamieson. "As a rule it is the man who brings in the living and he certainly should have a good deal to say as to how it is spent."

She had come to the conclusion there are a great many more unreasonable wives than husbands, "This," she said, "probably is due to their upbringing. They just don't understand economic questions."

A woman author preferred to remain anonymous, observed: "Whoever earns the family income should dominate and control the home. It isn't a question of sex but of brains and ability."

A husband: "The wife should be absolute mistress of the home. . . . A clever woman could run a home with grace and economy."

A young father: "Well, whoever should be head of the family, I know who it is in our family—the baby."

DISCUSSION CLUB MEETS AT MADOC

Members Hear Interesting Address On Banking System Of Canada

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 15.—Madoc Discussion Club held their third regular meeting in the library of the High School on Tuesday evening with an attendance of twenty. The guest speaker, Mr. Wm. H. McBain, recently manager of the Dominion Bank, Madoc, gave a very valuable and interesting address on the banking system of Canada. He prefaced his remarks by tracing the origin and developing of currency and banking. During the discussion following the legal aspects of trust and joint accounts and the effect of power of attorney.

Congregational Meeting

The congregational meeting of Trinity United church was held recently, Rev. I. E. Kennedy presiding. Reports were received from the various departments with an increase in resident members and in revenue for each department.

Mr. Percy Holland was elected secretary and C. R. Johnston as treasurer. Two new members, Mr. Jas. Kincaid and Mr. Ford Tumeley, were added to the board of stewards. A social half-hour and a short programme followed the meeting.

Has Fractured Hip

Misses Ethel and Sylvia Richmond were in Belleville on Sunday to visit their mother, who is convalescing in Belleville General Hospital following a fall at her home in which she suffered a fractured and dislocated hip. Latest reports are that the convalescence, while favorable, will be a slow and tedious one.

Police Court Cases

In the police court held in Madoc town hall on Tuesday charges were laid by Constables Dymond and Danford before Magistrate Lloyd, and Andy Cox of Madoc was charged with being drunk and disorderly and fined $10 and costs.

Frank Hamilton and Clarence and Reg. Moon, charged with being disorderly, were dismissed with a warning.

Personals

Miller Johnston of Madoc High School, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Johnston of Madoc, is in Belleville General Hospital recovering nicely after an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Lillian Connor was operated on for appendicitis in Belleville General Hospital last Friday. She is reported as recovering splendidly.

MONOPOLY PLAYED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Valentine Box Social Greatly Enjoyed—Women's Association Has Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRVIEW, Feb. 15.—The young people of Fairview entertained their friends, about forty-five in number, at a very enjoyable Valentine box social held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lewis last Tuesday evening.

The meeting opened by a short devotional period led by Miss Olive Belle after which interesting reports were given by delegates Laurie Mahood and Gerald Harrison on the recent Y.P. winter school held in Lindsay.

Four tables of monopoly were played after which the prettily decorated boxes were drawn for by the young men and everyone enjoyed a social half-hour. Proceeds amounted to $5. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Lewis by Miss Opal Rosborough for opening their home for the occasion.

W.A. Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Fairview Women's Association was held on Thursday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Wilbert Rosborough, with a good attendance. The meeting opened with a short devotional period and Mrs. Elmer Milburn and Miss Margaret Milburn gave very interesting papers on the first chapter of the study book, "People of the Horizon." Group No. 1 made plans for a Valentine post office to raise funds. Lunch was served and a pleasant time was spent by all.

MADOC

Mrs. A. S. Cochrane has been the guest of Mrs. Walter Ross in Toronto.

Mrs. Newail Broad returned to her home on Sunday after spending some time in Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Helen Whytock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Whytock, has returned home from Kingston General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Wellman and Miss Helen spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sayers in Holloway.

Misses Audrey Ellis and Phyllis Stockdoser spent Wednesday in Ottawa.

Rev. I. E. Kennedy and Mr. Percy Holland of Madoc attended the Presbytery meeting in Belleville on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George West attended the funeral of the late Rev. S. G. McCormack in Peterborough on Sunday.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Paynter, newly married to a second-rate actor, Joel Paynter, whose show has just closed, obtains a card from an old friend, Harry Devanter, a film scout, requesting a screen test for "the bearer." Because of his pride, Joel first refuses to permit Janet to continue working and then conceals the fact he has been playing the role of gigolo at a cocktail bar because he can find nothing else. Joel is elated when Janet tells him of his chance for a screen test. He does not know that the card was intended for her—not for him. Janet proves to be Joel's inspiration during the screen test. Anxiously they await word from the studio. Joel receives word of a six months' contract in Hollywood.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 11

"What time is it?" Janet asked for the fourth time in five minutes.

Martha didn't even look at her watch, she was getting to be expert in gauging the passing of time. "Exactly four," she answered in the patient tone of a nurse to a nervous patient.

Janet drew on the straws on her glass and looked at herself in the mirror back of the soda fountain in the drug store at Grand Central station. She pulled her beige hat down a trifle over her right eye so that the jaunty green feather was straight in the air. She approved the fit of the beautifully tailored shoulders of her twill suit. Her smart brown suede handbag and gloves were at the right of her elbow.

"Do I look like a movie star's wife?" she inquired dreamily. "Have I an aura of success around my twenty-dollar hat?"

"Well, that isn't what I feel like," Janet said gaily. "And I'm not really enjoying this soda. I'm frantic! Where is Joel? He said he'd be here now and...."

Martha fished for coins in her handbag. She refused to be ruffled. "Joel is undoubtedly exactly where he said he'd be—in the barber shop. For goodness sake, Janet, you'll have me on edge if you keep this up. Your train doesn't go for half an hour."

Then suddenly Joel was there with a young man in great horn-rimmed glasses with a brief case under his arm and a manner of being harassed beyond all bearing who talked about "the office on the coast" and seemed to be giving Joel directions as though he had to repeat the performance a hundred times a day and had to be off to more important things.

There was no red velvet carpet for Joel and Janet, albeit there was the usual dusty one for the usual collection of celebrities and others who make the trek on the Twentieth Century Limited to Chicago, for connection with the Los Angeles train.

And there were flowers and magazines and candy and books and even a bottle of spirits in the Paynter's drawing room which had been provided by well-wishing friends.

The last half hour sped quickly and, when the train pulled out, Janet through blurred eyes watched as long as she could see the dear, familiar dumpy figure of Martha Colby.

She and Joel sat like two children in their drawing room, looking out the windows as the train emerged from tunnel, taking their last look at the tenements that flanked the railroad tracks. They said little. They were feeling a trifle awed now that the adventure had really begun.

Someone had sent them a collection of the screen fan magazines. Joel didn't give them a glance but Janet, with a furrow on her clear brow, read them from cover to cover for the first time in her life.

"Look, darling," she said passing one of them to Joel, "Mrs. Franchot Tone—Joan Crawford to you—gives a reception for Stokowoski. Will you just look at the list of guests! Dear me, I can see where I'm going to lead a busy social life."

She thumbed through another magazine and held up a picture of a famous screen star and his bride. The couple stood beside a swimming pool. There was a magnificent house in the background. "And look at this. You don't suppose we'll have to live in a place like that, do you?"

Joel stuck out his chest and favored her with a black look that would have been terrible if Janet hadn't known he was having fun. "You married me and you'll take what little I have to offer even if it is only a 30-room house with a ranch in the back yard!"

"Oh, Joel, will you buy me a ten-gallon hat and a gun to pack on my hip? Then, when the servants get uruly, I'll scare 'em to death."

The servants were, of course, purely a subject of conversation. Janet had no dreams that spread themselves to servants and town cars. But she did have one little happy dream of a house that was vaguely like something in a musical comedy. It would be white and have a very green lawn and probably rose trellises.

At first, Janet knew that she and Joel were going to stay at a hotel and then, surely on the great sum of money they had for an income, they could find just the little place she had in mind—one that would cost so little that they could save gobs of money.

Along with that dream was the half formed picture of her days. Days that began with Joel walking down the little walk between the green lawns in the early morning sunlight. Then for the rest of the day Janet would have her little house to care for and delicious things to cook for Joel. He would return for her at the end of the day. He might be a business man, so happy was that plan. No more disordered days and lonely evenings while Joel was at the theater.

In her spare time she would have a garden, would embroider petit point, knit, read and learn to play golf. She and Joel would read together, swim, play golf and tennis. Oh, life could be so beautiful for them now!

There were no brass bands and no reception committee to welcome them when they reached Los Angeles but there was the counterpart of the worried young man in New York.

This one was possibly a little more rushed and Janet felt the Paynters had done him a personal injury by arriving on a Sunday afternoon. She was so completely overcome by his manner that she did not protest when he mentioned an expensive hotel and suggested that they put up there for a few days until they found what they wanted.

Their first night she wanted to dress for dinner and was sure that they would find the grand dining room filled with stars. But Joel dismissed the idea, saying that they would go out to see the town after dinner.

They walked and walked with a sort of breathlessness, hand in hand until Janet insisted that they return to the hotel since Joel was to start his career the following morning.

She was awake at six and had a sleepy, protesting Joel up and at his breakfast before eight.

"You don't want to be late and the clerk said it was an hour's ride out to Federal City." That was the name of the location of the studios.

She saw him off as though he were going to his first day in school. Then she bathed leisurely, drawing out every minute because the day stretched long before her until Joel would be home at dinner time. She dressed and took herself out into the October sunlight that was warm as midsummer in New York.

She dawdled along the broad streets, gazing into the windows of the shops, killing time until she found a tea-room where she had lunch. She went to a movie in the afternoon and delayed her footsteps back to the hotel.

Joel was there when she arrived. "I've been here all afternoon," he said crossly.

Janet was immediately worried. "What happened, darling? Don't tell me there has been some mistake about your contract!"

"No, that's okay, but I guess they didn't think another Gable had arrived. I sat in an outer office for a couple of hours and then got in to see an assistant casting director who looked me over and said he'd call me when the studio wanted me. So here I am."

And there he was for nearly three weeks. Then they found a message that Joel was to report to the studio at six-thirty the next morning.

"I've been given the second lead in Jarrett's picture so I'm celebrating with a present for my bride. Open it!"

Janet opened the box and saw—with consternation—the loveliest mink coat she had ever seen.

"Next time it will be sables," he said.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW STORM

"We're going to have one of the worst snow storms you ever saw," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Nonsense!" grunted Mr. Twistytail, the jolly fat pig gentleman. That's what he always said when anybody said anything he didn't think was right. "Nonsense!" said he.

"All right," spoke the rabbit gentleman, soft like and not wanting to start an argument, "just you wait and see. Before tomorrow morning you'll see snow so deep, Twisty, that nobody can tell whether you have a tail or not."

"Nonsense!" grunted the pig again. "Nonsense!"

"My friends," slowly spoke Mr. Chuck, the groundhog gentleman who kept the store where Uncle Wiggily and some of his friends were gathered, "my friends, don't dispute. Perhaps Uncle Wiggily will tell us why he thinks there's going to be a bad snow storm."

Nose Knows

"Of course I will," said Mr. Longears. "When I came in just now it was starting to snow hard. The wind is from the north. It's blowing fierce and I can tell by the way my pink nose twinkles we're going to have a bad storm. I wouldn't have come here only Nurse Jane wants some beans to bake tomorrow. And I'd better buy a lot of other groceries. No telling when I can get out of my bungalow again."

"Nonsense!" grunted Mr. Twistytail. "Nonsense!"

Mr. Bushytail, the squirrel gentleman, went to the store door and looked out. As he opened it cold air blew in and a swirl of flakes.

"Our rabbit friend is right so far," chattered the squirrel. "Uncle Wiggily's snow storm has started. I don't know how bad it may be but I'm going to start for my hollow tree house before the snow gets too deep. Let me have a yeast cake, Mr. Chuck. My wife is going to bake nut bread tomorrow. We shan't starve no matter how bad the storm gets."

The other animal gentleman began buying the groceries their wives had sent them to get and then started out in the storm. Finally Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail were the last ones to leave.

"Now, Woodie," said the rabbit gentleman, "if you put up my order I'll start with it for my bungalow. Though I may never get to it in this terrible storm."

Mr. Twistytail, who had picked up his bundle of groceries, started to say "Nonsense," again. He only got as far as "Non—" for just then he opened the door and the wind and snow blew the rest of the word right out of his mouth.

An Invitation

"Say, this is a bad storm," whistled Mr. Chuck, the groundhog storekeeper. "Perhaps you had better stay here tonight, Wiggy. It is almost dark now and the storm is getting worse. Stay here."

"No, I think I can get home," said Mr. Longears. "My wife and Nurse Jane and all my little rabbits would be worried if I don't go home. I'll get there somehow. Besides, they need the groceries."

Carrying the basket filled with things to eat, Uncle Wiggily started from the store. It was all Mr. Chuck could do to close the door after the rabbit, so hard was the wind blowing. Then Mr. Chuck put out the lights and went to bed.

"There'll be no more customers in this storm," he whistled, that being his way of speaking, as it is for all groundhogs.

Uncle Wiggily floundered through the storm. It was getting darker and darker all the while. The snow was coming down faster and the wind was blowing harder. At last the rabbit gentleman could go no farther. He was stuck in a deep drift.

"Dear me! What am I going to do?" he asked himself. And if the pickled pigs feet will stop dancing with the pumpernickle I'll tell you in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's snow picnic.

SCHEMES TO AID WHEAT INDUSTRY GIVEN AT PROBE

Varied Opinions On Marketing Methods Submitted At Turgeon Inquiry

POOLS CRITICIZED

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15.—(CP).—Schemes to assist Canada's wheat industry, lend assistance to producers and develop foreign markets have been placed before the Turgeon royal grain commission which stands adjourned until its resumption in Vancouver about the end of this month.

In the 1,200,000 words of evidence already written into the records during Winnipeg and Saskatchewan sittings, the commission has heard arguments for and against various forms of marketing. Causes of decline of wheat and flour exports and numerous views on various phases of the industry have been submitted.

Tariffs, embargoes and quotas by European countries and general contraction of world trade were blamed for reduction of wheat exports. Among contributing factors were cited Canada's textile tariffs which were declared to have reduced purchasing power in European countries which bought Canadian wheat.

Reciprocal trade treaties, stabilization of exchange and vigorous advertising and sales policies were advocated as steps to extend Canadian wheat sales. Open competition had to be met and quality standards had to be maintained, witnesses declared. Importance of foreign markets to the wheat and flour industry was generally recognized.

Marketing methods brought out wide discussion. Representations were made on behalf of various kinds of wheat boards, pools and the open market and futures method although submissions of the wheat pools themselves still have to be made. Guaranteed prices were proposed as an aid to farmers and opposed on the ground they offered nothing to farmers who had no crop to sell.

Crop insurance and classification of land for use, establishment of an agricultural bank to provide cheap money for farmers, control of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and its protection, if found necessary, against foreign speculative raids were other proposals advocated. Appointment of a supervisor for the Winnipeg market found some support.

The open market and futures method of trading was advocated on the grounds it reduced costs of marketing and in general did a better job than agencies based on control principles. Insurance features of the futures market to protect against price fluctuation were cited.

Directing Sales.

Wheat board proposals included a board paying a minimum guaranteed price and directing sales. A wheat pool with the government guaranteeing the initial payment and operating in competition with the open market was suggested. Proposals also were made for a wheat board to give farmers a selling service based on initial and interim payments with the open market continuing in operation for those who desired to dispose of their own grain.

Criticism of wheat pools was made because, it was claimed, they were responsible for the belief Canadian wheat selling policies were directed at forcing prices upward.

Canadian stabilization operations and the United States federal farm board program were cited as evidence a single agency, even though making large purchases, could not significantly affect the trend of world prices.

The inquiry also heard several views on conditions existing in the United Kingdom and European wheat importing and flour industries. When Canadian wheat was too high in price, United Kingdom millers turned to other wheat although they recognized the superior milling quality of the Dominion's grain.

The commission has yet to hold session at Edmonton, Calgary, and Regina as well as Vancouver and a further session at Winnipeg will be necessary. There is a possibility a session may be held in eastern Canada—probably Montreal or Ottawa—although no definite arrangement has yet been made.

So prompt is the healing action of PENETRO that you can actually feel its penetrating strength—feel the congestion in chest and throat loosening, the cough abating, the nasal passages clearing.

PENETRO acts quickly—the way you want a cold remedy to act—because its concentrated medication is carried down to the very seat of congestion and inflammation.

At the very first sign of a cold in head or chest use PENETRO according to directions with the package. It's better, quicker and easier than the old-fashioned mustard-plaster. It penetrates! Wonderful for children—a boon to mothers. Get a jar of PENETRO to-day, and be ready for the emergencies of winter weather. 23

LIFE OF MOODY IS ABLY PICTURED

Miss M. Gardiner Addresses W.M.S. On Career Of Famous Preacher

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 15.—The Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church held their February meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. W. Johnson, Anne street. There was a good attendance.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Siscoe, president occupied the chair and led in the opening devotional period assisted by Mrs. M. McDowell, and Miss Estella Hetherington.

A special feature, in keeping with the present centellial celebration of the birth of the great American evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, was introduced and ably carried through by Miss Maud Gardiner. She pictured vividly his progress from the years of struggle on the small farm of his mother and her nine children, his going to Boston and later Chicago, the influence of his Sunday School teacher, Mr. Edward Kimball, who enlisted him for active allegiance to Jesus Christ, his gathering together a group of poor boys from the streets of Chicago and beginning with them his career as a Christian teacher and leader, his rapid success in business in Chicago and his surrender of his prospects in that direction to devote his life wholly to Christian service as a Y.M.C.A. worker, pastor and evangelist of world renown. His acceptance of the challenge "It remains to be seen what the Lord can do with a man wholly consecrated to him" and the marvellous way he was used of God to win converts in America and England and Scotland, among them being young men of such calibre as Wilfred Grenfell and Henry Drummond.

Were Ably Pictured

The present celebration of his centennial is being promoted with the purpose of arousing the Christian people of the U.S.A. to the fact that there are "27,000,000 children in that republic today who are getting no religious education in Sunday Schools and to lead some to go out and do a work in this generation like that done by Dwight L. Moody.

Much was added to this portion of the program by the vocal duet, "O, How He Loves," one of the Moody revival hymns sung by Miss E. Hansman and Mrs. H. W. Johnson.

Another chapter of the study book "Men and women of far horizons" was ably covered by Mrs. John George.

FLEETWOOD

FOOT BADLY CUT BY FALLING TREE

Gordon Staples Victim of Painful Accident While Cutting Wood

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FLEETWOOD, Feb. 15.—Another wood-cutting accident was added to the long list occurring on Manvers farms this season on Thursday afternoon when Gordon Staples received painful injuries to his right foot while felling a tree on the farm of his father, Earnest Staples. The youth and his uncle, Edmund Staples, were felling a tree near a fence which had been temporarily removed to make room for the tree. When the tree finally fell and was severed from the projecting butt, the sharp edge of the log rolled in such a manner as to alight with force on the foot of the victim of the accident, cutting through the rubber into the instep and tearing the skin badly towards the toes as well as causing severe bruises. Immediately the boy was placed in his father's car and was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, where the x-ray disclosed the fact that no bones were broken. Several stitches were necessary to close the wounds and Gordon remained in the hospital. His grandfather, Archie Staples, well-known Manvers thresher, remained with the lad.

FROM GIRL TO WOMAN

GROWING girls are often sufferers from female irregularities, headache, backache or nervousness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the vegetable tonic to give your daughter at such times. Mrs. A. Cluckie of 175 Catharine St., So., Hamilton, Ont., said: "When growing into womanhood I became pale and thin, had not much appetite, suffered from headaches, pains in my back and cramps. Mother gave me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I took it until all feminine disturbance was corrected. Soon my appetite improved, I had better color and all pain as well as the nervous feeling disappeared. I think this 'Prescription' is a splendid medicine for growing girls." Anglican United And Presbyterian Women Meet In Impressive Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 15.—The World Day of Prayer was observed on Friday, when representatives from St. George's Anglican, Trinity United and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Missionary Societies united for the very impressive service held in Trinity United Church.

The printed program for the World Day of Prayer with its theme, "The Son of the Living God, He is the Head of the Body, the Church" was followed throughout the service. Miss C. Doxsee presided at the organ for appropriate hymns.

Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, president of Trinity United W.M., welcomed all the ladies who were present and then called on Miss D. Plant of St. George's W.A. to take charge of the first part of the program, including the Call to Worship, responsive Scripture lesson and prayer in unison. After the second hymn Mrs. F. W. Newell offered prayer for the Christian Church, Mrs. H. Dodd prayer for the Missionary program of our churches, Mrs. Wm. Hill, prayer for the community and Mrs. J. Dalnard, prayer for youth everywhere and for His Majesty the King. The program continued and following the fourth hymn, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe gave a very impressive address on the purpose of the World Day of Prayer. Mrs. Gordon Faux rendered a beautiful solo "Every Prayer will find its Answer."

The offering was taken by Mrs. H. B. Wilson and Mrs. R. King and will be forwarded to the Inter-Board treasurer. Mrs. C. Baker and Mrs. M. Venters distributed the programs before the service.

Personals

TRENT RIVER W.I. PLANNING BAZAAR

Institute Members Hear Excellent Report Given On Buymanship Course

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 15.—Notwithstanding the cold weather and epidemic of severe colds among the members, there was an attendance of 24 at the February meeting of the Women's Institute, held at the home of the president, Mrs. Carl Greenly.

Letters acknowledging fruit sent to the sick were read. A letter from H. M. Carr, M.L.A. for Northumberland, regarding the matter of traffic signs which had been erected by the Highways Department at each approach of the bridges with words "Caution" made up of reflector buttons with further wording of "Narrow Bridge 500 feet" painted.

The secretary was requested to interview the Township Clerk about the matter of street lights. A letter was read from the secretary of the Canadian Association for the protection of fur-bearers, asking for interest and co-operation in bringing a knowledge of conditions in the neighborhood eventually to mitigate these evils of present methods of trapping for a more humane kind. The Association hopes in the near future to be able to recommend humane traps which may be cheaply constructed by the men and boys in their homes when so desired. No action was taken up by the members.

The blankets, ordered at the January meeting to be donated to the hockey boys for selling tickets on, had been purchased and were exhibited during the afternoon. Books of tickets for the same were distributed among the members; also tickets for the rug, made by Mrs. Roy Longmuir, were given out.

Bazaar Planned

The members decided to work for a Bazaar to be held during the summer months, each member to contribute an article for the same.

Mrs. James Longmuir gave an excellent report of the "Buymanship Course" she attended at the Agricultural office, Peterborough, describing the making of printed fabrics and various weaves of cloth, the best buying of silk hose, how to color goods, how to dress, etc. A hearty vote of appreciation was given Mrs. Longmuir for her interesting report.

Mrs. Thos. Wight gave a two minute talk on the slogan "The best doctors in the world are Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet, Dr. Merryman."

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Scott instead of Mrs. Walter Lewis.

Program as follows: recitation, Marian Huble; a contest "Farmers' love letter" in charge of Mrs. Earl Greenly, was won by Mrs. Thos. Wight.

A dainty lunch appropriate to Valentine season was served consisting of salads decorated with vegetable hearts, colored pink hearts decorated the tempting cakes served. The tablecloth and serviettes were all in keeping with Valentine.

ADDRESS ON INDIA PROGRAM FEATURE

Young People's League Enjoy Talk By Mr. Platt, Havelock

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 15.—The Young People's League meeting was held Friday night with an increased attendance. The members decided to cancel the play for the present. The secretary read the roll call. Lyle Lewis gave newspaper clippings.

Mrs. John Scott, convenor for the Missionary program expressed her appreciation for her election to office. Rev. Mr. Kemp introduced Mr. Platt of Havelock, who has travelled around the world considerably, especially in the East. Mr. Platt gave a most interesting talk on India where he spent many years. The address proved most interesting and it is to be hoped Mr. Platt will be called upon to address the Young People in the near future. A vote of thanks was given him.

Reading, Murray Wight; reading, Miss Doris Scott; Mrs. Scott gave a reading on "What happens to your Missionary offering". The groups lined up for a "Kitchen Shower" contest in charge of George Armstrong.

SCHOOL ESTIMATES UP.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 15 (C.P.)—Separate School Board estimates for 1937 were placed at $189,400 at a special meeting last night. The amount represented an increase of $22,400 over those of 1936. Increases amounting to $5,650 were made to the estimates last night over figures arrived at on Monday. Revision of salaries alone resulted in a $2,700 jump.

TRAVEL DANGEROUS ON COUNTRY ROADS

Farmers In Manvers Using Sand And Ashes To Overcome Ice

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Feb 15.—Manvers township is far-famed for its mountainous hills and picturesque landscape. Lovers of beautiful scenery may find their heart's desire by pausing on the crest of many a Manvers' elevation and drinking in the appealing views presented by wood-bedecked slopes in varying hues.

Less attractive, yes, even treacherous, have become these ordinarily peaceful hills and dales during the past week when King Winter chose to clutch them with icy fingers, and motorists grimly hesitate to traverse them. Truck drivers and other motorists find their steering gears powerless in directing their vehicles on the glaringly icy hills.

On Friday several trucks were engaged in drawing sand to distribute on the most dangerous steep slopes which made traffic considerably safer. Several farmers carried ashes to dangerous spots on the roads in close proximity to their homes. Those with sloping approaches to their farm buildings found it necessary to put a covering of ashes or sand over the ice before it was possible to leave their farm home with either cars or horse-drawn vehicles.

Pigeon Swamp has again become so badly flooded that traffic through it is entirely cut off for the present time. Yes, travelling in Manvers township under present conditions fails to attract either sightseer or adventurer.

TRENT RIVER

The pupils of the public school held their annual Valentine program Friday afternoon at the school. The children exchanged valentines and the program was as follows:

George Is Interested In Tennis Rackets—Hopes To Play More Of Favorite Game

Foodstuffs From Dominion, Mainly Canned Varieties, Take Elizabeth's Eye

LONDON, Feb. 16 (C.P. Cable). — King George, examining new tennis rackets and steel-shaft golf clubs at the British Industries Fair to-day, said he hoped soon to get in some more of the tennis he loved so much as Britain's sailor-prince.

"I hope to play a bit more tennis one of these days," he remarked after slipping away from the Royal party at the Fair to examine the exhibits in the sports section.

It was to keep a tennis engagement that the King, then Prince Albert, dodged an official reception while visiting Halifax, N.S., as a naval cadet shortly after the war. A left-handed player who hits with tremendous power, the King met with considerable success in the service tournaments in England, and in 1926 entered the doubles at Wimbledon with Wing Commander Sir Louis Greig as his partner. They were defeated, however. Later, as Duke of York, the Royal sportsman turned almost exclusively to golf.

VANDERYAGT GETS 4 YEARS IN PRISON

Makes Strong Plea For Girl Friend Given Twenty Months For Part In Owen Sound Job

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Feb. 16—(C.P.). — Adrian Vanderyagt was sentenced here to-day to four years in the Kingston Penitentiary, to date from the time of his arrest in July last, and to run concurrent with four years given him at Walkerton in October last. Vanderyagt pleaded guilty a week ago to breaking and entering the Dianna Restaurant in Owen Sound and stealing a safe containing more than $400.

His other offence was attempting to steal a safe from the Brewer's Warehouse in Wiarton in July last.

Miss Marjorie Constable, who also pleaded guilty to the same offence, was given 20 months determinate and 10 months indeterminate, in the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto, to run concurrent with a sentence of 18 months and to date from the time of her arrest.

Vanderyagt addressed the court and made a strong plea on behalf of the girl. He said if he had listened to her in the first place he would never have been in the trouble he is at the present time. He said he had made a mistake in hooking up with a bad gang, and his downfall was the result.

CHARGE VIOLATION

Welland Cotton Workers Protest Mill Actions After Strike.

WELLAND, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—An appeal has gone out to Louis Fine, chairman of the industrial standards branch of the Ontario government from the "workers committee" at the Empire Cotton mill, asking that he make representations to the mill management in connection with what the committee alleges to be "discrimination" and "breaches of faith."

The committee alleges discrimination is being shown in matter of putting a number of former strikers back to work and charges that coercion is being used to have the employes form an independent company union, violating the agreement that last week settled the seven weeks old strike.

The committee also alleges that mill overseers have been sworn in as special constables.

Raid On Ports, Elevators Canada's Main Fear

Fast Fighting Planes Coast, Aircraft Guns Listed To Be Bought

Navy To Be Provided With 4 New Mine Sweepers To Keep Ports Clear

MACNEIL ATTACKS PLAN

Non-Confidence Motion Starts Heated Debate—Would Spend Money On Peace

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (CP)—Efficient military, naval and air forces for the defence of Canadian territory and Canadian neutrality are the objectives the federal government has in view in increasing expenditures in the national defence Department.

The government's policy was under fire yesterday and will be again today from House of Commons members of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group who were led in the attack by Grant MacNeil of Vancouver North.

Defence Minister Mackenzie outlined the objectives of the defence policy and repeated previous assurances of Prime Minister Mackenzie King that the policy considered only the defence of Canada and not participation in military operations abroad.

Sporadic raids on Canadian ports or grain elevators were more to be feared than a mass invasion, the minister said, and the defence policy was aimed at combatting raids. The air force would be equipped with fast fighting machines which could be moved to a threatened, point in four hours, coasted artillery defences, could be strengthened anti-aircraft guns acquired and the navy would be provided with four new mine sweepers to assist in keeping Canadian ports clear of mines.

Measures of "a most vigorous and relentless character" were under preparation to deal with the export of munitions and other war supplies from Canada and to safeguard the supply of munitions and equipment in wartime, the minister told the House when answering complaints at a lack of measures to deal with profiteers. The government had already evolved a method of dealing with peace-time purchases of defence equipment, he said.

More for the Navy.

The increase in naval estimates over last year was $1,832,310, said the minister. The personnel would be increased by 373 in the Royal Canadian Navy and 161 in the volunteer reserve. The four new mine sweepers would cost $750,000.

For the air force the increase was $6,706,632, for the permanent $6,176,692 and for the non-permanent, $529,930. Stores and equipment would take $4,524,847 of the increase. The permanent personnel would be increased by 40 officers and 519 airmen.

The new aircraft proposed would include 10 two-seater fighters, seven Stranraer flying boats, 18 coastal reconnaisance planes, 11 torpedo bombers, 27 Abinitio training planes and 18 bombers, or a total of 102 airplanes costing in round figures $3,000,000 and engines costing $237,000.

An increase of $5,831,000 for the militia would go chiefly to engineering services and works, stores and equipment. About $1,000,000 would be spent on the Pacific coast for gun emplacements and technical equip-

Hunting Lost Flier Cost Canada $52,384

Ottawa, Feb. 16 (CP)

THE Dominion Government spent $52,384 in the search last fall for Flight-Lieutenant Sheldon Coleman, Winnipeg, found after he flew off his course in the Northwest Territories. Information was given L. A. Mutch (Lib.-Winnipeg South) in the House of Commons today by Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State. About 14,000 gallons of gasoline were used in the airplane search, the Minister said. Cost of equipping an airplane with two-way wireless apparatus varies from $500 to $3,000, Mr. Rinfret told the Winnipeg member.

OUTBREAK OF WAR TO BRING LONDON SHOWER OF DEATH

Former Officer Says City Will Be Battleground Within Few Hours

AIR BOMBING ACCURATE

By Edwin Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 16 (CP)—London will become a primary battleground within a few hours of the outbreak of war involving Great Britain, with prospects of "horrible destruction" unless bold measures of defence are taken, says a former officer of the Royal Air Force, writing under the pseudonym of Frank Morison, in "War on Great Cities."

Morison envisages frightful havoc in the metropolitan area by an enemy raiding squadron, equipped with the most modern weapons of destruction. Within a few minutes parts of the city could be levelled by bombs, the Thames bridges destroyed, street traffic dislocated, fires set by incendiary bombs along the dockyards and in congested suburbs and the populace menaced by gas bombs.

He writes: "It is practically assured that the speed of a long-distance bombing squadron sent against London in the next war will not be less than 250 miles an hour. This means that a formation sighted at Beachy Head (about 60 miles from the metropolitan area) say at 11 a.m. if not intercepted and driven off, will reach the suburbs at 11.12 a.m. and be over central London about one minute later.

Two Hits Enough.

"The truth is, that experienced pilots, armed with high explosive bombs of suitable calibre, could destroy the Admiralty, the War Office, or any other Government building with certainty. The feat might involve the supreme sacrifice on the part of the airmen, but it can be done.

"Should one such (5,000-pound) bomb fall in Parliament Square and another say, on the Horse Guards Parade, there would necessarily be little of administrative London left standing. Unless the vital War Ministries are remover promptly to a secret and pre-arranged rendezvous, the authorities responsible for the defence of the capital will have to do some very hard thinking."

Threat To Lop Off Heads Loosens German Hoards

Over $100,000,000 Brought Back From Abroad By Nervous Citizens

TICKLISH PROCEDURE

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—(AP).— General Goering's threat to use the headsman's axe has brought back to Germany an estimated $100,000,000 ($250,000,000 marks) which has been hidden abroad from Nazi authorities.

Theoretically many Germans escaped having their heads cut off by confessing their sins before January 31, the deadline set by the Generalissimo of the Nazi four year plan for bringing home money kept abroad.

All citizens who still have money abroad are subject to a decree which General Goering had the Cabinet approve in December. It provided that "whoever knowingly and unscrupulously, out of sheer selfishness or other base motives, transfers his wealth to foreign lands or lets it remain there, and thus damages German economy" is subject to special trial, at which the maximum penalty is death.

This worried many Germans who had keen keeping wealth of one sort or another abroad on the quiet. Goering assured everyone that voluntary confessors would not face the sabotage penalty if they 'came clean" by January 31.

How They Do It.

So here is how some people brought back their money without the government discovering who they were:

They had it carried in by a stranger in foreign bank notes who handed it to a lawyer previously given power of attorney to act for the owner. This attorney then carried it to the Reichsbank or other designated bank and exchanged it for Reichsmark notes "for a client"—without giving the client's name.

But the owner's embarrassment did not end there. He then had—if his foreign holdings were sizeable—a large stack of Reichsmark notes which he couldn't put on his bank deposit without arousing the suspicion of tax authorities who would want to know why he hadn't paid a capital tax on the money.

So the owner is now sitting uneasily on large sums of money in his private home and gradually depositing them in his bank account.

40 Years, Life Judge But Not Chain Gang

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)

WITH the cry, "I'd rather die!" Charles Garcia, 29-year-old Cuban, begged Federal Judge Alfred G. Coxe today to send him to jail for forty years rather than send him back to serve out a ten-year term on a Florida chain gang.

"For God's sake, Judge," he pleaded, "give me the limit. Give me forty years—give me life. I'd rather die than go back to that gang. It would be worse than death."

Judge Coxe sentenced Garcia to ten years in prison following his plea of guilty to an indictment charging him with the sale of one-half ounce of narcotics to a Federal officer.

STRIKE TIES PLANT AT IROQUOIS FALLS

Dispute Over Paper Tester Sends 45 Men Out, Leaves Hundreds Idle

TORONTO, Feb. 16—(C.P.). — Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, said to-day he was satisfied the strike which has tied up the Iroquois Falls plant of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, largest paper mill in Ontario, can be settled without government intervention.

Mr. Heenan conferred to-day with union officials via telephone. He was informed the 45 keymen who struck were paper testers, and their action tied up the whole mill, throwing several hundred out of work. The men started a sit-down strike Monday but left the mill last night and posted pickets.

The 45 men who struck are union members, Mr. Heenan said. They struck because a non-union man had been hired as a paper tester though other paper testers are not union men. Officially the union had nothing to do with the strike.

If the strike is ended to-day it will be two or there days before the mill can resume operation, Mr. Heenan said.

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (CP). — National Shoe Retailers' Association in annual convention passed a resolution today opposing any proposed Federal sales tax increase.

ONTARIO HOLDS THE POWER BAG ROWE CHARGES

Says Quebec Barons Will Raise Ante When 10-Year Contracts Expire

AT IVANHOE BANQUET

Claims Eastern Sections Paid More, Got Less Power Under New Deal

IVANHOE, Ont., Feb. 16 (C.P.).—When present 10-year power contracts expire after 1945 Ontario will face a raise in the "ante" by power barons, warns Hon. Earl Rowe, Ontario Conservative Leader. He discussed the power situation in an address here last night at a dinner marking the Conservative victory in Hastings East by-election.

Dr. Harold E. Welsh carried the Conservative colors to triumph last December 9 in the by-election voting, hottest to be witnessed in the riding for years, over Dr. H. A. Boyce, the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Rowe in his address predicted the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission would be seeking power in Quebec after 1945 because this province contained no power site able to supply the power users. Development of the St. Lawrence as a power producer was one way of obtaining the required energy, "but Mr. Hepburn has ridiculed that," said the Conservative Leader.

A large block of cheap power will be available then in Quebec only, he continued. "Then watch the power barons, as Mr. Hepburn calls them, raise the ante," he said.

Prominent Eastern Ontario Conservatives heard their Leader attack the new agreement between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ottawa Valley Power Company. The agreement, calling for purchase by the Commission of 96,000 horse-power at $12.50 a horse-power, contained a "joker," the Conservative Leader said.

Sees Joker In agreement.

He declared the "joker" was that the agreement provided after 1945 if the commission buys Quebec power above $12.50 figures, the price paid the Ottawa valley firm increases accordingly. Mr. Rowe saw in such a provision the commission forced to pay what the Quebec power interests demanded once the 10-year contracts were ended and the province was in dire need of electrical energy.

"In nine years time the 10-year reinstated contracts with the Gatineau and MacLaren Quebec companies come to an end," he continued. "When that time comes Ontario will be in need of a large block of power and will have to pay plenty for it. Before the repudiation the province had a long-term safeguard of 40 years at $15 a horsepower."

Mr. Rowe said if the Niagara power load increased at the same rate as last year the province would require 1,800,000 additional horsepower.

Premier Hepburn, charged Mr. Rowe as being "frightened" into the deal with the Ottawa Valley firm through threatened power shortage, promised to inquire into the province's power needs when he returned from his health trip to Arizona.

"What did Mr. Hepburn do on his return? Did he ask Hydro engineers if there was any possibility of a shortage? I think he did and the result so frightened Mr. Hepburn that he rushed through a renewal of

Prisoner Claims Men Getting Better Meat Since Riot

NO BACON OR HAM

Reveals Reformatory Supplies Other Government Institutions Throughout Ontario

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 16 (C.P.). — Members of the commission investigating the Ontario Reformatory gained first-hand evidence to-day when they visited, for an hour, the prison abattoir and cannery and tasted meats and preserves prepared there.

The corn beef, bologna and pressed beef were pronounced better in taste and quality than similar meats bought for home consumption by members of the inquiry.

The apple jelly prepared in the cannery was the favorite among members, who also tasted two types of marmalade. Prisoners were watched preparing grapefruit and lemons for marmalade.

Judge James Madden and counsel were shown meat orders in the abattoir ready for shipment to Ontario Hospitals at London and Toronto Burwash Reformatory. The commission will visit the machine shops later in the day.

Many Cattle Unfit

Cattle unfit for killing have been taken into the Ontario Reformatory abattoir, the Madden inquiry was told by a prisoner experienced in abattoir work before he was sentenced five months ago and started work in the reformatory abattoir.

"Some poor stuff came in from Burwash," he said. The heifers were all in calf. They were poor, thin cattle, not in shape for killing. Old cows from the district have came in that were in pretty bad shape. We get many steers in the district and they are in fine condition.

"Some meat goes into sausages that I would not eat on the outside," he said. "The meat did not smell right. Boneless meat for sausages is tossed into barrels and filled too high so that it doesn't keep well. The refrigerators are not sufficiently cold. They should be made more effective."

Meat from the reformatory is shipped to Ontario mental hospitals in London, Toronto and Orillia, and to Burwash Reformatory and Ontario Agricultural College, the inquiry was told.

Witness declared prisoners were being served poor meat prior to the riot, "but we're getting better stuff now." An exception was Monday night's supper which he said he could not eat. "It was a hash of beef, pork and sausages and everything," he said.

Pork At Christmas.

"We get a cottage roll, which is more expensive, but never bacon," he said. "We had pork chops at

LETHAL CHAMBER FAST AND HUMANE SAY FIVE STATES

Plaxton Brings Committee Views Of Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, Carolina

MISTAKE IMPOSSIBLE

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 (C.P.). — In the five states in which capital punishment is carried out by use of a lethal chamber, the chamber is generaly considered the quickest, cheapest, simplest and most humane method of execution, C. P. Plaxton of the Federal Department of Justice to-day told the committee on the Criminal Code.

The methods in Nevada, Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, and North Carolina were almost identical, he said. In each, a small sealed chamber was used. The prisoner was strapped in a chair, under which was a solution of sulphuric acid. Pellets of cyanite were suspended above the solution, then released into the solution from outside the chamber. The hydro-cyanic gas resulting produced almost instantaneous results, and pulse beats stopped in seven to nine minutes.

In each state, the executions were carried out at the State Prison, Mr. Plaxton said, with only the prison guards being employed. No technical skill was required.

The wardens of the state prisons where lethal gas is used were all asked their opinion as to the humaneness of the method in a questionnaire by the Canadian Department of Justice.

Wardens at Nevada, Colorado, and Wyoming were unaimous that lethal gas was the "most humane method yet devised." Nevada, with 12 years' experience, described lethal gas the most humane, quickest and cheapest. Arizona stressed its simplicity. "It seems impossible to make a mistake," the Warden answered.

"There is some difference of opinion as to its humaneness, but no possibility of mistake," the North Carolina warden wrote.

DR. ALLAN DAFOE MUCH IMPROVED

Hospital Attendants Say Condition Is Not At All Serious

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (C.P.). — Ill with influenza here, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe's condition showed improvement to-day according to hospital authorities. Dr. Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets, was taken to hospital yesterday after having spent the best part of five days confined in bed at his hotel here.

The Callander, Ont., physician contracted a chill while motoring here from Callander on Wednesday. Medical attendants to-day said his condition was not at all serious.

FORTUNE FOR INVENTOR

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(CP).— A fortune waits for the inventor of a better babies' diaper, according to Edgar D. Heist of Kitchener, Ont., president of the foot section of the American Osteopathic Association.

He told the National Shoe Retailers' Association convention the popular triangular "protective sanitary garment a child is compelled to wear about the hips" causes damage to babies' feet, legs and general system.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP) — Harold Moffatt, township treasurer of the Township of Augusta in Grenville County was arrested during the night by Provincial Constable A. MacLeod, of Prescott and charged with the theft of $1,200, property of the municipality.

The complaint was laid by Isaac Bradley, reeve of the township. Moffatt is a resident of North Augusta and is 46 years of age. In court today he pleaded not guilty and was remanded to jail for a week

Flier Ignores Snowstorm To Save Injured Finn Miner

Brings Doctor To Shaft At Lake Of Woods, Later Takes Pair To Hospital

MUD SLIDE KILLS ONE

KENORA, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—Kust Ruona, 28, was receiving hospital attention for severe head injuries here today because of the courage of Pilot Douglas Cameron, who flew through a blinding northern Ontario blizzard to bring the injured man from the scene of a mine accident which proved fatal to Victor Anderson, 37.

Ruona and Anderson were foundbadly injured and partly buried in mud early yesterday at the Windigo Gold Mines, 22 miles from here on the Lake of the Woods. They were injured in blasting operations in the mine.

With great difficulty, a rescue party working with ropes managed to get the men to the surface but Anderson died as he was being taken up the shaft.

Soon afterwards, Pilot Cameron landed at the mine with Mining Inspector A. Bayne of Port Arthur, making a regular inspection trip. Cameron immediately flew here, picked up Dr. J. A. Mahoney and returned to the mine despite the severe snowstorm.

Later he risked another flight here with the doctor and the injured man, who was taken immediately to hospital. An inquest will be held into the death of Anderson, whose body was brought here last night. Both miners were Finns.

Wife Manages Farm Hubby Runs Nation

Helsingfors, Finland, Feb. 15.

KYOSTI Kallio was elected President of Finland today, but his wife won't move into the presidential palace with him.

She is too busy running the Kallio farm, which she has managed successfully for many years while her husband engaged in affairs of state. Under present plans, she will remain there.

Kallio, premier of Finland, since October 6, 1936, will resign that post to become president. He was elected yesterday by the Electoral College.

PROPOSE FEB. 20 FINAL DEADLINE FOR VOLUNTEERS

Germany, Italy Provide Surprise By Falling In Line After French Warning

CORDON AROUND SPAIN

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(AP).— The International "hands-off" Spain committee was called into full session to-day to pledge an immediate halt in aid to both factions in the Spanish civil conflict.

Germany and Italy fell into line at a surprise sub-committee meeting last night, joining Britain, Russia and France in stamping approval on a determined plan for non-intervention after French Ambassador Charles Corbin had warned his government no longer would tolerate interference in Spain.

The sub-committee, with only Spain's peninsula neighbor, Portugal, dissenting, made three recommendations for ending the threat of the civil conflict's spread across the Pyrenees to the rest of Europe.

1. Midnight of February 20 to be the deadline for each country to ban its voluntary aid to either Spanish faction.

2. The same date to mark completion of the committee's plan to stop shipment of both men and guns to Spain.

3. An agreement to put the supervisory plan into effect by March 6.

The French Ultimatum.

The decision was reached after France delivered a virtual ultimatum to her fellow committee members to end the bickering and warned Italy she would not stand for "open invasion of Spain." The decisions meant 26 points were ready at last to lace a tight cordon around Spain.

The five major powers, Britain, France, Russia, Germany and Italy, ignored Portugal's opposition to establishment of frontier guards on her territory and determined to police Portuguese entrance to Spain by a naval blockade.

Ultimate participation of Portugal, faced with a fait accompli by the committee was hoped for, and Great Britain was understood to be planning continued pressure to gain her consent to land observers.

KING, QUEEN MOVE INTO BUCKINGHAM

150 Servants Make Monarchs At Home—Hear Tidings From Edward

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—One hundred and 50 servants, not to mention a host of court officials, bustled about Buckingham Palace today to make King George VI, Queen Elizabeth and their two daughters feel at home.

The family moved into the vast palace yesterday from their comparatively modest quarters at 145 Piccadilly. Only a handful of spectators witnessed the change.

Queen Elizabeth's chintz-covered furniture and the playtime laughter of the two little princesses, Elizabeth, 10, heir presumptive to the throne, and her sister, Margaret Rose, 6, were expected to dispel the palatial gloom that former King Edward VIII is said to have found so depressing.

The children were established in nursery quarters on the second floor while their parents moved into private apartments on the first floor.

The royal couple's first dinner guests at Buckingham Palace were the Princess Royal and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, who brought tidings from the Duke of Windsor.

Volunteers Rush To Spain

Confronted By Saturday Night Deadline Prospective Volunteers Move Into Spain.

PARIS, Feb. 16 (A.P.).— Groups of prospective volunteers, confronted by a Saturday midnight deadline for international aid on either side of the Spanish Civil War, trooped toward the Spanish frontier to-day.

Others scurried about in preparation for departure in time to beat the deadline. Despatches from the frontier said about 1,400 volunteers already had crossed the boundary this month. Six hundred and fifty men left Perpignan for Barcelona, 450 passed Cerbere, and 300 crossed at Perthus.

A CHIMNEY FIRE

Campbellford Brigade Called Out to Small Blaze

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—The local fire brigade was called on this morning for the second time in a little over two weeks to quell a chimney fire over the Selrite Store, Front street. Although no damage was done the firemen last little time in dismantling the pipes in order to smother the blaze which was making rapid progress.

Witwatersrand University, Johannesburg, South Africa, conferred the honorary degree of LL.D. on the retiring Governor-General, Lord Clarendon and Lady Clarendon.

Vancouver Trusties Have Rum Cut Off

Vancouver, Feb. 16 (CP)

"TRUSTIES" in Vancouver City Jail today were without smuggled rum rations to which they had become accustomed, and police sought an unidentified woman believed to have been responsible for providing the liquor.

Motorcycle officers noticed a woman hurrying up a garage ramp between the jail and the city morgue near by. She disappeared in the darkness of a downtown street. On investigation, the officers found a full bottle of rum dangling from a cord lowered from a window high in the jail. They seized the container before it could be pulled into the building.

Several empty bottles were found in the "trusties'" quarters, but all inmates denied connection with the rum-smuggling plot.

ONTARIO HOUSE RESUMES TODAY

Hepburn Absent During First Two Weeks Will Lead Government Forces

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(CP).—The Ontario Legislature will resume its adjourned session to-day with Premier Hepburn leading his Liberal government forces. Mr. Hepburn was absent from the first two weeks of the sitting, as he was in Arizona recuperating from a bronchial ailment.

Debate on the Speech from the Throne will start when M. M. MacBride (Lib., Brantford) moves the address in reply. His seconder will be J. A. Habel (Lib., Cochrane North.) The two speeches will be the only business of the day.

The seat of Dr. George McQuibban will be draped in purple and black in honor of the Liberal member for Wellington North who died the morning after adjournment two weeks ago last Friday.

Date for the by-election for the seat will be held after the present Legislature session, the Government has announced.

Wednesday the Legislature will go into second reading debates on a number of government bills introduced by Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck. Most of these provide for minor amendments to various statutes.

HAVELOCK W.M.S. DRAMATIZE STUDY

Special Lenten Services Announced For St. John's Anglican Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 16.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Rae Williams with a very good attendance, and Mrs. S. A. Kemp, president, in the chair. The devotional period was conducted by the president. The Leaflet was read by Mrs. H. Hoard. The members answered the roll call by quoting a verse from the Scripture beginning with a "B." Some very helpful answers were presented.

The study was dramatized in four scenes, led by Mrs. C. Price; 1st, in Africa, by Mrs. W. W. Hill; 2nd, Dr. Judd (Mrs. Weese) visiting a home managed by Mrs. Sexsmith; 3rd, in China, by Mrs. G. W. Chiles, as a missionary talking to a group of women at an afternoon tea; 4th, in Japan, Mrs. Geo. Wiggins, in costume, giving a talk. This method of presenting the study proved very interesting and instructive.

A vocal solo contributed by Miss Edith Roberts was also much enjoyed.

The meeting closed with prayer, after which refreshments were served by the tea hostesses, Mrs. Rae Williams, Mrs. A. Russell, and Mrs. H. Hoard.

Lenten Services at St. John's.

Special Lenten services with special address by the Rev. R. E. Lemon, on "Problems that Perplex" will be held in St. John's Anglican Church, for the next eight Sundays. Commencing last Sunday the subject was "Problem of Pain"; February 21st, the subject will be "Problem of Prayer"; February 28th, "Problem of the Wicked"; March 7th, "Problem of Believing"; March 14th, "Problem of the Bible"; March 21st, "Problem of Atonement"; Easter Day, "Problem of Immortality"; April 4th, "Problem of Personality"; April 11th, "Problem of Providence."

There will also be special week-night services, every Wednesday evening throughout Lent, when a series of interesting lantern slides, presenting character studies of the New Testament, will be shown and explained by Rev. R. E. Lemon. Subject of the different lantern slides will be as follows: February 11th, Caiaphas; February 17th, Herod; February 24th, Pilate; March 3rd, Story of Passion; March 10th, Seven Words from the Cross; March 17th, The Multitude; March 24th, Judas.

DAY AND NIGHT PATROLS.

BRANTFORD—To put a stop to an epidemic of burglaries here, the police commission ordered day and night police patrol of all streets. The officers will use motor cruisers.

Would Pay For Naval Protection

Irish Free State president, Eamonn DeValera (INSET), unwilling to pay $25,000,000 yearly to the British government for land annuities, would pay $25,000,000 annually for naval protection.

IRELAND OFFERS TO PAY BRITAIN TO GUARD COAST

DeValera Offers British Government $25,000,000 Annually For Protection

OTHER PAYMENTS

LONDON, Feb. 16—Ireland wants to "hire" the British Navy for protection of the Emerald Isle at a cost of $25,000,000 a year.

The British government today was reportedly considering such an offer from the Irish Free State government in connection with the negotiations to settle all outstanding differences between Great Britain and Ireland.

President de Valera was reported to have made this offer as a compromise method of settling the land annuities dispute.

Ireland is pledged by treaty to pay the British government $25,000,000 a year in land annuities. President de Valera repudiated this obligation when he came into power in 1932 and has refused to recognize it on the grounds that the obligation was "forced" upon the Irish people by Britain in the treaty of 1921.

Offers Other Payment

While refusing to recognize the obligation, de Valera is said to be willing to repay the money loaned Ireland at the time by offering it as a contribution on the part of the Irish government towards the upkeep of the British navy in return for the navy's protection of the Irish coasts.

Under this scheme, Ireland would pay the $25,000,000 to the British government annually for the "protection" afforded by the British Navy. The Irish Free State government would offer no objection if the British government used the money to liquidate the land annuities loan.

Friends of de Valera claim this idea of paying for the "protection" which the British Navy ordinarily gives Ireland as part of the British Empire would be in line with the Irish President's aim of making Ireland as independent of Great Britain as possible without breaking away completely from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The land annuities dispute was responsible for the trade "war" that developed between Great Britain and Ireland in the latter part of 1932 and caused bitter feeling once again between the two countries.

These land annuities have their origin in a loan raised on the credit of the British government to enable Irish landlords to be bought out in favor of Irish farmers. The loan was to be paid off by annuities levied against the farmers.

Was Repudiated

In 1921, when the Irish Free State was set up by treaty, it was provided that the Irish Government should collect the annuities and pay them to the British government.

This provision was repudiated by President de Valera when he came into power on the grounds that the Irish representatives to the 1921 conference were forced to accept it under "duress."

The British government took the view that the terms of the 1921 treaty could not be altered by unilateral action. It retaliated vigorously, imposing duties of 20 per cent., and later 40 per cent on Irish produce exported to Britain, and earmarking the revenue from these duties for the payment of the annuities.

President de Valera struck back by increasing the duties on British goods and the trade "war" raged until 1935, when a "coal-for cattle" agreement was drawn up mitigating the tension.

CALENDAR RECORDS CENTURY-YEAR-DAY

Can Tell Future Dates Up To 10,000 Years From Now

VANCOUVER, Feb. 16 (C.P.). — The scrapping of China's ancient calendar in 1911 started Jung Jin Sow, merchant and accountant of Vancouver's Chinatown, on a quarter-century effort to produce a perpetual calendar and to-day he has the finished product.

His calendar records the century, the year and the day. Asked what day June 4, 1066, was, Jung looked it up and found it was a Sunday. Similarly, he said, he can tell future dates up to 10,000 years from now. He has patented the idea in Canada and the United States, and is applying for patents in other countries.

Bested By Police Radio Cars Hooligans Turn To Subways

Gangs Beat Up Victims Between Stations Often When Cars Nearly Empty

PATROLS CAN'T 'SUBMERGE'

NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (A.P.). — Driven off the streets by the swift "flying squad" efficiency of patrol cars, roving gangs of subway knuckle-busters are giving New York police a new headache.

Radio cars will reach any spot in Manhattan within three minutes—on the surface. Often they hit the scene of a crime while it still is being committed.

But they can't "submerge" — and a riot in a subway express car flashing along at 40 miles per hour, non-stop for a dozen or more blocks, leaves the motorized gendarmes with nothing to do about it.

Frequent outbreaks of subway violence, usually late at night when the cars are almost empty, have convinced police that the hard-fisted hooligans who used to pick their victims on side streets have taken their homicidal capers underground.

Old Mike McTigue, one-time light heavyweight champion of the world, grizzled veteran of the ring wars, ran smack into one of these marauding gangs recently. He was riding home on the subway, reading the paper, when "the boys" started lambasting him. They cuffed him savagely, without fear of the cops as the train sped between stations.

Another subway rider took a terrific beating that put him in the hospital for weeks. He sued the subway company, charging that the conductor was the guardian of the subterranean peace in the absence of the police, and collected $2,000 damages.

Four-Pound Pull

As delicately built as a watch is this miniature model of a locomotive engine, as its maker, model-craft expert Alexander Wood squints through a jeweller's eyepiece to put finishing touches to a three months' job. Weighing 1¼ pounds, the tiny device is four inches long, two inches high, and its six volt electric motor develops a draw bar pull of four pounds. All parts were turned on a jeweller's lathe.

LIFE ON RIVIERA

R. C. Ramsden Address Campbellford Anglican Y.P.A.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16. —After a short business session, the Anglican Young People were to-night given a brief but interesting talk by the president, R. C. Ramsden who, supplementing his remarks by the use of picture postcards, gave a very graphic account of life on the Riviera.

Following this, the members devoted the remainder of the evening to work on the play which they plan to present following Easter.

ACID-THROWING MOTIVE QUERIED

Port Arthur Principal Doubts Teacher's Act Due To Grievance

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 16. — In a statement submitted to the Board of Education here last night in connection with the acid-throwing incident of February 2, involving Mayor C. W. Cox, who is a member of the Ontario Cabinet, and Miss Eileen Flanagan, former Port Arthur teacher, W. A. McWilliams, Principal of the Technical School, after outlining Miss Flanagan's relations with the Board and school stated:

"In view of these facts, I do not see how any action she (Miss Flanagan) may have taken three months after leaving her position could be construed as coming from one who was voicing dissatisfaction on account of the treatment she received."

The statement, made by Mr. McWilliams at the suggestion of the Board, had reference to the charge made by Mr. Cox that he had been attacked by the former teacher as a protest against the stand which he had taken for the reduction of teachers' salaries.

Resigned Voluntarily.

"I would again point out that Miss Flanagan left voluntarily, and at no time did she discuss with me the possibility of getting more money," Mr. McWilliams said. "Repeatedly she stated that she was entirely satisfied with the treatment given her.

COLDWELL DOING A GRIEVOUS HARM FERGUSON SAYS

Son Would Prefer Jail To Fighting For The British Empire

PRIDE OF FATHER

TORONTO, Feb. 16. — Hon. G. Howard Ferguson last night charged that men like M. J. Coldwell, M.P., were doing "a grievous harm" to Canada by "going around to public meetings and poisoning the minds of Canadian boys."

The former Ontario Premier stressed the fact that he had been "extremely shocked" to realize that the Saskatchewan C.C.F. member for Rosetown-Biggar had actually been proud last Sunday to tell a Toronto peace rally that his son had promised to go to jail before enlisting in any future European war which involved Canada.

Guest speaker at a meeting of the Central Y.M.C.A. Dinner Club, Mr. Ferguson vigorously denounced the doctrines that had been advocated at that peace rally and then went on to attack, in no uncertain terms, the principles of Canadian nationalism which he believed were being taught in many parts of the Dominion at the present time.

Dislikes Doctrine.

"I thank God I am not a pacifist," Mr. Ferguson declared, "and neither am I an alarmist about war. But I cannot subscribe to a doctrine which advocates that Canada should not go to the aid of Great Britain in time of war."

The speaker expressed his belief that Canada's first line of defence, in the event of another European war which involved Great Britain, was in Europe itself. Surely, he contended, Canadians were not willing to wait until the enemy landed on Canadian territory before taking action.

BELIEVED HOUSE HAUNTED

Ghosts Given as Reason for Breaking Lease on House

Dr. John R. McCoy, landlord, asked $2,568 of William E. Celestin, color photography expert now in Europe, for breaking his lease.

Mr. Celestin's secretary said that her employer vacated the house because it was haunted and that the bell-ringing of the ghosts disturbed his slumber.

HE MADE A TEN-YEAR TEST WITH ALL-BRAN

Say good-bye to the headaches, the low spirits, the sleeplessness that often follow common constipation. Just read this letter:

"In 1926, I started using ALL-BRAN. And now, after ten years, during which I have put Kellogg's ALL-BRAN to a long, hard test, I am writing you this letter. It is better to eat this food and be in condition, than to resort to laxatives." —Bernard Altman (address on request).

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will help you too. Its "bulk" absorbs moisture within the body, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the system. Tests prove it is safe and effective.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Try it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Either as a cereal, or in recipes. How much better to use this food than to take patent medicines. Buy ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London.

INDIAN RIDER'S PONY RUNS FREE

Constant Companion Roams Farm Alone Since Master's Death

RIMBEY, Alta., Feb. 16 (C.P.).—An old roan pony roams alone on a farm near here, the only resident since the death of his master, Geo. Washington Miller, 68, former Indian rider. Miller claimed to have been in the Deadwood, Colo., saloon when "Wild Bill" Hickok was killed.

For twenty years the pony was Miller's constant companion. The veteran of pioneer trails was said by those who knew him to be "the best mule skinner ever to come out of the State of Missouri." Miller was burned to death in a blaze that destroyed his farm home. Neighbors buried him in a plain coffin made from available lumber.

In his last years the former rider for "Buffalo Bill" Cody was feeble, and the faithful old horse would assist him when he went to the spring for a pail of drinking water. The pony would respond to Miller's whistle and walk slowly beside him, supporting his master whose arm was placed around his neck.

There is a running stream cutting through the old farmstead and a plentiful supply of hay in a barn where the horse may seek shelter. Authorities have decided to allow the pony to fend for itself on the farm, for the time being.

Valentine Tea.

The Ladies' Parlor at St. Andrew's United Church was the scene of a pretty St. Valentine tea on Saturday afternoon, when members of the Canadian Girls in Training group of the church were hostesses at a well-attended and successful event of the Valentine season. A feature of the tea was an exhibition of character dolls and dolls from foreign lands, including a large number of dolls of all nations, an example of the famous Norah Wellings dolls from England, done in velvet with rounded cheeks, and a doll which is a replica of the late Sir Wilfred Grenfell, brought from the Labrador by Mrs. W. R. Morris.

In the absence of the president and general convenor, Miss Dolly Boyle, the guests were received by the leader of the group, Miss Eleanor Stacey, with the assistant leader, Miss Ruth Barns, and the vice president, Miss Margaret Henry.

Decorations of the pretty room were in Valentine effects, and the table, with its lace cloth, was adorned by seasonal cutouts, red tulips and red candles.

Tea was poured by Mrs. W. A. Richardson, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. C. M. Scott and Mrs. G. H. Roper. Assistants included the Misses Jean Moore, Zoe Stayzer, Mary Richardson, Mildred McIntyre, Eileen Sellon, Helen Beatty.

A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Miss Lillian Morrow. The arrangement of the table and room was supervised by Miss Zoe Stayzer and Miss Mary Richardson.

Valentine Tea
St. James' Bible Class.

A pretty Valentine Tea was held on Monday night in St. James' Sunday School Hall, under the auspices of the Ever-Awake Bible Class, of which Mrs. E. Beavis is teacher and Mrs. Sherman Rowe is president.

Valentine colors predominated in the decoration of class room and tables, at which the Sunday School in general, and the Ever Awake class in particular, were well represented. The official Board members of the church were also honored guests.

At the head table were seated the musicians who contributed a fine program during the evening. The Rev. F. W. Craik, pastor of the church, spoke in commendation of the social spirit which prevailed and which he declared was as essential in church life as in the home.

Hawaiian music was enjoyed when Mesdames H. Turner and R. Moynes sang in duet, with a recall number, both with guitar accompaniment.

In her own humorous style, Mrs. George H. Rowe gave a much-appreciated number in a reading.

At the conclusion of the program, the class president, Mrs. S. Rowe, expressed thanks for the co-operation which existed and was evidenced in the large number in attendance. She also thanked all who had taken part in making this Valentine Tea so successful.

Mrs. Beavis, as teacher, thanked the girls of the class for their loyal support in attendance and in assisting with the service of the dainty refreshments.

I.O.D.E.
Anniversary.

Monday marked the thirty-seventh anniversary of the establishment in Canada of the first chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

It was toward the end of the last century that the late Mrs. Clark Murray of Montreal, a Scottish woman upon whom the friendliness and hospitality of the Canadian extended to newcomers to the land had made a strong impression, conceived the idea of uniting together the women of the Empire for a better understanding of British people and for service to King and country.

This idea of service, loyalty and understanding achieved material form on February 15th, 1900 with the establishment of the first chapter in New Brunswick by Mrs. John Black of Fredericton. Now there are over 700 chapters in the Order, with more than 25,000 members, with additional chapters in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, India, and in fifteen states of the American Union. The motto of the Order is: "One Flag, One Throne, One Empire."

Horizontal bands of the Chantilly lace accentuate the fluttering hem of the dress. You'll note the decolletage almost to the waistline at the back with zipper closing beneath.

A splashy crepe print silk is another scheme for this youthful evening ensemble. The jacket transforms it into a smart dinner dress. You'll also wear it for cocktails.

It's so simple to make with the illustrated dressmaking chart that is included in the pattern. It shows step by step how to cut out and sew it.

Style No. 2529 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19 years. Size 15 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material for dress and 2¾ yards of 39-inch material for bolero and trimming bands.

HELP CONSUMER TO FAIR VALUE

Women In Research At Ottawa Seek Production Of Better Materials

WORK IS VALUABLE

By MARGARET BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Feb. 16 — (C.P.). — When all material and dresses preshrunk and tested in every way are labelled, women will be able to buy with their eyes open, in the opinion of Audrey Tweedie, research worker in the textile laboratory of the National Research Council here.

Now, because price and quality do not always go hand in hand, a woman may pay a high price for goods only to find that after all the work and planning that went into making a dress, it has shrunk beyond repair after the first washing.

Men in the textile laboratory have found a woman worker in this research field valuable, as she knows what one of her own sex would want to know about material; whether it wil shrink on being laundered or stand dry-cleaning, whether it is color-fast to sunlight and washing, whether it tears easily, and so on. Miss Tweedie makes all these tests and others on various type of woollens, cottons and rayons.

She feels little is being done in Canada to educate the ultimate consumer. One suggestion made to the textile laboratory was that laundries enclose with returned wash advice to women: "Ask for preshrunk material."

Uniform Quality

A few stores in this country maintain laboratories for testing their merchandise, permitting them to set up standards of performance covering any particular item. This benefits the consumer who can obtain a product of uniform quality.

According to Miss Tweedie it will be a question of time before goods will be tested either by the manufacturer or by the store and labelled accordingly.

First the consumer must be educated to ask for tested material. If the demand increases, the manufacturers and stores eventually will meet it. There probably will be a slight difference in price between those goods that are labelled and those that are not, but the fact the information concerning their performance is given will permit a more intelligent choice by the public.

Miss Tweedie, who is a native of Winnipeg, finds her work interesting and worthwhile, but feels a woman should be keen about research work, and then should consider carefully, before entering that field. The opportunity is limited, she says due to the large proportion of men to women in science, and the corresponding keen competition.

Branch Notes

ANNUAL LENTEN RALLY.

The Annual Lenten Rally of the Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. was held in Christ Church, Omemee, on Monday evening, with an attendance of about one hundred members.

The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. H. Johnston. The lessons were read by Mr. Geo. Stephenson of Omemee and Mr. B. Pammet of St. Luke's, Peterborough.

A very instructive sermon was delivered to the young people by the Rev. A. R. Holden, who took as his text the words of King Agrippa to St. Paul, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." He pointed out that these words were spoken by Agrippa in a cynical and mocking manner.

"'Almost' is a tragic word," the speaker continued, "as members of the A.Y.P.A. and as Christians we cannot afford to be 'almost' Christians but 'altogether' Christians in every way. 'Almost' being a Christian may be the difference between heaven and hell. The word 'almost' must be dropped from our religious vocabulary.

"Christianity to-day still has its enemies. Young people have every opportunity for being partakers in the greatest enterprise—the Building of the Kingdom of God. Christ has no hands but ours and we must be willing to spread the faith that St. Paul so eloquently and courageously stood for."

After the church service a short business session was held in the parish hall. The president, Roland Krant, in the chair. Expressions of thanks were extended to Rev. Holden for his thought inspiring address, to the Rev. Johnston and wardens of Christ church, Omemee, and to the A.Y.P.A. of Christ church who acted as hosts. The service of refreshments brought the evening to a close.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

SEE the wretch, that long has tost
On the thorny bed of pain,
At length repair his vigor lost,
And breathe and walk again:
The meanest flow'ret of the vale,
The simplest note that swells the gale,
The common sun, the air, the skies,
To him are opening paradise.
—Gray.

Dear Friends:

Had the 'flu yet? A little microbe and what trouble it can cause, and oh how we would like to wring its neck. It makes your knees wobbly, takes all the interest out of life for you, has you hot one minute and cold the next, keeps you indoors when you would rather be out, and gives you a generally low wretched feeling.

Whether you are high or low, doesn't make any difference to Mr. Flu. Tall or short, strong or weak, he puts you through your paces and what can you do about it? I endorse what the doctors say, and that is to go to bed if you can at all, for the more you fight it, the stronger it seems to get, and the more miserable you feel. I feel like breaking out into poetry about it, (instead of perspiration) so here goes:

Oh, the flu, the darned old flu,
makes you sniffle and makes you blue,
Hurts your limbs and your back and head, makes you hustle off to bed.
Pills and potions, rubbing lotions, things to clear out a stuffed-up head,
Oh, Mr. Flu, I'm telling you, I'd be happy if you were dead.

Isn't that awful? But you try and see if you can write a better one feeling as I am doing right now. I've lain down, I've got up, I've taken hot drinks and cold drinks, break up a cold pills, aspirins until I feel like a drug store inside, and still the darned thing hangs on.

I've tried working it off, groaning and struggling with the weak feeling it gives you. I tried starving it out, but it hung on the harder. I tried feeding it. No good. Fighting it, but it is stronger than me.

So, I'm giving in to it. Doing as little as I can, shutting my eyes to the things that should be done, and maybe when it sees that I am taking no notice of it, it will have the decency to move out and leave me alone.

Wouldn't it be great if we had a bailiff that we could call on to move a cold out when it takes possession of our bodies against our will? Someone to come along and say in a loud commanding voice, "here now. What right have you to disturb the lady? Move on about your business, or I'll take you to the lock-up, or the pound, or the incinerator, or wherever colds or flu should be taken to.

Then we could go on about our work, with a look of triumph on our faces. But until that day comes, all we can do is to make the best of it, coddle it and nurse it, and maybe, if our head and eyes do not ache too much, get caught up with those books and magazines we always meant to read.

Thinking is no good, for all you can think about is how darned uncomfortable you feel. You can't sleep all the time, sometimes you cannot sleep at all. Never mind, just say to yourself, it will pass, like everything else, that is if you don't pass out yourself in the meantime.

And if I don't stop and go and lie down and do a little more giving in to it, I shall passout myself, and what would you do without your letter from Roberta? And see how much pleasure I would lose in being prevented from writing you. So listen hard and you will hear me drop down on the lounge once more. Hoping you are feeling much better than

ROBERTA.

HOME AND SCHOOL COUNCIL

A Bounder's Day program featured the meeting on Monday night of the Home and School Council of the city, with the president, Mrs. G. A. Spicer, in the chair for a well-attending gathering, held in the Rose Room of the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. T. J. Carley was guest speaker and musical numbers were presented by the Council Choir, singing "Sweet and Low" and "Jesus, the very Thought of Thee," with accompaniments played by the leader, W. R. Potter.

Mrs. H. Turner and Mrs. Robinson gave vocal and guitar selections, and a reading was presented by Mrs. Cooper.

Reports of convenors were read by Mrs. V. R. Henry, Visual Education; Mrs. S. Gillespie, Review and Pins; Mrs. R. Parnall, Recreation.

Announcement was made of a presidents' meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Spicer on February 22nd. At the next regular meeting, a nominating committee will be formed.

The Prince of Wales School had the largest number of members present.

Mrs. Carley gave a very enlightening talk on the inception of the Home and School movement and the splendid work done by the founder, Mrs. A. E. Courtice, and her helpmate, the late Dr. A. E. Marty, who, through the efforts of Mrs. Courtice, was appointed to an inspectorate in Toronto in 1918. The present code of ethics was prepared by Dr. Marty, on whom Queen's University conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws. She died in South Africa, where she went as an Exchange Inspector.

He Is Doing Nothing New

The Deputy Mayor of Edmonton has been advised that a resident of Connor Creek, 100 miles northwest of Edmonton, intends to leave his present moorings and take up abode in Edmonton. The municipal officer will not be delighted at the prospect of increasing the population of his bailiwick because the gentleman from Connor Creek gives notice in advance that he has neither work nor money and intends to make himself a public charge. He is at least frank concerning his future intentions. He is not going to sneak up on the city or anything like that, and becomes definite to the point of saying he will be on city relief within 10 days.

There have been a number of regulations made about people moving from one place to another for the purpose of applying for relief, but the one thing which cannot be prohibited is the moving of an individual or a family from one place to another. This man from Connor Creek who openly admits he is hard up, and who says plainly he is coming to get on relief, cannot be stopped at the boundary line of Edmonton. He can come right in.

Just what time regulations Edmonton imposes we do not know. It may be that Edmonton could supply the man and keep him from starving, and for a stated period send the bill to the place from which he came, but that would be only a temporary measure. All this man from Connor Creek would have to do would be to wait until that time limit expired. It might be possible that police would pick him up on the covering charge of vagrancy, and they might even put him in the city jail, but they would have to feed him and care for him, but there are limits to that treatment if the man behaved himself and was able to show that the only thing wrong was that he was down and out.

The city of Edmonton is actually not responsible for the keeping of this man from Connor Creek, but the fact that he is heading for a city is not strange. Many people thought of the same thing years ago. It has been shown that almost 70 per cent. of the people on relief in Peterborough were not residents here when the depression started. This man from Connor Creek is receiving a good deal of publicity, but he is not doing anything which has not been done before. He has merely written and said in advance what he intends doing, while others have done the same thing without calling attention to their movements.

Men Pulling Against Horses

Farmers and seed men when gathered together at a meeting in Toronto started talking about the relative strength of men and horses, and the claim was made that eight men could outpull any team of horses living. So they tried it in Toronto, and that is a good way to settle anything which seems to be a matter of speculation. Tried it with eight men from Canada Packers tug-of-war team, and these men would be well accustomed to pulling together; they would know just how and when to dig in their heels. The result was that a good team of horses, heavies they were, pulled the eight men. In turn one horse tried it and was pulled back by the eight men. Whether that establishes anything which has not been known before is not known. Mechanical engineers will claim that the average strength of a man is about one-tenth that of a horse. A horse on a treadmill exerts 18,000 pounds preasure per minute, while a man at the same occupation and under similar conditions can exert 4,200 pounds pressure. One Toronto engineer when asked for an opinion by the Globe and Mail said he doubted whether eight men could move a load where a good team of horses had failed, and he would consider that the real test.

When the men and horses were at it in Toronto they should have gone ahead with their demonstration or experiment. If they had tried ten men or nine men against a team of horses they might have come rather close to showing just where equality in pully power existed.

From the ability of a horse to pull we get that much-used and often little understood phrase, "horse power." We dare say thousands of drivers of cars have filled in their application papers for licenses and have seen that horse-power figure there without having adequate idea of what it actually meant. When James Watt invented the steam engine he wanted some method of explaining just what the engine would would do in terms of work. Horses were then the most commonly known unit of power in doing work of any kind, so Watt selected a number of them and tested their power of pulling. He finally found the best animal could pull 33,000 pounds one foot in one minute, and the definition accepted in the engineering world became—one horse power equals 33,000 foot pounds per minute.

How Families Scatter

Members of families get scattered, and probably there is no way by which it can or should be prevented. It is necessary only to look through a few of the many obituary notices which appear in papers every day of the week, because it is in obituaries that one finds where the relatives are located.

Just a few to illustrate the point: Mrs. Sarah Macdonald died at Brantford at the age of 100. A native of Yorkshire, the early part of her life was spent in Australia, after which she settled with her husband at Cathcart, near Brantford. Of eleven children five are living. One son is in Portage la Prairie, another in Los Angeles, and a third is in British Columbia.

Mrs. Kate Chesher, 71, died at Parkhill in Middlesex county. One son lives in Port Huron and another in Detroit, neither far from home, but a third has his residence in Tuscon, Arizona.

Charles E. Whelihan, 76, died in St. Thomas. He has a brother, Austin, living in Regina; another brother, Vincent, in Houston, Texas, and a sister lives in Vancouver.

Edwin Muxlow, 80, is dead in Strathroy. Three children live either at home or near by, but there is a sister in London, Eng.

In so many obituary notices that same feature is noticed; so often there are children, brothers or sisters, who live a long way off.

It Might Be Different

They do things in a strange way in India. The Nizam of Hyberabad has been reigning for 26 years and it was his desire and that of his people to celebrate. He has 14,500,000 subjects, not many when compared with the total population of India, but still a few million more than we can number in our entire Dominion.

We learn that as the Nizam rode through the streets he did so in a motor car which was 26 years of age, but which had been fixed up with silver and gold trimmings for the occasion. Also that the subjects lined up along the street bowed low in giving thanks to Allah that the Nizam had been spared for so long a time.

The Nizam of Hyberabad has an annual income of $50,000,000, and he is stated to be worth at least $2,000,000,000. Probably more.

In this country we look upon rich men differently. We are quite certain if our richest man were to hold some sort of celebration there would be a speech made about "soaking the rich," or some person would be romping about with a sign claiming that there should be a general distribution of all wealth. The idea of people bowing low and giving thanks to Allah because a rich man had lived so long is a bit foreign to the outlook of a part of our population.

Catch Words in Elections

Hon J. R. Ilsey, Minister of Revenue, told the Canadian Club in Ottawa he believed Conservatives had been more successful than Liberals in making use of catchy phrases during election times. Starting with the "National Policy" of Sir John A. Macdonald, it was claimed that Conservatives had been more apt at securing and using words and slogans which made good vote catchers. The speaker admitted that during the last federal campaign the phrase "King or Chaos" had served well its purpose. At the end of Sir John Macdonald's manifesto prior to the election of 1891 there was that strongly-worded phrase "A British subject I was born, a British subject I will die." There were too many words in that, but it was much quoted and had within it a vigor which fitted well the unsettled feeling of that day.

It is possible that the cartoon "32 Years in the Saddle" showing a much-broken horse bearing Sir George Ross had much to do with the final routing of the Liberal ministry, and in the reciprocity campaign of 1911 such phrases as "The parting of the ways," and "Under which flag?" had their part in determining public support.

Others cannot be recorded as the property of any political party, as they have been used by both in the major league of parties. It used to be common enough in other years to hear a politician addressing a meeting of workingmen and saying "Beneath that ragged shirt there beats an honest heart." And that fine old chestnut about "The Full Dinner Pail" has been made to do service on both side of the political line. When they made an unsuccessful drive against Whitney Ontario Liberals resorted to an alliteration of "W's" to make the phrase, "We Will Whack Whitney," but they did not do it.

We believe Mr. Ilsey was right in his general contention that phrases and catch words have played their part in swinging elections. The thing is apt to get into circulation; it will be handed from one to another, and may well find lodgment in many a head which does not bother much with argument, logic or cold fact.

One Letter In 34 Years

It is a fact and perhaps a notorious one that a good many brothers write few letters one to the other. There was a story in some of the papers only a few days ago stating that Phillip Seebach, now living in Victoria, B.C., had written to his brother, Adam Seebach, who lives in Mitchell, Perth Co. And that is the first time the Ontario brother has heard of or from Phillip in 34 years.

Sixteen years ago Adam Seebach and his brother Peter, since dead, made a long trip to the West and California, spending a good deal of time trying to find some trace of brother Phillip. They found none, and the explanation is they were not looking in the district to which Phillip had moved.

That name Seebach probably means little or nothing at all to readers of the Examiner, but in the Huron Tract, in the days of the Canada Company, and more particularly in what is now known as Perth Co., the name Seebach has as much history around it as have such names as Hall, Mann, Stewart, McIntosh, Morgan, Hamilton, Mowry, Rogers, Strickland, Carver, or any of a long list which could be named in this district. The name Seebach recalls a cairn built at the side of No. 8 Highway west of Stratford in honor of the pioneer bearing that name; it suggests Seebach's Hill, topped by a Lutheran church which has probably the finest site in the whole district; it suggests the descendants who were just as good and thrifty farmers as the original Seebach. That is what makes it passing strange that brothers bearing that name should have been cut off one from the others for the full term of 34 years.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The corner-stone of Fort Erie's new Federal building is to be laid on Friday. We are sorry we are unable to say when there will be a similar ceremony here.

Dr. Franz Sarga the duelling medico of Budapest has bobbed up again by winning another encounter. He fights too often ever to be a real world's champion.

The world is getting smaller. Pitcairn Island where the mutineers of the Bounty were lost sight of for years is now to have a mail service twice a month.

The cost of the German military machine increased 580 per cent. between 1934 and 1936. Germany may be short of some things but evidently there is no lack of war material.

The Lancashire county council has passed a bylaw making shouting in several urban and rural districts illegal. No football grounds are included in the prescribed areas we hope.

The Italian Ratepayers' Association of York township has written the council to express its opinion that women should stay at home and wash dishes and mind babies. There is a distinctly old-fashioned flavor to that communication.

According to an Edmonton naturalist the white man killed off the buffalo so that the Indians would be deprived of their food supply. In other words by killing off the animals they had the original owners of Canada buffaloed.

The troubles of rural mail carriers have been under discussion in the House of Commons. Their plight suggests what Mark Twain said in regard to the weather that people were always talking about it but nobody ever did anything about it.

The story of an attempt to kidnap two of the Dionne quintuplets has been pronounced by Attorney-General Roebuck as a hoax. Isn't there an element of danger that the rumored "snatch" might inspire someone to really attempt the feat?

Too often the word "demand" comes through when referring to negotiations by the diplomats of today. Human nature being what it is, a good many people have learned to their advantage that a request or a suggestion often succeeds where a demand fails.

Australian and Canadian trade negotiators have decided to start all over again after conferring for two weeks without getting anywhere. Probably if both sides were to put more emphasis upon giving and less on getting the parley would soon reach a happy conclusion.

PROMISES

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Alex ran for reeve, his vote I hardly could believe, he'd never tried before; but Alex campaigned rather hard, went through the village yard by yard, and knocked at every door.

¶ When Alex went to look for votes, he promised hay for billy goats, free pasture for the cows; they'd eat the grass along the street, they'd keep it cropped off close and neat, nip overhanging boughs.

¶ He'd cut the taxes clean in two, the first of twenty things he'd do, he'd wipe out all arrears; he'd put new planks along the walk, he'd gravel deep each village block, he'd cancel woes and fears.

¶ He promised jobs to fifteen men, he can't remember who or when, he never wrote them down; when Alex went on his campaign, he must have made it very plain, he'd hire all men in town.

¶ He hired a man to tend the hall, another who could scarcely crawl, would head the fire brigade; ten other men all bent and lame, with age and frailty in the frame, he hired for pick and spade.

¶ Now all the folk are after him, they threaten lumps upon his shin, they'll smite him with a crutch; for when my cousin ran for reeve, I find it easy to believe—he promised far too much.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

(Parliamentary Debates)
(Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. BENNETT: I must now—I have permitted it go just where I want it, just that far. I rise to a point of order, to a question of order—

The CHAIRMAN: A point of order?

Mr. BENNETT: It is this: The minister has read from a newspaper known to be opposed to the then government of the day, and he has now declared that that was a statement by the Minister of Agriculture of that time. It does not purport even to be that, and it is only an article from an opposing newspaper. The point of order is that the statement is absolutely untrue, and that it is not a statement of the facts.

Mr. GARDINER: On the point of order: I have made no such statement. I have had words put into my mouth by the leader of the opposition as often as I will permit him to put them into my mouth. I read this article and then I said, having read it, that the Minister of Agriculture of that day did speak to the people of Canada at that time.

Mr. BENNETT: That is not what was said. I rise to a point of order. Hansard is there.

Mr. GARDINER: Hansard will show it to-morrow.

Mr. BENNETT: It will show what is said, now.

Mr. GARDINER: Hansard will show to-morrow morning what I said.

Mr. BENNETT: We are not going to have our rights taken from us by evasion.

The CHAIRMAN: Order. Has the leader of the opposition a statement on the point of order?

Mr. BENNETT: Yes. The statement on the point of order is that the statement as by the minister is at variance with what he said. The minister complained about having words put in his mouth by me, and I have the right to have read what he said, the words used, on the question of order.

The CHAIRMAN: My ruling is that the point of order is not well taken.

Mr. BENNETT: I ask to have it read now. I am within my rights to know what has been said.

Mr. DUNNING: Quote the rule.

Mr. BENNETT: The rule?

Mr. DUNNING: Yes.

Mr. BENNETT: It does not require a rule. It has been done frequently when there have been questions as to statements, and Hansard has given the words.

Mr. GARDINER: Mr. Chairman, when there is any question with regard to the statement of an hon. member the member has the right in this house, and in any other house in the British Empire, to say what he said and what he intended to say, as a fellow member of this house.

Mr. CAHAN: No, not when you have heard it.

Mr. GARDINER: Even when you have heard it. I have noticed this, that when on one occasion the right hon. leader of the opposition made a speech—

Mr. BENNETT: I rise now, if we are going to talk about order, the Minister of Agriculture is talking about what the leader of the opposition did at some other time. The question of order is whether he did or did not make the statement. The statement of the Minister of Agriculture, which was heard by every hon. member, was made when he began to read from a newspaper purporting to be the Leader-Post of Regina. His statement was that the words contained in the statement were those of the minister.

Mr. GARDINER: On the point of order—

The CHAIRMAN: In my opinion the point of order is not well taken.

Mr. GARDINER: Well, Mr. Chairman, getting back to where we left the discussion: I was stating that the Minister of Agriculture prior to the time of the appointment of the committee had taken a certain position in relation to this particular matter. Now that the leader of the opposition has called my attention to it, I might say that his newspaper article is so much like what the minister did say in the house at a later date and is so much like the policy that was finally adopted, I have no hesitation in saying that whatever newspaper reporter put this in the press must have had official information, as he says at the beginning of the article.

Mr. BENNETT: He did not even say that. Here we have a minister with some sense of responsibility rising in his place to state that he assumes the responsibility of saying that a minister made a certain statement.

The CHAIRMAN: Is the right hon. leader of the opposition rising to another point of order?

Mr. BENNETT: It seems to be useless to raise points of order, but I am rising one.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. BENNETT: There is no "order" about this.

An hon. MEMBER: There should be.

Mr. BENNETT: The point is that we have a minister, even when his attention is directed to it, attributing to a former minister something which appears in the newspaper saying that it represents that minister's official opinion.

Mr. DUNNING: On the point of order, I assume the Minister of Agriculture has a right to express an opinion as to the veracity of a newspaper article, which is what he is doing.

Mr. BENNETT: The Minister of Finance should know better than that. In the British House of Commons he would not be permitted to read the article at all.

Mr. DUNNING: We are not in the British house. Many articles are read here.

Zeppelin Raid in Verse.

(Peterborough Man Was a Witness.)

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: In Friday's edition of the Examiner, I read of the British town of Bedford playing war at night. Being in the midst of those German raids over London in the early days of the Great War, it was only natural for me to once more visualize those fearful scenes, with many others who might have been in London at that time. My experiences in those days, as I travelled to view the havoc wrought by these machines of death and destination, have often been reviewed in my mind as I read of the mad rush for armaments throughout the world.

And as an eye-witness of such devastation, I shudder at the consequence of another world war. I joined the British Army in 1916, and travelled in several foreign countries, but of all the sorrow and destruction I saw abroad none of it impressed me as much as those terrifying nights in England, when I saw three of Germany's giant airships brought down in flames, but not until much damage and loss of life had been caused by them.

I feel that a condition such as exists in Spain today should speak more forcible to the nations still at peace than any other method. (War in your home town impresses most). I have enclosed some verses on one of Germany's attacks I witnessed in London. Trusting, that if they should appear in your paper, they will impress our peace loving public.

I am sir,

Yours truly,
S. EPHGRAVE

A ZEPPELIN RAID IN 1915

The night was dark, the streets aglare,
While searchlight beams still searched the air,
And people in the streets below,
In fear just wandered to and fro.

The policeman warned all cars in sight,
To carefully drive without a light.
All, who in their homes were warned
To keep their blinds more closely drawn.

Suspenses was felt on every hand,
For enemy crafts were in the land;
All army guns were trained that night,
To shoot the foe that came in sight.

'Twas London town they sought to bomb,
Although defence had been made strong,
Those dread airships the channel crossed,
In spite of one that down was forced.

On, on they came, but flying high,
The drone of engines filled the sky;
They dropped some bombs on London town,
I saw the buildings tumble down.

Death came to many that sad night,
Some were killed, some died of fright;
I stood and watched the fearful scene
Before my eyes, with naught between.

The guns roared out across the street,
I found my balance hard to keep,
For buildings shook and windows fell,
The things I saw are hard to tell.

As I gazed on this work of death,
The sight I saw near took my breath,
One giant of the skies so bright,
Entangled in those rays of light.

The pilot tried in vain to flee,
I'll rise above those lights, said he,
Still as he rose, those lights rose too,
Until he knew not what to do.

Then all at once the guns ceased fire,
The searchlights threw the beams up higher,
The trap was set, the lighted lane,
Was travelled up by aeroplane.

I watched that plane soar higher and higher,
Until it set that ship afire;
The sight was tragic to behold,
As in death's struggle that airship rolled.

The sky was blazoned with the light,
Which told the ship had lost the fight,
The plane returned again to earth,
Its pilot met with joy and mirth.

Yet in the vastness of the sky,
The crew aboard were doomed to die,
Their ship a raging furnace fell,
What pains they bore no tongue can tell.

I heard the swishing and the thud,
As that Leviathan hit the mud.
And all the people in the town,
Cried out aloud "Thank God it's down."

A crowd of spectators were soon on the spot,
Not drawing too close to the wreck that was hot,
They stood there in silence, some holding their breath,
As they witnessed the crew all frizzled to death.

The stories I heard from some of that crowd,
Told how in their agonies the crew shrieked loud,
Some of them jumped from the blazing mass,
And smashed to a pulp upon the green grass.

That night though fearful to behold,
And half of which I have not told,
Will live for many years and more
To prove the wretchedness of war.

I've witnessed many sad affairs,
I've seen a lot of falling tears;
But war has brought but sorrow nigh,
And caused more folks to weep and sigh,
Than every other plague or curse
I think a war is far the worse.

It Makes Us Wonder.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

THE Toronto Star tells this true story. York township, which is a suburb of Toronto, over a period of two years and three months paid one of its residents $1,818 in relief. The man of the house claimed he was unemployed, had to attend hospital clinics, said the family had no income except 75 cents a week earned by his daughter. Now it turns out that in the period the man was employed steadily, earned $2,924, that his daughter earned $374.

"How was it," asks the Star, "that this could go on without the township authorities discovering the fraud?" "It is not," the Star observes, "very reassuring to the taxpayers."

Incidents of this sort are rare, let us hope, and yet a disconcerting number of them have come to light in Ottawa or elsewhere—of relief-recipients concealing income, failing to report assets and earnings, sponging on public funds. There are enough of them, in fact, to make the observing taxpayer wonder to what extent the whole structure of relief is permeated with fraud and misrepresentation. Probably the facts do not warrant his suspicions, but it is not unnatural that he should suspect the worst. Thus it comes about that many thoroughly honest and deserving families who hate the necessity for relief and want nothing but to regain their independence come under the common discredit for which a comparatively few are responsible.

Primarily the fault lies, we think, and as we have said before, in the system of administration which puts in the hands of the municipalities the spending of money contributed for the most part by province and Dominion. The thought persists that here is something for nothing, and very often there are political reasons to explain laxness otherwise unexplainable. An administration detached from local influence more completely than any city hall is detached from its wards ought to work a great reform and make real progress in cutting relief costs.

WOULD BE UNPOPULAR.

(Financial Post)

CANADIAN railway workers are talking vaguely of going on strike to obtain immediate restoration of the full measure of pay cuts they have suffered.

Such a strike would do them incalculable harm and win them little sympathy. What the organized railway workers do not realize is that throughout Canada, and particularly among the farming population there is a very strong feeling that railway wages are out of line with the average incomes of Canadian people.

If the high wages paid to railwaymen are not equitably distributed among them that is the fault of their own antiquated seniority and other rigid rules.

There are a good many types of workers in Canada who have an increase in wages coming to them before the most highly sheltered group of organized workers in Canada grab off a higher share by brute force.

DRASTIC POWER.

(Toronto Saturday Night)

HOW the Hydro, surrounded by these protective devices, will ever be able to get contractors to undertake to perform work for it without being paid in advance is more than we can comprehend. A contract with the Hydro is a contract binding upon one party only, and leaving the other party entirely unaffected. . . It is now being legislated out of all responsibility for any damages that it may inflict on anybody. In effect, in order to give it a license to rob certain power companies, it has been found necessary to give it a license to rob anybody whatsoever.

To The Editor

NOT CORRECT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: In your column "The Voice of the People" a letter signed by S. Murphy appeared in the issue of February 12th.

A statement contained in this letter read as follows: "The car was hit by a five-ton truck owned by the Canadian Nepheline Company." We wish to bring to the attention of the public, through this column, that the Canadian Nepheline Limited do not own any trucks whatsoever and that the statement therefore is erroneous.

Yours very truly,

POOH TO POODLES.

(Walkerton Herald-Times)

WE NEVER knew a man to keep a poodle. Man's nature is too coarse for poodles. A poodle would soon fade and die if a man were to nurse him. We never expect to own a poodle, but if any irate subscriber insists on giving us one, the poodle has got to make up his mind to be tied on a long stick every Saturday, and be used for washing the windows on the outside. This kind of nursing would probably make the poodle mad, and probably he would quit, but was can't help it. If we have got to keep a poodle, he has got to help wash the windows every Saturday. We are solid on this point.

WASTE WATER.

(Lethbridge Herald)

LET'S do some figuring.

There are today on the level in South Alberta 25 inches of snow. This is equal to 2½ inches of water.

If farmers and ranchers had reservoirs to trap at least a part of this, what couldn't they do with it in a dry year like last year?

For instance, the snow on the ground when it melts will make 54,450 gallons of water an acre. That is 2,722,000 gallons of water per quarter section. Enough to do some irrigating.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16. — A lull in foreign demand for Canadian wheat more than offset on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange bullish reports of severe dust storms south-west. Futures prices slumped early and late to close 1⅝c to ⅝c lower, at virtually the low points of the day.

Unfavorable weather conditions over the American winter wheat belt served only to give a temporary filip to local values, which slumped anew under heavy selling after losses of more than a cent had been recovered.

Tending to make prospective buyers step wary were reports of a lack of demand in the United Kingdom for wheat, with heavy arrivals there depressing prices at Liverpool. Canadian export sales during the week-end totalled only 250,000 bushels.

VIGILANTE BAND IN TECK TOWNSHIP STIRS PROVINCIALS

LEADERS UNKNOWN

TIMMINS, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP). —With provincial police on constant patrol of Teck township municipalities over the week-end Timmins' newly-organized band of "vigilantes" was inactive.

Organization of the self-appointed group of law-enforcers only became known Friday when raids were conducted on several alleged illegal establishments.

After Friday's raids, the vigilantes announced they intended to "clean up Teck township." Provincial authorities expressed surprise at their formation, declaring no complaints against any conditions in this district had been received.

Provincial police authorities announced to-day, however, the past week-end was the quietest in Timmins' history, without disturbances of any kind as most residents had apparently remained at home.

Vigilante leaders remained unknown and police watched districts near Timmins where their activities were reported to have been centred.

Police In Dark.

TORONTO, Feb. 16—(CP).—Provincial Police headquarters here has received from the Timmins district inspector a report saying he could find no evidence of the formation of a vigilantes committee at Timmins.

Timmins reports said such a committee had been formed to clean up disorderly houses, gambling dens and bootleggers in the township adjoining the town. One raid was reported. Provincial police report they received no complaint of the raid but believe if it was made it was the expression of a personal grievance.

COMMISSION PAYS VISIT TO ABBATOIR

Christmas and New Year's, but at no other time."

"I don't know how they call the meat-pie meat," remarked an experienced sausage-maker who complained of how food was prepared in the kitchen. He declared sausages were kept there too long and were often "high" when served. He declared only "good, clean meat" was used in making sausages or bologna which he supervised at the abattoir.

After tainted sausages had been served prisoners at the Ontario reformatory, a prisoner-clerk at the abattoir had reported it to his manager there, he told the inquiry today.

"We found some sausages in the abattoir of the same batch we had sent to the reformatory kitchen and we ate some raw," he said. "They were very good, but the sausages served in the kitchen were high, I couldn't eat them."

Witness said he had never heard complaints of meat shipped from the reformatory to outside government institutions.

"Beef at the abattoir is as fine or finer than beef on the outside," he said. "But beef served to prisoners is tasteless because of steam cooking."

Asked by J. Gordon Gillanders, commission counsel, whether he had ever heard of shipments being sent out short weight, witness said "no."

Best That Can Be Bought.

John J. Kirvan, 64, manager of the abattoir, said it obtains the "very best beef that can be bought in Ontario." Each week it uses 28 beeves, 45 hogs, 15 calves, and 35 to 50 lambs, he said. Asked about the Burwash "poor cattle" he said they had been used as "bologna meat." Half the hogs used are raised and brought from Government institutions, he said.

Meat was sent from the Reformatory to mental hospitals at London, Woodstock, Hamilton, Toronto, Mimico, Penetanguishene, Whitby, Orillia, and Cobourg, and to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, the School for the Blind at Brantford, the Mercer, Mimico, and Burwash Reformatories, and Kingston Penitentiary.

Kirvan declared he had a good group of workers at the abattoir. "He's a good honest worker," he said, referring to a prisoner who had given testimony.

"If sausages are left packed close together for a couple of days in a basket, they will turn green," said Kirvan. "They should be hung up to keep."

Kirvan denied the statement of a prisoner that abattoir workers fry sausages to test them. He said the sausages were the finest made.

"There should be a paid butcher in the Reformatory kitchen," said Kirvan. "He would pay for himself several times over in a short time. He could bone meat, roll it, and make sure meats weren't lft in baskets, but were hung properly."

of Kent. At the Canadian section they were received by Hon. Vincent Massey, High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, and Mrs. Massey.

Queen Elizabeth was interested in foodstuffs from the Dominion, notably canned varieties, and remarked that the output of these goods was considerable. Mrs. Massey suggested they were the best thing for outdoor expeditions, such as picnics, and Her Majesty agreed.

Twenty-seven firms are exhibiting in the Canadian section. All the Royal visitors bought Coronation mugs and ash trays. The Princess Royal ordered a set of the various Coronation souvenirs in pottery for distribution among the children of the tenants of her husband's estate near Knaresborough, Yorkshire.

One Revelation.

He told the "Victory Dinner" guests the premier and his cabinet attempted to "disguise the blunder they made with the Quebec companies" but despite this there is one fact that raises its "ugly head."

"That is the people of Eastern Ontario paid more for power last year under the new contract and got less power for your money," Mr. Rowe declared.

Under the old contract with the Gatineau Company, Mr. Rowe said 48,000 horsepower was available for $642,000 or an average of $13.20 a horsepower. This was allowing $60,000 rebate for commission costs.

The new contract bought 42,000 horsepower for $630,000. Added to this was the charge for new frequency changes of $50,000 or a total of $680,000, averaging $16.20 a horsepower, to Eastern Ontario users.

"In a nutshell this means that under the old contract Eastern Ontario would have got 6,000 horsepower more for $38,000 less," the Conservative leader said.

He attacked suggestions the gold mining industry be subject to further taxation.

"Ontario's mining development is closely interlocked with adequate power supplies,' he said. "The great industrial expansion that has taken place in recent months is in a large measure due to the activities of our mines and mining prospects. Industry—and gold mining is rapidly assuming a primary place in our industrial activities—must be assured of cheap and adequate supplies of power.

Should End Gambling.

"Cheap and adequate supplies of power can only be secured through the exercise of wisdom on the part of the Hydro Commission of Ontario and through an immediate stop being put to the reckless gamble in power reserves that now seems to be the chief interest of the present political Hydro Commission."

He estimated the Ontario mining industry employed more than 87,000 people, exclusive of those employed in prospecting. It was his opinion it would be better to bring about conditions that would permit the mines to raise the rate of wages to the worker than to hamper the industry with new taxation.

"Every impost placed on the gold mining industry tends to shorten the life of the mine and makes it profitable for the operators to take from the mine only the high-grade ore," he said. "The result is that the low-grade ores are left in the workings, it being costly to process them, and the life of the mine is hastened to a conclusion."

Instead of taxation "a gradual but steady increase in wages to the mine workers would shortly be reflected in a vastly increased buying power to the advantage of the entire Provine and Dominion.

DOUBLE SIMCOE FIRE

SIMCOE, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP).—Firemen left the smouldering, smoking ruins of the Falls' Department Store for long enough early to-day to extinguish a fire in a heated freight car on the Canadian National Railways-Wabash siding. Damage to the car and its contents was estimated at $200.

The Fire Department was still guarding the department store ruins when the smaller fire was reported. In the Saturday night fire damage of $500,000 was caused.

Incendiary bombs may cause the most serious danger to the civil population, Morison believes. A determined and ruthless enemy, he thinks, would almost certainly complicate the issue by localized use of tear gas.

To meet the menace he suggests: Fleet of fast motor vessels, equipped for fire-fighting, to rush to the dockland along the Thames; special vehicles capable of carrying fire-fighting equipment to any part of London on the underground system; and the re-planning of the congested approaches to the Rotherhithe and Blackwell Tunnels, through which a vast volume of traffic could be routed under the river, should the bridges be destroyed.

Gas Masks Ready.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons recently, Geoffrey Lloyd, Parliamentary undersecretary to the Home Office, declared two regional depots for the storage of gas masks had been acquired—one in the London district and the other in Manchester. These depots had facilities for 4,000,000 gas masks and means for their preservation.

Eleven more regional stores would be needed and urgent steps were being taken to obtain them, Lloyd said. A system of distribution was now under investigation and it was hoped suitable arrangements would be devised which would include the use of local store depots each with a capacity of 30,000 gas masks.

W. Thorne (Labor, West Ham) asked if it was not a fact that these gas masks would seriously deteriorate before the next war was started.

He was interrupted with cries of "we hope so."

Mr. Lloyd said special technical precautions had been taken to guard against deterioration.

Quint Guard Increased As Kidnap Threat Voiced

Ontario Provincial Police, informed of a reported plot by unknown persons to kidnap some or all of the Dionne quintuplets from their barbed-wire enclosed home at Callander, Ont. increased the guard surrounding the famous babies from three to five officers. An unknown informant telephoned the wife of an Etobicoke Township constable, stating that he had overheard two 'bus passengers between a United States point and Toronto, planning a 'snatch' of the famous sisters. The informant was not identified. Provincial police were inclined to treat the affair sceptically but added guards were placed around the home as a precaution. The five famous sisters are pictured here at play in their nursery. From LEFT to RIGHT they are: Emelie, Cecile, Marie, Annette, and Yvonne.

CAMPBELLFORD SPEAKER EXPLAINS USE OF PARASITES IN INSECT CONTROL

SAVING PEACH CROP

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16. — "Over one thousand square miles of spruce have been destroyed in the Gaspe district by the spruce saw fly. This is a matter which is receiving a great deal of attention as it is of national importance," A. B. Baird, prominent entomologist connected with the Dominion Laboratories Branch in Belleville told Rotarians at their weekly luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel yesterday. The speaker gave an unusual and instructive address on the control of insects around which his work in Belleville is centered.

Early efforts of those who were classed as entomologists, he pointed out, usually consisted of little more than catching butterflies and various other insects which were pinned to a board for friends to look at. To-day, however, with some 500,000 insects already classified the task of controlling insects which are injurious was no easy one, since before this could be done the particular insect must be isolated to its own particular group. The chief interest of the entomologist was in the biological control of insects which was nature's method of control—"a far better method than using poison gases, chemicals and poison dust which only affects the present crop of insects, requiring the same treatment to be given over again the following year.

There were a number of divisions in the insect world. Some feed on plants and animals, while others feed on these insects. The entomologist was chiefly concerned with finding a parasite insect which would feed on and destroy these injurious insects.

They Have a Taste

The fact that all parasites had a very specific taste was a phenomena which applied to practically all the insects that had been studied. In the case of the greenhouse white fly which the speaker displayed infesting a bottle containing a sprig of a tomato plant, the parasite laid its eggs in the body of the fly when the larvae was about two-thirds grown. Practically all insects had insect enemies in their native environment; however, as many insects had been transported to Canada in one way and another, they got beyond control, and oftentimes did serious damage because their natural parasite had not likewise been transported to their new home. The first step in the control of these insects was their identification which sometimes took two or three months, as it was often necessary to get in touch with the entomologists of other countries through the International Organization of Entomologists who were able to assist in classifying the insect and sending the proper parasite insect to the laboratories in Belleville, where it was propagated and tested out for any bad habits it might possess before it was released. There were at present 18 employed on the permanent staff in Belleville, while in the summer as many as 60 were employed doing field work in every province in the Dominion.

Saving Peach Crop

The speaker concluded by telling of how, when the entire peach crop in the Niagara district was threatened by the peach moth despite every effort to exterminate it by the use of chemicals it was finally brought under control by the introduction of a parasite which allowed the crop to be brought back to normal in three years.

Mr. N. A. McColl moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his very fine address.

FAST FIGHTING PLANES, GUNS

House into committee of supply in order to get the defence issue before the House. His amendment declared the House viewed the increased expenditures with concern in contrast with the inadequate provision for the social security of the people.

He said preparations for war always brought war and Canada was making a mistake in joining the armament race. Instead the money should be spent on improving the conditions of the people and on promoting world peace.

Mr. MacNeil also questioned the efficiency of the National Defence Department and said not a single dollar should be voted until the department was purged and put on a business basis. What the department needed was not more money but more brains. Money was being wasted in useless ceremonial and display and the department was not conversant with modern methods of warfare.

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F.-Rosetown-Biggar) joined in the demand for a government statement. Prime Minister Mackenzie King had said Canada would decide whether to enter any war but the estimates indicated a decision had already been reached. The belief was also borne out by the recent speech of Sir Samuel Hoare who spoke at a discussion of a common empire defence policy.

If the government could justify a war policy, he said, let it go out and organize the country for war, mobilize the industries of the country on the basis of remuneration at a rate corresponding to the $1.10 per day paid to private soldiers, he said.

These estimates could not be construed as "defence estimates," but were for the training and equiping of an expeditionary force abroad, he said.

Says Press Swinging.

He suggested there had already been a change in attitude on the part of the newspapers towards defence, and that in the event of war their attitude would change more completely.

"Once there is a declaration of war, the people will not know the truth of the situation," he stated.

A reference to "commitments" drew a request for clarity from Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East).

"The estimates imply an understanding which must be interpreted as commitment," said Mr. Coldwell. "There is no reason for these estimates unless contemplating the use of the military machine in a war."

No Commitments Made.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King rose. "I think I ought to deny categorically the suggestion just made," he said. There are no commitments and no understandings between this government and the government of Great Britain or any other government."

Maxime Raymond (Lib. Beauharnois-Laprairie) speaking in French, declared he could not understand why there had to be an increase in defense estimates from $20,000,000 last year to $34,000,000 this year.

The Prime Minister had stated before and Mr. Makenzie had said that the increase was not to enable Canada to take part in any war outside Canada, but only for the defence of Canada.

"Where is the danger?" he asked. "Inside or out?"

Last year Parliament had voted an increase to provide for modernization of the militia. This year a much bigger increase was asked. What was the reason, unless there was some explanation to be found in the speeches of Lord Ellibank and Sir Samuel Hoare? he asked. The European situation was not as dangerous to-day as it was a year ago.

The whole situation created by the estimates in this regard was enough to create fear in the minds of those who were in favor of defence for Canada only.

Mr. Raymond quoted some newspapers on the alleged dangers of rising Communism in Canada. Citing the number of agitators in evidence, for which the Government was being blamed because it abolished Section 98 of the criminal code.

Senator Meighen last year has pointed out that while Section 98 had been abolished, similar provisions were carried in Section 103, he said.

CARIBOU MOVING SOUTH FOR FOOD

Found In The Wood-Buffalo Park Fraternizing With Bison

FORT McMURRAY, Alta., Feb 16 (C.P.). — Believed due to a food shortage in the North-west Territories, thousands of caribou have moved south into Wood-Buffalo Park and environs on Alberta's northern boundary.

Caribou that left their usual habitat and trekked south were fraternizing freely with bison in the park, Captain W. R. "Wop" Murray, distinguished northern air ace, reported following an inspection flight in the north.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM ARTHUR ARMSTRONG

William Arthur Armstrong only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Armstrong of North Smith passed peacefully to rest on Monday evening, February, 8. The funeral service was held on Wednesday, February 10, from the home of his parents and interment was made in Lakefield Cemetery.

Although being afflicted for years, his death came as a surprise to the entire community as his condition became serious only a couple of days previous to his demise. He was eighteen years of age and besides his sorrowing parents he is survived by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Pavey of Peterborough and a number of uncles, aunts and cousins.

The service which was largely attended was arranged by Rev. C. Ernest Tatham of Lakefield who was assisted by Mr. Kenneth Stewart. Three favourite hymns were sung: "Jesus Lover of My Soul." "Face to Face with Christ My Saviour," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Rev. Mr. Tatham preached the sermon, speaking particularly with regard to II Kings, 4:26, "It Is Well."

The pall-bearers were six cousins of the deceased, Rob Armstrong, Marvin Armstrong, William Armstrong, Rollie Armstrong, Donald Sage and Fred Clarkson. The beautiful floral tributes were from the parents, grandparents, uncles and aunts, cousins, the S.S. of Wesley Church and S. S. No. 10, Smith.

MADOC, Feb. 16.—Mrs. B. M. Richmond died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday, February 13. She was in her eighty-third year. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. in Trinity United Church at Madoc.

JOHN MARTIN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Feb. 16—The funeral of the late John Martin of Ormsby was well attended on Thursday in L'Amable. Mr. Martin was 84 years of age and had earned the friendship of many people.

JOHN CANNON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Feb. 16.—The funeral was held at St. Ignatius Roman Catholic Church on Thursday of John Cannon, who died suddenly from a heart attack on Tuesday. Deceased had lived in Detroit for many years. The body was conveyed from Detroit by train to the residence of his brother Peter, in Maynooth.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his aged invalid mother of Maynooth; four sisters, Mrs. M. Pacey, Maynooth; Bedella, Katherine and Mrs. Paddy Casey of Detroit; eight brothers: Daniel, Peter, Martin of Maynooth; Patrick of Trenton; Michael of Belleville; William of Kirkland Lake; Timothy of Detroit and Edward of Dalhousie, N.B.

Pall-bearers were six brothers of the deceased: Daniel, Martin, Peter, Edward, Patrick and William.

VETERAN BOUGHT OWN GRAVE LOT

Civil War Veteran Bought Plot In Edmonton Cemetery Six Years Ago

EDMONTON, Feb. 16.—(CP). — When Captain Fritz V. Predricks, 101-year-old United States' civil war veteran, was buried here he was lowered into a grave for which a certificate of purchase had hung, framed, on his bedroom wall for six years.

In 1930, when the veteran of the plains was 98 years old, he was critically ill in hospital. "The next time death calls for me I'll be ready," he was reported to have said on leaving hospital.

The man who was Alberta's first immigration agent, purchased a cemetery plot. He framed the title and hung it over his bed. It was still there when he died after living in Edmonton for 61 years.

And now to bed... so sweet and clean!

Guarded so carefully... the Dionne Quins use only PALMOLIVE

the soap made with Olive Oil

FIVE LITTLE sleepy-heads, on their way to the Land of Nod! Rosy-cheeked, so sweet and clean . . . fresh from their bath with gentle Palmolive Soap!

And if you could see the smooth, satiny skin of those lovely Dionne Quins . . . then you would realize how wise Dr. Dafoe was when he decided that Palmolive, made with Olive Oil, should be used exclusively for bathing them.

WHY PALMOLIVE WAS CHOSEN!

Because the Quins were born prematurely, they have always had unusually sensitive skin. That is why, for sometime after their birth, they were bathed only with Olive Oil. Dr. Dafoe knew that nothing is so soothing for delicate skin as gentle Olive Oil.

Then, when the time came for soap and water baths, how important it was to choose a soap made from the gentlest, most soothing ingredients! And that is why Dr. Dafoe chose Palmolive, made with Olive Oil, to be used exclusively for bathing the Quins' tender skin!

WHAT A LESSON FOR EVERY WOMAN!

Mother! Why should you risk bathing your precious baby or any of your children, with any soap less gentle, less soothing than the one chosen for the little Dionnes?

And you too, Lovely Lady . . . you who want to keep your complexion soft, smooth, alluring through the years! Why not give your skin the matchless beauty care that only Palmolive's secret of Olive and Palm Oils can give? Why not use this safe method, Palmolive Soap for your own face and bath!

TO KEEP YOUR OWN COMPLEXION ALWAYS LOVELY, USE THIS BEAUTY SOAP CHOSEN FOR THE QUINS

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Lynn Tallent, 53-year-old relief client, paced the halls of a hospital as he awaited the 20th visit of the stork. "No, I am not nervous," he explained, "but what can I use for a name that I haven't already used?"

FRED. J. OVEREND RE-ELECTED HEAD KAWARTHA CLUB

Increased Membership Is Anticipated By Executive President Reports

WATERING FAIRWAYS

Fred J. Overend was returned for a second term in the presidential chair as members of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club gathered for their annual meeting at the club house Monday evening. Returned to office also was the executive consisting of G. Hewitt and F. Bowness, vice presidents; Terry Glover, treasurer, and R. MacMorran, secretary. T. F. McRae was elected to the Board of Directors.

Mr. Overend reported the club finances are in healthy condition. He said applications for membership already on hand for this year will bring the total membership higher than last year.

Additional equipment for watering the fairways was installed last Fall, he reported. This improvement, along with a heavy program of fertilizing, is calculated to bring the general condition of the fairways up to that of the greens. Additions have been made to the locker room and a duplicate water system has been installed. He commended the tennis committee on the condition of the courts last year.

Reports were tendered by the following committee chairmen: A. B. Hood, greens committee; D. J. Emery, tennis committee; C. A. Salmonsen, finance; B. J. Burgess, membership; J. E. Girven, house, and Ed. Riley, entertainment.

The newly-elected committees were as follows: Greens committee, A. B. Rhodes, F. Jobbitt, J. W. Geraghty, H. G. McKenzie and C. B. Muir; tennis committee, D. J. Emery, Art Jones and J. T. Donaldson; handicap committee, H. Foster, T. J. Miller and F. Buckland.

MASONIC PICNIC IS SET FOR FEB. 25

Arrangements Are Being Completed For Big Night At Y.M.C.A.

The Masonic Winter Picnic arrangements are being completed for the big night at the Y.M.C.A. Building, Thursday, February 25. The Winter Picnic has been a tremendous success in Masonic Circles and this year's evening of activities promises to be as popular as the three preceding picnics. This idea is unique and as far as is known, Peterborough is the only place where such an event is held. The program includes a bowling tournament with four teams from each of the three Blue lodges. A billiard tournament, two teams from each lodge, and volley ball and bridge tournaments. The committee is planning new features which will be undoubtedly well received by those who attend. The evening will conclude with refreshments.

VIMY PICTURES SHOWN LEGION

PLAN ANNUAL MEETING

Moving pictures of the Vimy Pilgrimage were presented by Ross Hood to a very appreciative audience following the regular monthly business meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion on Monday night.

The gathering of ex-servicemen included four members of Marmora branch of the Legion in the persons of W. J. Cottrell, J. W. Hickey, N. Hipson, and Percy Gray. The latter as secretary presented a concise report bearing on the activities of the Marmora legionnaires.

President Max Sloan extended a welcome to the visitors as chairman at the business session. Robert Hendry took charge of the program of entertainment and at the conclusion of the pictures tendered a vote of thanks to Mr. Hood. Jack Smith was at the piano.

Messrs. William Gibson, Joseph Dineen, Max H. Yelland were accepted into membership on recommendation of Major H. K. Clifton.

It was announced that the Legion Hall is to undergo renovation from top to bottom, including several minor repairs.

The annual meeting and election of officers is to take place next month, and with this in view Messrs. D. A. Loomis, Frank Leether, Harry Bassett, and C. Lazenby were named as a nominating committee. They will receive nominations until March 3.

Preceding the annual meeting and election, it was decided to hold a dinner meeting at no cost to the ex-servicemen who attend.

An invitation was accepted from the Men's Association of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to hold the annual church parade to St. Paul's on April 25. Arrangements for the parade were left in the hands of the incoming president.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HE WINS THE GAVEL

Stuart Meiklejohn, 52 McDonnel street, is to-day's outstanding candidate for membership in the newly - organized Peterborough Liar's Club. He submits the following yarn with a straight face:

"When I was a young fellow down near Syracuse, I worked as a teamster. I liked a nice outfit so I went to a harness shop and got the harness-maker to make me a set out of raw hide all the way through.

"One day I had my team hitched in the new harness and was on my way home with a heavy load. The wagon got stuck in the mud but the harness was wet and it stretched so fast the horses kept right on going till they got to the stable door. There I tried to unhitch them, but the traces were tight so I just fed them and went to bed.

I guess it stopped raining in the night and the traces started to shrink. When I came out the next morning the wagon and load were pushing the horses into their stalls."

PLANNING TO MAKE FIFTIETH CROSSING

A. P. Whitely Sails on Saturday On His 50th Crossing Of Atlantic

When he sails from St. John, N.B., on Saturday next en route to his home at Harrogate, Yorkshire, A. P. Whitely, director of George Whitaker and Company Limited, wool importers of this city whose head offices are in Bradford, England, will be making his fiftieth consecutive crossing of the North Atlantic.

Mr. Whitely left the city on Monday afternoon after a visit to the company's branch here. He has made many previous visits to Peterborough, and during his most recent stay he visited Alderman Walter Stocker at his home on Gilmour street.

It was in 1909 that Mr. Whitely opened the company's Boston, Mass., office and in 1930 he established the Peterborough branch bringing to Canada from England, Gordon Monkman, as branch manager. The success of the venture is proven by the fact that the local branch now employs a staff of twenty-five.

OBITUARY

FRED FITZGERALD.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ELDORADO, Feb. 16.—Mrs. John Fitzgeraid, of Eldorado, received the sad news of the death of her brother-in-law, Fred Fitzgerald, who passed away at his home at Calumet, Michigan, on January 29th. Deceased was born in Centreville, Lennox and Addington County, and when a young man moved to Michigan, where he made his home for the remainder of his life. The late Mr. Fitzgerald was 67 years of age, and was the last of a family of five children. He was a brother of the late John Fitzgerald of Eldorado, who passed away on June 29th of last year.

FRED BLOGETT.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTRETON, Feb. 16.—The death took place very suddenly at his home at Timerick, Sask., of Fred. Blogett. The deceased died of a heart attack. He was in his fiftieth year, and was born in Haldimand Township, on a farm west of Centreton. He attended the local school here as a boy and had many warm friends here, who were shocked to hear of his sudden death.

Mr. Blogett was a son of Mrs. Darius Blogett and the late Mr. Blogett of Centreton. Left to mourn his death, besides his aged mother, are his widow, of Timerick, Sask., and one son, Lorne, of Moose Jaw; one brother, Charles, of Centreton, and three sisters: Mrs. G. Nicholls of Cobourg, Mrs. F Birney and Miss Hazel Blogett, both of Centreton.

The funeral service was held at his late residence on Friday afternoon.

STANLEY CAVANAGH.

A young man widely respected in his community was removed in the death of Stanley Cavanagh at his home at Indian River on February 10, following a brief illness. He was 29 years of age.

Born at Indian River, he was son of the late W. R. Cavanagh and Mary Conroy. Surviving are his mother, two brothers, John and Patrick at home, and four sisters, Mrs. R. G. McKay of Ophir, Mrs. C. Landsky of Sydney, N.S., Mrs. G. Heard of Bridgenorth, and Martha at home.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Saturday to St. Joseph's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by Rev. E. A. Welsh. Interment was made in the Douro Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Harry Fitzgerald, Leonard Meade, Joseph Cummings, James Cavanagh, Thomas Cavanagh, and Joseph Cavanagh.

MRS. ROBERT CAMPBELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 16. — After a lingering illness Mrs. Robert Campbell, one of the best known women in this district, died on Monday afternoon at her home, a mile from Roseneath. She was in her 75th year.

Mrs. Campbell before her marriage was Miss Jennie Stevenson and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Stevenson of Alnwick Township. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Surviving relatives are her husband, one son Archie Campbell on the homestead, two daughters, Mrs. James Campbell of Guelph, and Mrs. N. C. Leach of Penetia, two half-sisters, Mrs. J. H. Connor of Detroit and Mrs. A. Couch of Michigan, and two half-brothers, Fred and Frank Parker of Western Canada.

The funeral will be conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott of Roseneath at the family residence, on Wednesday afternoon, with interment in Centenary Cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE HARRINGTON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 16—The death occurred in Cobourg General Hospital on Monday night of Mrs. George Harrington of Roseneath, aged 66 years. Mrs. Harrington, who had been ill for some time with pneumonia, was removed to the hospital in Cobourg last Thursday.

She was the daughter of the late Hugh and Mrs. Deviney of Haldimand Township, and was widely known in the district. Surviving are two children, Max Harrington of Toronto and Mrs. James Gray of Roseneath; one brother, Arthur Deviney of London, Ont., and two sisters, Mrs. T. C. Lapp, Cobourg, and Mrs. W. Waldie of Roseneath.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from the family residence in Roseneath, at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott, and interment will be in Bethany cemetery.

MRS. JOHN DEVLIN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, Feb. 16.—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Devlin took place on Monday from the family residence, Abbott street, Peterborough to the Sacred Heart church, Peterborough and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro. Rev. Father C. Maloney sang the requiem mass and preached the funeral sermon, using the text "Be ye also prepared for you know not the day nor the hour."

Pall bearers were: Joseph, Robert, John and Edward Clancy (brothers), Stephen Grisdale, a brother-in-law and William Collins, a nephew. The sympathy of the community is extended to the family in the sudden death of the wife and mother.

MRS. JOHN McCAULEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, Feb. 16.—The death occurred on Monday at Kirkland Lake, Ont., of Johanna Towns, wife of John McCauley, both formerly of Douro. Deceased has been in failing health for several years. She is survived by her husband, one son, Raymond, two daughters, Mrs. George Neldham and Mrs. John Goodwood, two brothers, John Towns of Douro, and two sisters, Mrs. Michael McCauley of Kirkland Lake and Mrs. Oliver Daust of Haileybury. Deceased was fifty-nine years of age. Interment will take place at Kirkland Lake.

Roland Denne Asked to Assume Home Improvement Leadership

Provincial Chairman Asks Ex-Mayor To Lead Movement In Peterborough

WILL LIKELY ACCEPT

Ryland H. New of Toronto, provincial chairman of the Home Improvement Plan, has written Roland Denne requesting him to accept the leadership in Peterborough of this movement which with the federal government's sponsorship is being actively promoted throughout the entire country.

Mr. Denne was recovering at his home today from an attack of influenza, but it is understood that he has assured several local men who visited him that he would undertake this responsibility in the expectation that he would receive the active support of those who are confident that the Home Improvement Plan can be made a real success in Peterborough.

Peterborough was one of the first cities in Canada to be attracted to this plan of assisting home owners to pay for necessary improvements to their properties, both in the city and country, and the immediate response late last fall was regarded as quite encouraging. However, with the approach of winter and the Christmas season it was decided that the details of organization should be left until the new year when the spirit of renovation would not be interrupted by seasonal diversions.

Probably the first steps in this present effort will be to explain how the Home Improvement Plan operates, and to enlist the co-operation of business men and others whose products are required in home repairs.

Charles Shaw Guest Speaker At Club Luncheon.

Open house was held by members of the Lions Club on Monday evening when each of the clubmen showed up at the regular dinner meeting at White House with a guest. In the unavoidable absence of President Max Swanston, the chair was occupied by Vice-president Bert Cowan. Charles Shaw featured on the program as guest speaker and at the close was tendered a vote of thanks on motion of Bill Derry. Members of the club were generally agreed the meeting was one of the most successful of the entire season. Mr. Shaw declared, that he rejoiced at taking his stand along with members of the club "for those social, civic, and commercial integrities embraced by the Lion's Club code of ethics."

All the streets in the Claraday section of North Monaghan from Park Street east, and south of Lansdowne Street, are to be illuminated with a system of st.eet lighting to be erected by the Utilities Commission. The order has not yet reached the Utilities Commission, but it is understood to have been approved in the township.

PRIZE WINNERS

The prizes for last week scores were presented at the Duffus Bowling Academy Monday evening. An award of $5 went to Vincent Anthony for the highest three-game score of the week, 796. Jack Patte, Jr., won the $5 for the low blind score under 650 for any three consecutive games. His score was 638. Alderman James Juby officiated at the drawing.

TO SLATE CANDIDATES.

Heralding the near approach of the annual election of officers, the nominating committee met on Monday evening to select a list of candidates for ballot as directors of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce. The nominating committee, who expect to have a slate ready by Thursday of this week, is composed of Messrs. Ross L. Dobbin, E. F. Mason, D. J. Fitzgerald, R. M. Glover and C. N. Hall. The Chamber of Commerce elections are to be held on March 2, and will be followed later in the month by the annual dinner meeting.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

A penalty of $7.50 and $1.75 costs each was imposed on Hiram Taylor, William Taylor and David Jacobs, following their conviction before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Tuesday) morning on charges of fishing through the ice on January 19 last. The accused were represented by W. J. A. Fair. Hiram Taylor pleaded not guilty, but after the charge against him had been proven, the other pair entered pleas of guilty. Charges were laid on information of Game and Fisheries Officer I. J. Lyons.

NEW FLAG ON POLE.

A trim new Union Jack is flying over the Court House this week in place of the ragged emblem familiar to the public in recent months. The old flag, purchased during the Jubilee year of the late King George V, had been frayed by the winds down almost to the vertical bar in the Union Jack design and county officials deemed the time at hand when a new flag should be purchased.

FORTUNE TELLING SIN.

The consulting of so-called fortune tellers is a grievous sin against the first commandment, because it is a form of blasphemy by attributing to a human being a knowledge of the future which only God can know, Rev. J. C. Maloney said in a sermon on the first commandment at the Church of the Sacred Heart Sunday. Perjury, he said, was a mortal sin because by that act a person called upon God who was infinite truth to bear witness to falsehood.

STEADY DEMAND FOR PLATES.

The "deadline" for commercial motor licenses which was reached on Monday brought out the usual last-minute rush of applicants to the office of the license issuer, according to James J. Dorris. To date over 400 commercial license markers have been issued through the local office. The number shows a slight increase over the corresponding period of last year, and is believed to be due to the open winter, which has resulted in the wider use of motor vehicles. It was stated that an average of 6,500 passenger plates is issued annually through the Peterborough office, and of this number 4,300 passenger markers have been taken out to date.

MARBLE AND MOLYBDENITE.

Several groups of Toronto men who are interested in both marble and molybdenite deposits in the Bancroft area of Hastings county have recently visited that district. Representatives of a syndicate are reported to have been seeking options on marble properties, and if successful are likely to erect a crushing plant near Bancroft. Several other men have been in the Baptiste area opening up a molybdenite property. They returned to Toronto last week, but intend to return shortly to resume operations.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE GOOD.

The current epidemic of influenza has apparently made little headway in the rural districts around Peterborough, School Inspector Leo Copp reports. Attendance at the rural public schools has been unusually good this winter. In checking up during the past couple of weeks he has encountered a number of schools with perfect attendance, he said. He attributes the freedom of rural school children from epidemic infections as party the result of isolation from city crowds and also an indirect result of summer health courses which rural teachers have been taking. A high degree of sanitation in the matter of drinking cups and towels prevails through the rural schools.

DEAD ANIMALS DOT RANGELAND

Alberta Ranchers Battle To Get Feed And Water For Starving Herds

HIGHWAY BLOCKED

CALGARY, Feb. 16 (CP)—Dead horses and cattle dotted the rangelands of Southern Alberta today as ranchers battled to get feed and water to the starving herds.

More than forty days of subzero temperatures, with snow piled high over the grazing grounds, followed by a chinook which was not powerful enough to melt through the giant drifts, brought about the ranchers' crisis.

Snow-drifted highways prevented the bringing of feed to the ranches, a condition that exists in many districts today.

In search of food, herds have ranged for miles, subsisting on twigs of willows, buck brushes and other shrubs. On some ranches the cattle have not rested for weeks, maintaining a ceaseless hunt for fodder. With reservoirs frozen to the bottom, many ranchers and farmers have had to haul water to their stock. Feed is being hauled long distances where highway conditions permit.

REV. C. J. CURTIS DIES

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 16. — (C.P.)—After an operation for appendicitis, Rev. C. J. Curtis, 67, retired United Church minister, who had resided in the village of Athens since his retirement from the ministry 17 years ago, died in hospital here last night.

Born in Liverpool, England, he came to Canada in 1878 and until 1883 he was a minister in the Primitive Methodist Church.

Wartime Pals Meet 20-Years After Last Seeing Each Other

MEET IN PETERBOROUGH

Two wartime comrades who had not seen each other since they were at Bearwood Convalescent Hospital in Berkshire, England together in the Fall of 1916, were reunited on Monday night at a meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

They were H. Brooks of Toronto, circulation manager of "The Canadian Veteran" (an ex-servicemen's monthly publication), and W. J. Cottrell of Marmora branch of the Legion.

Corporal Brooks as he was known in the 58th Battalion with which unit he served overseas enjoyed quite a reputation among his soldier comrades as a singer and entertainer, and Sergeant Cottrell formerly of the 2nd Battalion recalled some pleasant recollections when he asked his long lost friend if he remembered singing "My Home in Tennessee" while at Bearwood.

The latter originally enlisted with the 58th Battalion, was transferred to the 39th Battalion and later saw service with the "Iron Seconds."

Quite excited at meeting each other so unexpectedly the pair exchanged warmest greetings. "My old buddy," Cottrell exclaimed hardly able to believe his eyes. "Well! Well!" Brooks declared eyeing the other with approval, "but you've put on weight since I last saw you."

THE STARS SAY . . .

LINDSAY ELIMINATED

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (C.P.). — Hubert H. Chisholm's grand aggregate champions of 1936 tumbled from the list of undefeated at the Ontario Curling Bonspiel to-day. The powerful Toronto rink was beaten by H. B. Holden's Detroit Quartette, 13-12.

Defeat of the favored Chisholm rink featured morning play in the Seiberling Trophy event. With Chisholm and Vice-skip Eddie Allan curling beautifully yesterday, the defending aggregate champions scored two triumphs yesterday.

Another feature was the steady progress of London contenders, Gar Reddon defeating B. Kennedy of Toronto Strathconas 14-13 and Dr. J. A. Wright turning back H. Sutcliffe of Oshawa 16-9. F. C. Wilson's London rink was beaten 14-10 by R. G. Wright of Thornhill.

Northern Ontario entrants broke even. P. T. Graham and his good New Liskeard rink went an extra end to defeat T. J. Smith of Toronto Granites 11-9. R. L. Graham of Little Current scored a 10-9 win over F. K. Wilson of Brampton. Dr. R. P. Smith of South Porcupine and H. G. Murdoch of Englehart were beaten.

Kingston also broke even. T. G. Bishop won by 10-9 from P. Shields of Kincardine, but George Hanson was defeated 10-8 by Dr. J. N. Harvie of Orillia.

Other notable wins were scored by Gordon Campbell's former Dominion champions from Hamilton over Col. W. O. Morris of Toronto, 14-7; A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia over A. Stephen of Port Carling, 12-9; M. W. Binkley of Stratford over N. L. Powell of Brampton, 15-11; and C. E. Pickering of Ottawa over A. V. Silk of Shelbourne, 11-10.

THIL HOLDS TITLE ON "FOUL" RULING IN PARIS BATTLE

Brouillard Is Held To Have Struck Low As He Knocks Frenchman Out

12,000 FANS PROTEST

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP).—Lou Brouillard let out a howl that could almost be heard back in his Massachusetts home today as he protested a foul verdict that meant a third straight failure in his efforts to win Marcel Thil's claims to the world middleweight boxing title.

In a bout that was almost a duplicate of their meeting a year ago, Thil last night retained his International Boxing Union championship recognition when he won on a foul in the sixth round from the resident of Worcester.

Some 12,000 fans protested loudly at the Palais des Sports when the referee, after counting the French veteran out, consulted the judges and then announced Thil was the winner on a foul.

"I'll never box in Paris again," Lou roared today. "That's twice I've knocked Thil out and twice they have disqualified me. I didn't hit him low. I hit him in the stomach."

Some ringsiders figured the knockout blow struck even higher. They saw a smashing right land on the Frenchman's jaw just before he dropped to the canvas clutching his middle.

Apparently uncertain, the referee first toiled 10 over Thil, then went into a conference with the judges. Brouillard was on his way out of the ring when he was startled by the announcement he had lost.

A little more than a year ago, in their second bout, Thil was declared the winner in the fourth round under similar circumstances. Brouillard hit him what looked like a fair blow in the stomach, only to be disqualified amidst vigorous protests from the customers. A number of noted observers, including Georges Carpentier, believed Thil had not been fouled.

Park St. Bantams Win Make Church Finals

Park St. Bantams will play George St. in Church Hockey League finals Thursday, as a result of their 3-2 win over Mark St. last night. It was a tidy tussle, hard fought all the way with the winners showing more teamplay to offset individual brilliance of some of the East City boys. Two players did all the scoring, J. Ainslie getting a goal each frame for Park St., and Briscoe and Smith getting assists; and D. Eason getting one in the first and third for the losers. Scriver was the best two-way player for Mark St. with Agnew and Smith good also. R. Ainslie again saved his team with smart saves in goal. Campbell was strong on defence with Martin doing some clever checking up front. Although leading throughout, the winners had to hustle to the end to win out. The teams:

Mark St.: Goal, Robinson; defence, Agnew, Scriver; centre, Moore; wings, D. Eason, Curtis; alternates, C. Eason, Smith, Mackey, Ralph.

Referee, D. Charlton.

PETE LESWICK

One of the brightest "finds" of the hockey year is Pete Leswick, rookie New Haven Eagle who rapped home three goals for his team in his first appearance in uniform after a month on the side lines through injuries. Leswick, brother of the late Jack Leswick of Chicago Black Hawks, turned pro this season after starring in the Memorial Cup playdowns last year with Saskatoon Wesleys. The speedy winger may get a trial with a major league club, probably New York Americans.

Lakefield Team Wins Over King Edward 5-2

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16.—The Lakefield Public School Hockey team defeated King Edward School, Peterborough, when the latter journeyed to Lakefield on Monday afternoon, to play the Northerners in the Lakefield Rink. The final score was 5 to 2.

At the end of the first period the score was tied, at 2-2. D. Self and Hudson did the scoring for Peterborough in this period. Jack Birch and Marquis Bullock scored for the homsters with J. Birch credited with an assist.

In the third, Charlie Birch scored twice, assisted in one instance by J. Birch. Jack Birch made a counter on his own, bringing the score to 5-2. Peterborough failed to score in the third session. The line-up:

King Edward School.—Goal, R. Leether; defence, E. Roberts, J. Henthorn; centre, S. Jamieson; r. wing, D. Self; l. wing, E. Jobe. Alternates.—J. Cox, E. Reader, R. Hodson, L. Shea (sub. goal).

Lakefield School.—Goal, C. Windsor; defence, C. Pearson, J. Kendall; centre, M. Bullock; r. wing, C. Birch; l. wing, J. Birch; alternates—W. McFadden, B. Arthurs, B. Brown, C. Earnshaw.

Senior Church Final Ends In Deadlock

The first game of the senior Church Hockey League finals last night ended in a 2-all tie between Murray St. and All Saints. The latter, perennial champions, were held even by a shorthanded Murray St. team, illness cutting down their squad to six players. But these six put up a scrappy contest to make it a fine fight. All Saints were also shy some regulars. Breakaways in the first heat gave Murray St. two, Palmer and Spencely scoring. The Anglicans then forced play and got a goal by Alton in the second and by Fisher in the third. All the Baptists went well, while Quirt, Seabrooke and Fisher showed up good for the other side. No overtime was played. The teams:

Referee, C. Sprout.

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

After Monday night's games Group No. 2 is all tied up and there are several rinks that still have a chance to win the group honors.

This all came about when Ross Downie defeated J. J. Howden's rink in a great game. Howden was leading the group up until last night and now he is tied with Moore and Sedgewick.

In Group No. 3 Harvey and Donaldson are ahead, each with five wins and one loss; so anything may happen yet.

Premier Mussolini Swings Pick High to Start Construction Work

ROME, Feb. 16—(A.P.)—Premier Mussolini swung a pick high over his head to-day and buried its point deep in the pavement of Piazzo Bocca Della Verita to inaugurate construction of Italy's first subway.

Streamline trains are expected to start service four years from now, serving the thousands of visitors Rome hopes to attract at that time for its world exposition. Five thousand workers will be employed on the project.

SINGING MOUSE HELD

When First Heard Thought to Have Been a Bird Singing.

JACKSON, Mich., Feb. 16 (C.P.).—Yes, another singing mouse. This one was discovered in the farm home basement of W. H. Corden near here when Mrs. Corden investigated what she believed to be the singing of a bird.

At that time, she said, there were two mice sitting on a feed barrel rendering a duet. An aim with a potato by her son, 14-year-old Arthur, cut the noise in half.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

BLOOD AND Thunder League battled it out tonight in three rousing tilts at the Brock St. Winter Gardens. Millbrook meets Westclox at seven bells, followed at eight by Lakefield vs. Outboard Marines, and at nine by Bewdley 'gainst Mayfairs. The second scrap shapes up as the best of the evening. The Senior City Puck Loop schedule ends Friday in the gloaming, though there may be another game between Bewdley and Lakefield if it has a bearing on the standing. Since the first three teams go into playoffs, tonight's tussles are quite important and will be hardfought throughout. Should draw a good crowd.

* * * * *

IN BELLEVILLE this p.m. our Colts start their group playoffs with the young Redmen of Belleville-Under-Water. The Quinte kids will no doubt make it a real battle but we imagine our lads will cop the duke. As goals count in the two-game serial, the Colts will try to bring back a respectable lead to carry into their fray here on Thursday. The winner of this series meets the Whitby-Kingston (likely Kingston) winner next week in the first round of the O.H.A. junior "B" playdowns.

* * * * *

BELLEVILLE SCRIBE says: "Holding a rampaging gang of Petes' pucksters to one marker by virtue of a hard-checking defensive, the Fliers swept through to a hard-earned 3-1 victory Friday to cop honors in their group. The Airmen took advantage of an ice surface more conducive to water polo than hockey and allowed the speedy Petes to carry the play to them for the major part of the game. . . . Trailing during the best part of the contest, the fast-skating Petes were handicapped by ice conditions with the sturdy defensive tactics and hard bodychecking of the winners usually writing finis to their goalward sorties."

* * * * *

WE LOVED this bit of Belleville whimsy: "Coach Buckland demanded his pound of flesh and wants the last game in Peterborough Monday. We can but wonder the whys and the wherefores of the request with the Petes out in the cold. Peterborough is not such a sucker town as to pay out good iron men to see the Fliers only go through the motions." We can well understand the amazement of the Belleville scribe in seeing a team that really finishes out its schedule—after recalling that the Belleville Nats defaulted twice to Napanee last fall, and the Redmen defaulted out of the Kingston loop early this winter, and then declined to finish their schedule a few weeks ago in Trenton.

* * * * *

YE PETES finished it up last night with a 9-4 nod over the Fliers here. Which gave 'em two wins in four starts—not quite enough. As a matter of fact, the R.C.A.F. officials decided to take no chances on getting their lads busted up by the scrappy Petes so they kept four of the regulars at home—packed no doubt in cotton. Gibson, Lalonde, Lowrey and Cowley did not make the trip. Since the squad goes into playdowns right away against the Pontiac Chiefs of Toronto, we don't really blame 'em for being careful. But it's not a fair shake to the customers to send a weakened team down. Of course, the Petes were too good for them and won quite handily.

* * * * *

IT WAS a speedy interesting tilt most of the way but somewhat one-sided. Play was rough enough the first half but the Fliers received orders from head quarters to take it easy and they laid back. No use of getting carved up in a game that didn't mean a thing. All the locals went good in their final appearance with young Ray Harding—Colts' goalie who took Clarke's place when the latter had a bad cold—starring. He looked real smart. The scoring was well scattered around. "Four of our guys are home with the 'flu," one of the Fliers' officers said. Someone sarcastically suggested that they ought to take something for it. And we cynically added our nickel's worth with: "They did; they took a powder—a runout powder!" But the visitors only grinned knowingly. A lot of us have the idea that if the Fliers-Petes' series was just starting now, it would be a lot different in the final result.

* * * * *

THREE CLASSY Church Hockey League games were staged last eve. The strong All Saints' Seniors were held to a 2-all draw in the first of the finals by Murray St. Shorthanded, the latter team declined to play overtime and, as there was no ruling to make 'em, the series will have to resume again Thursday at 8.30 p.m. In the tilt to decide third place in the juvenile section, Mark St. and St. John's tied at 1-1 but the former got two in overtime and will go into semi-finals against St. Paul's. Neither wants to play Thursday but due to uncertain weather and ice conditions, it is a case of have to. George St. and Park St. meet in the first of bantam finals Thursday at six, as Park St. won from Mark last night, 3-2.

* * * * *

AN EXECUTIVE meeting of the Senior Baseball Club will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) night at 7.30 in the Chamber of Commerce. Prexy Ed Riley has decided to hold a meeting for officials first to go into the ball situation here, discuss bringing in players, etc.—and then later to hold an open session. All officers should be on deck as not much time can be lost if the Petes are to have a strong entry in the C.O.B.L. this year. All kinds of applications are coming in from players wanting to perform with Peterborough this summer. Trouble is to get 'em jobs. Just yesterday a big pitcher from Edmonton—who worked last in Sudbury—ambled in and asked for work. Toronto, Northern Ontario and other C.O.B.L. towns, have all sent their quota of applications here. Surely, we can dig up a real ball team this season.

* * * * *

HITHER AND yawn: Junior City Puck Loop games at the Brock on Wednesday: Monarchs vs. All Saints at eight, and Canucks vs. St. Peter's at nine . . . . Campbellford O.H.A. juveniles may play Canucks an exhibition tussle here soon . . . . Executive meeting of the City 5-Pin Bowling League will be held in Duffus' at 7.3. tomorrow e'en . . . . Juvenile O.H.A. entries are taken till February 20th; 12 players to a team, under 18, who have played not more than one O.H.A. game . . . . Fee is $5.00 and secretary is Dr. R. W. Matchett, 300 Bloor E., Toronto . . . . Belleville Redmen may yet have to play Trenton before going into playdowns . . . . Scoring averages for the Petes will be released in a day or two . . . . NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP). — James J. Braddock, the most active referee ever to hold the heavyweight championship, leaves to-night for Pittsburgh on another charity job. The champ's the most willing gent in town. He hasn't forgotten his own days on charity. . . . Every night or so he's helping somebody out.

Babe Ruth wasn't in Bermuda five minutes yesterday before he was in the limelight. An admirer rushed up to present him with three bottles of vintage wine. . . . This was fine, explained the Babe, it would look good in the trophy he expected to win in the golf tournament there starting Thursday. The Babe handed the wine to a porter, who promptly dropped and smashed all three bottles. . . . But the Babe took it in stride. . . . He vowed to win the trophy anyway.

Boxing's in a great state when a guy can get all this publicity for refusing to "take a dive". . . . Wonder what the men in the Torrance fiasco thought when the court told them they were "being held incommunicado".

Next time you hear somebody condemning Branch Rickey, remember this one. . . . Fellow called Willie Johnson was with St. Louis Browns for 23 years, most of the time as road secretary. . . . When the Browns changed hands recently, Brown was let out. . . . Few days ago, he was named president of the Peoria team in the Three-I League. . . . Jubilantly, he told of going to Rickey in desperation. . . . He wanted to stay in baseball after a lifetime at it. . . . Rickey called Warren Giles in Cincinnati and recommended Willie. . . . Giles gave him the Peoria job.

Latest thing, Rosslin is having both men blindfolded. Better still would be to have the audience blindfolded. When Johnny Mize received his St. Louis Cardinals contract, he scribbled "insufficient funds" on it and bounced it right back.

Mark St. Juveniles Cop Playoff Berth

In a juvenile game to decide the third playoff berth in the Church Puck Loop, Mark St. took a 3-1 win over St. John's last night. It went overtime before the winners copped the duke with two goals. Mark St. had most of the play but great goaltending by Turner held them back for three frames. Turner starred all through. Graham got the first goal with Lewis tying it up near the end of the second frame. The goal was disputed but allowed. The East City gang peppered Turner but could not get it in. The Uniteds pressed in the overtime and Barringer and Nicholls finally tallied. Lewis was good for St. John's while all the winners showed up well. The teams:

St. John's: Goal, Turner; defence, Morley, Hogg; centre, Lewis; wings, Lomax, Clark; alternate, Forsythe.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS
Ski-ing
By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

44—Braking in Double Stemming (Snowplow) Position

The snowplow is one of the fundamental positions in ski technique. It is used to reduce speed or to stop, when there is room for the convergent position of the skis and the stop need not be too abrupt. It is executed in either the half crouch or low crouch position with the body held more erect than when running, but not in the erect position. From the running position the tail-ends of the skis are pushed apart by heel-pressure, keeping the ankles normal. (See Edging). The ski points are kept close abreast but not touching and the weight equally distributed on both skis.

Braking in snowplow position

The position should first be practised on the level with the skis at various angles of convergence, special attention being paid to thrusting the knees forward and keeping the ankles normal. Bend the body slightly forward. With the ankles normal the skis will be on their inside edges. Practice flattening them by bending the ankles outward, then back to the normal edge.

Try a direct descent on a gentle slope with fairly hard or light soft snow. Start in the snowplow position with skis flat and regulate the braking force by edging. Hold the hands just forward of the hips with sticks trailing above the snow. If one ski tends to run across ahead of the other transfer weight from it to the lagging ski. If normal edging does not provide sufficient braking, increase the stemming angle of the skis by pushing the heels farther apart. If the skis are fully flattened the outside edges may not ride over surface irregularities and a spill will probably result. When the positions have been mastered on a gentle slope try more difficult ones. Practise going into the double stemming position while running, checking the speed, then back to the running position.

Petes End Schedule With a 9-4 Triumph Over Trenton Fliers

Local Intermediates Prove Too Good For Weakened Airmen And Finish Season With Soft Victory

LEAD FROM THE START

The Petes finished their O.H.A. season last night with a 9-4 victory over the Fliers before a fair crowd of fans at the Brock St. rink. Dishing up a speedy, passing game, the locals had a decided edge on play from the start and led 4-0 at the end of the first frame and 6-2 going into the third. The Fliers were minus the services of four regulars and proved no match for the Peterborough squad.

It was a nice game of hockey, fast most of the way and quite rough in spots. But the Petes looked better at all times and had most of the play. They skated fast, passed neatly and checked hard. The losers battled hard but were considerably weaker than the R.C.A.F. team that won the group title a week ago. Only six penalties were handed out, the Petes drawing three of them.

Harding Shines.

Aside from Harding—the Colts' goalie who filled in when Clarke had a cold—in the Petes' net, there were no outstanding stars for the winners. Harding turned in a fine performance and robbed Trenton of half a dozen goals at least. The rest of the squad all looked good, with most of the gang figuring in on the scoring. They all worked hard in their final appearance of the year and were ready to rough it up at any time. The second frame saw several feuds renewed, but the Fliers apparently got orders to take it easy as they laid back from then on as far as mixing went. The two McNeeleys and LeCompte were best for the losers.

It was fast and even for a time in the first inning and then the Petes began to bore in regularly. Weir was robbed on a neat try and, when Partridge went off for boarding, the locals peppered Stewart. They scored two in a hurry, Burton tallying on Williamson's assist and then Weir scoring with Gardner and Creighton aiding. Weir got a cut over the eye and left the game till the second period. Harding had two smart saves and then Coughlin took Creighton's pass to tally. Just before the finish, Gardner got a nice one on passes from Magee and Creighton.

Rough and Even.

The second was rough and fairly even, with the fans making plenty of noise at the action. Calladine circled the net early to tally and then Eric McNeeley scored for the Fliers on LeCompt's pass. Creighton was hit with a stick and left the game for a time and McDougall was gated for tripping. Williamson made a lovely rush but his shot was blocked. Harding had to jump on several neat sorties by the Airmen. Higgerty got the finger for tripping but the visitors scored when Ernie McNeeley took a pass from Carling-Kelly and shot it in from the side off the goalie. Bill Calladine got it back later on McDougall's pass out from the corner near the close of the middle chukker.

The Petes pressed for a time in the third till Vitarelli went over the boards for boarding. The Fliers got two on this penalty, Ernie McNeeley bulging the twine in a scramble and LeCompte taking Partridge's pass in close for the other. The Petes later took command again and had most of the play on nice combining rushes. Vitarelli was robbed and the Trenton team began shooting the puck down the ice as the fans booed. Vitarelli came in close to score on McDougall's pass and then Magee took a return pass from Creighton to notch a neat one. Vitarelli and Partridge were waved off for roughing it and McDougall got the final goal of the game and season on Gardner's pass at close range.

The teams:

Fliers: Goal, Stewart; defence, Partridge and Beck; centre, LeCompte; wings, Eric McNeeley and Laing; alternates, Higgerty, Ernie McNeeley, Wingate and Carling-Kelly.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Weir and Magee; centre, Calladine; wings, Burton and Vitarelli; alternates, McDougall, Creighton, Coughlin, Gardner and Williamson.

MARMORA SCHOOL SQUAD BEATEN 3-2

Tweed Victory Gives Them Chance Of Playoff Berth In Scholastic Group

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 16.—In the most exciting intermediate game of the season, the Marmora High School lost their first game of the year 3-2 to Tweed High School at the local arena.

G. Reynolds tallied the first goal for Marmora in the opening camp, only to have Doyle for the home forces tie it up on a long shot from one side. Two penalties were handed out to McEwen of Marmora in this period.

Tweed went into a two to one lead early in the second period when Vance took a pass from Long and banged in the second goal for the High School. Four penalties were handed out in this frame: Vance, Sayers and Long for Tweed and Kouri for Marmora, all for minor infractions.

In the last frame Vance took a pass from Doyle to put the home forces two goals up on the visitors. Long and O'Neil went off for tripping soon after this score. Marmora pressed hard throughout the period, and with only a few minutes to go, J. Loveless knotted the second goal for Marmora. Long took another trip to the cooler, but was back on the ice before any damage was done.

As a result of this win, Tweed still have a chance of getting into a playoff berth in the interscholastic loop.

Both teams displayed good hockey, with the checking of Long, Vance with two goals, and the cool work of Mouck around the nets outstanding for the home forces, while Hart in net, and the two Loveless brothers outstanding for the visitors. The locals, in view of their poor showing this season, pulled off a surprise by beating the last stepping Marmora players.

Cousins and Luffman handled the game satisfactorily, and no undue roughness was permitted.

Tweed—Goal, Mouck; defence, Sayers, Tummon; r. wing, Vance; centre, Long; l. wing, Doyle; subs: Meraw, Courneyea, Arber, Huyck, Lajoie.

Summary.

First Period

1—Marmora, Reynolds.
2—Tweed, Doyle.
Penalties—McEwen (2).

Second Period

3—Tweed, Vance (Long).
Penalties—Sayers, Vance, Long, Kouri.

Third Period

4—Tweed, Vance (Doyle).
5—Marmora, J. Loveless.
Penalties—Long (2), O'Neil.

32 RINKS WIN OUT FIRST DAY'S PLAY ROYAL YORK CUP

Palmerston Victory Over McConkey's Strathconas 13-7 Features Contest

OSHAWA STAYS IN

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Ten rinks, representing Toronto clubs, were among the thirty-two that remained unbeaten after the first rounds of the Royal York Trophy and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy competitions had been completed yesterday in the first day's play of the tenth annual Ontario curling bonspiel at five local clubs.

Other centres represented by undefeated fours were Meaford, Oshawa, Forest, Orillia, Detroit, Chatsworth, Palmerston, New Liskeard, Kitchener, Hamilton, London, Richmond Hill, Sarnia, Owen Sound, Kincardine, Kingston and Stratford.

To-day's program on the ice was abbreviated because of the banquet. There was to be no play in the Royal York competition.

A feature yesterday was the 13-7 defeat of C. E. McConkey, Toronto Strathconas, 1936 Royal York Trophy winner, by Stan Burns of Palmerston in the first round of the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie.

London rinks were strong in the Birks contest, F. C. Wilson and Dr. J. A. Wright winning by good margins. Another London quartet under G. Reddon lost to Earl Green's Toronto High Park crew 14-7, after winning in the Royal York playdowns.

Two Hamilton contingents also came through in the Birks. R. G. L. Harstone, Thistles, defeated Dr. F. L. Harstone, Oshawa, 12-7 and A. Earwaker, Victorias, scored over D. B. Carlyle's Toronto rink, 11-5.

North American Life Trophy.

Other Western Ontario rinks showed great finish in winning their Birks trophy competitions. H. Walker's rink from Chatsworth defeated P. G. Deitrich's Galt four 12-5 and Bert Hall's Kitchener four trounced H. B. Holden's Detroit rink 12-7.

Other good scores were recorded by Skipper A. C. Gardiner's Sarnia quartet, defeating Ottawa Granites 11-5; Skipper M. W. Binkley's crew from Stratford, which defeated a Thornhill aggregation 13-9, and H. Forbes' rink from Forest, which beat an Oshawa four 14-5.

Peter Gilbert's Chatham crew registered a 17-7 victory over F. Roberts of Unionville in the North American Life trophy; Dr. S. T. White skipped his Orangeville squad to a 10-2 triumph over T. O. Loveless' rink of Agincourt, and W. A. Watson of Sarnia led his quartet to a 16-12 win over F. Brimmell of Lindsay.

Only one Detroit entry survived the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie competition. Skipped by Nate Cornwall, it inflicted a 15-11 defeat on N. L. Powell's Brampton quartet. The Portage, Wis., four skipped by Dr. A. J. Batty won a bye in the North American trophy after default by J. W Lane's Timmins rink.

Lone Ottawa entry to survive the Royal York first round, C. E. Pickering's four, was beaten in the Birks competition 11-5 by the A. C. Gardiner quartet from Sarnia. Dr. R. P. Smith's four from South Porcupine suffered a similar fate, defeated 10-9 by a Toronto club four. Skipper P. T. Graham's rink from New Liskeard was triumphant in both competitions, beating a Brampton quartet 19-6 in the Birks trophy.

Another Northern Ontario entry, skipped by H. G. Murdoch of Englehart, fell before an Oshawa four, 17-10 after winning the Royal York first round competition. R. G. Travers' quartet from Kingston overwhelmed Col. R. J. Rattray's Ottawa Granites crew 17-9 in the North American Life Trophy and Col. H. J. Mackie's Ottawa quartet was also defeated 14-8 by C. R. Green's squad from Locust Hill.

Two Northern Ontario rinks captured victories in the North American Cup competition. H. Graham skipping his Timmins rink to a 8-4 triumph over Rev. J. S. Shrott's Barrie quartet and F. Goddard leading the New Liskeard rink to a 14-7 win over R. Boyington of Unionville.

AURIE IS LEADING WITH 38 POINTS IN N. H. L. SCORING

Harvey Jackson Shares Canadian Section Lead With Schriner

MONTREAL, Feb. 16—(C.P.). — The National Hockey League, in its weekly statistics, to-day places Larry Aurie of Detroit at the head of its scoring column with 38 points.

The Red Wing sniper, according to the official figures, picked up four points during the week, to step ahead of Toronto's Harvey Jackson, tied with him in last week's statistics. With Jackson remaining pointless, Marty Barry of the Wings passed him with 36 points, and Dave Schriner of the New York Americans drew up even with him at 34.

(On the basis of summaries published after each game during last week, Aurie is shown as having obtained only two assists for the week, which would place him in a first-place tie with Barry. Official statistics for the individual games could not be checked last night).

LAKEFIELD

UNITED SERVICE OF PRAYER HELD

Lakefield Women Unite In Impressive Observance Of World Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 15—The World Day of Prayer was observed this year as usual, in Lakefield as elsewhere, on the first Friday in Lent, February 12.

"Again around the world, like a golden chain welded in every link, was the voice of praying women making a joyful noise unto the Lord in supplication thanksgiving and praise." The program for the World Day of Prayer was planned by Mabel Shaw of Livingstone Memorial School, Mbereshi, P.O., Kawambwa, N. Rhodesia, Africa.

The Lakefield ladies met in the Sunday School room of the Lakefield Baptist church at 3.00 p.m., the Presbyterian, Anglican, United and Baptist congregations being represented in goodly numbers.

A most appropriate introduction to the service was the playing by the pianist, Miss Phyllis Webdale, of quiet music, "I walked in the garden With Him."

Mrs. Joseph Harvey, who presided, led the responsive scripture lesson, Mrs. S. Hunter, representing the Baptist ladies, prayed for the Christian Church.

Mrs. A. H. Clark, representing the Presbyterian Society, prayed for the Missionary program of the churches, at home and abroad.

Mrs. G. F. Kelly of the United Church prayed for the community.

Mrs. Potter, also of the United Church, prayed for youth everywhere.

Mrs. Creighton, representing the Anglican ladies, prayed for His Majesty the King, his counsellors and advisers for all parts of the British Empire. After each of these prayers a hymn was sung.

The Purpose of the Day.

Mrs. J. M. Simpson gave a short address on the purpose of the World Day of Prayer. She said that "the simple and unlearned, the commoner and sage solemnly pray to one Heavenly Father around one common mercy seat. Here we pour out our heart's desire and our spiritual longings." "There are so many baffling problems today," she continued. "Christ's command was 'Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, but lack of means prevents the sending of missionaries today. This is a great source of disappointment, but missionaries will be provided by our prayers and our means," Mrs. Simpson felt sure.

A solo, "Strength for Today" was very clearly and sympathetically rendered by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin of St. Andrew's Church, Miss N. Nelson of the United Church accompanying her. Mrs. W. E. Gilliman and Miss Edith Nicholls then took up the offering.

After the hymn "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended". A prayer in unison brought the service to a close.

WESTWOOD

PLANNING FOR 1938 DAY OF PRAYER

Westwood Women Appoint Mrs. James Thompson Key Woman For Next Year

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Feb. 16.—The World Day of Prayer was observed by the three churches of Westwood on Friday afternoon, February 12, in St. Michael's Anglican Church.

Mrs. James Thompson was leader for the program in the absence of Mrs. Jane Thompson. The call to worship and Scripture lesson was read by Miss Mary Cameron. Prayer for the Christian Church was offered by Mrs. M. Faux; for the missionary program of our churches by Mrs. G. A. Renwick; for the community and temperance by Miss Jessie Davidson; for the youth by Mrs. William Elmhirst; and for His Majesty the King George VI, by Mrs. John Hope.

An excellent paper on "The World Day of Prayer," prepared by Mrs. (Rev.) Lemon of Havelock, who was unable to be present through illness, was very ably given by Mrs. William Thompson.

Before singing the last hymn, "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended," a key woman and a committee for next year was appointed, as follows: Key woman, Mrs. James Thompson; committee—Mrs. W. Renwick, Mrs. M. Faux, Mrs W. Elmhirst, Mrs. Jane Thompson, Mrs. John Hope and Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

An invitation to the Presbyterian Church for next year's Day of Prayer meeting was graciously extended by Mrs. G. A. Renwick.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Paynter, newly married to a second-rate actor, Joel Paynter, whose show has just closed, obtains a card from an old friend, Harry Devanter, a film scout, requesting a screen test for "the bearer". Because of his pride, Joel first refuses to permit Janet to continue working and then conceals the fact that he has been playing the role of gigolo at a cocktail bar because he can find nothing else. Joel is elated when Janet tells him of his chance for a screen test. He does not know that the card was intended for her—not for him. Janet proves to be Joel's inspiration during the screen test. Anxiously they await word from the studio. Joel receives word of a six month's contract in Hollywood. Janet and Joel go west and stop at a luxurious hotel in Los Angeles. Three weeks later, when told to report for work, Joel brings Janet a mink coat.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 12

JANET STOOD there in the middle of the room that was costing them ten dollars a day and held the mink coat mutely. Her face was a study in the mixed emotions of bewilderment, pride and exasperation.

"Put it on, princess," Joel urged.

Janet slipped her arms into it and felt the soft caressing warmth of it as she folded it about her. Still she didn't speak. She looked at herself in the mirror of the dressing table and, looking, saw that Joel's face had fallen. It did something to her. It twisted her heart.

"It's beautiful," she said at last. "Much too beautiful for me, my darling."

Then she took it off and put it back in the box.

"I know dear," she said, "and I love it as though I were going to keep it but we can't. You can't afford to buy me such things. We've got to find a place to live and save some money in case the studio doesn't pick up its option and you've got to have lots of new clothes for your wardrobe. Some day, you can buy me a mink coat when we can afford it."

"I've bought it," he said stubbornly. "I've made a down payment on it and I'll have it paid for in eight weeks. I couldn't give you a honeymoon when we were married. I couldn't even buy you an engagement ring."

"We weren't engaged," she said with a twinkle of her eye. "We didn't have time."

"Even your wedding ring only cost a couple of dollars. I haven't done anything for you but pay the rent and buy our food. Now, when I want to do something that makes me happy, you don't want it. For the love of heaven, Jan, are you always going to throw cold water on my plans? Is there so much of a difference between us that I'm always to think of a month or a year ahead before I can do one thing that I want to? We've got to understand each other right now."

For one brief moment Janet thought that they were quarreling, she thought that Joel's citing incompatability was a serious thing. But then she realized that he was hurt and that when people are hurt they say things they do not mean.

"No, Joel," she said gently. "I wanted you to say these things to me. I really want to keep the coat! It's the most beautiful thing I have ever had. I had planned to tell you some day that I hoped you'd give me one."

Then she was in Joel's arms and he was happy again, confident of himself, forgiving her and calling himself a fool for having talked to her as he did. But he didn't see the truth.

Janet was to have other gifts without number from Joel but she never had anything that she cherished as she did that mink coat. Its value was beyond price to her and its warmth was for her heart because it was a symbol of Joel's love.

Joel's dislike of responsibility was obvious those times that Janet mentioned their need of finding a home. It was simpler for the two of them to stay at the hotel while he was working on the Jarrett picture, he pointed out.

Tania Jarrett was Federal's temperamental Viennese artiste (straight for Jackson Heights, Long Island), and working hours were not easy in her picture. Joel went off at six in the morning, driving out to the studio with another actor from the cast and returning late in the evenings.

Meanwhile the bills at the hotel were giving Janet heart attacks every time the discreet gray envelope was presented to her.

Finally she took matters in her own hands and began the rounds of the real estate offices. She soon learned, after being shown English manor houses, Italian villas and Austrian palaces for rent at the staggering figures you might imagine, to leave her mink coat at home when she went on her house hunting jaunts.

Finally she found the house. It wasn't a little white dream house—it was a small edition of the architect's idea of an English manor house. That is, it was built of brown stucco and had a great many darker brown exposed beams here and there over its facade.

But it did have a comfortable, spacious living room for a house so small, a small alcove for dining and a good-sized kitchen. Upstairs there was a large "master's bedroom, a guest room and bath. And it was nicely furnished. The living room had simple, colonial, modern furniture and a grand piano and Janet saw at once that she could do a great many things with it.

Janet paid the first month's rent and made a call at a garage where she priced modest second-hand cars.

That night, sitting proudly at the wheel of the car that cost a hundred and twenty-five dollars and looked worth two hundred, she hailed Joel at the gates of the studio.

That astonished young man got in beside her and Janet drove him out to their new home. That night she learned her first lesson when Joel expressed delight. Thereafter she was to make all her moves without fear of what Joel would think of them.

"We've got to have a house-warming," she said to him a few days later without telling him the reason why.

"Whom shall we have?" he asked willingly enough. "We don't know anyone."

"We're going to know everyone," she answered blandly. "So let's think about it."

"Suppose we ask Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin and..."

"Not to this one," she answered easily. "Now, let me see—" She had a pencil and small pad in her hand. "We can't stay here and be buried. There's Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart. They'll be excellent and I know they'd love to come." Janet had made the acquaintance of Mrs. Lockhart—the wife of a screen writer—at a beauty parlor and the two girls had often had tea together and whiled away lonely afternoons.

"Then there's Harrison Teague. He is sure to have a girl and he has been in Hollywood a long time." Teagle was the actor who had driven Joel to the studio before they came out to the little house to live.

"How about that Kellar chap?" Joel asked.

"Kellar? Oh, the man we played bridge with? No, he won't do. He's not in the picture business. But there is that couple—you know the ones I mean—we had lunch with them in the commissary the day I went to the studio with you."

"You mean Frank and Laura Crowell? I thought you didn't like her?"

"I didn't," she answered calmly. "But what has liking got to do with it? She's secretary to a big agent and he's in a producer's office. Also she told me she belonged to the Montblanc Tennis club. Yes, we must have the Crowells, by all means. Then there is that young man who met us at the train and that girl from Screen View Magazine who interviewed you on the set. Let me see, that brings the list up to ten. I wish we could get ten more."

Joel was reading a magazine. "Why not some of the kids on the set? Kathy Grace who plays opposite me and old Mr. Stanford and his wife? They've been here in Hollywood for a long time."

"Wonderful! Do you think they'd come?"

"Why not?" he asked and went back to his reading.

"I can get a butler for the afternoon and evening. The caterer will supply the food and liquor and I think a boy to play the accordion or perhaps if we could get a player who could bring along a little studio piano..."

Joel put down his magazine. "Mrs. Paynter, you're going at this in too business-like a way! What have you up your sleeve?"

"Your career, darling. We've been here two months, a third of our time, and its time we mixed around and found out what's going on. It's time we made inroads."

Joel roared with laughter. "You little fixer," he said affectionately and forgot about the whole matter. Mrs. Paynter didn't; she didn't do things by half measures.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW PICNIC

"Snowed in! That's what I am! Snowed in!"

Uncle Wiggily said this as he felt himself sinking deeper and deeper into the big drift. He had stumbled into it after leaving the grocery store of Mr. Chuck, the groundhog gentleman.

"Well," said Mr. Longears as he blew some of the white flakes from the tip of his pink, twinkling nose, "I told them this was going to be a bad storm and it is. But that doesn't help me any," he went on as he got to his feet. For he had fallen on his back when he stumbled into the big drift.

There was a hazy whiteness all around the rabbit gentleman. It was black night but the snow wasn't black, luckily, so Uncle Wiggily could see a little bit. He could see that he was really inside a snow house, formed within the drift into which he had fallen.

"Well, it isn't very cold here, that's one good thing," said Mr. Longears as he shook some snow off his fur coat. "The wind doesn't blow down here in my snow-drift house. But how am I to get out and take this basket of groceries to my bungalow?"

No Answer

That was a hard question to answer. From where he was, inside the big pile of snow, Mr. Longears couldn't tell which way to go to dig himself out.

"I don't know where to start digging," he said to himself. "If I dig with my hind paws I may only be digging myself deeper. And if I dig with my front paws I may be digging away from my bungalow instead of toward it. If I only had a light—"

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily remembered when he started for Mr. Chuck's store late that afternoon, Buster, one of the boy rabbits, had given him a flashlight that needed new batteries.

"I have Buster's flashlight now, with new batteries in it!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I can use that to see which way to dig so I can get out of this snow drift house and home. My wife and Nurse Jane and all my bunny children will be worried if I don't reach home soon."

It took Uncle Wiggily only a moment to switch on Buster's flashlight. It illuminated the snow beautifully, making it sparkle like a million diamonds. Mr. Longears, by floundering about inside the drift, had made a sort of hollow place like a small room.

"Well, this isn't so bad after all!" thought the bunny gentleman. "I can be quite comfortable here for a while. But I must start digging my way out. Let me see now, which way is home?"

Has Food, Anyway

But even that flashlight couldn't tell Uncle Wiggily that. On all sides of him, over his head and beneath his hind and front paws, was thick snow. The hole by which he had fallen into the drift had by this time closed over his head and more flakes were falling all the while. Uncle Wiggily saw the basket of food which had fellen into the snow drift house with him.

"Ha! I was forgetting that!" he laughed. "I can have a little picnic here all by myself—a snow picnic! Hurray! I'll eat first and then I can decide which way to dig to get home."

Uncle Wiggily dug a niche in one side of the snow wall to make a place where he could sit down. Then he opened the basket.

It contained many groceries, some in cans. He had no can opener but there were some carrots, lettuce and parsnips which he could eat without opening. Also a loaf of bread.

"What a jolly picnic I'll have!" said Mr. Lingears. He started to eat from the basket, sitting on the snow seat when, all of a sudden, he heard a noise; a thumping, thimping, thamping noise.

I'll tell you about it tomorrow night in the story Uncle Wiggily has company. But please don't let the roller skates put baby carriage wheels on the box of candy and take it for a ride.

SKATERS ENJOY MERRY EVENING

Successful Party Held By Lakefield Girls' Institute—Fifty Present

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 16—The Lakefield branch of the Girls' Institute held their second successful skating party of the season in the Lakefield rink on Wednesday evening.

Skating started about 8.00 p.m. and continued until 10.30 when the party, about 50 in all including members and their friends, repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Garbutt, Douro, where a delicious hot supper of scalloped potatoes and beans was served. During the evening, Robert Spence led the young folks in a number of active musical games.

At the close of the evening, Miss Irene Frankish, president of the Girls' Institute, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Garbutt on behalf of the Institute for the use of their home for the occasion. Muriel Bullock seconded the motion and the group joined in the singing of "They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Mrs. Garbutt replied.

A Valentine Party

The Women's Association of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, held a jolly Valentine party on Friday evening, in the Sunday School room, when a number of persons, old and young alike, joined in sentimental games and contests in keeping with the spirit of the Valentine season. One contest which was the source of a great amount of amusement was the composing of sentimental poems. Although none of the party claimed to be poets some of the rhymes entered in the contest were quite good and all were highly humorous provoking much hilarity from the audience.

After the games, a dainty Valentine tea was served. The tea table was attractively decorated in the seasonable Valentine colorings. Mrs. A. Davis poured tea. Mrs. T. W. Chaplin and Misses Ethel Blakely and Mary Davis were in charge of the program of games while Mrs. John Blakely and Mrs. Hugh Kidd were on the refreshment committee.

Personals

Miss Jean Blewett, who has been ill in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for some time, returned to her home on Saturday.

The Lakefield High School has entered a team in the Junior O.H.A. Campbellford and Cobourg have both entered teams in the same league. Registration will be completed on Monday, February 15, when the schedules will be drawn up.

Four rinks, representing the Ladies' and Men's Curling Clubs of Lakefield were scheduled to play the annual inter-club mixed match with the Peterborough Curling Club in Peterborough on Saturday evening, Feb. 13. The weatherman however, intervened, spoiling their plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wannamaker, Mrs. Roy Kidd and Mrs. F. Wannamaker, with her daughter, Joan, spent last week in Toronto visiting relatives and friends.

OCEAN AIR MAIL

U.S. House Group Approves Subsidy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16—(A.P.)—The United States House of Representatives Appropriations Committee approved to-day a request for funds to subsidize a trans-Atlantic air mail service, starting about November 1.

Twice-weekly round trips between New York and Southampton, England, with giant, passenger-carrying flying boats are contemplated. The British firm, Imperial Airways is scheduled to begin similar semi-weekly crossings at the same time.

COTTESLOE W.M.S. PRAISED FOR WORK

Quality Of Home-Knit Articles In Bale Receives Special Mention

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COTTESLOE, Feb. 16.—Considering the icy condition of the roads there was a good attendance of ladies for the February meeting of the W.M.S. on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. Webster.

Mrs. E. N. McDonald, the president, opened the meeting. The Bible reading was read by Mae Webster. The roll call was answered by 16 ladies.

The devotional leaflet, "Jesus, the Pioneer of Life," was read by Mrs. Lewis Freeburn. The Peace secretary, Mrs. William Forsyth, made a few remarks on her work. Mrs. Harry Patterson, delegate to the Presbyterial in Peterborough last month, gave a very thorough report of the three sessions held. One of the interesting features being the fact that the Cottesloe W.M.S. received special mention from the Supply Secretary for home knit articles in the bale. The ladies moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Patterson for her splendid report.

Mrs. McDonald gave an interesting story from the study book, the subject being "Women and Children."

The ladies received an invitation from the Warsaw ladies to meet with them on Friday afternoon for the World's Day of Prayer.

The program for the March meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Johnston Blakely was then prepared. The hostess served lunch, and a social time was spent at the close.

12 PER CENT WAGE INCREASE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(CP). — One hundred and thirty-five thousand members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America will receive a wage increase of 12 per cent. of $30,000,000 annually, under the terms of a three-year contract approved to-day by the Amalgamated and by a committee of men's furnishing manufacturers, representing 85 per cent. of the national industry, with a retail production volume of more than $1,000,000,000.

Madrilenos Cling To Torn Home

Despite the fact their home has been blown almost to bits by Gen. Franco's bombs, these Spaniards of Madrid continue to live in the damaged building. Notice the man at the LEFT describing the horror of bombing raids in pantomime.

KEENE

Mr. and Mrs. John Wood acted as host and hostess to the members and their friends of the Y.P.S. of Keene Knox Presbyterian church, on Tuesday last. Crokinole, monopoly and other games were played, followed by community singing. A vote of thanks was then tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Wood for the very enjoyable evening. Lunch was served by the hostess.

"For they are jolly good fellows" was then sung, which brought the pleasant evening to a close.

Personals.

Miss Kathleen Walsh left on Sunday evening to take up a position in the Cleveland clinic in Cleveland, Ohio.

PRAYER DAY HELD BY MADOC WOMEN

Impressive United Service Is Held In Anglican Guild Rooms

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 15. — The World Day of Prayer was observed by the women of the community on Friday (the first Friday in Lent) at 2.30 p.m. in the Anglican Guild Rooms. Members were present from St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Trinity United Church, Standard Church, Hart's Community, and St. John's Anglican Church.

The ladies were heartily welcomed by Mrs. T. L. Nickle and inspiring hymns were used, Miss Eleanor Aylesworth officiating as organist. Scripture readings were given by Mrs. Hamm in the call to worship, and Miss Ethel Adams in the responsive readings. Several of the prayers were in unison, with the special prayers being offered by Mesdames Waldon, McCaffrey, Hamm, Kennedy, and Davies.

A very bright and interesting address was given by Mrs. L. McCarey and all joined in the dedicatory prayer and the dismissal. The attendance was good, about forty being present.

Personals.

HYDRO BILLS LOWER IN ONTARIO CITIES

New Rates Are Result Of Commission's Surplus Distribution

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—(CP)—New and lower rate schedules for hydro have made their appearance for the first time on bills for December consumption issued last month in Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa and other larger Ontario municipalities.

The new rates are the result of the Ontario Hydro Commission surplus distributed some months ago in the form of rebates to the municipalities on condition that benefits would be passed on to the consumer.

In many of the smaller municipalities the rate reductions came into effect last November. In the case of larger cities and some other towns, however, the more complicated set-up delayed application of the new rates until December.

In Toronto the reductions have been restricted entirely to the commercial customers. In revising this schedule for this class an attempt has been made to benefit the smaller consumer who, it was felt, had been paying proportionately too high a rate for his power.

In the higher brackets rates have been increased slightly though not sufficiently to offset reductions in the primary rates.

Wed At 13, Wife After 30 Years Says Child Unions Are Terrible

WAS WIDOW AT FIFTEEN

SPOKANE, Wash., Feb. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Lee Blackiter—married at 13 widowed at 15, remarried at 16 and a mother at 17—yesterday termed child marriages "terrible" but added, "in many cases they are the lesser of two evils."

Middle-aged Mrs. Blackiter, who claims "30 years of wedded happiness," explained:

"If I had my life to live over, I would do just as I did—perhaps I wouldn't wait until I was 13.

"In Wise County, Texas, we lived in a two-roomed house. In addition to my parents there were seven brothers and sisters.

"There was neither peace nor harmony—only strife and poverty.

"There was no courtship to my marriage. I have little recollection of the day I was married.

"My husband died 18 months later; and that period is blank.

'I do not know who is to blame for child marriages. Surely it is not the parents or children alone. It may be ignorance, but it is terrible for human beings to be raising a family before they are out of the laps of their own parents.

"Yet it is better for the child, in many cases, to marry than live under conditions existing among many large families in the south."

Mrs. Blackiter and her second husband manufacture artificial flowers.

Ambassador?

Charges that Gen. FRANCE RUSHES GUARDS TO HER SPANISH FRONT

Ready To Block Peninsula By Land And Enforce Isolation Of Strife

DEADLINE SATURDAY

100,000 Foreigners Reported Engaged In "Little World War"

PARIS, Feb. 17.—(AP)—France rushed guards to her Spanish frontier today to blockade the peninsula by land and enforce isolation of the Spanish civil war.

As Minister of the Interior Marx Dormoy stretched his net of men across the Pyrenees to halt the increasing stream of volunteers, France heard an official estimate that approximately 100,000 foreigners were fighting in Spain's "little world war."

Additional units of the hand-picked guards were stationed at Perpignan to guard the entrance to the government-held zone.

The new concentrations sent some 500 men to reinforce more than 900 troops already on duty along the unfortified frontier.

Saturday Last Day.

Government sources said the blockade would go into force Saturday midnight by cabinet decree in accordance with the London agreement to isolate the conflict.

The ultimate goal under the Franco-British plan, they said, after the difficulties of control were overcome, was international mediation between the insurgents and the Valencia government.

Meanwhile at Perpignan, officials of the Franco-Spanish anti-Fascist committee made preparations to handle a big rush of volunteers to aid the government before the deadline.

The number of French Socialist volunteers for the first two weeks in February was set at 1,400, while at Toulouse 500 Catalan Fascists gathered to join the insurgent army based on Irun, near the frontier.

STRIKE BREAKERS TARGET OF STONES

Chatham Police Forced To Escort Workers Through Picket Lines

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP).—Strike breakers employed yesterday by Zalev Brothers of Windsor, some of whom were targets for missiles hurled by strike sympathizers as they went about the job wrecking the old factory building on William street, went through picket lines to their jobs under police escort to-day. There was no disturbance.

A large representation of the Chatham Unemployed Association, backing the strike started by 18 men who sought a 40-cent an hour minimum, gathered near the plant for picket purposes. The workers, evidently met by arrangement, and went into the grounds of the plant under escort of half a dozen officers.

Achiel Alliet, a Belgian arrested yesterday by police for throwing stones at workers, appeared in police court on a charge of intimidation. He pleaded not guilty, elected trial by jury, and his preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday. Bail was set at $500, which friends are trying to raise.

SMUGGLING DOPE COSTLY TO WOMAN

Gets Six Months In Prison, $500 Fine For Taking Drugs Into Don Jail

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Mrs. Henri Gauthier to-day was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500 when she pleaded guilty to a breach of the Narcotics Act before Magistrate William Keith. She was arrested in Timmins on Monday.

Mrs. Gauthier was accused of smuggling narcotics into Don Jail here. Sergt. Hugh Mathewson of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police told the Magistrate authorities had become suspicious of Mrs. Gauthier after a card containing drugs was received at the jail without identification on it.

Searched by a police matron, the woman was found to be in possession of a quantity of drugs, a spoon, an eye-dropper, and a hypodermic needle.

The R.S.M.P. officer testified Mrs. Gauthier had been arrested last September, but failed to put in a court appearance when remanded on $2,000 bail.

75 New Air Training Stations, More Tank Battalions Scheduled

INCREASED RECRUITING

Outlay Will Jump Taxpayer's Burden From $1.18 To $1.37 In Every $5 Earned

LONDON, Feb. 17 (CP Cable) — A full dress debate was scheduled in the House of Commons today on the vast rearmament plan announced by the government.

Labor criticism was expected over cost of the plan which an official White paper last night placed at £1,300,000,000 ($7,500,000,000) in the next five years.

The government plans sweeping improvements in all branches of the armed forces. Three battleships, seven cruisers and two aircraft carriers are to be laid down, in addition to the two battleships, seven cruisers and two aircraft carriers now being constructed under the 1936 program.

Existing battleships and cruisers are to be "modernized"—practically rebuilt. Increased army, naval and air force personnel will be obtained and two new infantry battalions raised for maintaining overseas garrisons.

Army plans also call for two new tank battalions, stimulated recruiting through a plant to make the service more attractive; acceleration of the mechanization of equipment and its modernization. The territorial will train with modern weapons.

For the air force the program outlined in the White paper calls for more than 75 new training and other stations at home and abroad and the building of shadow aircraft factories to provide aircraft in large quantities in any emergency.

More Munition Plants

Munitions factories are to be provided. New and more efficient anti aircraft guns; balloons and equipment for balloon barrages and stocks of respirators and other anti-gas equipment will be made available.

The White paper said it would be imprudent to contemplate total defence expenditure for the next five years at much less than £1,500,000,000.

The navy had to be built up because a considerable number of ships were overage and for many years no new craft of certain types were built.

"Deeply as we deplore the necessity for this vast expenditure upon armaments and other defensive measures," the official document said, "His Majesty's government are convinced that it must be undertaken.

Tax Burden Climbs

Financial observers estimated the increased burden on the British taxpayer would average a step-up in the income tax rate to $1.37 in every $5 of income. The average rate now is $1.18 to $5.

The White Paper disclosed perhaps more drastic provisions for the standing army than any other of the services.

As the first step towards complete mechanization—one of the most ambitious conversion programs ever undertaken by any power—it was estimated 20,000 Tommies will abandon their rifles to shoulder new light-weight types of machine guns, anti-tank guns and trench mortars.

PAROLE SYSTEM FARCE TO CONVICTS TIM BUCK CLAIMS

Believe Political Pressure, Pull Or Money Things That Gain Freedom

TELLS OF POLICE HOUNDING

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Tim Buck, Toronto Communist Leader, told the Archambault Royal Commission to-day that he was refused permission to subscribe to Hansard during his term in Kingston Penitentiary on the grounds "there were too many radical speeches in it."

Buck said when he and seven other Communists entered Kingston to start terms, they were denied the privilege of buying books. But it was General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of Federal Penitentiaries, who told Buck he could not subscribe to Hansard, official record of parliamentary debates.

Neither could he purchase a biography of Sir Wilfrid Laurier nor subscribe to the Labor Gazette, the Communist Leader said. He added that Red Ryan, notorious bank robber who later was paroled and last year was killed in an attempted hold-up at Sarnia, Ont., had a copy of "20,000 Years in Sing-Sing."

The prison problem must be approached and solved from the outside, from the viewpoint of society as a whole," Buck told the Commission. As long as petty criminals were sent to prisons and emerged as "big shot" criminals, the system was at fault.

Pathetic Sight.

"It is pathetic to watch the change in youngsters after they reach the Penitentiary," he said, relating the case of one boy who arrived at Kingston full of enthusiasm for leaving reformed. "Undoubtedly he will leave Kingston with a sense of futility," Buck commented.

Suicide Club Sails Tokyo Bay Jap Police In Frantic Pursuit

Four Companions Nabbed On Street As They Stab Selves In Hara-Kiri

ALL IN PROMINENT SPOTS

TOKYO, Feb. 17 (AP).—Eight men and women, members of a fanatical Japanese Suicide League, sailed toward death in Tokyo Bay today with a frantic police searching party on their trail.

Five of their comrades in the "Let's Die League" were being treated forcibly in Tokyo hospitals after attempting hara-kiri (death by disembowelment) in an effort to "purify" the powerful Nichiren Proletarian Buddhist sect.

Vigilant police disrupted the attempts of four would-be suicides as they kneeled before public buildings and plunged daggers into their abdomens. All were seized and hurried to hospitals before they succeeded in slashing themselves fatally, police said.

A fifth league member, slightly wounded, was discovered hiding in a washroom on the third floor of the home ministry.

The public hara-kiri attempts occurred before the Metropolitan Police headquarters, the Foreign Minister's official residence, before the Diet building and the main entrance to Emperor Hirochito's palace.

'Plane Rushes Sick Girl 300 Miles To Hospital

With their passenger, eight-year-old Jane Cumming of Haileybury, suffering, it is feared, from spinal meningitis, strapped to an aluminum stretcher, a pilot, doctor and nurse made an emergency flight from Haileybury, Ont., to Toronto, a distance of almost 300 miles, to bring the child to medical aid. Midway in the flight the aeroplane landed and changed from skis to wheels. In the UPPER LEFT is shown the special ambulance aeroplane. In the LOWER LEFT is pictured the scene at Toronto airport as the young girl on the stretcher was removed from the aeroplane and rushed to hospital. At the RIGHT is D. F. MacDonald, well known northern flier, who piloted the machine.

A STRONG BRITAIN WORLD'S GREATEST PEACE BULWARK

House Is Stunned By Size Of Defence Outlay—May Be Increased Chamberlain Hints

"MUST BE PREPARED"

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb 17.—(CP Cable.)—"We can do nothing but set our teeth and go forward."

Thus in grim determination, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, moved in the House of Commons this afternoon a financial resolution to empower the Government to raise defence loans of £400,000,000 ($2,000,000,000) during the next five years.

It was the opening speech of two days of debate on the greatest scheme of rearmament Britain has ever known in peace time.

The crowded House listened intently, still somewhat stunned the immensity of the expenditures involved.

"The strength we are now rapidly gaining from day to day and from week to week is in itself a steadying factor in international affairs. It is probably the greatest bulwark for peace in the world to-day," said Chamberlain.

Program Essential to Safety.

The Government, being convinced the great defence program was essential to the safety of Britain and a major factor in the safety of other nations, could not shrink from it. No one could regard the growing armaments throughout the world without feelings of disgust and shame that civilization was preferring to break its own back instead of trying to settle differences by give and take and turning arms expenditure to pursuits which might bring prosperity and contentment to all. Britain, with vast responsibilities in all parts of the world, could not in such circumstances neglect measures of defence.

"We must provide forces which are capable of being dispatched wherever they may be required," he declared. "We cannot afford to allow our fighting forces to go into the field to meet others better armed than themselves."

The figure of £1,500,000,000 ($7,500,000,000) was not to be regarded as either final or certain. If anything happened to enable it to be slowed down, Chamberlain assured the House, "we shall be glad enough to do it."

"On the other hand," he added, "if events are changed again, as they were changed before, we may find that even £1,500,000,000 does not represent the total sum which may be required."

37,000,000 STARVING

Ships And Trains Rushing Food To Starving Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17 (CP).—Government-chartered ships and trains rushed to Kwangtung province in southern China today, carrying rice to feed 37,000,000 starving people whose crops failed in 1936. Officials at Canton, capital of Kwangtung, reported severe drought during the growing season had resulted in almost total destruction of the rice crop which forms 75 per cent of the total diet of the native population. Rioting broke out when hungry families moved from their farms to cities in the area.

2,000 NATIVES DROWNED.

CAPE TOWN.—More than 2,000 Mozambique natives of Portuguese East Africa, were estimated to-day to have been drowned when the Komati and Umbuluzi rivers overflowed after five days of torrential rain.

New York, Feb. 17 (CP)

TRIPLET deer from Nova Scotia, raised by a forest ranger after they were found on Cape Breton Island last June, arrived here to-day to form part of the province's exhibit at the National Sportsman's show.

Two fishermen, Ned Samson and Arthur Landy, found the one-day-old deer lying on a Cape Breton beach. Nearby was their mother who apparently had been chased by a wild animal and was nearly drowned. The doe failed to recover and Forest Ranger Arthur D. Samson of Arichat took charge of the triplets.

MOTORSHIP SINKS COLUMBIA RIVER

Freighter In Collision With Italian Craft Grounds On Island

PORTLAND, Ore. Feb. 17 (AP).—The Italian motorship Peltre and the American freighter Edward Luckenbach collided in a gale on the Columbia River early today, the Peltre sinking up to her promenade deck and the Luckenbach grounding on lonely Cottonwood Island.

All hands were saved on both vessels. The Edward Luckenbach had a crew of 38 and the Peltre had about 26. Neither boat was reported to have carried any passengers.

Crashing as one of the worst storms swept the mouth of the Columbia River with winds howling up to a velocity of 45-55 miles an hour, the two ships came together about 40 miles down the Columbia from Portland.

The Luckenbach's bow was reported stove in. She beached on an island.

The crash occurred as the tug Warrior was towing the Peltre. The Warrior stood by to render aid to the Peltre's crew and the coast guard cutter Onondaga was dispatched from Astoria, Ore.

Visibility was poor. Reports at Astoria, some 80 miles farther down the river, said the storm blowing there was "by far" the worst of the winter and conditions were described as terrible.

SEATTLE, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Coastguard Division headquarters here said the Italian motorship Peltre sank in the Columbia River to-day after being rammed by the freighter Edward Luckenbach, which grounded on Cottonwood Island, 40 miles north of Portland, Ore.

The coastguard cutter Onondaga, dispatched from Astoria when word of the Luckenbach's grounding was received, radioed that no one was believed to have drowned.

The Edward Luckenbach carried a crew of 38 and no passengers. The Peltre had a crew of about 25 with quarters for about 20 passengers, although none were believed to be aboard.

The Marine Exchange at San Francisco said the Peltre sailed from Astoria on February 14. It is a 3,773 net ton craft, operated by the Libera Line. Its home port is Venice.

British Destroyers Have Guns Turrets Painted to Avoid Mistakes

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(C.P.-Havas).—The destroyers Pansy, Fearless and Foresight to-day left Plymouth, where they were overhauled, to rejoin the Mediterranean Fleet. Their gun-turrents have been painted red, white and blue so they may be identified by Spanish insurgent and government airplanes and escape bombardment while in Spanish territorial waters.

TRAFFIC VIOLATOR TANGLES UP COURT FOR SEVEN HOURS

Refuses To Pay Fines On Any Of 14 Summons He Had Ignored Dating Back To 1934

EVEN LAWYER QUITS

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—(CP). — Harry Greenspan, Brooklyn cosmetics dealer, was held in $700 bail and his wife, Gertrude, in $500 bail to-day after a seven-hour traffic court hearing which got nowhere despite the presence of 14 policemen as witnesses.

Each of the police had tagged the Greenspan car for a minor traffic violation some time during 1934, but their summonses always had been ignored until yesterday, when a warrant officer served Mrs. Greenspan at her home.

But not even the imposing array of traffic officers or the best blandishments of Magistrate Anthony Burke could extract a confession of defeat from the Greenspans.

The Magistrate, his patience more frayed each hour, finally offered to make a flat rate of $3 a tag if one of the Greenspans would pay up and clear the court.

Mrs. Greenspan was willing to put up $22 toward this offer, but Greenspan refused to contribute a cent. Their lawyer, Joseph Goldstein, even offered to chip in $10.

At the end of the seventh hour Magistrate Burke's patience cracked. He ordered the Greenspans held in bail and said he was "heartily disgusted with the whole matter."

The Greenspans did not furnish the bail and as they disappeared toward the detention pen, their lawyer shouted: "Don't call me up when this case comes up again."

No Relation, Born In 2 Nations Detroit Girls Are Identicals

Happens Once In 40,000,000 Births Says Hospital Clinic Directors

PAIR ARE BOSOM PALS

DETROIT, Feb. 17 — (C.P.). — Pauline Taylor and Pauline Taylor, 16-year-old student "twins" at Southwestern High School here, look alike, act alike, dress alike but are not related. They were both born September 22, 1920, two hours apart; one in Canada and one in the United States, and are bosom pals.

"It happens once in 40,000,000 births," Dr. Martin Hoffman, Detroit hospital clinic director, said.

"It's just a grand coincidence," the Taylor "twins," who are almost inseparable, beamed. They have the same color hair—red—, are the same height, weigh the same and prefer the same foods.

They were attracted to each other when they first met three years ago and the question of distinguishing names arose.

"I'll call you 'Neene'," said Pauline Taylor, native of St. Catharines, Ont.

"I'll call you 'Paulyann'," said Pauline Taylor, native of St. Ignace, Mich.

Both play the piano and are accomplished swimmers. When it comes to clothes the girls prefer brown and blue, and occasionally a yellow dress to offset their auburn hair dressed in Iroquois style.

One Radio Alibi The Judge Believed

West Orange, N.J., Feb. 17 (UP)

"IT was this way, your Honor. I had my radio going and was listening to a crime broadcast and I thought the siren I heard blowing was being used in that broadcast," John Finnegan said today when arraigned on a charge of failing to stop when he was chased by a police car with siren going. Judge Norman L. Brundage dismissed the charge.

Cat Uses Mail Bag For Her Wanders

Edmonton, Feb. 17 (CP)

A cat jumped from a mail bag when mail from Calgary was opened in the Postoffice here today. She was somewhat dazed, but little the worse for wear, after her 200-mile trip. Pussy apparently fell into the bag at Calgary.

OUTSIDE GUARDS GIVEN SHOT GUNS AT GUELPH PRISON

Picket Uncertain How Good His Aim Is When Judge Inquires

COMMISSION ON TOUR

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP)—Outside guards have been provided with shotguns since the January 17 riot at the Guelph reformatory, the inquiry found today when the commission toured the grounds and industries.

"Are you a good shot?" Judge James Madden asked the guard on picket duty.

"I don't know, I used to be," he replied. "The gun is accurate up to only about 75 feet, after that it scatters."

The guard said he had had the gun since the riot. It is a 12-gauge, six-shot pump gun.

Prior to the riot the only weapons in the reformatory were two old revolvers left by former officers. There was no ammunition for them. The inquiry had asked guards their opinions as to effectiveness of having tear gas and guns available in the event of a disturbance among prisoners, but it had taken no action. Inside guards and those supervising gangs are unarmed.

The commission watched prisoners working in the woollen mill, tailor and machine shops. They watched them spinning yarn, making springs for their own beds, mattresses for use in other government institutions, and repairs to the grille gate rioters had damaged.

Board Of Works Asks Council To Take Stand In Opposition To Bill

Resolution Is Passed Recommending Council To Oppose Bill

QUERY COMPANIES

Alderman Gordon Receives Reply From Deputy-Minister Of Municipal Affairs

Opposition to Alderman G. N. Gordon's private bill of various clauses, for which he has already applied to the Legislature, was initiated by the Board of Works, Tuesday night in the following resolution by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman Stocker:

That this committee recommends the Council to oppose the private bill entered by a ratepayer of the city of Peterborough for consideration at the present session of the Ontario Legislature, on the well-considered ground that the effect of this private bill, if granted, firstly, would be contrary to the will of the people as expressed in a vote on January 1, 1933, of the qualified ratepayers of the city; secondly, contrary to the planned economic welfare of the municipality and its citizens; thirdly, contrary to the established form of municipal government of the city of Peterborough, which has proved, by the very financial soundness of the city and its continued progress through the trial of years, the excellence of this form of municipal government.

Opening of Street

Reference to the Gordon bill reached the Board of Work through a clause which proposes the opening of a street extending north and south from King street to Brock street, between George and Aylmer streets.

Members said that this idea had been mentioned from time to time for years, but none of the councils had considered it a necessary undertaking.

"Alderman Gordon has included it in his private bill, and if it passes this clause could be put into effect any time in the future," Mayor Macdonald said.

Alderman Dutton said he did not consider it in the best interests of the city to proceed with it and Alderman Glover moved the resolution which Alderman Stocker seconded.

"This resolution has reference to the form of electing the members of the Council, the Board of Education, the Utilities Commission, and the City Trust Commission," Ald. Glover explained, "also to the fixed assessments of the Raybestos and De Laval Companies and the contract with the C.G.E. company for the rental of the waterworks dam."

"We don't need Alderman Gordon to ask for a private bill," Alderman Hamilton remarked. "We can ask for one ourselves if we feel that we need it."

Mayor Macdonald said the opening of the proposed street probably would not be needed for the next fifty years.

Alderman Wilson: Have the De Laval and Raybestos companies given us a statement as to whether

BROCKVILLE ARENA DESTROYED BY FIRE

Damage Set At Approximately $30,000 — Cause Unknown

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 17.—(C.P.)—The Brockville hockey arena was destroyed by fire early to-day. Origin of the blaze has not been determined. In the rink was the equipment of the Junior Magedomas, a team now engaged in the district playdowns.

The building, of frame construction, was erected in 1914. Damage was estimated at $30,000 with some insurance carried.

The fire had a good start before the local brigade was summoned, and hard work on the part of the firemen prevented the spread of the blaze to oil tanks, situated a short distance from the rear of the building.

BAIL REFUSED CHINESE

Toronto Chinese Charged With Illegal Possession Of Drugs.

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (CP)—Appearing before Magistrate Robert Browne yesterday to face a charge of illegal possession of narcotic drugs, Jung Jack, Chinese, was remanded for trial February 19 and refused bail.

Hayden told Magistrate Browne he was at a loss to understand how drugs valued at more than $1,000 seized by police got into the country.

WHOLE SYSTEM CANADA'S TAXES TO BE PROBED

Premier King Announces Royal Commission Will Handle Inquiry

SPLIT BURDENS MORE EVEN

Bennett Protests Aid To Sister Provinces Discrimination Against Alberta

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—A Royal Commission to inquire into the whole system of taxation in the Dominion was announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday. In the meantime the supplementary estimates will make provision for the Dominion to assist Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The statement by the Prime Minister was made when he tabled the report of the Bank of Canada on the financial position of Manitoba. The bank made the examination of the finances of Manitoba and Saskatchewan at the request of the premiers of those two provinces and Finance Minister Dunning. The report on Saskatchewan was not yet available.

The commission would study the division of financial powers and financial responsibilities between the Dominion and the Provinces, Mr. King said, and make recommendations as to what should be done to secure a more equitable and practical division of the burden to enable all governments to function more effectively and, "I may add, more independently within the spheres of their respective jurisdictions."

The Prime Minister told the House of efforts made by the two provinces to meet their obligations. So far they had been able to do so but the government had been advised it would be impossible to continue to meet their present burdens.

Bennett Protests.

The Prime Minister's announcement brought Conservative Leader Bennett to his feet.

"As a citizen of Alberta," he said, "I protest with all my might against this discrimination.

"I protest that the Minister of Finance permitted that province to default and did not advance it the necessary money shortly after the present provincial administration came into office, whereas he now accords Manitoba and Saskatchewan that assistance which will save them from the course which it was necessary for the Province of Alberta to follow."

The Government had no intention of discriminating against any province, Finance Minister Dunning replied. On no occasion had there been any effort by Manitoba or Saskatchewan to coerce the Dominion Government. They had acted frankly throughout and had requested the Bank of Canada to verify their statement of their financial position.

No approach had been made by the Province of Alberta along similar lines, Mr. Dunning said.

HAVELOCK

The Havelock Junior Institute's "At Home," popular yearly event of the Valentine season, was again greeted by a splendid attendance in the Town Hall auditorium last Friday evening. Music was provided by Jack Denmark and his "Aces" of Bellevile. Mrs. D. Mitchell, of Campbellford, won the "lucky Valentine" prize, and Miss Lois Scott of town won the "lucky spot" dance. Refreshments were served at the midnight hour.

Miss Lorraine Paige has returned to her home, after being confined to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for a few days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sayers have returned from their trip to the southern part of the United States and have taken up residence on Mathison Street.

Mrs. John Armstrong is in Toronto visiting Mrs. Claude Hawley.

Miss Vaughn Brown, of Trent River, spent the week-end with Miss Marjorie Quinn.

Mr. William Rose, of Toronto, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. W. Rose.

Misses Barbara Fennell and Winnifred Chiles were in Campbellford Saturday, visiting the former's aunt, Mrs. Fred Woods.

Mr. Ray Moir, of Victoria, spent the week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Roberts.

Miss Beryl Russell, of Toronto, was the guest of Miss Marguerite Clarke, over the week-end.

Miss Bessie Roberts of Rawdon spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Roberts.

DEER DAMAGE CAR

Six Jump Over Fence Into Path of Machine

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 16—(C.P.)—An automobile with damaged headlight and fenders was exhibited today by Charles Wareham of Sarnia as evidence of a collision with six deer on Highway Seven near Sylvan last night. Sylvan is between Arkon and Parkhill.

Mr. Wareham said he was returning to his home from Parkhill when the animals jumped over a fence and ditch and crashed into his car before he could stop the vehicle.

Several of the deer were injured and one was believed dead, but when motorists approached and stroked the animal it arose and started away but became entangled in a wire fence. Mr. Wareham released it.

MACHINES TAMPERED WITH

Seized Slot Machines Are Said to Have Been Tampered With.

DRESDEN, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP).—Slot machines, seized in recent raids here and held as exhibits in police court cases to be heard Friday, were tampered with Monday while stored in the town lock-up. Certain of their contents, believed to be money and slugs, were taken.

Police were reluctant to discuss the robbery, which became known when Provincial Police removed the machines from the lock-up here and took them to Chatham for safe keeping.

Japs Send Hitler Full-Dress Outfit

Tokio, Feb. 17 (AP)

TO celebrate the conclusion of the anti-Communist treaty between Japan and Germany the Silk Association of the Town of Chichibu, northwest of Tokio, yesterday presented Chancellor Hitler with a set of Japanese full-dress clothes.

The donors, who delivered the gift to the German Embassy here, remarked that the Chancellor now could compete with his ranking aide, Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, in spectacular uniforms.

The costume consisted of a formal Japanese skirt, or hakama, a jacket, or haori, and wooden sandals, or zori. The jacket carried swastikas, where Japanese usually wear their family crests.

DEATH CLAIMED SIR R. P. ROBLIN

Former Premier Of Manitoba Dies Suddenly In Hot Springs, Ark.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.—(CP)— Sir Rodmond P. Roblin, K.C.M.G., Conservative Premier of Manitoba from 1900 to 1915, died last night in Hot Springs, Ark., it was learned here. He had recently observed his eighty-fifth birthday.

Born at Sophiasburg, Prince Edward County, Ont., of United Empire Loyalist and Dutch parentage on February 15, 1853, he was early fitted for public life. Two of his uncles, John P. Roblin and David Roblin, were members of the old Legislature of Upper Canada.

He was educated in Sophiasburg public schools and Albert College, Belleville, graduating with honors. Reports of the settlement of the West fired his imagination and he set out for Carman, Man., in 1880, where he became a successful farmer.

Crossed House Floor.

In 1889 he accepted the Liberal nomination for Dufferin Provincial constituency to succeed the retiring Dr. J. Wilson and was elected in a by-election in March of that year. Five months later, however, he crossed the floor of the House to the Conservative Opposition side when he became dissatisfied with the railway and trade policy of the Government of Premier Thomas Greenway (Liberal). He was elected Conservative Party Leader in 1889 and held that office ten years.

When Sir Rodmond retired as Conservative Leader he was succeeded by Hon. Hugh John Macdonald, son of a former Premier of Canada, under whom the Conservatives were returned to power in the general elections of 1899. A year later Mr. Macdonald resigned to enter the Dominion arena and Sir Rodmond was elected in Woodlands riding and named Premier.

MILLBROOK

TO ERECT WARNING ON DANGEROUS HILL

Millbrook Women's Institute Notified That Sign Will Be Put Up

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb 17—The regular meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Centre street, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. R. J. McKnight, president, occupied the chair. Mrs. G. O. Fallis, secretary, read communications from the Canadian Association requesting the aid of the W. I. in the passing of a bylaw to prohibit the use of steel traps for the protection of fur-bearing animals, and a letter from the Counties' Road office stating that Mr. L. H. Gibson, road foreman, had been asked to erect a temporary danger sign at the top of Allan's Hill, east of the village, to warn motorists of the steep incline. A permanent sign will be placed there in the spring months. Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, treasurer, reported an expenditure of $11.00 during the past month. Receipts totalled $2.00.

Mrs. T. Aiken and Mrs. A. Sutton were appointed a Sunshine committee for the next quarter and Mrs. Melville Ball was elected silverware convener. Plans were made for a quilting bee to be held in the immediate future to be held at the home of Mrs. J. McBride.

Memorial Service

A brief memorial service was conducted by the president and observed in honor of the late Miss Ella Grandy, a valued member of the society for many years, whose sudden passing is deeply mourned by the many members. Miss Grandy was a former president for a number of years and also carried out the duties of treasurer for a period.

Enjoyable Program

A splendid paper on the "Origin of St. Valentine's Day" was read by Mrs. E. C. Richards and "Dorothy's Definitions" was presented by Mrs. G. O. Fallis. Mrs. J. R. Eakins also contributed to the program with splendid readings. Interesting contests were also enjoyed and singing of the National Anthem dispersed the gathering. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Thorndyke.

W. FRASER THINKS DEFENCE FIGURES ARE FAR TOO LOW

House Laughs As He Airs Views After Stating Mackenzie Had Covered All To Be Said

LIBERALS WIDELY SPLIT

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—(CP)—After two days debate on defence, war preparations and the danger or lack of danger of Canada being involved in war, the House of Commons today turns to more peaceful topics. Private member's day intervenes to call a halt to the full-dress debate on increased estimates for national defence and the House will hear Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East), urge national scholarships, or T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto-Broadview) advocate constitutional reform.

The defence debate was started by members of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation but was waged chiefly between members of the Liberal party, of whom some believed the defence estimates proper, some were frankly opposed, some doubtful and one considered them too modest.

W. A. Fraser (Lib. Northumberland) started his remarks by saying the defence minister had said Monday night all there was to be said on the subject. As Mr. Fraser then proceeded, the House enjoyed a gentle laugh.

Canada's position today was not even comparable to its position in 1914. Now, Canada was an independent nation in a commonwealth of nations, and Britain had all it could do to protect its own shores. It was the duty of Canada to provide for her own shores. It was the duty of Canada to provide for her own defence.

"No longer can we maintain an assinine colonial aspect regarding foreign affairs but we've got to protect ourselves," he said.

Far Too Small

The estimates brought in by the minister were "absolutely inadequate," he contended.

Instead of $36,000,000 the estimates should have been at least $75,000,000 to bring military equipment up to the standard required by knowledge of the arms development throughout the world, he urged.

Chief opposition from within the Liberal party came from J. T. Thorson of Selkirk and Charles Parent of Quebec West and South. Both regarded the increased expenditure on defence as unwarranted by any peril presently threatening Canada and as the beginning of warlike preparations which would cost Canada untold millions and might lead the country into war.

FLEETWOOD

GOOD YEAR SHOWN BY UNITED CHURCH

Fleetwood Congregation Elects Their Officers At Annual Business Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FLEETWOOD, Feb. 17—On Monday evening the annual business meeting of the people of Fleetwood United Church was held following a six o'clock pot luck dinner in the church.

Two long tables were arranged in parallel form in the centre of the building and arrayed with snowy covers upon which were placed a wide variety of good things to eat. About forty of those connected with the church sat down to dinner with the pastor, Rev. C. H. Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson seated at the head of the completely filled table. When all had partaken of the bounteous repast, the side seats were occupied and the program proceeded with Rev. Mr. Ferguson in charge. The introductory number was a jolly sing-song with Mrs. Ferguson at the organ and Mr. Ferguson leading in song, first among which was "The more we get together the happier we'll be."

Miss Hazel Jackson of Bethany was present and rendered a beautiful solo "For those were the good old days," which received a hearty encore.

The minutes of the last annual congregational meeting held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Finney were read by the secretary, Mr. Victor Grandy and by motion of Messrs. J. Hart and A. Finney were adopted.

Rev. Mr. Ferguson

The pastor then spoke a few words paying worthy tribute to his predecessor Rev. R. Paton who leaving in the middle of the church year left the work in such excellent shape for him to carry on. He also voiced deep appreciation of the kind way in which he and Mrs. Ferguson had been received into the homes and lives of the people. Thanks was given to various departments of church work for their worthy and successful assistance.

Reference was made to highlights in the church life during the past term, particularly the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the church held last autumn.

Since Mr. Ferguson took up his work on this charge he has visited forty-seven homes in connection with the Fleetwood appointment.

Reports Received

The various church reports were received. Mrs. T. E. Shea reported for the Women's Association and on motion of herself and Mrs. Armitage they were adopted.

Mr. Ted Welsh reported for the young people which report was adopted on motion of the reporter and Bill Ridout.

Mr. Clare Staples reported for the Sunday School with Mr. Jake Hart seconding his motion of adoption.

The pastor gave from memory a brief report of the missionary and maintenance work.

The treasurer for the stewards. Mr. Grandy gave his report which was adopted by motion of himself and Mr. Hart. The election of officers then took place with the following results: Stewards, Messrs. J. L. Hart, T. V. Grandy, Clare Staples, Wm. McCullough, T. E. Shea, L. McKinley. These were appointed by motion of Messrs. Chris Cummiskey and A. Finney.

Missionary and maintenance committee: Messrs. Wm. McCullough and T. E. Shea appointed by Messrs. Cummiskey and Hart.

Ushers: Messrs. Ed. Staples, Cairns Lee, Clare Staples and J. Armitage, appointed by Messrs. Cummiskey and T. Welsh.

Organist: Mrs. Cummiskey; assistant, Mrs. Finney. Appointed by motion of Mr. Hart and Mrs. Shea.

At the conclusion of this session community singing was again enjoyed.

A delightful duet was sung by Miss Hazel Jackson and Rev. C. Ferguson, with Mrs. Ferguson accompanying on the organ.

LAKEFIELD

CARD PARTY HELD IN ORANGE HALL

Enjoyable Affair Is Arranged In Aid Of Building Fund

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17.—Six tables of euchre were played at the card party held on Thursday evening in the Orange Hall under the joint auspices of the L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. in aid of their building fund.

The prizes were won as follows: ladies' first prize, Mrs. John Blakely; ladies' second prize, Mrs. Wilfred Nichols; gentlemen's first prize, Mr. Fred Darling; gentlemen's second prize, Mr. Hadwin; consolation prize, Mrs. Theodore Nichols.

During the evening, tickets were sold on a cushion donated by Mrs. Stanley Higgins. Mr. Theodore Nichols was the lucky winner of the cushion.

Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Mesdames Roy Bullock, Wesley Sargent and Theodore Nichols, and Messrs. Gordon Scriver, Wesley Sargent and Aubrey Blakely.

Plan Supper

Group "D" of the Women's Association of Lakefield United Church are planning a bean supper to be held on Wednesday evening, March 17th in the Sunday School room of the church between the hours of 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. Miss N. Webster is in charge of Group "D".

Mrs. J. E. Dixon of Otonabee is visiting with her sister, Mrs. John Blakely of Lakefield.

VALENTINE PARTY BY HAVELOCK Y.P.S.

Members Enjoy Skate First—A.Y.P.A. Holds Pot Luck Supper

HAVELOCK, Feb. 17.—The combined skating party and Valentine party sponsored by the Young People's Society of the United church, proved very successful, over one hundred of Havelock's young folk turning out to enjoy the festivities.

After over an hour of skating at the town rink, everyone returned to the church basement where refreshments were served cafeteria style. Partners were chosen for the evening by matching broken hearts.

Interesting feature of the program was the introduction of a new game called "blow-ball." Several other group games and two contests were also much enjoyed.

Pot Luck Supper.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church held a pot luck supper and Valentine party Monday evening with over forty young people including several guests, in attendance.

Supper commenced at 6.30 o'clock, followed by community singing and a short business period. Arrangements were discussed for the coming fish and chip supper to be held on Friday, February 26th. It was also decided to hold a "Missionary night" next Monday and if possible to have a speaker for the evening.

Highlight of the evning was the opening of the Valentine box, from which Miss Marjory Leng brought forth cards of every description for everyone present.

LINDSAY

$4,000 IS CLAIMED FOR INJURED EYE

Ops School Section Is Sued Following Accident To Girl

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 17.—An unusual and interesting case was heard before Hon. Mr. Justice Chevrier, of Ottawa, in the supreme court here, when Mr. Harold Gilson sued the school section No. 2 Ops for $4,000 damages as a result of an injury to the eye sustained by his seven-year-old daughter, Shirley Gilson.

Shirley was in the library of the school practising for a Red Cross play and while looking upwards a piece of glass became dislodged from the window and pierced the eye ball. Testimony was given that 95 percent of the vision of the eye was impaired. Testimony also showed that the broken pane of glass had been in that condition for six years.

Case was adjourned at 6 o'clock. Mr. I. E. Weldon, K.C., Toronto, for the plaintiff, J. E. Anderson, K.C., Lindsay, for the defendants.

URGES ABOLITION OF DIRECT RELIEF IN NORTH ONTARIO

J. A. Habel Of Cochrane Claims System Is Sapping People's Morale

ONTARIO HOUSE RESUMES

TORONTO, Feb. 17 (CP).—The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne moved and seconded, the Ontario Legislature members today prepared to consider Government measures and to launch debate on the Throne speech. Members convened yesterday after two weeks' adjournment with a Western Ontario and a northern member moving and seconding the address.

During the fortnight adjournment Premier Mitchell Hepburn journeyed to Arizona to recuperate from a bronchial ailment that prevented him from attending the House's initial sessions. He received a prolonged welcome when he took his seat yesterday.

A plea for Provincial action toward conservation of Grand River Valley water resources was made by M. M. MacBride (Lib., Brantford) as he moved the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. J. A. Habel (Lib., Cochrane North), the seconder, urged abolition of direct relief in Northern Ontario, claiming it sapped the people's morale.

The Grand River was a vital factor in the industrial and agricultural life of several counties and in the health of their people, Mr. MacBride said. He urged the province to undertake the study of the construction of dams, not only to conserve water but to prevent floods.

New Credit Strength.

"To save Hydro from being wrecked," the government had revised the Quebec power contracts, said Mr. MacBride. In so doing it brought new strength to Ontario's credit by freeing it from the burden of impossible obligations. There was nothing extraordinary about the contracts being declared null and then rewritten, said Mr. MacBride.

"The government deserves more praise for nullifying these contracts, perhaps, than for anything else it has done," he said.

Members of the legislature should visit the Ottawa River Valley to see the potential power sources available there. He said it was foresight on the government's part that an option for purchase of the Ottawa Valley Power Company's Chats Falls plant was included in the revised agreement between the company and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

It has reached the time said Mr. MacBride, when Ontario should tell the Federal government unemployment relief is a federal responsibility. The federal premier and the leader of the opposition both laid the relief problem to world condi-

COMMISSION ABOLISHED

Windsor City Council Abolishes Its Housing Commission.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 17.—(CP).—Windsor Housing Commission was abolished by City Council under a by-law passed at the regular meeting last night and the Commission work will pass to Board of Control and a representative of the Council Property committee. Council decided. One of the first jobs of the new Commission will be re-writing of contracts for nearly 500 Commission properties and 140 contracts for re-possessed properties.

FOR BETTER CONTROL OF COLDS IN YOUR HOME

Take These Two Simple Steps

1. To Help PREVENT Many Colds—Live normally—avoid excesses. Get plenty of fresh air, rest, and sleep. Eat light, wholesome food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular.

Watch yourself and your family after any exposure likely to be followed by a cold. Then—at the first sniffle or sneeze or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick! put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, it helps to prevent many colds or to throw off head-colds in their early stages.

2. To RELIEVE a Cold Sooner—If a cold strikes without warning or gets by even the best precautions—as some colds always will—go straight to bed. Eat lightly and drink plenty of water and fruit juices. For prompt relief, use this vigorous treatment with your dependable Vicks VapoRub.

Massage it briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-vapor action continues for hours to loosen phlegm, ease coughing, and help break up local congestion.

LIFFORD LINE

NOVEL CONTESTS FEATURE PARTY

Mr. And Mrs. Mulligan Entertain At Enjoyable Euchre Party

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LIFFORD LINE, Feb 17—On Friday evening Mr and Mrs. Gervin Mulligan and sons entertained about thirty of their neighbouring friends at a jolly progressive euchre party. Seven tables were occupied for a series of thirteen games at the conclusion of which scores were counted. Mrs. A. B. Sisson with the high total won an appropriate ladies' prize while Offa Staples, who held the high total for gentlemen, received a handsom' smoker's set. Consolation prizes were received by Mrs. J. Henderson and Larry McCullen. In view of the proximity to Feb. 14, the Valentine theme was introduced in a novel manner. Red and white hearts with appropriate Valentine verses were attached to long red cords and held by the ladies. The gentlemen untangled the cords, and took as partner the lady who held his heart for an enjoyable contest. The winners in this contest were Mrs. A. B. Sisson and Robert Sisson, who were the recipients of pretty prize awards suggestive of St. Valentine's Day.

A peanut hunt was then engaegd in by all present with C. E. Staples collecting the largest number of peanuts and receiving a Valentine. At midnight the hostess' family assisted by Mrs. W. A. Neals and Marguerite served a dainty luncheon and a jolly hour of social conversation followed.

Among those present were, Miss. E. Lathange, Mr. Ed. Lathange, Mr. and Mrs. John Henderson, Earl Lathangue, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Preston, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Staples and son, Lawrence, Thomas and Offa Staples, Archie Wilson, Larry McCullen, George Tims, Mr. and Mrs. Gibson Lowery, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Neals and family, Mr. Harry Neals and son, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson and family.

NO TRACE FOUND OF MISSING MAN

Inmate Of House Of Refuge Is Feared To Have Drowned

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 17. — After a thorough search in the district for the past fortnight, no information has been received regarding the whereabouts of the aged man named McFadyen, an inmate of the House of Refuge, who mysteriously disappeared. The whole countryside has been combed for the missing man, and it is now feared that he may have gone to the river and fallen through an opening in the ice. Inquiries are still being made but all hope of his being found alive has been abandoned.

S. A. Lodge, a local young man, has been appointed uptown agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Lindsay.

MRS. BLACK TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Tells Of Mission Work Done By Dr. And Mrs. Goforth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17.—An address by Mrs. B. Simpson Black formed a very interesting portion of the program of the St. Andrew's Young People's Society at their meeting held on Monday night. The missionary work done in China by Dr. and Mrs. Goforth was the subject of Mrs. Black's address which dealt particularly with the work being done in Manchuria. The meeting opened with the reading of the scripture by Aylmer Haig following which the Missionary convenor, Douglas Watson took charge of the program. A vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Reynolds and a violin solo by Jack Bell made up the balance of the program. Frank Roe, the president occupied the chair.

Injured Hunter Lives Over Month In Cave

Santa Maria, Calif., Feb. 17.

CHARLES Tank, a mountain lion hunter, gave today a stirring account of confinement in a snowbound cave for more than a month with his hounds after he slipped and fell on the ice.

The hunter said he injured his knee and elbow in the fall. He crawled into the cave in Los Padres National Forest and nursed his injuries for six weeks until his provisions gave out. Then he made his way for 65 miles to a ranch.

POLICE TORTURES TO END IN JAPAN

Peer Gets Assurance, Hanging Victims By Heels, Burning To Force Confessions Are Past

TOKYO, Feb 17—(A.P.). — An aged member of the House of Peers drew from his own experience today in attacking the government for allowing police to use "medieval" tortures to force confessions.

Kiichi Kokubo, 72, graphically described to the Japanese Upper House his own torture some years ago for an alleged political crime and demanded the new government of Senjuro Hayashi banish such practices and dismiss responsible officials.

Kokubo cited cases in which he said police hung victims up by their heels, poured water down their nostrils, burned them on the forehead and flogged them unmercifully to force confessions to violations of election laws.

The Minister for Home Affairs assured Kokubo the cases mentioned already had been dealt with, and promised that such methods would be abolished in the future.

Three British sailors, charged with failing to pay a taxi fare, were beaten by Japanese police during a formal visit of the China Squadron to Formoso recently. A fountain pen was reported to have been pushed beneath the fingernails of one of them to force a confession.

Austin Hogan Victim of Accident While Skidding Logs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, Feb. 17—While engaged in skidding logs on Friday last, Austin Hogan had the misfortune to break a small bone in his ankle. A slip on the ice brought him too close to the moving log. Dr. Wright of Keene was called and removed him to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the fracture was treated. He returned to his home on Sunday.

JANETVILLE

SUPPER CLUB PLAN ENDORSED BY W.I.

Janetville W.I. Members Decide To Organize Project For Girls

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Feb. 17. — The February meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. James Howe on Thursday afternoon with forty members and visitors present. The president, Mrs. Bert McMullen, presided and after the usual opening exercises the secretary, Mrs. P. Hamilton, read the minutes and the correspondence. Several letters of thanks were received from shut-ins who were remembered with gifts at Christmas and also from those who received fruit during illness.

The Canadian Association for the Protection of Fur-bearing Animals solicited assistance along this line, and Miss Greta Pollard, an instructress from the Department for the Counties of Victoria, Peterborough, and Durham, sent a request that a Supper Club be formed for the benefit of the 'teen age girls of the community. This short course which will be an answer to the question, "What shall we have for supper?" was thought to be worth while, and arrangements will be made to study it. A committee comprised of Mrs. Oswald McGill, Mrs. B. Hyland, Mrs. P. Hamilton, and Mrs. M. Armstrong was appointed to make final preparations for the "pot luck" supper which is to be held in the Sunday School Rooms of the United Church on Thursday evening.

The March meeting will be held at the parsonage and will be of a special nature, being Grandmothers' Day, when the grandmothers, arrayed in the frills of former days, will present the program.

Convention Report.

The president, Mrs. Bert McMullen, who attended the Women's Institute convention in Toronto in November, presented her report, which was most complete and decidedly interesting. Mrs. E. A. Bradburn conveyed the appreciation of the members to Mrs. McMullen.

A feature of the meeting was the reading by Mrs. Oswald McGill on the celebration at Stoney Creek, Ont., which was held that day, February 11, in commemoration of the founding of the Women's Institute at that place forty years ago. Strange as it may seem the idea of a Women's Institute was conceived by a man, but the idea grew into a fact, and to-day branches of the Women's Institute are organized all over the Dominion of Canada, the United States, the British Isles, Germany, Australia, and many other countries. In their motto, "For Home and Country," the Women's Institutes realize that "better countries" are made from "better homes," and it is their aim to improve the homes with their program of adult education which is brought to the mothers and young women in various forms of short courses and studies.

A splendid paper on St. Valentine's Day was given by Mrs. Capstick and several readings and musical numbers were enjoyed. After the National Anthem was sung refreshments were served by Mrs. Oswald McGill's group.

NO PUBLIC HOLIDAY FOR ELECTION DAY

Proposal Is Rejected In House Of Commons Franchise Committee

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—(C.P.)—The House of Commons committee on the Elections and Franchise Acts to-day rejected a proposal to make election day a public holiday.

As the legislation now stands, C. E. Bothwell (Lib. Swift Current) chairman of the committee, said, employers are required to give their employees two hours with pay, besires their noon hour, to cast their votes on election day.

Samuel Factor (Lib. Toronto-Spadina) declared some employers let their workers know they would be better pleased if the workers did not vote and something should be done to make certain an opportunity be given everyone to cast his vote.

The committee approved a motion of G. A. McLean (Lib. Simcoe East) an amendment be drafted to provide a penalty for employers who attempt to impede voters.

FRASERVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pritchard of Cavan spent a few days with their daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Moncrief, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ouellette of Peterborough were guests on Sunday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Will McElroy and family of Keene were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hogg.

Restless Nights - Pepless Days Take the Joy Out of Life

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

The potent cause lies in the hurried life we lead, in the extreme nervous tension and fever heat with which we follow in the pursuit of wealth, position and pleasure.

Late hours, want of necessary rest, excessive mental or physical exertion all put a strain on the system it is unable to withstand. No wonder then you pass restless nights and get up in the morning with no ambition to go about your daily tasks.

Take Milburn's H. & N. Pills and see what they will do for you.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

One of Those Smart Men

The driver of a car on a road near London, Ont., turned out to be one of those very smart persons. He was driving at a time when traffic was heavy and noticed that a motor-cycle officer was after him.

Then it was this clever driver thought he would make his car get along so quickly that the man on the motor cycle would become bewildered.

So he stepped up to 75 miles an hour, and that was on a highway when traffic was heavy on a Sunday afternoon. It looked a little different in court when the fine was placed in the $25 class together with costs, and the permit for driving was cancelled for 30 days.

Whether wisdom will sprout in 30 days is something at which one can only guess. When a driver demonstrates of his own free will that he is in possession of a mental equipment which prompts him to try and race away from a representative of the law at 75 miles per hour it might take much longer than 30 days to make sufficient change in outlook.

Such a trick is plain evidence of stupidity. If it were possible for a driver to run away from one officer, he should know that further down the road another would be waiting for him.

Not Scared By a Hen

From Benryville, Va., comes a report about the laying of an egg which bears within it the marking saying war will begin in June of 1937. It even gives the date, June 20. It is even placed in print that a newspaperman went and saw it and agreed the lettering and the numbers were there, and as though to prove there had been no monkey business going on it was stated the newspaper man was not anyway related to the owner of the hen. We read too that neighbors are quite excited regarding the message in this remarkable egg.

For our part we are not going to get excited. Hens do funny things when making eggs. They sometimes wind up by putting a few curly-ques on the end, on occasion seem to forget to put the shell on entirely. No hen in Virginia or elsewhere is going to get us into a war dither.

We have enough human beings the world over working at the same business now. They count that day lost when they have failed to produce a new set of international chills. They have made the situation bad enough now without the hens starting to chisel in on the war scare business.

Clothes For a Growing Boy

Some ladies representing an organization known as the United Women of York appeared before York Township Council because they had complaints to make regarding the clothing which was being given out by the Relief Department. Some boy's clothing was brought as an exhibit and it was claimed the Department insisted on issuing clothing much too small for the children.

At this distance we probably know little or nothing at all about the way in which they give out clothing in York Township, but this business of securing clothing for a growing boy is pretty much the same the country over. Just the same in York as it would be here.

We recall that it was always considered well to get a boy's clothes a little on the large size. It wouldn't do to have him fitted out with garments which would fit him exactly at the time. It was known he was growing; at home he had probably stood a good many times against the kitchen door and his height had been measured off by putting the broom handle across just at the top of his head. Before he had the new clothing half worn out he'd find it too tight, so allowance had to be made for that. When he first appeared in his new raiment it would seem a trifle big for him, but by the time he had a couple of patches on the seat of the pants and the elbows of the coat darned and mended why the boy had grown to fit the suit. The glory which accompanies newness may have departed, but the fit of the thing was more accurate in the later days of the suit's life.

If the Relief officials in York do not make such allowances then they should do so. The folk who bought clothes at the village store always reckoned on the boy growing and keeping on growing and their calculations on how much he would grow were generally pretty well timed.

It is held by a constitutional lawyer that in the Hydro legislation recently passed by the Ontario legislature the municipalities which are the real owners of Hydro are left holding the bag. Their assets and properties are not protected in the event of judgments being obtained against the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Speech Filled With Facts Tells About Drought Area

Hon. J. G. Gardiner Gives Concise and Timely Review of Situation Leading Up to Present Situation in Western Canada.

HON. J. G. GARDINER, Minister of Agriculture, in an address in the Commons dealing with the prairie Rehabilitation Act presented a review of the situation in the drought area of the West which might with great advantage have been printed and sent for supplementary reading in our schools. We regard it as one of the most informative addresses delivered in Ottawa for a long time. Mr. Gardiner has not lost faith in the West, but he does want the people of the Dominion to understand how wide the drought area has become and how serious has been the problem of existence for those who remain there in the hope of some day making a living. His own way of describing the affected area is this:

> "If you take a point on the boundary line between Canada and United States immediately south of the town of Morden in Manitoba, and draw a line directly from there to the town of Lloydminster, on the boundary between Alberta and Saskatchewan, then westward and southward to about the town of Cochrane, west of Calgary and then directly south to where the western boundary of Alberta meets the American boundary, you will have taken in the area known as the open prairie country of western Canada, which has been affected by what we have been pleased to call the drought in recent years."

The acreage contained in this area Mr. Dunning placed at 60,000,000, and that reckoning is on the basis of 640 acres to the square mile. In that area probably not more than 20,000,000 acres has been under crop. There have been sections where, owing to the difference in the nature of the land, crop failures have not been a serious factor. Mr. Dunning referred to the heavy lands around Regina and Moose Jaw as those which had withstood drought the best. Within the area referred to there is a population of 900,000, and the following cities are included; Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat in Alberta, Moose Jaw, Weyburn, Swift Current, Regina, Saskatoon and North Battleford in Saskatchewan.

* * *

INSTRUCTIVE TOO was the manner in which Mr. Gardiner divided the West into three steppes which run parallel with the Rocky Mountains and noted the difference in growth in the three levels. In the most western steppe there are oaks and elms similar to Eastern Canada; on the second steppe there are poplars and willows, while in the third or lowest steppe there is nothing much but short grass. The average altitude of the most easterly steppe is 800 feet above the sea level; the average altitude of the second is 1,600 feet, while the steppe nearest the Rockies has an average altitude of 3,400 feet above sea level. The great variety in weather was also noted by Mr. Gardiner in placing more information before the House. To quote:

> "You will find temperatures ranging from 110 degrees above Zero, as we had it last July, to 40 and 50 degrees below zero as we have it in January."

We learn too that if the prairies had as much rainfall as there is in Vancouver (58 inches in 1936) there would be no crops at all, for the coming of much rain would be sure to bring rust or it would act as a signal of the nearness of early frost. In order to produce the finest of hard wheat it is necessary to have little rain and cool nights.

* * *

THE WIDE difference in yield is not short of being astounding when one year is compared to another. In 1914, one of the most difficult years, there was an average return of only two bushels to the acre, while in 1915 that same territory produced a return which averaged 31 bushels to the acre. Such variance in production seems almost incredible.

Mr. Gardiner turned to the price which farmers received for their wheat and again there were great gaps of difference. In the period from 1914 to 1921 wheat prices to the farmer at the elevator ran from $1 to $1.84 cents per bushel and in some cases higher than that. To show the other extreme we quote Mr. Gardiner:

> "When, however, he gets five bushels to the acre with the elevator paying him 35 cents per bushel, or in some cases for No. 1 northern wheat as low as 34 cents, then his problem is an entirely different one. Yes, some one says 25 cents. Yes, there were a great many instances where the farmer did not get more than 25 or 26 cents."

That would mean a cash return of $1.25 per acre, and out of that the farmer would have to pay for his threshing. In 1905 the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were set up, and people flocked in there because they could get a quarter-section of land free, the only payment being $10 homestead fee, and they could buy another quarter-section at $3 an acre. In 1914 the wheat acreage of Canada was about 10,000,000 acres. With the declaration of war came the demand for more wheat and the wheat acreage jumped from 10 to 23 million acres. And of that increase 5,500,000 acres were in what is now spoken of as the drought area of the West. In order to increase wheat production in war years farmers invested heavily in machinery and tractor equipment, and when they reached the poor price and drought years they found themselves unable to pay their bills, and that is where they are today.

Mr. Gardiner told of visiting districts where it had been recommended that great ponds 60 by 40 feet with a depth of 12 feet should be dug in order to catch and retain the spring run-off from rain, but the horses could not do the work because they had been receiving only enough feed to keep them alive.

It was a great and a revealing picture which Hon. J. G. Gardiner presented of the prairie section of the Canadian West. It was informative, backed by statistics and there was no political motive in it. It was indeed a great effort by a man who is apparently filled to the point of saturation with intimate knowledge of the subject to which he addressed himself.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There seems to be nearly as many reasons for the Guelph prison riot as there have been prisoner witnesses called during the probe.

TOO GOOD

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I wish my Neighbor G was rough, or made of poorer kind of stuff, for he is far too smart; he's always finished with his chores, and he's gone back to sit indoors, before I ever start.

¶ And when he winds the clock at night, he never gets the thing too tight, it's always done just so; when he puts stove pipes end to end, there's not a spot he has to mend, he knows the thing will go.

¶ And when he mends a window pane, there's nothing in his work that's lame, it's done both right and neat; and when he hangs a winter door, he never has to fix it more, it keeps in all the heat.

¶ He shovels snow with strokes of ease, in spite of any northern breeze, his path is true and straight; he never seems to be disturbed, nor uses any violent word, nor chants a hymn of hate.

¶ When he starts out along the block, by him you set the kitchen clock, and know that it is right; and when he saunters home at noon, he hums a merry little tune, and does the same at night.

¶ And all the people point to him, a model man and neat of limb, they speak of him with pride; I'm told that I should act his way, and plan my work like him each day—I couldn't if I tried.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

(Official Parliamentary Reports)

Mr. BENNETT: Mr. Chairman, you realize, of course, that this is a document which has not been presented to parliament, it being a minister's memorandum upon which he introduced legislation into this house. I ask to have it tabled.

Mr. GARDINER: I shall table it immediately I have finished it.

Mr. BENNETT: It has never been done—that documents ministers have used and left behind them should be read by their successors for the purpose of indicating what they may have had in their mind with respect to legislation subsequently brought into the house. I direct attention to that.

Mr. GARDINER: If there is any objection to my reading from it, I shall not do so.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not a question of objection. So far as I am concerned I have none. It is my duty as a member of the committee to direct attention to what has been done. I am content with whatever this committee does, because it is the judge of its own conduct and its own procedure with respect to this matter, but it must be remembered that the rules provide that a public document which is referred to shall be tabled in order that all hon. members may see the whole of it.

Mr. GARDINER: I shall be delighted to table the document, because I certainly do not want to read all of it to the committee, and it will be news to the committee.

Mr. DUNNING: Is it a confidential document?

Mr. GARDINER: Well, it is, I presume, in that case. But it is a new experience for me to find that the matter of a discussion of the legislation presented to this house by a minister is a confidential document. It might have been confidential before he brought it there, but after he has brought it here and discussed it in the house and had legislation based on it—

Mr. BENNETT: He never brought it here.

Mr. GARDINER: As a matter of fact, legislation in these exact terms is on the statute book.

Mr. BENNETT: One minute ago the minister said it is not in the exact terms, that he is trying to amend the legislation to bring it within the terms.

Mr. GARDINER: My right hon. friend may have that impression from what I said, but I certainly did not say it.

Mr. BENNETT: I understood the minister to say it.

Mr. GARDINER: I shall not read the document, but I will read the headlines of what was going to be considered under this legislation.

Mr. BENNETT: I point out that there is an elementary rule with respect to these matters that it may be important for this committee to keep in mind. We are now creating a precedent. The legislation speaks for itself. It is what this house passed. What the minister had in his possession at the time the legislation was drafted and passed must be tabled if it is to be made part of the record here, and the minister, in my opinion, may not read a portion of it. It came from his files, not from the public files of this country. It is a new departure, but if you, Mr. Chairman, think it is the proper course to pursue with reference to the business of this house, well and good.

Mr. DUNNING: There is a general rule, I think, that memoranda passing between a minister and his officers with respect to the preparation of anything that subsequently comes to the house are privileged and are not produced in the house.

Mr. CAHAN: Hear, hear.

Mr. DUNNING: It remains to be seen whether or not this document falls within that category.

Mr. BENNETT: He said what it was.

Mr. DUNNING: Well, at the moment I was not listening.

The CHAIRMAN: Order. I understood the Minister of Agriculture to say he was going to table the document.

Mr. GARDINER: I am prepared to table it and I am prepared not to read from it—either one or the other.

Mr. CAHAN: I should like, if the minister will allow me, to make one objection. Anyone who has been four or five years a minister of the crown has found in his department a great number of private memoranda, prepared by the previous ministers or their deputies, and they are regarded in the department as private. I think during the five years I was minister I could have produced had I been prepared to do so, some private memoranda that would have astonished this parliament. It is not proper; it has never been done, and I think it is unwise to establish a precedent at this time.

Mr. DUNNING: It is a question of what it is.

Mr. BENNETT: The minister said what it was.

Mr. GARDINER: I have no objection to refrain from reading this, but I will just say that it is the whole file on the drought work.

An hon. MEMBER: It is public.

Mr. BENNETT: It is not public. That is the point.

Mr. GARDINER: As a matter of fact the minutes of this meeting would have to be quoted from this file; I do not think anyone would object to my quoting them. The minutes of the meeting of the committee are contained in this file. These letters are the deputy minister's letters. This appears to be the deputy's file, not the minister's. I presume that this particular document may be one that was sent to the deputy by the minister.

Mr. BENNETT: Do you realize, Mr. Chairman, the purport of that observation? "I presume this is a document sent by the minister to the deputy"; on that statement of facts the allegation was made that that was the minister's memorandum.

Mr. GARDINER: What is the position which the leader of the opposition takes—that this is not the minister's memorandum?

Mr. CAHAN: The objection is that it is the minister's memorandum to his deputy. It is a breach of good political morals for the minister to attempt to read from or to produce it to this house. There are certain rules of decency that succeeding ministers have always complied with in relation to their predecessors and the correspondence of their predecessors, especially those of their own deputies and clerks.

Mr. DUNNING: If it is that kind of document, what my hon. friend says is correct; but the only question in my mind is whether it is or not.

Says It's Really Too Much.

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

MACAULAY said there was little more ridiculous than the English people in one of their periodic fits of morality. We are reminded of this by an article Mr. Beverly Baxter has written for MacLean's Magazine. Having "clicked," so to speak, with his piece telling why and how Edward abdicated, Mr. Baxter now comes forward to tell us that Mrs. Simpson has been the instrument of a religious revival, with the Church awakened "from a long sleep."

That, we fear, is too much. The Lord may move in mysterious ways, but we have trouble in believing that He selected the vivacious lady from Baltimore as the medium of our salvation.

Nor can we see much in Mr. Baxter's logic. If, as he tells us, it was the British "conscience" which revolted against Edward marrying Mrs. Simpson, then that conscience must have been there all the time. Mr. Baxter, in that case, is confusing an expression of conscience with a revival of it.

Actually, what Mr. Baxter proves, if he proves anything at all, is not that the Church and religion have been asleep and are now awakening but that the Church and religion and what they stand for have been more predominant in our times than in centuries past. Mr. Baxter must have studied English history and he should know that the relations of Edward and Mrs. Simpson would not have greatly shocked the British conscience, or caused any "revival," two or three centuries ago.

Little in life is more ridiculous than the claims of people who, irreligious themselves (which they have a right to be), are always seeing the failure of religion. Because the truth is that judging religion not as an external thing but as something expressed in the inner consciousness and conduct of mankind, there have been few ages in history with more of real religion than the age we live in. There are those, of course, who are discouraged by the rise of fanatical nationalisms, the babbling of arrogant and angry tongues, wars and threats of war. Yet the general dismay caused by all of these is after all but a proof that the standard of international conduct is higher.

There died in New York the other day an old man, Elihu Root. In the world which he had watched so long, what struck him most, he said, was the growth of compassion. The growth of those things which the Founder of Christianity placed above all others. If at times negations come of this truth, let us not be quick despairers.

Nor let us not judge of the world by tabloid records of a Babylonian society. It is the unusual, after all, the extraordinary, that is news, even in sin, and the generality of humanity can not be weighed nor judged in the scales of the extraordinary.

The conscience which revolted against Mrs. Simpson being Queen of England was not in Mayfair, nor in Fleet Street. It was in the quiet homes of the English countryside, in the Midlands and in the North, in the glens of Scotland. The "revival" which Mr. Baxter professes to see is not in these places, because in these places there was religion before, perhaps more religion than ever before.

When the Press Is Censored.

(From the Toronto Star.)

SOME hot news has come out of Germany. A woman was delivering newspapers from house to house, which women seldom do in Toronto, when to a door came a man. Accepting the paper, he gruffly remarked that the newspaper "publishes a lot of nonsense."

In Toronto a newsboy would scarcely stop his whistle long enough to hear such an observation, nor having heard it would he bother repeating it to anybody.

It is different in Nazi Germany. The woman resented the remark, reported it, and the man was called into court and sentenced to four months' imprisonment on the charge of having insulted the newspaper in question. The court held that the man's remark constituted a grave insult to all the sub-editors of the newspapers in question, all of whom were doing their best work in the public interest.

Just at first a Canadian newspaper man was bound to feel that an old grouch in Germany had got what was coming to him. And then he paused, looked at it again and perceived that if a newspaper publishes what it chooses it necessarily publishes much that must seem like nonsense to some of its readers. If a newspaper is free to publish what it sees fit its readers must be left free to regard some of the things it publishes as being nonsense or worse.

In a free country it is the inalienable right of a reader to complain about the contents of a free press and it is only in a country where the press is strongly censored that readers are imprisoned for complaining about the news published in the press. This man in Germany was not imprisoned for insulting sub-editors, but for expressing dissatisfaction with the work of the official censors. This man who went to prison did not like the kind of newspaper the censors were letting him have.

So to prison he went, there to learn during four months to be a sadder and a wiser man.

If everybody in Toronto who says that the newspapers "print a lot of nonsense" were to be arrested and sentenced to four months' imprisonment, the Woodbine if walled in and roofed over would not afford space in which to contain them. What is nonsense? That which seems nonsense to one man is perfectly good sense to somebody else. That which to some may seem irrelevant and foolish today may by tomorrow reveal all the true ingredients of wisdom. In the English-speaking world the press does not want a court to protect the sub-editors of the newspapers from insult from readers who charge that they print nonsense. Perhaps they do at times print nonsense, but still, in emergency, they are on the side of sense.

Too Easy To Obtain.

(From the St. Catharines Standard.)

IT IS not conducive to the well-being of this Dominion to cultivate prejudice against the foreign non-British born, but the address of Hon. Howard Ferguson, at Hamilton on Friday, should command attention. Mr. Ferguson declared that living five years in Canada was not sufficient as an attainment of British Canadian citizenship; it should be ten years, and then naturalization papers should only be granted with circumspection.

It was the burden of complaint by Mr. Ferguson that many of the foreign born merely took the five years to get to know the ropes. In other words, the pull. There is so much in that statement that it hardly needs clarification, not, certainly, to any ward political worker. The native born, intelligent Canadian these days may have decided opinions as to policy and as to right and wrong, and yet a mass of such opinion, very patriotic and intelligent opinion, is negatived entirely by the mass herding of the foreign born vote in one section or another.

How often has it been heard in times past in political committee rooms: "Well, he has the Italian vote;" "He has the foreign vote to a man"? None of this is sound Canadianism. It just means that the newcomers have not grown up sufficiently to exercise their own judgment as individuals. They are herded. Each party pays for that purpose, and many an election story could be wound around that.

Howard Ferguson very well intimated that naturalization of certain groups was only a process of organization subversive of the constitution of the country. Can the nation afford that sort of thing? Is there not danger in it?

We have a good hunch that the Hon. Howard is right. When he brought back booze to Ontario he benefitted by the system of which he now complains as a patriot. It is because he knows the system so well that respect must be tendered to his opinions.

NATIONAL INCOME.

(Kitchener Record)

OF VITAL interest to every Canadian is the fact that a new and greater abundance of real wealth was produced for all to share last year.

According to "Canadian Business," published by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, it is now possible to calculate more exactly the income improvement in 1936 which is the foundation for greater improvement this year. Official figures show that national income increased about 10.5 per cent or about $500 millions over the previous year to $4.5 billions. Forestry led the field with a 19 per cent gain, mining came second with 15.5 per cent and agriculture followed at 10.6 per cent higher. Net industrial production at $2.8 billions led primary production at $1.5 billions.

An increase of 10.5 per cent in our national income in 1936 raised the per capita purchasing power from $374 to $410. When the average person is in a stronger position to buy the things he needs there is a greater demand for goods and services. Which in turn should mean work for a greater number of people.

To The Editor

OUR OWN TALENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The other evening while listening to Haven MacQuarrie's program, the "Do you want to become an actor, hour," the thought struck me, why not endeavor something similar right here in Peterborough?

Naturally I do not propose that winners be packed off to Hollywood, for a screen test, but I am firmly convinced that it would create a wholesome, and widespread interest and enjoyment among both young and old. Acting always has been a fascinating career and every one, especially the young feel the lure at some time or other. This plan is quite inexpensive. Churches, Y. M. C. A.'s or other social buildings could be used and one requires but a bit of script and the ability to do his best; also perhaps the ability to be laughed at, at times, but all in all more good than anything would arise out of it.

It would be well worth while, the enjoyment itself which would be created would be ample compensation for the bit of trouble taken to arrange such an hour. And who knows, it might be the uncovering of some future star of the screen. Nice thought isn't it? It might be you. Think of that.

FICKLE FAME.

(Sherbrooke Record)

FAME serves up more evidence of her fickleness. Just a few days ago one-time film star Marie Prevost died in obscurity after trying futilely to make a comeback.

And just the other day a crippled woman mounted a court witness stand in New York and said, "I am Gertrude Ederle." It was a name emblazoned in newspaper headlines the world over just eleven years ago, following her Amazonian feat of swimming the English Channel.

Two years after her exploit, fame began to desert Miss Ederle. She became an obscure swimming instructor. Then fate struck its cruelest blow. In court, during her suit for damages, she told how she had spent the last several years in torment, because of a fall in an apartment house.

From such stories as these, people who have never achieved fame may draw a grain of consolation. Apparently, to paraphrase a sporting idiom, "The higher you go, the harder you fall."

NAPOLEON'S NEMESIS.

VOLUNTEER BAN IN FORCE FEB. 20

Hands Off Group Also Approves Naval Blockade March 6 For Spain

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(CP-Havas).—The Non-Intervention committee to-day approved the plan adopted by the chairman's sub-committee for imposing a volunteer ban effective Saturday and a naval blockade beginning March 6. Delegates of the 27 powers comprising the committee met to approve yesterday's agreement and the vote was unanimous except for Portugal, which approved only the volunteer ban.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17. — A let-up in European demand for wheat in the face of the daily arrivals at continental ports sent futures prices tumbling on world markets. Subjected to realizing sales by disappointed holders, values on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange slipped 2¼-2½ cents.

The reported purchase of 370,000 bushels of Argentine wheat afloat to Europe by Germany failed to stay the general recession as trade reports told of a general lack of demand for the grain at present. No export sales of Canadian wheat were reported. Liverpool led the downward movement, off 2½d at the close. Chicago was two cents lower, and fractional setbacks prevailed at Buenos Aires.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 17 — (C.P.). — The small supply of cattle offered was cleaned up at steady to firm prices on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day. Calves, sheep and lambs sold at previous prices. Hog market was unsettled by early afternoon. Cattle holdover from Tuesday was 300 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 390; calves, 180; hogs, 890; sheep and lambs, 130.

Good butcher cattle brought $5.50 to $6, with plain as low as $4.50. Weighty steers sold between $5.50 and $6.50, a few choice heavies reaching $7.25. Butcher cows were steady at $3 to $4.50. Butcher bulls went from $3.75 to $4, and bolognas between $3.35 and $3.60. Fed calves ranged from $5.75 to $8. Some good stockers sold as high as $4.85.

Choice veal calves traded from $9 to $9.50; common lights downward to $5.

Indications pointed to a near steady close on hogs. Previous close on off-truck bacons was $8.10 to $8.15. Rail-grade hogs were quoted on a basic delivered price of $10.75 to $11.

The few good lambs offered brought $9.50 to $9.60. Sheep sold from $2 to $5 cwt.

BLASTING FOR FALLS.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Feb. 17—A face-blasting operation on the American Falls was considered today as a means of enhancing the beauty of the towering cataract.

Engineers said the first major task, if the work were attempted, would be to divert the course of the roaring waterfall to permit dynamiters to function.

Rob Roy Macleon, president of a civic group proposing the operation, said it would remove a huge pile of rocks accumulated at the foot of the falls in a series of rock slides.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HAIL AND FAREWELL

This is the brief and truthful tale of Buckshot. His life, which was short and joyful, except for the grand finale, which took place today, started off on the wrong foot. If Buckshot had chosen to be a lady, all would have been well. He might have grown up to be famous as a Grade A dairy cow producing gallons of milk and earning plenty of praise and careful feeding. But his gender was wrong, so, regardless of his pleasant habit of gambolling playfully about the barnyard, he was visited today by a butcher who tactfully refrains from putting any sign of his calling on his cart, and who carried away the little white calf for a painful interview which terminated in the little animal's conversion into fresh veal. Such is life.—C.L.M.

Striking Cabbie Gets Rough Reception

Fighting in spite of the odds, this striking Baltimore cab driver is hurried along to a waiting van as police quell the riot which broke out before the Yellow Cab Company's garage. Fighting started when the company tried to put 20 cabs in circulation in defiance of the striking drivers a shower of stones, clubs, bricks and empty bottles greeted the strike-breakers. Police entered the melee and two van loads of battered combatants were soon on their way to the station house.

EIGHT UNBEATEN RINKS ARE LEFT IN TORONTO BONSPIEL

Gardiner Of Sarnia And Walker Of Chatsworth Beaten In Seiberling Contest

SEAGRAM PLAY

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—(CP)—Ranks of the unbeaten were reduced by two today in the Ontario Curling Bonspiel when A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia and H. Walker of Chatsworth were eliminated from the Seiberling Trophy competition. Eight undefeated rinks were left in the bonspiel.

The Gardiner rink from Sarnia was put out by Gordon Campbell's famous Hamilton Thistles, former Canadian champions, in a tight battle decided on the final end. The score was 13-12. Walker and his Chatsworth entry were beaten 15-10 by the unbeaten W. Braithwaite quartet of Meaford.

Invading rinks yet to taste defeat are skipped by Bert Hall of Kitchener, M. W. Binkley of Stratford, F. R. Michael of Oshawa and Braithwaite. Home rinks in this class are Dr. F. T. Knight and Bert Kennedy of Stratheonas and E. D. MacInnes and E. Green of High Park.

The Kitchener contender led by Hall outclassed K. A. Miles of High Park this morning to win by 11-2. Binkley held a five-shot margin over C. E. McConkey of Strathconas, winning 13-8.

Feature of play in the Seagram Trophy competition was an extra-end struggle between Col. H. J. Mackie of Ottawa and A. M. Lindsay of North Bay. Mackie scored on the extra end to win 10-9. W. J. Drysdale of Kingston advanced in this competition, beating L. S. Williams of Lindsay 17-3 but a second Kingston rink, skipped by R. G. H. Travers, lost 13-6 to H. Howard of Toronto Granites.

WILL CALL BUCK.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—(AP)— Tim Buck, general secretary of the Canadian Communist party, to-day will appear as a witness before the final public hearing in Toronto of the Canadian Commission on Penitentiaries, Mr. Justice Archambault said yesterday.

BOARD OF WORKS OPPOSES BILL

they have fulfilled their agreements with the city?

Alderman Glover suggested that a deputation might interview both companies and obtain a statement from them; but this suggestion was deferred until later in the evening.

Alderman Sloan called for the vote on the Glover—Stocker motion which was carried. Alderman Wilson said he didn't support it.

"If the proposed street was for new stores, I think we have all we need right now," Ald. Juby commented.

Manufacturers Committee

When the Manufacturers Committee held its session later, Alderman Glover, chairman, said that the C.G.E. power clause in Ald. Gordon's private bill had been referred to that committee. He had intended to call a meeting Saturday out J. R. Corkery, city solicitor, was ill and could not attend.

"I think the private bill is of such importance that we should begin to get organized if we feel that way about it," Ald. Glover said. "I think we should enquire from the De Laval and Rayoestos companies whether they have fulfilled the terms of their agreements. I would like to see the committee with Alderman Dutton added visit both companies."

"It would clear up this matter," Ald. Wilson commented.

"While we are there we could ask for a written statement, but I think we should call on them because as I recall the De Laval Company agreed to produce certain machines in their local plant and we would have an opportunity of enquiring about such things."

"We might find that they hadn't lived up to the agreement although I am confident there is not one manufacturer who has not tried to live up to the spirit," Ald. Dutton remarked.

"I'll take a chance on their living up to the letter," Ald. Glover said.

Ald. McIntyre suggested that Alderman Glover might be a deputation of one, as chairman of the committee.

"No, I think we should all be on it," Ald. Glover said, and Mayor Macdonald proposed that the committee might visit all the manufacturers during the year.

Ald. Dutton—We should remember that for the last five years we have had one of the severest periods of depression we ever had, and most factories have not been able to do what they naturally desired to do.

Ald. Wilson remarked that the factories that had not fixed assessments had to pay full taxes during that period.

The Hamilton—Wilson motion was adopted unanimously, and Alderman Glover said the committee would probably make the proposed calls on Thursday and obtain written statements from both companies.

Answer From Deputy

An opinion from Deputy Minister Herbert L. Cummings of the Department of Municipal Affairs that municipalities can not escape the restrictions against renewals of fixed assessments by the "simple subterfuge" of raising or lowering the expiring assessments, is reported by Mr. G. N. Gordon, today.

Mr. Gordon addressed the following inquiry to the deputy minister on February 15, referring in the inquiry to a statement by Alderman Max Sloan at a recent council meeting:

"One of the Aldermen here told me that you stated a renewal of a fixed assessment could take place if it were only a dollar above or below the fixed assessment. I would like to have your opinion in the matter, because my experience as chairman of the Committee of the Whole House, where all these private bills came before, was that the contrary was just the spirit of the law. I was wondering if you had this impression or if you had any authority for it."

"I have your letter of the 15th inst. with respect to the renewal of fixed assessments. Any opinion I have expressed in the matter is absolutely contrary to the information given you by one of the City Aldermen, as I am of opinion that a fixed assessment is renewed even if the amount of the assessment is varied by increase or decrease, and a municipality cannot get around the limitations of the Municipal Act and the Bonus Limitation Act by such a simple subterfuge."

sons, advocated by many authorities, did not appeal to Buck, who said wardens would be stripped of all ambition under that plan. Prison administration would be mechanized and wardens would be unable to introduce new measures.

"When we entered Kingston in 1932 about the only thing the warden could do without authority from Ottawa was paddle a man," he said. "These things have been changed. Authority from Ottawa now is needed for paddling. The warden can do nothing without authority."

Better Off Without Prisons.

Rather than the existing penal system, under which "accidental transgressors have been transformed into real criminals," Buck said it was conceivable to him that Canada would be better off without prisons.

Recalling a shipment of 14,000 feet of lumber at Kingston when the storekeeper had ordered 5,000 feet, Buck said the administration was characterized by such waste. A two-year lumber supply was on hand when the additional supply arrived, he said.

When a wing for women prisoners at the penitentiary was built, floors were laid and ripped up several times "apparently because the Government hadn't decided what kind of floors it wanted."

From his observations he reached the conclusion that the "main emphasis on the daily life of a prisoner is repression, emphasized even when it is unnecessary."

The great danger for guards and prisoners alike was that of losing all interest in the outside world.

Why The Underworld Stressed.

"It is an insidious creeping on of a feeling you are in a world apart," Buck said. "The only news reaching the penitentiary is through newly-arrived convicts and the grapevine. The result is that the underworld is uppermost in news. The 'big shots' in it are the big-time criminals, not the statesmen or scientists.

"This inside prison world develops its own history, traditions and standards. Irresponsibility becomes a feature of everything."

"The sense of irresponsibility and "a capricious application of rules" brought on trouble, Buck said. Special privileges to some prisoners aroused resentment and there was a strong suspicion that one prisoner who had an almanac was an informer. The almanac had an account of the 1932 riot at Kingston.

"That would cast a reflection on the warden?" queried R. W. Craig, K.C., member of the commission.

"No, it was on the system," Buck replied. All informers didn't work for the warden. Some were "rats" for the deputy wardens, some for the head keeper and some for guards.

Buck said he doubted the use of guards could be avoided in Kingston but it should not be made a vital principle of prison administration.

Two Faces.

"Dissimulation is the most valuable characteristic a prisoner can have," he said. "A prisoner has one face for the guards—and the chaplain—and another for the other convicts."

Classic example of such dissimulation was "Red" Ryan. "Not that he was an exception," he said. "If he was, it was only that he succeeded in doing on a large scale what most of the convicts do on a small scale and he did it more successfully."

Sam Behan, fellow - communist convicted with Buck, was "paddled" 12 days before his death despite illness, it was alleged. Behan pleaded with the warden not to paddle him but the warden said Ottawa's orders had to be carried out.

"Twelve days later he died in a punishment cell, on wooden slats without a mattress," Buck said. "There was a certain studied callousness about the whole thing though I don't say they were murderers."

Riot Only Way of Complaint.

The fact there is no established channels through which prisoners can make complaints was the chief cause of prison riots, Buck said. All rules were repressive. Convicts had no rights.

"Tradition is you want something done, you must do something to attract public attention and it works," he said. Far-reaching changes have followed riots at Kingston. Things demanded by Kingston convicts in 1932 riots were granted in revised regulations issued in 1933. As an example, he said the "degrading and humiliating" conditions under which prisoners received visitors were changed after the riots.

Basic weakness of the prison system was the theory prisoners have no rights. Prisoners therefore felt they had no responsibilities.

Some Suggestions.

Buck made the following suggestions for reform:

Prisoners should have some definitely-established rights.

Efforts should be made to develop special responsibility among the convicts.

Attempt on Buck?

Buck gave his version of what he alleged was an attempt to murder him during the Kingston riot in 1932. There had been no disturbance in D block where Buck was. All that was unusual was talking back and forth between the convicts.

"It was getting dusk and I was starting to make up my bed," he said. "I felt a bullet—rather I didn't know it was a bullet—crease my hair. I ducked immediately. I jumped in bed behind a little bit of brickwork. I stood there a minute. Some of the boys yelled the guards were shooting blanks to frighten us. I yelled out 'blanks nothing.'

"I involuntarily leaned forward so my voice could carry and as I did so a bullet passed right under my chin," he went on. "It buried itself in the brick deeper than I could reach with my forefinger. Another bullet hit the wall outside. I jumped up and smashed the bulb in my cell. My shadow was flung across the wall and a whole volley of bullets came. A man beneath me was struck by flying glass. He screamed and there was no more shooting."

Buck said he told prison officials a day later an attempt had been made to murder him.

KEPT IN BED BY BACKACHE

Now—Thanks to Kruschen—Not a Trace of Pain

This woman's life was made a misery by the pains of backache. Then her father, who had proved the value of Kruschen himself, advised her to try it. She did, and here is her grateful letter:—

For year I have been suffering with pains in the back. At times I had to stay in bed for days. I could not walk, or even stand. My father was using Kruschen Salts for the same thing. He, too, used to suffer badly, and Kruschen relieved him. He advised me to try it. I did so, and did not get a pain for three years. I then neglected my daily dose for about six months, and two months ago the pain returned. I tried another remedy—it failed, so I again started Kruschen. Now, I have not a trace of pain, thanks to Kruschen."—(Mrs.) H. R.

Pains in the back are usually due to impurities in the blood—waste products which the internal organs are failing to expel from the system. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating these organs to healthy, normal activity, and so help them to keep the system free from harmful waste matter.

PLANT INSPECTION HAS BEEN DELAYED

Await Action On Pasteurized Milk Before Seeking Inspection

Inspection of the milk plants in the Peterborough area by representatives of the Ontario Department of Health will not be proceeded with until the city council has definitely disposed of the question of pasteurization of all milk sold in the city.

Dr. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., informed the Board of Health Tuesday night that the new form of inspection is applied under the provision by which the Ontario Milk Board was instituted. Several communications have been received of late from the Department enquiring when it was considered advisable to begin the general inspection in the Peterborough district. The Act came into effect last August, but Dr. Fraser suggested in the autumn that its application should be postponed to give the milk producers ample time to meet the requirements of the new regulations. A further suspension of action has resulted from the pasteurization question.

It was emphasized at the Board's meeting that this inspection is not a local requirement but is in the hands of the Department and is one of the provisions of the new Act.

Cheese As Lenten Dish Served In Many Ways

Choice Cheese, Milk And Egg Dishes Should Be On Weekly Menu

CHEESE ROAST

By MARY MOORE

NOT BEING a Lenten observer I do not make myself wait until the Lenten season is upon me to have choice cheese and milk and egg dishes. We enjoy some one of them every week.

For me and for you who are the practical providers of "three-a-day" there are two or three new ideas that you will welcome; and for those ladies with more time to keep up with the Joneses and invite the Joneses and their crowd to dinner frequently there are two good ideas. —I am going to create an occasion specifically to use them.

The Cheese Delight Mixture may be used in two ways—both equally delicious.

Cheese Delights

One cup grated hard old cheese, 2 egg whites beaten stiff and dry, ½ teaspoon baking powder. Add the baking powder to the beaten egg white, then fold in the grated cheese using no more folding motions than are necessary to mix them. Drop by teaspoonfuls into hot deep fat at 375 deg. Fahr.—turning them over once when bottom side is golden. Skim out with perforated skimmer or fork and let drain on unglazed paper—but serve quickly with pear, pineapple, peach or any choice fruit salad—three to a salad.

Cheese Delight Toast

Using Cheese Delight mixture above heap it on squares of buttered toast, dot with rings of maraschino cherries or pecans. Bake for 10 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

In company with many another I find that the little wafer crackers that are so commonly used as a base for canapes are expensive—making the canape a major item to consider when serving with your first course.

Cheese Pastry for Canapes

Make a rich paste using one cup flour and one-third cup lard and butter. Just enough cold water to make it cling together. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness and sprinkle with cheese—hard cheese finely grated is best. Fold the pastry up, roll out again, sprinkle with cheese again (using about one-third cup to each cup of flour in paste)—repeat again and roll the pastry very thin. If you have fancy shaped cutters all the better, but fluted cookie cutters will do nicely. For variety cut out rings to fit edges of some of the shapes. Chill thoroughly. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 8 minutes. They will be golden and flaky much like puff paste.

These may be filled with a curled anchovy, pate de foie gras, bloater paste, whole small sardines curled, chopped ripe olives, a shrimp garnished with pimento—and any variety of canape fillings.

The following recipe for Cheese Roast is strictly vegetarian, but looks like meat and can be served in the middle of a platter surrounded by vegetables, to be carved by the host and satisfies those who want meat every day—at least in appearance. Flavor is excellent.

Cheese Roast

One 1-lb. can of kidney or navy beans, 1 lb. mild cheese, 1 cup bread crumbs, salt, pepper and paprika to taste, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 onion chopped finely. Put the beans and the cheese through the meat chopper together. Cook the onion in the butter for a few minutes then add ¼ cup of water and let cook a little longer. Mix all ingredients then form into a roll or loaf, moisten with melted butter or beaten egg and roll in fine sifted cracker crumbs. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. on buttered shallow baking dish, basting occasionally with butter diluted with a little hot water or good beef drippings. Serve with Tomato Sauce.

Tomato Sauce (for Cheese Roast)

One pint tomatoes, 1 very small onion, 3 cloves, 1 blade of mace, ½ teaspoon whole peppercorns, 1 slice of carrot. Cook all together gently until soft, then put through sieve. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, and stir hot tomato puree into these until thickened.

The above sauce is good for fried or boiled fish, to serve on poached eggs on toast as a main supper dish or ingredient of a vegetable plate—or on hard cooked eggs on toast.

✧ ✧ ✧

At the moment I can think of no vegetable on which I have not served cheese except beets. But when I was served corn au gratin at a restaurant the other evening I couldn't remember ever having tasted it before. After experimenting with it twice this is what I decided was right good:

Corn au Gratin

One No. 2 can Golden Bantam corn, 2 eggs, 1 cup cheese, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and shake of white pepper. Beat the eggs slightly and mix all but the cheese with them. Put half the corn mixture in a buttered casserole, cover it with half of the cheese, then add the remaining corn and cover it with cheese—top off with sprinkle of paprika and dots of butter. Set dish in pan of warm water and bake until set in oven of 325 deg. Fahr. about ¾ hour.

Baked Potato and Cheese Croquettes

These are an invention of my mother's and it is many years since I thought of them. She used to place them around a rolled roast of beef as a garnishment and to make easy serving for my father—who had a brood of four hungry moppets watching him like hawks to see how fast he was getting to their plates.

Mash 8 medium sized, freshly boiled potatoes well, and season with salt and pepper, and ¼ cup of cream (if you can spare it, if not ¼ cup milk with 2 tablespoons butter). Mix into then two-thirds cup cheese and mix well. Shape into small cylinders about 1 inch in diameter and 3 or 4 inches long. Roll in a mixture of ½ cup finely sifted cracker crumbs and 1-3 cup grated hard cheese. Place on buttered baking dish and bake in moderate temperature until golden and heated through. Garnish with paprika when serving.

Cheese Souffle (for amateurs)

Two cups diced buttered fresh bread, 2½ cups milk, 4 egg yolks, 1¼ cups mashed cream cheese or 2 cups grated milk cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 4 egg whites. Beat yolks well and add all ingredients but whites to them, mixing well. Fold in whites last. Sprinkle top with paprika or diced crisp bacon. Bake in larger pan of water at 325 for 1 hour.

As a rule cheese mixtures should be cooked slowly.

Tested Favorite Recipes

By MARY MOORE.

Belonging to the school that compromises between home grown and stored winter vegetables and imported vegetables, I find that the good old onion keeps well and remains cheap.

Besides which it is good for us, and French Fried they become the sudden favorites of every one who has ever tasted them. To make a Roast Beef dinner into an inexpensive meal that looks and tastes fit for a King let alone your very fussiest possible guests, serve French Fried onions and Potato Souffle—methods for making both of these follow:

French Fried Onions.

Remove the skin from large mild onions and slice them ¼ inch thick into a bowl of milk—they will separate into rings with a little pressure. Let stand ½ hour then drain and dry between towels.

Make a batter by sifting together 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Beat 2 eggs well, add 2-3 cup milk, and 1 tablespoon melted butter to them, and beat the flour into them until the batter is smooth. Dip the onion rings in the batter and fry at 390 degrees Fahr. in hot fat until golden. Serve immediately—only one layer at a time should be fried. Keep hot and crisp while frying remainder of batch, in warming oven.

Potato Souffle.

To 3 cups fluffy mashed potatoes add 2 well beaten egg yolks, 2 tablespoons butter, adding enough hot cream to make the mixture creamy. Season with salt, pepper, and a dash of mace. Make a meringue of the remaining whites, folding in grated dry cheese (½ cup) instead of sugar when stiff. Cover potatoes in glass casserole. Bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees Fahr. Serve immediately.

GIRLS' WORK BOARD IS RE-ORGANIZED

Mrs. L. J. Pettit Is Elected President, Miss Dorothy Allen Secretary

The leaders of the girls' organizations of the churches of Peterborough met in Trinity church recently to discuss the re-organization of the Girls' Work Board. Mrs. L. J. Pettit, who was president of the Board when it disbanded, took charge of the meeting. It was the unanimous opinion of those present that a Girls' Work Board should be formed and when a motion to this effect had been passed Mrs. Pettit called for the nomination of officers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. L. J. Pettit; vice-president, Mrs. E. Huffman; secretary, Miss Dorothy Allen; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Walker; leader of Girls' Council, Mrs. J. A. McKone; assistant leader of Girls' Council, Miss Leta Bronscombe.

It was decided that meetings be held monthly, part of the time to be devoted to a study book, and the rest of the time to discussion. Miss Ruth Barns will introduce the study book at the March meeting, when the Girls' Work Board will be the guests of Mrs. L. J. Pettit.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A Column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the interests of Peterborough Citizens.

MEDICAL RELIEF

One necessity must be recognized and provided for unemployed citizens; namely, adequate medical care. In the absence of sufficient income, the family must not suffer as a result of illness. Relief recipients are susceptible to sickness as are their more fortunate neighbors. It is believed the Province of Ontario has solved the problem of medical relief in a satisfactory manner; at least the recipients of medical care do not suffer as a result of the plan at present in operation. The medical profession, while being underpaid for services rendered, continues to visit the sick and heal the diseased in the time honored traditional manner.

This is the arrangement. A relief recipient who falls sick may have his own doctor in attendance. He is required to obtain a doctor's order or voucher from the Relief Officer, which may be presented at the time of his visit to the doctor or in emergency cases within 24 hours. The voucher is good for the current month, and may be used for all members of the family.

The Province of Ontario pays the Ontario Medical Association 25 cents per month for each person on relief. Part of this is used for administrative purposes, part for payment of druggists and part for payment of doctors. Doctors present their accounts with vouchers each month and receive payment in proportion to the work done. For example, assuming there are 1,000 relief recipients in Peterborough during February and that the doctors are allowed 20 cents for each. There would then by $200.00 to be divided among the doctors on a pro rata basis. If accounts of all doctors together amounted to $200.00 they would be paid in full. If accounts amounted to $400.00, each doctor would receive 50 per cent. of his account. Payments are made by the Ontario Medical Association and have averaged about 40 per cent. of the amount of account; which means that doctors get 40 cents for every dollar's worth of work they do, and which also means a considerable cut in income!

For attendance on relief recipients in hospital, the doctors are not paid. The cost of hospitalization is paid by the city at $1.75 per day. Before admission, patients must have an order signed by the Medical Officer of Health. The approximate length of stay is indicated and is not extended except when necessary. As a result of this careful check the hospital expenditures for 1936 were reduced by over $3,500.00 as compared with 1935 and no relief recipient suffered for lack of adequate hospital or medical care.

All of which leads to the conclusion that the members of the medical profession contribute their fair share and more to relief. The tradesman sells his goods at regular prices, but the doctor reduces his account 60 per cent. for services rendered and continues to provide medical care for all, regardless of economic conditions.

BISHOP McNALLY GOES TO HALIFAX

Will Succeed Late Archbishop O'Donnell After Thirteen Years At Hamilton

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 17 (CP Cable)—Official announcement was made today that Pope Pius had named Bishop John T. McNally of Hamilton, Ont., to be Archbishop of Halifax, N.S.

Bishop McNally succeeds the late Archbishop O'Donnell.

He has been bishop of Hamilton since 1924. Born in Prince Edward Island in 1873, he was ordained priest in 1896 and became bishop of Calgary in 1913, going from the western diocese to Hamilton.

HALIFAX, Feb. 17 (CP)—Halifax prepared today to welcome its new archbishop, Bishop John Thomas McNally of Hamilton, Ont., whose appointment to succeed the late Archbishop Thomas O'Donnell was announced last night.

Bernie Latest "One-Punch" Maestro

Sunday.
Stuffed Baked Pork Tenderloins (see note)
Pan Roasted Sweet Potatoes
Spinach with Mock Hollandaise
Fruit Cup of Apricots Pineapple, Banana and Apple, with Cookies
Coffee.

Note.—A common error in Baking stuffed pork tenderloin is to bake it too long and dry it out. Cook it covered with a very little water in bottom of pan, uncovering for last 10 minutes to brown it. Baste twice during baking period.

Monday.
Sliced Cold Roast Tenderloin
Hot Unsweetened Apple Sauce
Macaroni with Tomato Sauce
Celery Hearts
Pineapple Hasty Pudding (see elsewhere on page)
Coffee.

Tuesday.
Chopped Beef Rolled in Cabbage Leaves (see note)
Fluffy Mashed Potatoes Diced Beets
Compote of Apples (see note)
Coffee.

Note.—To make cabbage rolls season 1 pound raw ground beef, with 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon of pepper, 1 tablespoon grated onion, ½ cup cooked rice. Mix these together. Parboil 8 large cabbage leaves for 3 minutes, trimming off some of the thick part of the mid rib. Spread the cabbage leaves with the meat mixture, rolling them up and fastening with tooth pick. Put following ingredients in kettle with ½ cup water, and simmer rolled cabbage in it until tender and saturated with the 1 cup tomatoes, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 1 onion chopped, 2 teaspoons sugar.

To make Compote of Apples, make syrup of ⅔ cup sugar and ¾ cup water and rind of 1 lemon grated. Cook halves of apipes peeled in this turning them over occasionally until tender. Chill and serve with some of the thickened syrup and whipped cream unsweetened.

Wednesday (Vegetarian).

MAY'S SCHOOL

The guest speaker at the monthly meeting of May's School was Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas, who spoke on Child and Parent Education and also on Religious Education, which she pointed out should begin in the home with parents and children.

The president, Mrs. W. Carter, was in the chair. Two fine vocal solos were given by Mrs. N. Todd and the meeting closed with a social hour when community singing was enjoyed and refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Brisco.

SMALL GIRL IS MISSING

The girl lives with two aunts and attends St. George's Public school, North London. When she failed to return home for lunch yesterday enquiries were made at the school where officials said she had left with a man who had called for her.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I hope you won't think it too much bother but I want a recipe for making parsnip wine. I have had your paper now for over fifteen years—all the time I have been out here.—Mrs. E.

ANSWER: Thank you for both your letters. We are sorry our reply was not fast enough—we usually ask readers to allow three weeks to elapse before expecting reply.

Parsnip Wine

Four and one-half pounds parsnips (weighed after they have been scrubbed and scraped), cut into pieces about 3 inches long. After weighing them boil them in a gallon of water for every 4½ lbs. of parsnips, until tender, with the lid off. Then strain the liquor and add to it 3 lbs. sugar to every gallon. Boil together for ¾ hour. Pour into a cask or clean barrel or earthen crock and when cool add a little yeast spread on toast. Leave it uncovered, but protected against dust with a cloth, stirring it every day, for 10 days. Then strain, clean crock or cask and return wine to it, and after fermentation has ceased, cover tightly. It may be bottled in 6 or 7 months.

QUESTION: You surely must know that your page is of invaluable help, a treasure to all housewives and cooks. Besides that your replies are always courteous.

Would you be good enough to either send me an answer or insert it in your columns before the end of February.

I am getting married at 8 a.m. What would I serve after mass to about 50 people? I am making most of the things myself so please tell me what I should do even days ahead if possible—also color scheme. Something very reasonable please. Anyhow I am leaving it all to you.—Anna.

ANSWER: It is kind of you to put so much confidence in me.

There are many interesting possibilities for wedding breakfasts—but since you want to prepare things yourself—ahead of time—and "reasonably" the choice of foods becomes a little limited.

Creamed mixtures that can be made at least a day ahead and served in patty shells that can be bought ready made from some very good pastry shop—a good fruit punch with much fruit pulp in it—and celery—and ice cream and little fancy cakes which can be made several days ahead and wedding cake and coffee.

Fifty people are a tremendous number to serve comfortably. You must have at least four people that will pass the food and serve it right in the dining and living rooms—and at least two capable people in the kitchen to keep food hot and replenished and served.

Since it will be forenoon I think creamed tuna or crab flakes or creamed oysters and mushrooms would be suitable.

Creamed Tuna
(An ala King Mixture, for 50 People)

(Crab meat or lobster or shrimps or oysters may be used in place of tuna).

Buy hotel size cans of fish from very large groceries. Four quarts or 8 lbs. flaked tuna (or other prepared fish), 1 cup butter, 1 cup flour, 5 pints thin cream, 1 cup chopped fresh green pepper, ½ cup grated onion, 8 eggs, 1 cup chopped pimiento, 1 can small peas, ½ cup chopped parsley. Melt the butter, add the flour and stir. Then stir in the cream which has been warmed well to reduce length of stirring time before mixture thickens—stir until it thickens. Beat eggs well. Add all remaining ingredients and stir constantly until they are heated through, then pour about 8 cups of hot mixture over eggs, and stir well then return eggs to creamed mixture and heat through again stirring. Do all this in either enamel or ironware—not in aluminum or tin. Store in enamel or earthen container if made ahead of time. Reheat by standing in larger container containing hot water—it will take about 1½ hours for heat to penetrate such a large amount. If desired the above mixture may be made in two separate lots to facilitate handling. Serve hot in puff paste patty cases. Garnish with parsley. If you wish half the tuna may be left out and mushrooms substituted for it.

Fruit Punch for 50 People

One and one-half dozen lemons, 1 dozen oranges, 2 No. 2 cans crushed pineapple, 1 large bottle maraschino cherries, 2½ lbs. sugar made into syrup by boiling 5 minutes with 4 cups water and grated rind from 6 lemons—then strained into mixture. Add ice to make this up to 2½ gallons.

Coffee for 50 People

Mix 1½ lbs. medium ground coffee, with 2 slightly beaten eggs and enough cold water to moisten. Pack loosely into 2 cheese cloth bags and drop into 2½ gallons fresh boiling water. Keep just below boiling point for 25 minutes, then boil 5 minutes. Remove bags, add 1 teaspoon salt and 1 pint cold water. This allows 60 cups.

Cocoanut Drop Cookies made as follows and Chocolate Nut Diamonds (recipe for which appeared in last week's page) would make a nice combination of small cakes to be served with the ice cream. Wedding cake would be served with the coffee.

Cocoanut Drop Cookies

One cup brown sugar, 2 cups cocoanut, 1 cup rolled oats, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt. Mix the foregoing ingredients in a warm bowl. In another bowl beat 1 egg, and add ½ cup milk and ¼ cup vegetable oil or melted butter. Add the first mixture and mix well, and drop from spoon on a well greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven of 375 deg. Fahr. This recipe may be varied by using raisins and nuts instead of cocoanut. You may want to double the quantity. I would strongly advise doubling or tripling the quantity of Chocolate Nut Diamonds as they are such favorites. If you can make shortbread it would be a nice addition.

Order of Serving

Hot dish first—then plates removed and punch served with which toasts are drunk. While time is taken for toast drinking the waitresses have time to remove soiled plates and bring in the ice cream without any obvious waiting. Small fancy cakes are passed. If nuts are served they are passed with the ice cream. Ice cream plates removed and coffee served and wedding cake.

We hope you find this satisfactory and shall be glad to hear from you again if you need more details before the wedding.

From your letter I gather you are a very energetic and capable girl and wish you the best of happiness.

QUESTION: Will you please give me your recipe for homemade pork and beans and also macaroni and cheese. I would also like a recipe for crushed pineapple pudding. Thanking you.—Sophie M.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

Homemade Pork and Beans

Two quarts—will serve 10 or 12 people.

One and one-half lbs. navy beans, ¾-lb. salt pork or side bacon, ½ teaspoon mustard, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup molasses, 1 small onion chopped, 1½ teaspoons salt (more if needed after 2 hours baking, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ cup catsup, 2 or 3 cups tomato juice. Soak beans overnight in 1 quart of water to which add ½ teaspoon soda. In morning bring to boil in fresh water and boil 20 minutes. Drain and save water, rinse with cold water. Pour water in which they were boiled back on and add remaining ingredients. When necessary to add more liquid add tomato juice. Bake in covered earthern crocks for 3 hours, then uncovered for 1 hour. Add tomato juice whenever beans need it. These are best on the second day when warmed up.

Macaroni and Cheese (A La Emen)

Three cups broken macaroni, 2½ cups milk, 2 cups grated cheese, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Boil the macaroni in plenty of salted water until tender. Drain. Melt butter, stir in flour, then warmed milk until it thickens, then salt and 1½ cups of the cheese. Pour macaroni into buttered baking dish, pour over cream sauce, and sprinkle remaining cheese on top, sprinkle this with paprika. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. (very slow) for 1 hour or more.

Hasty Pineapple Pudding

Mix 1 cup sugar, 1 cup crushed pineapple (pulp with a little of the juice), 1 tablespoon butter and 3 cups water. Boil together in shallow baking pan 10 minutes. In the meantime make a stiff batter of ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup flower. Drop by spoonfuls into boiling fruit mixture. Bake 20 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. Serves six people.

This is an excellent pudding.

Good Program In Preparation.

Ned Doherty of Rogers street is earning the thanks of the performers in a projected 17th of March entertainment in East City, by lending his home for rehearsals. The young people are planning a good program, with a play, dances, musical numbers and songs to be presented by the following young people: The Misses Helen Leahy, Molly Hogan, Virginia Pearson, Dolores Cleary, Annette Devlin, Helen O'Brien, Marjorie Huggins, Leo Cleary, Ike O'Leary, Bob Garvey, Jim Moher, Ted Beddings, Harold Corrigan, Wilfred Grisdale. A dialogue will also form a part of the program, taken by the Misses Bernice Pearson, Margaret Carveth, Helen Leahy, and Melville Curran, Harry Macdonald, 'Bus' McDougall. The balance of the evening will be spent in dancing.

Celebration of Double Anniversary.

A surprise party sponsored by Miss Helen McMillan celebrated a double observance in her home this week, when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McMillan of 359 Stewart Street, observed on Monday the birthday of Mrs. McMillan, and on Tuesday the thirty-ninth anniversary of their wedding.

A number of friends came in to offer congratulations and gifts and spend a pleasant evening in dancing, followed by the service of refreshments.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ruth, Mrs. Nicholls, Mrs. McConkey, Mrs. J. Kingsbury, Miss Emma Clementi, Miss Frances Dillon, Miss Helen Kelleher, Miss Jean Scott, Miss Jean Fee, Miss Mary Kingsbury, James Holland, George Pryde and Wilfred Rankin.

Mr. and Mrs. McMillan were married in Glasgow, Scotland, and lived in Ottawa before coming to Peterborough three years ago.

A cold is something you can't fool with. It can take hold quickly and develop seriously. Take no chances inviting serious complications by neglecting a cold.

GROVE'S BROMO QUININE is what you want for a cold. It is internal in effect. It does the four necessary things to break up a cold quickly and effectively.

1. It opens the bowels gently but effectively.
2. It combats the cold germs and fever in the system.
3. It relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling.
4. It tones up the system and helps fortify against further attacks.

This is the kind of treatment a cold requires. When you feel a cold coming on do something about it right away. Don't neglect it. Go right to your druggist and get a package of GROVE'S BROMO QUININE — and make sure you get Grove's!

Start taking the tablets two at a time. If taken promptly GROVE'S BROMO QUININE will check a cold within 24 hours—this is the kind of action you need to end a cold. 631

TAXING BOOTLEGGER?

Municipality Wishes to Know If It Can Place Tax on Bootlegger.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Feb. 17 (C.P.) —A question regarding whether it was permissible to impose business tax on a bootlegging business was asked by an unidentified municipality at the annual meeting of the Elgin Municipal Association yesterday. The reply, as furnished by W. S. McKay, substituting for his father, County Clerk K. W. McKay, was in the affirmative, with the provision there "are such things."

HAULING GOLD COSTLY

Four Billion Dollars Shipped to U.S. Since Early in 1934

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—(A.P.)—United States Government monetary experts estimated to-day foreigners have paid $22,000,000 for hauling gold across the Atlantic in the last three years.

The gold surge to this country, springing primarily from economic and political unrest abroad, has totalled $4,000,000,000 since the dollar

Sciatica Relieved; Energy Regained

Tonic Way Drives Out Pain; Brings Health.

Try the tonic way to drive out that punishing, stabbing pain of sciatica that seems like a knife stab in your hip and thigh. Take PHOSFERINE first to help drive out the pain, and then to build up your nervous and physical energy so that life once more looks bright.

"After taking only four doses of PHOSFERINE," writes Miss I. Bayles, Derby Street, London, "I was able to move about with ease, and I am glad to say I am now quite restored. On previous occasions PHOSFERINE has saved me from severe nerve pains and sleepless nights."

PHOSFERINE feeds your troubled nerves. It is concentrated nerve nourishment. As it does so, your general health is rapidly improved. You begin to eat better, and you sleep like a log at nights. Take this tonic way of escape from sciatica and rheumatic pain. Get PHOSFERINE from your druggist now. 50c, $1.00 (4 times as much), $1.50 (8 times as much—get this large economical size). 68

A PERFECT WIFE, MAN'S PIPE DREAM

Tenor Thinks She Should Allow Free Kissing, Stepping Out—And Never Belittle

She doesn't wince when another woman kisses her husband, although secretly she resents it deeply.

She never uses force to prevent her husband from "stepping out," because if he has inclinations in that direction, he will step anyway.

So said Mario Chamlee, handsome Metropolitan Opera tenor, to-day in giving a kind of abstract picture of "the perfect wife"—that male pipe dream.

That Button Question.

He listed three "main attributes or qualifications" of "the perfect wife" and then, warming to his subject, named 18 or 20 desirable subsidiary traits, such as;

"The perfect wife doesn't have to sew on her husband's buttons, but it's awfully sweet if she does."

He named as the perfect wife's "main attributes":

1. Understanding. She knows how to face problems and combat them.

2. Interest in her husband's work.

3. Faith in her husband's ability to accomplish things.

The question, "What is a perfect wife?" was raised in Supreme court here this week. Mrs. Blanche Kennedy, a Brooklyn school teacher, took the stand in her $200,000 alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Zoe Aston, and testified:

"My lawyer husband told me I was a perfect wife, but that he didn't want a perfect wife. He wanted someone to drink and carouse with him."

Out of court, Mrs. Kennedy said she really didn't know what a perfect wife was.—"Only a man would know that."

CANADIAN POULTRY MARKET IN BRITAIN

Coronation Festivities To Increase Demand Producers Are Told

TORONTO, Feb. 17. — Britain is likely to need a lot more poultry meat because of the Coronation festivities and the heavy influx of visitors this year, and it's up to the Canadian producer to get after that market, Clinton Henderson of Montreal, stated yesterday at the annual convention of the Canadian Produce Association, at the King Edward Hotel.

"It is our responsibility to try to pack and sell the British buyer what he wants," he said. "It's no use saying it can't be done. Serbia is doing it; so are Russia and Czechoslovakia and the Danes."

"Are we going to pass up this most exacting and selective market that pays the highest price, and sell in the less particular and lower-priced outlets?

Selective Breeding.

"Or are we going to take up the challenge, and, by education, by selective breeding, by careful feeding and killing, dressing, grading and packing, by co-operation and extra effort all along the line, supply each season an increasing volume of well-finished poultry meat that will be a credit to ourselves and to Canada, and an added and compelling reason to induce the Mother Country to look confidently to Canada?"

It had been established, the speaker said, that Western Canadian grain-fed turkeys could be finished in volume and transported in chilled, not frozen, condition, to Britain in time to grace its Christmas tables in competition with the best that France or Ireland or other nearby production areas could supply.

Ducklings, ducks and chickens could also be supplied acceptably and profitably continued. Unfortunately, however, there was keen competition from Continental sources. At the moment, Russian offerings and reports of heavy Russian shipments during the next sixty to ninety days, had tended to slow up British forward purchases of Canadian frozen-boxed chickens.

Prosperous Outlook.

"Taking a wide view of our industry," Mr. Henderson stated, "We do not hesitate to pronounce it in a healthy and prosperous condition."

WAR IS SURE TO COME

MONTREAL, Feb. 17 (C.P.). — Hostilities are bound to break out if the nations continue to rearm, Henri Bourassa, former member of Parliament for Labelle, declared last night in a public address. He advised French-Canadians, if they wished to prevent Canada's embroilment in another war, "to reach national unity with all groups in the country also desirous of peace."

"As Canadians, and we are Canadians first," he said, "we have the right to oppose being tempted to become involved in war."

Braid Glistens

Black costumes — frocks and suits—are greater favorites than ever this spring.

But black is almost sure to be embellished with a color—white, maybe, silver, gold, or something that sparkles. The charming black crepe frock with bolero jacket, worn by Joan Blondell, has a white collar and jabot, and glistening cire braid for trimming. The braid forms the cuffs, skirt banding and wide belt.

HANDLE GAS ATTACKS

QUEBEC, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Laval University announced last night it had received a suggestion from Col. L. R. Lafleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, that it institute special courses on treatment in the event of poison gas attacks.

The suggestion, according to Abbe A. Maheux, the University's general secretary, was made in a letter to him. Enclosed, the Abbe said, was a technical memo containing information telling future doctors how to handle gassed patients.

Fashion Service

You can sew this double duty two-piece dress at an important saving in cost. It's so frivolously gay, you'll wear it now 'neath your dark winter coat and for spring and resort.

It is as gay as a lark in peasant crepe print and serves as a little suit ensemble.

The bodice of the dress is very simple and not too bulky so as to cause any conflicting lines to the jacket. The bodice also offers splendid opportunity for contrast. The skirt has the new back fulness, held snug at the hipline through inverted pin tucks.

Use the pattern again for a summer ensemble in linens, cotton or bright thin woolen. The sewing chart included tells in pictures exactly how to cut and stitch it.

Style No. 2532 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19 years. Size 15 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ⅞ yard of 39-inch contrast for dress; jacket requires 2 yards of 39-inch material.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

WHOEVER starts off in life with the idea, "I shall succeed," always does succeed because he does what is necessary to bring about this result. If only one opportunity presents itself to him, and if this opportunity has as it were only one hair on its head, he seizes it by that one hair. Further, he often brings about, unconsciously or not propitious circumstances.—Emile Coue.

Dear Friends:

Do you remember a few years ago, that most of us were going around saying, "every day, in every way, I am getting better and better?" but what is the use of just saying that without doing anything about it. There are opportunities on every side of us if we are only alert to grasp them.

There is nothing that exasperates me so much as to hear people say that there are not the opportunities now that there used to be. When Emile Coue came over to America with this suggestion, I was suffering very much with a certain malady. I said over and over the phrase that he had suggested, but I found I had to use the services of my doctor and the drugs he gave me before it did me any good.

Just merely saying a thing without using the means at hand is no good at all. You must use your hands as well as your brain. As I said before, thoughts are very powerful things, wishing also is powerful, but you must turn the switch of life before you get results.

There is so much wasteful wishing goes on, that it is a wonder that people would not get wise to themselves, that wishing without doing is no good at all. You might as well go to a doctor, get a prescription, and refuse to use it, as to wish and not be alert for every opportunity that comes along.

If you ever read about successful people, you will find that they did not have it easy, but they grasped every opportunity no matter how small it was, to better themselves. The curious thing is, that when you are alive to the small things, the larger things have a tendency to be attracted your way, because of your determination to succeed.

So many start wishing, then wait for things to drop into their lap like ripe fruit, and that is why you see so many men and youths on street corners. Have you ever seen women or girls standing at street corners waiting for a job to come to them. Oh no, they are out haunting offices, or stores, or factories, so that they will not miss any chances.

Listen to what Marshall says:

"Hope is a state of mind which can either be helpful or destructive. The destructive hopes are those which leads us to ignore facts and to hold impossibly rosy views concerning the future. The helpful hopes are those which give us a commendable aim for which to strive. But remember, that it is only the man or woman who has the vision to be hopeful in a sane way, who will derive any benefit from this quality."

And our Lord said: "Seek and ye shall find. Knock and it shall be opened to you." I have mentioned this word before, "guts" but how seldom we find it among a certain class. They wish, never forget they do wish, but they haven't the "guts" to go ahead and try to make their dreams come true. They are always waiting for someone with "pull" to get them the things they want, and can you wonder that they never get very far.

Why wait for someone else to get the plums in life for you, when you have the ability to get them yourself, if you only have the strength of mind to reach out for them. So if you spend time wishing, start doing too, and see the result.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

MARBLE QUARRY MAY BE OPENED

Toronto Syndicate Investigate Site In Vicinity Of Bancroft

TWEED, Feb. 17. — Greater activity in the quarrying and manufacturing of marble in the district of Bancroft is expected to be noted following the visit of two Toronto syndicate representatives last week, who have been endeavoring to obtain options on marble properties. If successful in this a crushing plant will be installed near the village of Bancroft and the manufacture of the raw material into a saleable product will begin.

Mr. Thomas Morrison and Mr. Cooper of Toronto, who have spent the past month in the vicinity of Baptiste opening up a molybdenite property, left for Toronto on Tuesday expecting to return shortly to resume operations. If successful, it will be the second operation of its kind to operate in Southern Ontario. The Phoenix Molybdenite Mines in the County of Renfrew are successfully operating, and as a result of the efforts of a group of unemployed fellows, have made a successful venture.

Fifteen thousand mulberry trees are being planted for the Lullinstone, England, silkworms, which are producing the silk for the Royal Family to wear at the Coronation.

For traveling Merle Oberon, screen star, wears this smart costume of woven tweed. The box-shaped cape reaches to the bottom of her skirt, the nutria trimming following around the neck to the hem. A dark brown felt hat with towering feather completes the costume.

The wide-brimmed hat is by no means out in the Paris winter style picture. Large hats are tailored and may be worn with collarless coats, or set high on the head so that they do not interfere with the fur-collared wraps. Fur trimming, such as fox pompoms, decorate them.

Pillow purses, nearly a foot square and closing with a flap like an envelope, are the latest thing in Paris. They are decorated with silver initials.

NAME BEATTY PRESIDENT.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17 (CP).—The election of Sir Edward Beatty, Chancellor of McGill University, as president of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, was announced today by directors of the committee.

Development of a program for safeguarding the mental health of school children is being emphasized by the committee, it was said, and special training for teachers is a primary aim.

BABY NEED NOT GET YOU UP

YOU and your baby both need sleep. There is a sure and easy way to get it. Let Mrs. B——, Jr., of Winona, Ontario, tell you in her own words. "Night after night, as soon as we would get settled in bed, 'baby' would start crying. . . . Baby's Own Tablets changed all this. What a blessed relief."

In no sense are these "sleeping" tablets. But they promote healthful sleep by promptly making the ill baby well. The well baby always sleeps soundly.

They are perfectly safe for even the most delicate baby. Absolutely harmless, too. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. As easy to take as candy. Sweet-tasting and quick in their action. Each package gives an analyst's report.

Baby's Own Tablets bring quick relief from most of "baby's" ills. Teething troubles, constipation, simple fever, diarrhoea, upset stomach, colic, simple croup and colds all disappear when Baby's Own Tablets are given. 25 cents a box. If they are not effective, your druggist will refund your money.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blasts up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

PLAY IS REPEATED AT JOINT MEETING

Enjoyable Program Given In Zion Church By Y.P.U. Members

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 17. — Lindsay Anderson, president of the Petherick Corners Young People's Union welcomed the members of Y.P.U. at a joint meeting held in the Zion Church on Monday evening when St. John's were the guests of Pethericks Corners and provided a very fine program for the entertainment of their hosts.

The meeting opened with a hymn following which the Rev. Harold B. Neale led in prayer after which Miss Reta Palliser, president of the St. John's group expressed the thanks of the organization for the courtesy of their hosts in extending the invitation.

The first number on the program which followed was the novelty orchestra consisting of Arn Bates, Fred Palliser, Frank McKelvie, Clark McKelvie, and Don Holmes, which was encored. The main portion of the program was devoted to the presentation of the play "A Bargain's a Bargain" which the Young People presented in St. John's Church last November.

The cast for the play included Clara Smith, Reta Pallister, Grace Brown, Reta Blake, Annie Howe, Mazo Blake, Alex Smith, Don Holmes, Monti Brown, Morley Horseman, Fred Howe, and Ernie Archer. A piano solo by Arnold Bates; reading by Mary Murphy; violin solo, Clarke McKelvie; and a vocal solo by Mrs. A. G. Watson made up the balance of the entertainment following which lunch was served and the meeting closed with the Benediction.

WILL MODERNIZE HER BATTLESHIPS

Every fourth battalion of regulars will be supplied with the latest model machine guns, developed by British arms experts in secrecy. They are known, however, to be capable of extraordinary rapid fire.

Cavalry, pride of the British army on parade, will be almost entirely abandoned. Horses will be supplanted by light, fast tanks and armored cars.

As a war reserve, it is estimated the War Office has in the past few months ordered more than 4,000,000 rifles.

Increased personnel and equipment in the naval air arm alone will cost approximately $350,000,000 as compared with average expenditures of $60,000,000 in the years between 1931 and 1934.

However, according to the newspaper Daily Mail—the only press organ to take such a view—the program is not sufficient.

"In view of the deplorable state of unpreparedness emphasized in the White Paper the provision for the urgent needs of defence is still lamentably low," The Daily Mail said.

"Britain's £1,500,000,000 in five years is a paltry figure compared with the £1,200,000,000 which Germany spends in a 12-month."

Sir Archibald Sinclair and Sir Francis Acland, Liberals, and Hugh Dalton and Pethwick Lawrence, Labor, were expected to assail the Government on various aspects of the plan in the House to-day.

1—Rearmament should be financed through regulation.

2—The White Paper does not give adequate information regarding the program.

3—Evidence is lacking that defence measures are being co-ordinated.

4—A constructive Government peace policy is not followed.

The White Paper stated that a close watch would be maintained on the international situation and that the program could be reduced if conditions warranted such action.

Napanee, Feb. 17 (CP)

TWO Flinton residents today dragged a wolf-hide, measuring seven feet, six inches from tip to tip, into the office of County Treasurer T. J. Cook and claimed the $15 government bounty. Hide of the fourth wolf they had killed, it was one of the largest ever seen here.

The men told the treasurer they shot the wolf on Loon Lake, 18 miles north of Flinton while it fed on the carcass of a deer.

OBITUARY

MRS. B. M. RICHMOND.

MADOC, Feb. 17.—The funeral of the late Mrs. B. M. Richmond was held on Monday at 2.30 p.m. from her residence on Prince Albert street, Madoc, to Trinity United church.

The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. E. Kennedy, whose message to the mourners and sorrowing neighbors was based on the text, "My place I give unto you, let not your hearts be troubled." John xiv:27. Beautiful hymns were used, "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me," with Mrs. L. Ashley acting as organist. The solo was beautifully sung by Mrs. W. Hulin, "Leave We Here Thy Servant Sleeping." Georgeous spring flowers of daffodils and tulips were mute expressions of the sympathy of friends and relatives.

The late Mrs. B. M. Richmond passed away on Saturday at Belleville General Hospital after a short illness, following a fall at her home when she suffered a fractured hip joint, and was believed to be recovering nicely but heart failure followed. She was at the age of 79 years, 5 months.

Mrs. Richmond was born in Madoc village, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David C. Brown, and had lived here all her life. She was married fifty-nine years ago last December to Byron M. Richmond, also born in Madoc, who passed away two and a half years ago.

She is survived by three daughters, Ethel and Sylvia at home and Mrs. B. Bailey (Lena), of Madoc township, and three grandchildren, Madeline, Douglas and Lorne Bailey. One sister, Mrs. George Huffman, of Madoc, also survives.

The late Mrs. B. M. Richmond was one of the home-loving ones, quiet, efficient and helpful, a consistent Christian and always in her place at church while health and strength permitted. She will be sadly missed among a large circle of friends and neighbors in the community.

The pallbearers were Messrs. W. McBain, C. I. Ross, John Smith, R. F. Bristol, William Gray and William Roberts. Flowers were borne by Robert Bristol, Edward Gillen and William Roberts.

Among those from a d istance were: Mr. and Mrs. Blake Waite and son, Roswell, of Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coulter and Miss Moreen of Smithfield; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Armstrong of Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. Armour Reid, Mr. Ernest Reid and Mrs. Norman Reid of Belleville; Mrs. Wesley Huffman of Belleville; Mrs. Paul Sharpe of Wellman's; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Trasher, Mr. William McMechan and Mrs. Summers, of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Bullimer Belshaw of Stirling; Mr. and Mrs. Phil. Carr of West Huntingdon.

Interment was made at Lakeview cemetery.

tions but both persisted in saying relief was a municipal and provincial responsibility.

Lauds Wage Increase

Mr. Habel praised the Government for action towards increasing the wages of bush workers in Northern Ontario. But it was still necessary, he said, to keep a close check on the operators.

"Wages and conditions are not all for the best everywhere in our district," he said.

The Cochrane North member visioned the town of Cochrane as an important supply point for the Quebec mining area adjacent to northern Ontario. He proposed the construction of a road east from Cochrane to the Quebec boundary. The 52-mile stretch would all be on high lands, thus lessening the cost of construction.

"Such a road would also open new territory full of mining possibilities in Ontario," he said.

As substitutes for direct relief, Mr. Habel suggested road work or land clearing bonuses. He said he had no doubts about farming possibilities in the Cochrane district.

Mr. Habel said "Providence was generous to the Empire in permitting so peaceful a solution to the problems raised by the abdication of King Edward VIII.

"Being of French descent, I am first of all a Canadian, and that I want to be as long as God will spare us Kings such as the one we have to-day in His Gracious Majesty George VI." he said. "We Canadians of French descent are and will be what Canadians ought to be, that is to say, loyal and true to our King and to our country. May God bless our King with a long and glorious reign."

were doubtful but were prepared to support the estimates if it could be shown they were for the defence of Canada and not for participation in imperialistic or European wars.

Supporting the estimates were Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources; Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture; Oscar Boulanger (Lib. Bellechasse) and Samuel Factor (Lib. Toronto-Spadina).

Conservatives have remained silent throughout the debate so far and members of the Social Credit group are divided. Two of the latter came out in support of the C.C.F. motion but the others were either non-committal or in favor of the estimates.

None of the Liberals who criticized the estimates were ready to support the motion which amounts to a vote of want of confidence in the government.

Future in the Empire

"In-so-far as Canada is concerned our future will be in the British Empire," said Mr. Gardiner. "Let us examine this to see what position we would find ourselves in if we possessed greater independence.

"Where would we find ourselves with our millions of bushels of wheat in the central prairies, with our cattle, with our minerals and with our forests turning out lumber products required in all the countries of the world?

"Where would we find ourselves with no defences in our ports, no mine sweepers on the St. Lawrence or on the Pacific coast, no protection whatsoever? If Great Britain were at war and we were in a position of that kind and did not go into the war her ships would have to come to our ports, not her ships to carry freight but her ships to protect the freight. They would have to come to Quebec or perhaps to Montreal and the first ship that sailed into either of these ports or into the Gulf of St. Lawrence would put this country into war whether we liked it or not."

Similarly, said the minister, if Canada relied on friendship of the United States events might compel that country, in the face of hostilities to take action which would put Canada into war in order to prevent a hostile power taking advantage of an undefended Canada to attack the United States.

Wars were usually caused by some people being unable to maintain themselves in their territory and seeking more, said Mr. Gardiner. Canadians occupied one of the most sparsely-populated countries of the world and there were other densely populated areas seeking outlets for their people.

Want No Immigrants

Members of the C.C.F. were the first to condemn any suggestion that people from these countries should be brought to Canada and they also objected to measures of defence to prevent attacks on this country. If the problems of the world were ever solved in a way which would avoid war there would have to be a shifting of the population of the world. There would have to be more than a Canada-first policy, some policy which would contemplate world-wide adjustments.

Sam Factor (Lib. Toronto-Spadina) told the House he had received literally hundreds of communications from constituents opposed to the increase in the defence estimates.

"The greatest majority do not come from Communists, wild-eyed radicals, but from respected citizens, not from foreigners but from Anglo-Saxons. All are opposed to the increase as a preparation for war, as the entry of Canada into a race for armaments. It is all very disturbing and confusing."

Part of this exaggerated fear was due to the uneasiness of the times, he said.

"If I followed the line of least resistance and wanted to curry favor with my constituents, I would stand here and attack the government and minister of defence.

"If I thought this further increase of a few millions means a race for armament for war, meant precipitation of this country into war, party loyalty or not, I would not stand for an increase of estimates."

A new war would bring belligerent nations back to savagry with tremendous danger even to neutral nations, said Mr. Factor.

Not Preparing For War.

Mr. Factor said he did not believe in a policy of preparation for war and did not believe the Government was following such a policy. He deplored dictatorships and international and racial hatreds some of which were apparent even in Canada, but he had to realize that the world was not in an idealist mood.

Even those who opposed the increases most strongly, he said, would not be prepared to abolish all defence preparations. They were inconsistent in this, for if there was to be a defence force at all it should be an efficient force. The increases were merely to provide efficient equipment for Canada's forces.

As a Canadian, Mr. Factor said he was ready to defend free Canadian institutions against a dictatorship of the proletariat or an individual.

Mr. Parent said he could not convince himself the proposed increase would be sufficient to stop a menace from outside Canada or that so much money was needed to meet any menace from within. As far as threats from without were concerned, they were largely imaginary.

"I am going to vote against this increase," said Mr. Parent, "because it is my sincere conviction that we are just knitting the sleeve of Canada's new military uniform which will eventually cost millions and millions of dollars."

WEDDINGS

HICKS—BEARE.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 16.—The Free Methodist Church at Armadale was the scene of a pretty wedding when Esther Elizabeth Beare, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Beare of Armadale, was married to Rev. James P. Hicks of Napanee, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hicks of Campbellford. Rev. A. F. Ball of Kingston, assisted by Rev. S. S. Bailey of Armadale, officiated. Miss Jessie Hicks acted as bridesmaid and Russell Beare was best man.

During the signing of the register Miss Olive Ireland and Miss Winnifred Gillespie sang. The ushers were Gordon Clayton, Gilbert McEachern and Reginald Chown. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A buffet lunch was served to about 70 guests. After a brief honeymoon the couple will reside in Napanee.

And, best of all, our fuel bills are lower

Those who have changed to the modern, all-Canadian fuel —Hamco Coke—are finding each day a new comfort, more even heat in every room, and less back-breaking labour. And, best of all, when they check their bills at the end of the first month (or at the end of the season) they will find that their expenditures for fuel have been materially reduced.

Try Hamco Coke now! Notice how clean it is, how light on the shovel, and how quickly it responds to the drafts on cold mornings. Notice, too, how few ashes are left to carry out each week.

ESTIMATES OF $114,000 ARE GIVEN BOARD

BUDGET SUMMARY

Preliminary estimates of the Board of Works for 1937 were compiled Tuesday night at $114,000, an increase of $49,000 over the 1936 estimates of $65,000.

The increase was equipment to 2½ mills. Alderman Hamilton commented, and the attitude of the Board was expressed in Mayor Macdonald's remark that the budget of the largest spending body over which the council has control would be subjected to further paring at a later meeting.

Total expenditures last year amounted to $71,773.83 and the appropriation was $64,775, leaving a deficit of $6,998.83. Credits to the Board of $2,991.66 reduced the overdraft to $4,007.17.

Summary of Budget

Copies of the estimates were supplied to each member by the chairman, Alderman Sloan, and the numerous items were scanned in detail.

The following is a summary of the proposed expenditures for 1937 according to their grouping:— streets and bridges, $35,600; dust laying, $6,500; snow removal, $5,000; sewage disposal, $8,500; sidewalks, $2,715; retread roads, $37,283.00; storm drains, $12,245; special items, $18,180; wage and salary increases, $2,175. The total was $128,208, but the first elimination last night, amounting to $14,158, brought the total down to $114,050. And it will be from that stage the council will proceed when the tax rate has to be compressed to the figure that is being contemplated for this year.

Envisioning Work

In his contribution to the budget City Engineer Parsons submitted estimates for what is known as re-tread surfaced roads, similar to the material used on Monaghan Road and in some other sections. This form of pavement has been considered by the council as an improvement to the city streets which bear a secondary measure of traffic, and also as a means of providing labor. This proposed program follows:— Romaine street, from George street to Monaghan Road, $9,000. This item was cut to $4,500 for the section from George to Park street. Stewart street, from Charlotte to Wolfe street, $5,000; cut to $3,000 for the stretch from Charlotte to Dalhousie or Sherbrooke street.

George street, from Park Hill Road to Barnardo Avenue, $4,200 was erased for this year, because it was believed that the bulk of the northbound traffic followed Water street north of Park Hill Road, and also because George street north was reported in good condition.

Aylmer street from Dublin street to Park Hill Road, $3,500.

The Board can dispense with this entire group of projects if the exigencies of rate fixing demand it, but on the other hand the council regards these streets as needing a form of permanent surfacing. At any rate this road work is due for reconsideration.

Storm Drains

Another branch of the Board's annual operations was the list of storm drains, favorably viewed at first glance because they provide proportionally the most employment. And if money is allotted for such operations it should be that much less required for relief.

The total cost of this work as estimated by City Engineer Parsons was $12,245, but $2,925 was cut off by leaving for some other year the drains needed on Ware street, Douglas Avenue and Jackson Avenue, all in the south end.

Streets that were tentatively left on the storm drain list for the present were: Elias, Maitland, Pearl and Boswell Avenues, $315 each.

Park street from McDonnel to London street $555. Donegal street from the Creek to Murray street, $220; and Donegal from McDonnel to Dublin street, $1,067.

London street on both Gilchrist and Donegal streets, each $203.

Gilchrist street, north of London street, $430. Lock street from Romaine to the C.N.R., $500, and from Gladstone to the C.N.R., $407.

King Edward street, past the Children's Shelter, from Lock to George street, $250.

Lafayette Avenue, $450. And in the Auburn district. Moir street from the river to River Road, $2500; and River Road from Moir to Vinette street, $1,275.

Special Items

Estimates listed in a special group include $1,700 for a factory fence around the city's yard on Townsend street; and $340 for a fence around the gravel pit on the Lakefield Road.

For several years the need of fencing the yard on Townsend street where the Board of Works has several storage and other buildings has been urged by succeeding councils, but action has been deterred by the expense involved. Incidentally, Alderman Sloan reported that the cost of the fence was $100 more than last year as a result of the higher price of steel this year.

A new power grader at $3,700 has also been advocated for the maintenance of the city's streets and as a means of making full use of the new resource of crushed stone at the Lakefield road quarry.

A rest room at King Edward Park costing $3,000 is admittedly required for the convenience of the large number of people who use the park for games of all kinds during the summer, and the council last year virtually agreed that the south end of the city would receive in 1937 a building similar to the one built in Inverlea Park last year.

A small bridge over a creek on Armour Road south of the C.P.R. at a cost of $800 was provided for in the 1936 estimates, and is again listed for 1937.

A gas tank and pump to be set up in the city's Townsend street yard is estimated at $150; and the proposed purchase of a sand pit is listed at $1,500.

A combination street flusher and oiler, regarded as an economy in oiling the streets, costing $5,000 was left out of the reckoning for this year; and also an item of $1,500 for filling in the eastern section of the Crescent street bank of the Little Lake as far as the cemetery.

Alderman McIntyre suggested that City Engineer Parsons estimate the cost of a storm drain on Park Hill Road from Monaghan Road to the creek. This is in front of Jackson Park where water flows down from the township side of the boundary.

Concrete Sidewalks

Four sidewalks in the northwest end of the city were estimated at $2,715. They are planned for O'Carroll Avenue; Aylmer street to Manning Avenue; Bethune street to O'Carroll Avenue. These three were approved, and a sidewalk for Park Hill Road, north side, from Aylmer street to Bethune street was struck out.

Roads and Bridges

The appropriation for roads and bridges last year was $45,975 as compared with $35,600 this year. This section of the Board's budget includes numerous items such as paving maintenance repairs, grass and weed cutting, crushed stone, trucks, pumping station maintenance, and so on.

GOODWILL TOUR IS BEING PLANNED FOR WEEK-END MAY 24

Kawartha And Haliburton Tourist Association Plans Tour Into Ohio

FOUR-DAY ITINERARY

At an executive meeting of the Kawartha and Haliburton Tourist Association held at Lindsay on Tuesday afternoon, it was decided to conduct a good-will tour over the week-end of May 24 to several cities in the United States, particularly in Ohio.

Headed by President G. K. Fraser of Burleigh Falls, the executive were unanimously agreed that a goodwill tour across the international border by a motorcade from this district would prove an effective means of advertising.

A special committee was named to work out details of the motorcade and to enlist the support of the Ontario Travel and Publicity Bureau.

Starting from Campbellford the motorcade plans to go via Peterborough, Lindsay and Toronto to Buffalo and to include in a four-day itinerary such centres as Erie, Cleveland, Columbus, Akron and Rochester.

The Ontario Travel and Publicity Bureau is to be asked to provide a motor van in which tourist literature might be carried and displayed.

Objective 100 Cars.

Members of the general public residing in the district covered by the Association are invited to join the motorcade in their own cars, the objective being a 100-car caravan.

In addition to Mr. Fraser those present at the executive meeting included: Vice-Presidents W. G. Thorne of Lindsay and Walter Fowlie of Hastings; J. J. Dorris, secretary-treasurer; and A. L. Currie, Haliburton, Fred C. Marshall and R. W. Young of Peterborough, J. H. Stinson, K.C., Lindsay, Dr. W. L. Crowe, Minden, and Warden Roy Brown of Apsley.

At the present time Mr. Young is busy with preparations for the printing of 10,000 booklets pertaining to the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Highlands districts which are to be published by the Association early in March for distribution among travel bureaus, auto clubs, cruising and fishing associations, service clubs, railroads and hotels in sections of the United States from which this district annually draws its tourists.

The booklet, it was stated by Secretary James J. Dorris, is being planned along the lines of the brochure published by the Canadian Travel and Publicity Bureau at Ottawa.

Love Bird Lost Mate So Owner Places Mirror Near Bird's Lonely Corner

It is said that a love bird never survives its mate, but Walter Belleghem has disputed this axiom with apparent success.

Four months ago, Mr. Belleghem was proud owner of a pair of love birds. But Darby died. In pitiful distress its mate Dick moved to one corner of the cage, and all efforts to restore it to activity seemed of no avail. It sat silently, refused to eat or drink and was in grave danger of slowly wasting away.

After countless attempts to bring about the bird's recovery had failed, the owner struck on a novel idea. He fastened a small mirror on the side of the cage where the lonely bird could see a reflection of itself, and perhaps be foiled into believing its mate had been restored.

The trick appears to be working. The bird is still alive, and is taking an increasing interest in life from day to day. While Dick still refuses to budge from his corner, he will now eat and drink, and Mr. Belleghem is hopeful the bird might disprove the old belief.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ESTIMATES ARE INCREASED $1,725

Budget Submitted By Alderman E. R. Wilson Totals $33,125

SALARIES BIG ITEM

A tentative increase of $1,725 in the estimates of the fire department was temporarily approved by the Fire, Water and Light Committee Tuesday night as the budget submitted by Alderman E. R. Wilson was trimmed down to $33,125 for 1937 as compared with $31,400 last year.

Included in the total was $27,280.24 salaries on the reduced basis since the civic cut of 12½ per cent. was applied. Alderman Wilson reported that the officers and men of the department were hoping that their salaries would be restored to the total of $30,515.85, but this item was left for further consideration, probably when the Finance Committee is discussing all municipal salaries.

Purchase of 1,000 feet of new 2½-inch hose at a cost of $1,300 was left in the estimates on Alderman Wilson's explanation that the department had to scrap 1,900 feet of hose last year. An appropriation of $700 for a Johnson pumper was also passed for the time being with $300 for new tarpaulins, but $300 for a three-way deluge set was struck out. The first two requisitions may also have to be eliminated when the Finance Committee reaches the final stage of determining the tax rate for this year. For the present, the Johnson pump and the tarpaulins remain in the estimates, and it seemed likely that the committee's recommendation for 1,000 feet of new hose would survive the ultimate pruning.

Spent $30,920 in 1936

Chief Gimblett's statement presented the details of last year's expenditure of $30,920 of the total estimates of $31,400. For what might be classed as ordinary expenditures, including salaries, the total last year was $30,263.08, the estimates were $30,700, and the new estimates for this list amount to $30,725.24, after $100 had been clipped off two separate items for the alarm system and "motors, gasoline, etc." Several other perennial items such as the $300 for the deluge set, $6,000 for a new pumper, $7,000 for a bungalow station in the factory section of the south end and $9,800 for its equipment were deleted as a matter of custom.

Summary of Items

The general details of the proposed estimates for this year were: Office, $100; supplies, $200; repairs, $100; light and power, $225; telephones, $130; laundry, $140; alarm system, $300; motors, gas, etc., $300; fuel, $400 (last year $450); service equipment, $150; extinguisher supplies, $100; caps and shirts, $200; uniforms and overcoats, $600; insurance, $300; incidentals, $200; salaries, $27,280.24; hose, 1,000 feet, $1,300; Johnson pump, $700; tarpaulins, $300; two extinguishers, $100. Total, $33,125.

On Alderman McIntyre's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover, the chairman, Ald. Wilson, was authorized to advertise for tenders for new uniforms for the firemen.

Alderman Juby reminded the committee of the need of stop lights at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets, "before somebody is killed there." He said that the inbound traffic on Charlotte street was often at a rapid speed, especially by strangers who were unaware of the Park street crossing.

Alderman McIntyre also mentioned the McDonald-Aylmer corner as also being dangerous. Alderman Wilson said that traffic lights cost $600 a set, and no action was taken last night.

NEW CAMPING SITE TOURISTS NEEDED

Riverside Park Is Urged By Mayor As a Suitable Camping Grounds

Provision of a tourist camping site at Riverside Park was urged by Mayor George Macdonald at the conclusion of the City Council committee meetings Tuesday evening.

"It is time we gave the idea serious consideration," Mayor Macdonald said. "By accommodating tourists at Riverside Park, we can bring them up through the city from No. 7 Highway. There could be no finer spot for a tourist camp than Riverside."

He declared the city is losing the benefit of a portion of the tourist traffic through the camp site on the Exhibition Grounds. Visitors can pass right on down No. 7 highway without ever seeing the city's business section, he said. He estimated the cost of fixing Riverside Park up for the purpose as no more than $200 or $300.

General approval of the proposal was voiced by other members present.

WILL NOT CALL ELLIS

Hangman Be Biased in Giving Evidence About Lethal Chamber.

OTTAWA, Feb 17.—(CP)— Suggestion that Arthur Ellis, Canada's senior hangman, be asked to give evidence yesterday was withdrawn at a meeting of the committee of the House of Commons on the criminal code. The committee is discussing the lethal chamber for the scaffold.

Objections were raised that Ellis would be biased, that he had been putting persons to death for years and that he would lose his job.

Not Mr. Gable

This photo from London, England, came identified as that of Frank B. Billings, who Mrs. Violet Norton of Winnipeg claims is really Clark Gable of screen fame and the father of her teen-age daughter, Gwendolyn. Mrs. Norton is held by Los Angeles police facing charges of attempting to secure money from Gable for support of her daughter. Gable declares that he has never been in England and is NOT Billings. The London caption writer says this is Billings.

HOUSE OF MAGIC IS WORTHY EXHIBIT MODERN SCIENCE

AT WORLD'S FAIR

It is probable that Houdini at the height of his career as a magician never presented a more satisfying program than the series of scientific demonstrations being staged in the Collegiate auditorium here with the visit of The General Electric "House of Magic."

To miss the final presentation of this evening, is to miss something really worthwhile from the instructive, educational or entertainment viewpoint.

Unlike Houdini who employed the skilful art of legerdemain, William A. Gluesing who has charge of the "House of Magic" demonstrations, offers a program in which, to quote the words of Carl A. Salmonsen, works manager of the C.G.E. plant here, "We find something significant and get a bird'seye view of the great possibilities of the unknown in the field of electrical science."

Auspices S and A Club

Introducing Mr. Gluesing to the large crowd gathered on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the C.G.E. Social and Athletic Club, Mr. Salmonsen said it was a great privilege to present a man who had travelled so far in the field of electrical science and had pleased so many people.

Mr. Salmonsen referred to the term "House of Magic" as being something of a misnomer that was applied to The General Electric laboratories at Schenectady, N.Y., in 1928 by Floyd Gibbons.

Five years later the G. E. Company adopted the phrase in their advertising and the Schenectady laboratories became the original "House of Magic". The laboratories employ nine hundred workers including three hundred scientists, technicians and physicists. Many spectacular experiments are conducted there in the never ending search for scientific knowledge.

At World's Fair

Responding to general public demand Mr. Salmonsen related, the company built a miniature "House of Magic" on wheels. A similar unit to the one in Peterborough was a feature of the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, where Mr. Gluesing exhibited it for two years. It was also at the Canadian National Exhibition and in New York City.

Among a whole series of amazing demonstrations that were presented by Mr. Gluesing in rapid succession, and which held his audience enthralled, Polaroid, the new material that enables light to travel only in one plane demonstrated publicly for the first time, and the veriest layman cannot but be impressed with the apparent number of commercial possibilities which it offers.

For instance it promises to eliminate the glare and danger from blinding automobile headlights, and it is said to possess the potentialities of opening up a whole new science of eye-saving and extra-efficient illumination.

When two sections of this glass-like material are placed against each other it is possible by changing the relative positions of the two pieces of polaroid to either pass light or stop it.

With its use, the demonstrator obtained some startling and most spectacular color effects from ordinary transparent celluloid and cellophane.

DAVID HARDIE SAILED SEAS IN CLIPPER DAYS

Now 87 Years Old, Scoffs At Idea Man Should Retire At 60

MAKES TENTS

David Hardie, 87-year-old manager of a tent and awning business in this city, scoffs at the idea that a man who is hale and hearty should retire from business when he reaches the age of 60.

He is a master sailmaker, and has the entire responsibility of his thriving little industry on his shoulders but, despite his advanced age, is keenly alert to modern business methods, and far more active than many men 20 years his junior.

In 1864, at the age of 17, he finished his apprenticeship as a sailmaker in the sail loft of John McLeod, Regent street, London, England, and went to sea. In those days clippers were the "Queen of the Sea," and steamships were still in second place. Mutiny, poor food, and voyages lasting seven months were the order of the day. A sailmaker was rated as a petty officer and shared special quarters with the ship's carpenter.

Mr. Hardie sailed from London to China in the Thermopylae, the sails of which he made, and on the return voyage this four-master set a record for speed when she completed the voyage in 64 days, around the Cape of South Africa.

Raced Cutty Sark

This ship was known as a tea clipper in the 800-ton class. She was owned by the Aberdeen White Star Line and was skippered by Captain Alexander Jenkins. Her keenest competitor for fast runs was the Cutty Shark, an independently-owned clipper. Mr. Hardie told how 2,000-ton clippers would put out from England with a mixed cargo, sail to China, thence to Australia, where they took on wool, before going back to England.

Mr. Hardie has been around the world seven times, spending ten years in sailing vessels, before starting a tent and sail business at Sydney, Australia where he worked for 35 years.

The largest tents used by circuses, measuring 200 x 600 feet have been made in Mr. Hardie's little factory. Ringlang, Barnum and Bailey, and the famous Flying Jordans being among his customers. Last month he received a large order for new tents from Conklin Brothers, sufficient to keep the staff at full time for two months.

Enjoyment In Work.

Asked if he believed in the general idea that a man should retire at sixty, he said: "That's ridiculous, one's greatest enjoyment is in one's work, so why should a man retire when he is well and able to work. When I am unable to continue, my son will take full charge but I don't expect that will happen for a few years anyway."

His first voyage was made on a 1,200-ton barque named the "Lowena," and he says he was sick for a week. When the nausea wore off, his appetite was enormous and he never had any difficulty during the remainder of the time on the water.

OVER 600 ATTEND CURLERS' BANQUET IN TORONTO HOTEL

Only Nine Rinks Finish Second Day Of Bonspiel Undefeated

MANY TIGHT FINISHES

TORONTO Feb. 17.— Over 600 sat down last evening at the annual banquet of the Ontario curling bonspiel in a downtown hotel when the veritable army of good fellows called off curling for the night and traded besom and stane for knife and fork.

Banquet Chairman and toastmaster was Fred J. Lucas of Toronto Chairman of the Ontario Bonspiel Committee.

After Rev. J. S. Shortt of Barrie Chaplain of the Ontario Curling Association, had said grace, toasts were drunk to the King and the President of the United States. The toast to President Rocsevelt was a graceful acknowledgment of the fact that three rinks from Detroit and one from Portage, Wisconsin, are here competing in the tenth annual Ontario bonspiel.

Because of last night's annual banquet of the Ontario Curling Association, only four rounds were staged yesterday. But the Seiberling, Seagram, Birks-Ellis-Ryrie and North American Life contests produced a flock of close finishes and upsets. Chief surprise was the 13-12 defeat of H. H. Chisholm's Toronto rink, 1936 grand aggregate winner, by D. B. Holden of Detroit, in the first round of the Seiberling.

Nine rinks finished the second day undefeated. Scheduled to open late to-day was the Canada Dry Trophy event, for losers of three games in early playdowns, and there were 13 eligibles

Bert Hall Going Fine

Best-known among the unbeaten fours was that skipped by Bert Hall, Kitchener, who made an outstanding showing in the recent Ontario Tankard. Other Western Ontario rinks which had yet to suffer a loss were led by A. C. Gardiner, Sarnia; M. W. Binkley, Stratford, and H. Walker, Chatsworth.

London rinks skioped by F. C. Wilson and Dr. J. A. Wright, leading contenders in the bonspiel over long periods of years were handed setbacks yesterday in the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, their successful opponents being A. Earwalker of Hamilton Victorias and the Chisholm Toronto rink.

In the second round of the North American Life, for losers in the first stage of the Royal York, J. Youngman's Sarnia crew last night defeated Peter Gilbert of Chatham, 15-9. F. Goddard, New Liskeard, stepped to a 16-6 win over J. A. Beattie, Seaforth. Most one-sided score of the day was the 16-1 margin carved by Ed Young, Toronto Royals, over R. G. H. Travers, Kingston.

Nice Ottawa Win

A classic in Seiberling play was the match that saw C. E. Pickering, Ottawa Granites, defeat A. V. Silk, Shelburne, 11-10. T. G. Bishop of Kingston beat a Kincardine four 10-9 in the same competition.

A Little Current rink under R. L. Graham won a 10-9 decision over a Brampton contender and P. T. Graham's quartet from New Liskeard scored an 11-9 victory over a Toronto rink.

In the Seagram competition two Ottawa Granite rinks were victorious. Col. R. J. Rattray led his rink to an 11-6 win over P. Jolliffe, Toronto, and the other Ottawa four, skipped by Col. H. J. Mackie, won 15-8 over a Toronto High Park rink.

One Hamilton rink, two from London and one each from Chatham, Galt and Kitchener were among the Western Ontario winners in the Seiberling competition. Although the Hamilton Thistles' quartet piloted by Gordon Campbell scored a 14-7 victory over a Toronto ... Hamilton crews skipped by R. G. L. Harstone of Thistles and E. Earwaker of Victorias, previously undefeated, both lost.

Two London fours under Skippers Dr. J. A. Wright and C. Reddon were successful in the Seiberling event yesterday, and Bert Hall's Kitchener rink continued its chain of unbroken wins with a 15-12 victory over a Toronto Granite rink.

Strathconas Fall.

H. Forbes' Forest four, which later lost in the Birks event, inched out a 14-13 decision over a Toronto Strathconas rink and the Chatsworth quartette skipped by H. Walker eked out a 13-12 win over a Toronto entry.

Galt's representatives, under Skipper P. G. Dietrich, won 13-10 from a Toronto Granite entry. In the Seagram Trophy's opening round, run off yesterday, Western Ontario rinks registered six wins, W. A. Watson, Sarnia, defeated J. Grant, Unionville, 15-12, in this event.

Last night's banquet, presided over by Fred J. Lucas of Toronto, chairman of the Bonspiel Committee, attracted 600. It was featured by presentations of life memberships in the O.C.A. to Senator John T. Haig, K.C., Winnipeg, T. Howard Stewart, Montreal, G. Ekins, Toronto, G. T. Neale, Gianford, and W. H. Smith, Owen Sound.

Silent tribute was paid to members who died during the past year, including Hector Cowan, Sarnia, Col. Falli, Stratford, S. B. Gandy, Toronto Victorias, Hunter Kennedy, Barrie, Dr. Frank Knight, Toronto Victorias, Dr. Langs, Hamilton Thistles, George McVicar, Toronto High Park, Captain Norman McKay, Owen Sound, Dr. Olmstead, Hamilton Thistles, H. Russell, Hamilton Thistles, and Dr. Solandt, Toronto Victorias.

Beats Champion

The Ontario men's singles badminton title was won by Jack Storey of Toronto, Ont., when he defeated the former champion, Rod Phelan, a fellow citizen.

Outboard Motors Lakefield In Draw

Outboard Marines and Lakefield battled to a 2-2 tie in their Senior City League fixture at the Brock Street rink last night. Fast hockey featured the tussle.

Well matched and battling for third position in the League standing, the two squads skated hard through a scoreless first period. Goalies Loyst and Beavis were responsible for many saves.

The Marines rushed the puck directly from the face off at the opening of the second period and Archibald flicked in the first counter for the Marines after a net scramble. Archibald repeated several minutes later with a second counter.

Two minutes of the second period remained when the Marines were caught bunched in the enemy territory and Chappels made a beautiful solo rush the length of the ice for the first Lakefield score. Lewis tallied the tying counter in the third frame.

The teams:

Marines—Goal, Beavis; defence, Aschibald and Dallin; alternates, Coursey, Howe, Wood, Maudsley and Courneyea.

Lakefield—Goal, Loyst; defence, Pearson and I. Charlton; center, G. Charlton; wings Blewett and Jewell; alternates, Sabatina, Chappels.

Referee, Herb Payne.

Bewdley In 2-2 Tie With Mayfair Squad

A fast go by Bewdley and the Mayfairs in a Senior City League fixture ended in a 2-2 deadlock at the Brock Street Rink on Monday evening. The tie was the second of the triple-header bill during the night.

The Mayfairs got off to a fast start and carried action into their opponents' end of the rink throughout the opening frame. They beat the Rice Lake goalie, Sloan, twice on gang attacks. Courneyea and Vitarelli doing the honors.

The Bewdley squad came out for the second period with improved team work and battled the Mayfairs on even terms. Elliott and A. Mercer carried the disc down for a pass across the rink to L. Mercer. Goalie Currie was drawn out of his net and beaten. Watson and Pete Sidey assisted in a rush which brought a second and tying counter off the stick of Walker before the end of the period.

The teams:

Bewdley — Goal, Sloan; defence, D Sidey and Walker; centre, Elliott; wings, A. Mercer and J. Mercer; alternate, Watson, Watt, P. Sidey and Jewison.

Mayfairs — Goal, Currie; defence, Gardiner and Vitarelli; centre, O'Leary; wings, Courneyea and Hill; alternates, Mowry, Meyette and Driscoll.

Referee—Herbert Payne.

RUSH FOR TENNIS SEATS

LONDON—(CP) — About $75,000 will be returned to applicants who have failed in the ballot for reserved centre court seats at the British Lawn Tennis championships at Wimbledon in June.

HAS LEG OPERATION

BRISTOL, England— (CP) — Jack McLean, captain and centre-half of Bristol Rovers Football Club who suffered a leg injury early in the year, has been operated on for removal of an external cartilage.

About $725,000 will be spent by Johannesburg, South Africa, this year to buy buses.

Snark Sets New World Record

The camera records a new world record in the making, as Snark crosses the finish line at Hialeah to win a six-and-one-half furlong race, and at the same time set a new world mark for the distance. Snark made the trip in 1.15 4-5 finishing in front of Count Morse.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

AN EXECUTIVE meeting of the Peterborough Senior Baseball Club is being held this p.m. at 7.30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce. All the officers should be on deck to discuss chances of a strong senior squad from here in the C.O.B.L. this summer. There is no use putting in an entry no stronger than last year, but we are confident that a bunch of real ball enthusiasts will get to work at once and see that the 1937 Petes are one of the strongest outfits in Ontario's strongest senior diamond circuit. The past few days we've been noticing how late it is before twilight turns to darkness, and a glance at the calendar shows it's almost time for the Big Leaguers to trek south. In other words, baseball chatter will be making a clatter in the very near future, mes amis.

• • • • • • •

SCORING AVERAGES for the Petes are in tonight and show that in their 10 scheduled games they tallied 66 goals or about six and a half goals per game. They piled 'em up against Trenton and Belleville, and were just about even in scoring in games against the Fliers, who won the group. Bill Calladine again led the way with 14 goals and 11 assists for 25 points. He was followed closely by Shrimp McDougall with 22 points and Ned Vitarelli with 20. Archie Weir notched 14 points, a fine showing for a defenceman. Some of the players were slow starting, others did not take part in all the games, and injuries or sickness hampered a few, also. Vitarelli and Gardner spent most time in the penalty box.

• • • • • • •

WE HAVE nothing but praise for the locals. They turned out to be a game gang of pucksters who practised hard nightly and gave all they had in every game. In their last few games they were really clicking and deserved a better fate than being eliminated in mid-February. The goalie, the defencemen, the forwards and the alternates, all deserve praise. We do not intend to go into detail on the squad but would like to mention again the consistently fine work this season of three of the players: Shrimp McDougall, Archie Weir and Ned Vitarelli. They didn't just go good in spots—they went good in every game. Coach Buckland and the other club officers deserve a boost too for a lot of work and worry.

• • • • • • •

THE MIGHTY mite of the Petes—McDougall—made a nice comeback this year. The little ex-pro was always a tricky, heady player but he did not always stick close to training rules. This year, he attended regular practises and was rounding into good shape. His 22 scoring points shows his effectiveness. And he played the last three games with a bad cold and against his doctor's advice. Weir didn't go so well a year ago but he has been playing a bangup, heady defence game all this season and battling hard. Vitarelli never spared himself in any game, working his head off and fighting for everything. His 14 assists speak for themselves. Yeah, we are sorry to see a gallant gang finished for the season.

• • • • • • •

• • • • • • •

BELLEVILLE'S YOUNG Redmen are here tomorrow (Thursday) night to tangle with the Colts in the second and final game of their O.H.A. junior "B" group playoffs. Our squad have a three-goal lead after copping a 9-6 decision in Belleville last gloaming, and we figure the locals to win out and go up against Kingston in the first round of the playdowns. But it'll be a battle before Belleville bows out. They made it quite a scrap in a free-scoring tussle last e'en on good ice. Peterborough penalties didn't help either. The Colts shaded the homesters by one goal in the first period and two in the third, after an even middle chukker. Play was clean, fast and quite exciting at times. Tickets are on sale now for the game here and there should be a big crowd on deck to see this junior playoff.

• • • • • • •

WE LIKED the work of Bun Kingdon, Al Clark, Art Heal and Eddie Starr best for the Colts in the first game. But the others also battled hard. This Tompkins—he wore No. 5 sweater last night—has a world of speed but he was bodychecked plenty last eve and didn't do much. McCreary—No. 2 sweater—went best for the losers. Harding muffed a couple in goal but also made some swell saves. Our defence clicked pretty fair and the forwards worked themselves to a frazzle. These teams have a lot of class when they're going right and they are well-matched. The crowd last night was anemic, everyone nearly saving his shekels for the Pontiacs-Fliers' playdown game in Belleville tonight.

• • • • • • •

BEING BUSY in Peeney Mills' home town yestiddy, we missed the three Blood and Thunder Loop frays here. Westclox took a 4-1 win over Millbrook, while Lakefield and Outboard Marines went to a 2-2 tie, and Bewdley held the strong Mayfairs to a 2-all deadlock. That last was a surprise to us. Games Friday at the Brock, if there is ice, are: Outboard Marines vs. Bewdley at seven, Mayfairs vs. Millbrook at eight, and Westclox vs. Lakefield at nine. Only a small crowd saw the contests last twilight.

• • • • • • •

OBSERVATION PLATFORM: Junior City League games at the Brock tonight have been called off to save the ice for Thursday's tussle . . . . Executive meeting of the City 5-Pin Bowling League will be held at Duffus' tonight at 7.30 . . . . Several carloads of local fans journeyed to Belleville last e'en to cheer the Colts along . . . . Oshawa scribe kicks like a steer 'cause Whitby juniors are drawn against Kingston instead of Oshawa . . . . Says Kingston should be playing "A" hockey by rights; hmm, Colts, that sounds bad, eh? . . . . Reg. Dixon, famous yachtsman, formerly from here, will give an address on sailing tomorrow night in Oshawa . . . . Basketball dope will be run tomorrow . . . . Since going intermediate, Bill Calladine has led the Petes every winter in scoring . . . . Red Geddes, who left here for the north, would like to return . . . . Guess that clears up sports for today.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

We believe that our continued efforts in appealing to the curlers to "Be On Time," is at last having some effect.

Imagine, if you can, all seven sheets of ice going before ten minutes of eight. Yes, now we know what you are going to ask; and we, like Kirma, know all the answers. Yes, Walter Oke was out with the rest of the boys. We could see that enquiry coming; and the funny part was that W.J.O. was one of the first to finish. So we feel that we have at last accomplished something.

The boys are responding to the committee's request: to play all postponed games, when called, just about 100 per cent. It will take all this week, and then we doubt if they will be completed.

A party of lady curlers is leaving to-day, to take part in the annual bonspiel at the Seignory Club, Quebec. The party includes: Mrs. R. Turner, Miss H. Munro, Mrs. C. Westbrooke, Miss H. Fanning and Miss M. Montgomery.

The final game for The Schneider Trophy was played Tuesday morning between rinks skipped by Miss Fanning and Mrs. Morris. Miss Fanning's rink took the lead right at the start, and were never headed again, finishing up, 16-8.

Mrs. G. Matthews, Mrs. C. Westbrooke, Mrs. R. Turner, Miss. H. Fanning (skip), 16.

Mrs. E. Purvis, Mrs. M. Comstock, Mrs. R. Waddell, Mrs. F. Morris (skip), 8

Redmen And Colts In Playoffs Here

An O.H.A. junior "B" group playoff game will be staged here tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink when Belleville Redmen tangle with the local Colts in the final group titular series tilt. The first one ended last night in Belleville with a 9-6 win for the young Petes who carry a three-goal lead into the return joust. As goals count on the round, the Colts are favored to win out and advance into the O.H.A. first round playdowns against Kingston next week. Tickets for the Brock are on sale now and a big crowd is expected to see these smart junior squads battling it out. Racing elimination for the year, Belleville will put up a hard battle and the Colts will be fighting to keep in front.

Both teams should be at full strength for this crucial contest. Harding will be in goal for the Colts, with A. Clark, Crowe, Webb and Jopling all available for defence. One front line will see Starr in centre, with Wright and Heal on the wings; while the other line will be picked from Kingdon, G. Clark, Brady, Connelly and White. The husky, fast-stepping Quinte crew of Tompkins, McCreary, Cain, Morgan and Co. will be tough to take, but the Colts figure to beat them by a close score. Plenty of action and smart hockey should be seen in this play-off game.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS — Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

45—SINGLE STEMMING

The single stem is a method of braking used to decrease the speed especially on narrow trails or paths where double stemming is impossible.

Like double stemming it is executed in the half or low crouch positions. Having assumed a crouch take all the weight on one ski. Lift the unweighted ski into a convergent position keeping the tips close abreast. This ski will now exert a braking effort due to its partially broadside on position relative to the direction of motion. Keep the ankles normal, giving normal edging to the stemming ski; knees thrust forward and heels flat on the skis. If the braking is too great it may be lessened by slightly flattening the stemming ski, that is, by bending the ankles outward. The braking will also vary with the angle of the skis. When traversing, the stemming is done with the lower ski.

Position for single stemming

Practise the position on the level then try a descent on a gentle slope, next traversing a steep slope and then straight down. As this position is involved in the stem turn, the stem Christiania and to some extent in the Telemark, it should be thoroughly mastered.

Remember When—

Jack Britton, 37 years old and with 19 years' ring experience behind him, earned a creditable draw with 19-year-old Dave Shade to hold his welterweight boxing title. The bout was staged at New York 15 years ago to-night. Mickey Walker outpointed Britton in a 15-round fight the same year to take the crown. Pete Latzo relieved Walker of the championship four years later.

Colts Get 3-Goal Lead Over Belleville Crew In First Of Playoffs

Local Juniors Cop 9-6 Verdict In Belleville To Carry Back Margin For Final Group Game Here Thursday

HAVE WORST OF PENALTIES

Bringing back a three-goal lead from Belleville as a result their 9-6 win last night, the local Colts move into their al group playoff game here tomorrow night. The boys de- ved their victory on Quinte ice, turning in a smart per- mance in a wide-open contest. They had a 3-2 lead in the st frame and were held 3-3 in the second but added two re to their margin before the final bell.

It was a fast, exciting game with good and bad hockey ked up. Penalties proved tly to the visitors who drew e of the 13, three Belleville ls being tallied when they re a man short. Charles Barnett Hits His Fifth Century

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 17—(CP Cable)—Hitting his fifth century of the Marylebone Cricket Club's Australian tour, Charles Barnett staged a great effort to bring victory to his team in the three day's play of the match with New South Wales. At the close of play the Englishmen needed 125 runs to win with three wickets to fall.

Dismissed for 73 runs in their first innings the M.C.C. made a great second innings' recovery, compiling 280 for seven wickets, Barnett making 117 and Joseph Hardstaff, 64. New South Wales obtained 231 and 246.

CANADIENS WIDEN LEAD BY DEFEATING AMERICANS 2 TO 1

Johnny Gagnon Does The Trick In Fiftieth Second Of Final-Period Play

BREAKS MORENZ RECORD

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (CP). — Montreal Canadiens, defeating New York Americans 2-1, stepped out last night into a 4½-game lead over the National Hockey League's Canadian Section.

Johnny Gagnon's goal in the fiftieth second of last-period play gave the Habitants the game as 8,000 spectators saw the luckless Amerks dip deeper into the sectional cellar.

Amerks' only goal came in the second period of the fast hard-checking game, and it marked an N.H.L. milestone, for it came from the stick of aging Nels Stewart and sent him to the top of the all-time list of league scorers.

Old Poison's 271st goal shattered the record of 270 set by Howie Morenz, the speedball centre of Montreal Canadiens, who is now in hospital with a broken leg.

Stewart's was the second of the night. Babe Siebert of Canadiens opened the scoring half-way through the second after a dull and scoreless opening session.

A penalty to Happy Emms set the stage for the goal, which the Babe drove in from twenty feet out after Paul Haynes and George Mantha had furnished a fine set-up.

Six minutes later, Less Cunningham and Joe Lamb furnished the relays for Stewart's record-breaker.

Siebert chalked up his second point of the evening on Johnny Gagnon's goal in the third. The Canadien defenceman and Aurel Joliat gave Gagnon a perfect opening to the New York cage.

Amerks fought furiously for the tying goal through the remaining 19 minutes of the game, but a sturdy Canadien defence repulsed them.

Americans—Goal, Moore; defence, Emms and Jerwa; centre, Chapman; wings, Schriner and Wiseman; subs: Graham, Stewart, Hemmerling, Cunningham, Lamb, Jenkins, Carr and Anderson.

Canadiens—Goal, Cude; defence, Buswell and Siebert; centre, Brown; wings, Joliat and Gagnon; subs: McKenzie, Lorrain, Miller, Lepine, Haynes, McGill, Mantha, Desilets and Blake.

Officials—Stewart and McCurry.

BRUINS SHAKE OFF STREAK OF LOSSES DEFEAT RANGERS

Boston's Victory On Home Ice Ties Them With New Yorkers For Second Place

SCORE IS 3 TO 2

BOSTON, Feb. 17 (CP).—Boston Bruins, shaking off a persistent jinx got their first home ice win in nine games last night with a 3-2 victory over New York Rangers that hoisted them even with Rangers for second place in the National Hockey League's United States Division.

Syrio Mantha, new Bruin defenceman, did not play.

The triumph was the Bruins' first here since January 3, when they topped Rangers by the same score. In the meantime, the Bruins lost seven and gained a 6-6 tie with the Americans before turning in their second 1937 win on their own premises before 12,000 fans.

Butch Keeling sent Rangers out in front with an unassisted goal in the first period, but that lead was wiped out about two minutes later when "Dit" Clapper converted Bill Hollett's assist. Bill Cowley's second period goal and Leroy Goldsworthy's counter during the third minute of the finale, built up the home team's lead to 3 to 1 before Rangers cut loose with a threatening rally.

Alex Shibicky slapped in the second Ranger score from close-up. With a minute to go, Patrick yanked Goalie Dave Kerr and threw six forwards into action, but Bruins held on until the final bell.

Boston—Goal, Thompson; defence, Shields and Portland; centre, Weiland; wings, Goldsworthy, Beattie; subs: Gedliffe, Dumart, Schmidt, Cowley, Sands, Clapper, Hollett, Johnson.

WESTCLOX TEAM BEATS MILLBROOK

Four To One Decision Gained In City Hockey League Game

Westclox added another lap to its long lead in the Senior City Hockey race with a 4-1 decision over Millbrook during the league triple-header on the Brock Street ice sheet last night. The Clockers demonstrated the class which has been consistent with them throughout the schedule in chalking up the victory.

On an assist from Whatley, O'Leary opened the score for the victors early in the first frame. The Millbrook lads made their only score a few minutes later when Skitch and Parnall worked the rubber down for a quick corner shot by Edmunds. Assisted by Fields, Padgett got a second counter for Westclox before the end of the period.

Two unassisted rushes, the first by Williams and the second by O'Leary, brought the two final counters for the Westclox in the second period. Millbrook rallied for several threatening offensives but failed to beat superior team play and high-class goal tending. Hard fought scrimmage failed to produce a score for either squad in the third.

The teams:

Westclox—Goal, Tharby; defence, Parsons and White; centre, Field; wings, Dinesen and Williams; alternates, O'Leary, Padgett and Whatley.

Millbrook—Goal, Ferguson; defence, Parnall and Spencley; centre, Edmunds; wings, Skitch and Cathcart; alternates, Hunter, McCarthy, Walnman and Sloan.

JOE LOUIS' FUTURE AT STAKE TONIGHT

Must Finish Natie Brown In Short Order To Retain Prestige

By Whitney Martin
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 17. — Joe Louis well known finishing artist, meets Natie Brown of Washington in a 10-round bout here to-night.

If the brown bomber fails to polish off his opponent in short order, Louis will no longer be considered a finishing artist. He'll only be finished.

Bob Pastor, Louis' most recent ring foe, left the ring as unfinished business. Brown himself emerged on his own feet at the end of 10 rounds in a previous meeting in 1935 with the bomber.

If Brown declared he expected to be knocked out, the opinion would be practically unanimous. Fans believe Louis has too much at stake not to turn in an early kayo.

Despite this, Brown, a wily ringman with only two knockouts charged against him in nine years of campaigning, oozed confidence, so did his manager, Billy McCarney.

"We won't make the mistake we did in the other Louis fight," McCarney declared. "Brown tried to carry the fight to Joe then, and was punched silly for his trouble, although he came through with his best showing in the eighth, ninth and 10th.

To-night we'll out-manoeuvre Louis for two or three rounds, then out-box him to the finish."

Brown appeared in perfect condition. His weight, close to 200 pounds, was seven or eight pounds more than when he fought Louis before. The Detroit negro was scheduled to arrive to-day after completing training in Chicago.

Matchmaker Frank Gatto said interest was mounting so rapidly that he predicted a $30,000 to $35,000 gate, with Louis receiving 40 per cent, Brown 15 per cent.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNUAL MEETING

Officers And Teachers At Eldorado Are Installed—Valentine Parties

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ELDORADO, Feb. 17—On Sunday afternoon a very interesting and instructive service was held in Eldorado United Church, when the pastor, Rev. W. G. Fletcher, delivered an address particularly to the Sunday School officers and teachers. Following the sermon the Sunday School officers and teachers for the year 1937 were installed in a very impressive installation ceremony. The junior quartette sang two songs and Mrs. A. Harvey and Miss Edith Hollands favored with a duet.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Vernon Strebe and Miss Annie Holmes who were successful in passing the examinations held by Hazzards leadership training class. Certificates were presented following the address at Sunday's service.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw and Helen Hannah spent an evening recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hamilton.

Mrs. Geo. Palmer is improving after falling and breaking her ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Empey attended the funeral of their aunt the late Mrs. Hetcheson, which was held in Madoc on Friday.

Mr. Sandy Andrew who has been a patient in the Kingston General Hospital, returned to his home on Monday.

Mr. Jim Hunter Jr., spent the week-end in Bancroft visiting friends.

A large number of the young people attended the dance at the home of Mr. Chas. Thompson on Friday evening and report a fine time.

Mrs. David Jones spent an afternoon this week at the home of Mrs. Wm. Andrew.

Miss Freda McCann is spending a few days visiting friends at Marmora and Malone.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Blackburn and Harley spent Thursday at the home of Mrs. C. D. McCann.

Mission Band

The monthly meeting of the Eldorado Mission Band was held at the home of Miss Annie Holmes with an attendance of thirteen members. The meeting opened with quiet music followed by the call to worship by the president, Miss Doris Andrew. Miss Annie Holmes, the leader, told a story, "The Journey Home." The minutes were read by the secretary, Miss Earla Carman, and the roll call was answered by a memory verse. Miss D. Andrew gave a reading, "Temperance Bess, and Robber Alcohol," followed by a recitation by Shirley Andrew. Four girls, Verna McCann, Irene Whyte, Doris and Shirley Andrew sang a song, "Roses in the Garden." Donna Parnell gave a recitation, "February," and Irene Whyte a story, "A New Year." The quartette again sang and this was followed by the study-book talk by Rev. W. G. Fletcher. A short business period followed and then the meeting closed with prayer. Games were enjoyed for a half hour.

Valentine Party

A special Valentine meeting of the "Band of Hope" mission band was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Strebe on Saturday afternoon with an attendance of thirty. A special feature was an interesting story by Mrs. F. J. Nickle. Doris Andrew told the story of St. Valentine and Irene Whyte and Harry Whyte sang a solo with guitar accompaniment. As this was the birthday of one of the Mission Band members, Betty Strebe, a special birthday lunch was provided by Mrs. Strebe consisting of sandwiches, cake, tarts and a birthday cake. Betty received many lovely gifts from her little friends.

A large number from this vicinity attended the banquet held at the Eldorado United Church on Wednesday evening. The church parlors were beautifully decorated for the occasion. The tables were laden with dainties provided by the Young People's Union. After supper a radio program was given. Mr. Gordon Pigden having furnished a microphone and radio. The proceeds of the evening were about $10.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

Janet Paynter, newly married to a second-rate actor, Joel Paynter, whose show has just closed, obtains a card from an old friend Harry Devanter, a film scout, requesting a screen test for "the bearer". Because of his pride Joel first refuses to permit Janet to continue working and then conceals the fact he has been playing the roll of gigolo at a cocktail bar because he can find nothing else. Joel is elated when Janet tells him of his chance for a screen test. Janet proves to be Joel's inspiration during the screen test. Anxiously they await word from the studio. Joel receives word of a six months' contract in Hollywood. Janet and Joel go west and stop at a luxurious hotel in Los Angeles. Three weeks later, when told to report for work, Joel brings Janet a mink coat. Janet rents a house for them and buys a second-hand car.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

THE SURFACE of Mrs. Joel Paynter's desk was covered with papers commanding her attention. There was a litter of bills, a stack of unanswered mail, a number of newspaper clippings that she meant to glean and make notes about in the business-like gray book she kept looked up in the desk. Her cook book lay at hand waiting for her to arrange menus for the week. Her engagement book played no small part in the demands before her.

But she sat hunched over the desk, still in her pink satin pajamas and gazed dreamily through the soft curtains at the pure azure of the sky above. It was March but already it was like summer. It was very different from the day exactly a year ago when Janet and Joel had been married.

"Oh, sweet short year!" she said aloud.

"Did you call, Miz Paynter?" Janet's maid-of-all-work interrupted her soliloquy.

"No, I didn't, Hattie, but now that you're here we'd better go over these menus because it is after nine and I've a busy day ahead. Now, let me see. We won't be home for dinner tonight but tomorrow..."

"Aain't you gonna be home tonight?" Hattie asked wide-eyed. She'd seen the box containing the corsage that Joel had placed beside Janet's place. She hadn't seen the tiny white velvet box containing the circlet of diamonds that had been her anniversary gift. "Poor baby," Joel had said, "wearing that two-dollar wedding ring for a whole year. Well, lady, next year we'll have a square-cut emerald to keep it company."

Janet had learned not to say what she felt. The mink coat had scarcely been paid for and now he was in debt for her ring. His contract had but another month to run but there was little doubt that his option would be picked up.

He had done an excellent job in the Jarrett picture and the very day that it was finished, he had been rushed to another set to do only a bit, to be sure, but one that distinguished him in the picture. Then, in less than six months, he had started on his third picture and Sandra Cook of Screen View magazine, said she'd seen the rushes and she thought that Joel had a flair for rather wistful comedy.

Janet made a mental note to send to New York for a duplicate of her batik scarf. Sandra had said she liked it. Sandra had given her the news about Joel and she always knew what was going on.

Oh, there was no doubt but what the studio would pick up their option on Joel, but would it be a worth while pick-up? What promises of a future would they give him? What were his chances of getting more money?

Three hundred dollars a week was still a great deal of money to Janet Paynter but somehow it didn't do what you expected it was going to when you had to pay Hollywood rates for servants, a cook and a combination gardener and furnace man, especially when you had to have extra servants for the parties you gave every week. Of course, you had to have food and drinks for these parties and, if you joined a tennis club you played bridge with other wives, you not only had to pay dues, but you had little expenses because sometimes you stayed for lunch or had guests for matches. And, of course, you couldn't always win at bridge. Also, you had to have smart little sports things since you had learned how important it is to be chic. Unless you happened to be an imported and fabulously paid star; then you could wear overalls under your mink coat!

Since Janet was neither, she wore the trick little tailored things that became her so well and gave her a kind of distinction, also a kind of heartache when she saw the bills. But Joel just laughed at her and said, "Spend it, honey. We'll always have more. It grows on trees out here."

So, Janet had also bought a little car for herself. To be sure it was not an expensive one but the garage bills were another item to be considered. But she did have to have it because Joel took their first one to the studio and Janet had no way of getting around.

She did a great deal of getting around. The engagement book would have told you the story. Janet never went to a party that she didn't meet and cultivate some new person. All her friends were film folk, wives of writers, wives of actors, agents, press people. None of them were wives of important producers, actors or ace writers. Hollywood society did not permit that. The levels were clearly distinguished and the Paynters, before fame had touched Joel, were part of a secondary level.

Nevertheless, Janet worked hard at her little social campaign. She talked about clothes, and other women's husbands professional performances. She sympathized with servant problems and with the sweetest, most enrapt and engaging smile, permitted herself to be bored hour after hour all because she was waiting for the little word that fell occasionally into these conversations about what was happening in the picture business. Little kernels of conversation that she took out when she got home and studied and arranged in relation to Joel Paynter.

She joined a gym class because there was no better place to meet the women she wanted to meet unless it was the beauty parlor. But the gym was better because there was always a kind of bond between the girls who were trying to pound off the hips and the girls staving off a second chin; not that either misfortune threatened Janet.

It was through Lisa Carey, wife of the western cowboy actor, Bert Carey, that Janet joined the Bath Tennis club.

Lisa might have entered the higher social circles in Hollywood since her own social position before she married Bert was one that hardly recognized film personalities and also Bert had made a fortune, with controlling stock in his own picture company. But Lisa didn't happen to care for it. She thought the ostentatious spending, the gargantuan parties were ridiculous. She liked the things that Janet liked and she was independent enough to say so and to choose her friends as she pleased.

She put Janet up for membership at the Bath Tennis club. It was an exclusive little club patronized by a few film executives and a handful of better known, quieter stars who did not come in the glamor class.

At first Janet had demurred at Lisa's suggestion. The dues were rather high and Janet knew she would be expected to do some entertaining. But then she had learned that Vernon Chester was a member. Vernon Chester was a director with Federal who was slated to produce "The Dance Was Long", a sensational best-selling novel of the year. Janet practiced up on her backstroke and familiarized herself with the contents of "The Dance Was Long". She soon had her interpertation of the role of Jan Grayson, not the lead character, but the second lead, a nice role and one that might be given to an unknown actor if he had an unusual slant on the part that might engage the interest of a director. Janet read the book to Joel and her interpretation.

Meanwhile Janet had joined the tennis club and her little roadster wheeled up to the door promptly every afternoon at five o'clock.

The clock on her mantel struck ten and Janet put down her pencil. "There, Hattie, there are our dinners for a week. And, hereafter, I want you to leave a pitcher of orange juice upstairs at night. Mr. Paynter is not getting any vitamins from sunlight these days and he's got to get 'em some other way."

The telephone rang and Janet took the instrument from its cradle.

"Hello...oh, hello! Yes, Mr. Chester, I think it would be terribly nice. You know how anxious I am to get that trick backstroke of yours...at eleven?" At eleven Janet had an appointment at her hair-dressers. At twelve she was due at a luncheon. She said, "No, I hadn't a thing to do and I think luncheon after one game would be delightful...all right Mr. Chester...what? All right, if you say so....The club at eleven."

When she put down the telephone, two bright fever spots of nervous anticipation burned in her cheeks. She was going to lunch alone with Vernon Chester!

VALENTINE SOCIAL BY MIZPAH CLASS

Enjoyable Program Is Given In St. Andrew's United Sunday School Parlors

MILLBROOK, Feb 17.— St. Andrew's United Sunday School parlors was the scene of a gay party Monday evening when members of the Mizpah Class of St. Andrew's Sunday School sponsored a Valentine social. Guests of the evening were the members of the Young Men's Bible Class and there were approximately fifty attended the event.

Games, contests and a sing-song led by Miss Beatrice McDowell with piano accompaniment by Miss Mary Burnham were a part of the evening's program. Misses Eleanor Bigelow and Bernice Smith were in charge of the recreational period.

Luncheon was served at daintily laid tables set for six and consisted of a jellied fruit dish, the age old heart-shaped cookies, macaroons and coffee. A gracious vote of thanks was tendered the hostesses on the motion of Ernest Powell and Elwood Fallis, which was ably responded to by Miss Bernice Smith, social convener of the Mizpah Class.

Personals

Miss Jessie Allen King, Toronto, was a Sunday guest of her mother, Mrs. J. Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Dunford, Miss Helen Dunford and Mr. Ross Courtice, Oshawa, were guests during the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Smith.

Messrs. W. Patterson, Henry Lancashire, Raymond Rowland, James Larmer and Richard Williams, Toronto, spent the week-end at their respective homes.

Messrs. Norman Locke and son, Thomas, Hamilton, were guests last week with the former's mother, Mrs. Locke.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S COMPANY

Uncle Wiggily, who had just taken a bite out of a carrot for his snow picnic lunch, stopped chewing. He wanted to hear better. You can't hear so well when you are chewing, you know.

That's why a horse always stops munching his hay or oats if you enter his stall. He wants to listen to see if he knows your step. You can't do that with automobiles.

"Yes, some one is coming into my snow drift house," thought Uncle Wiggily as he took a second bite of carrot. "And I do hope," he went on "it isn't any of the Bad chaps. If it is, the more I eat the stronger I'll be to fight them."

The noise of steps tramping through thick snow sounded nearer. Uncle Wiggily looked in the basket of food.

"Maybe," he thought, "if it's one of the Bad chaps, and if I offer to share my snow picnic lunch with him, he won't eat me. I'll try it."

Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily thought how foolish it was for him to be sitting in the snow house with Buster's flashlight glowing.

Hears a Voice

"They can see me as plain as a gold fish!" whispered the rabbit. "I'll put out the light and wait in the dark. Though it isn't very dark inside a white snow house, even at night."

In a whisket, which is quicker than a biscuit, Uncle Wiggily put out the light. Then he heard a voice grunting:

"I say that isn't fair! Turn on the light! I can't see where I am going! I'm lost! Please turn on the light, whoever you are!"

"Why, it's Twisty!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he recognized his fat gentleman pig's voice. "Hello, Twisty!"

"Wiggy! My old friend Wiggy!" grunted the pig. "Oh, I'm so glad to hear your voice! I'm lost in the snow. I've been floundering around in drifts ever since I left Mr. Chuck's store. You were right about the storm going to be a bad one, Wiggy. I'm sorry I said it was all nonsense."

"That's all right, Twisty," replied Mr. Longears. "Come in."

"But where is that light I saw a moment ago?" asked the pig.

"Here it is," Uncle Wiggily switched it on again. Brightly Buster's flashlight gleamed through the white walls of the snow drift house.

"Ah, now I can see! Here I come!" grunted the pig. A moment later he pushed his funny, round, rubbery nose through a hole and in another moment his fat body waddled through.

Blinks

"It's a good thing the walls of a snow house can be stretched and pushed," laughed Uncle Wiggily as Mr. Twistytail blinked the flakes out of his eyes. "Welcome to my picnic, Twisty. I'm very glad of your company."

"Picnic!" grunted the fat pig. "Ufl! Ufl! Ufl! What picnic?"

"I'm having one here by myself on the groceries I bought at the store," said the rabbit. "I fell into a deep drift. I don't know which way to start digging to get out. But I had Buster's flashlight with me and so we can see to eat. Have you any idea of the time, Twisty?"

The pig looked at his foot watch, which he could see by the flashlight, and said it was nearly 8 o'clock.

"Oh, my goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "It's long past supper time in my bungalow. What will my poor wife and Nurse Jane and all my little rabbits think? They'll fear I'm lost."

"Well, Wiggy, you are lost. So am I. We're lost together in the snow. But we're company. So the best thing to do is to eat and then maybe something will happen. Maybe they'll start a rescue party. Hurray!"

And if the fountain pen will give the sheet of paper a shower bath for a birthday present, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's rescue.

WARSAW

PRAYER DAY HELD IN SPITE OF ROADS

Slippery Surface However Kept Carmel Ladies From Warsaw Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Feb. 17—Icy roads did not prevent a goodly number of the women from Warsaw area attending the World's W. M. S. prayer service on Friday afternoon in Warsaw United Church. Mrs. Robert Moore was key-woman and representatives were present from all congregations in the area except Carmel, in good number. Carmel ladies with thirteen miles of hilly, icy roads could not well manage it.

Mrs. George Taylor was organist for the service. Mrs. Chester Hamilton, Bethel, was leader for the first part. Mrs. Stuart Clysdale, Warsaw United, led the second part, leading in prayer followed by Mrs. Richard Tedford, Warsaw Presbyterian, Mrs. David Tucker, Warsaw United, Mrs. Joseph Miles, Anglican, Miss Helen Tedford, Baptist, and Miss Doris Lloyd, Zion. Following were hymns and prayer in unison. Mrs. John Gallogher, Cottesloe, gave an earnest and well-prepared address on the purpose of the World Day of Prayer. Miss Helen Tedford and Miss Zelda Crowe sang, "Pray, Pray, Pray," very sweetly. Mrs. Henry Clements and Mrs. R. Tedford took the offering and the rest of the service was carried out. Those who were there felt that the whole service was an earnest one.

Mrs. J. A. Crowe is key-woman for 1938.

Many Have Cold

A good many are laid up with bad colds and nearly all complain of sore throats.

Masons from Warsaw who attended the funeral of the late Thos. Borland were, Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, Messrs. Wallace Andrews, Roland Payne and Clarence Payne. Among others were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Crow and Gerald.

Rev. J. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson attended a friend's funeral in Orono on Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Clements attended the buymanship class last Wednesday and remained with her daughter until Thursday.

The Baptist service, led by Rev. Mr. Walker, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe on Sunday afternoon, was well attended and a splendid service.

There were good congregations also at the Presbyterian and United Church services.

The road around Watt's Hill is getting worse. Ice just piles up and the thaws make holes. The culverts get frozen up early in the season and so far there has been no remedy. On Sunday morning going was very bad all around the little snow made it not decent for either cars or cutters.

MARMORA

Comrades P. Gray, J. W. Hickey, N. Hipson and W. J. Cottrell of Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion, attended the regular meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Legion on Monday evening.

Under auspices of St. Paul's A.Y.P.A., the lantern lecture, "Between the Ganges and the Jumna," was given in the Parish Hall on Monday evening. The reading was given by Miss Gertrude Limsden. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell manipulated the lantern. A collection was taken for M.S.C.C. funds.

WOMEN UNITE TO HOLD PRAYER DAY

Unite In Anglican Church For Impressive Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 17—The members of St. James' Anglican Church W.A. were hosts to the Roseneath United Church W.M.S., Penella W.M.S., Centenary W.A., and the ladies of Alderville United Church on Friday night in the Roseneath United Church. The occasion was the World's Day of Prayer service, when the praying women of the world united in a petition to the Almighty God.

The program was prepared by Miss Mabel Shaw of Livingstone Memorial School, Kawambwa, N. Rhodesia.

The theme of the service was "The Son of the Living God." He is the Head of the Body, the Church.

Mrs. Ernest Timlin, president of St. James' W.A. presided. The meeting opened with quiet music, and singing, "Hail to the Lord's Anointed." Mrs. Timlin read a portion of scripture and led in prayer in unison.

Mrs. Ernest Crowe, Alderville, led in responsive reading and prayer.

Mrs. L. W. Scott, president of the Roseneath W.M.S., had charge of a prayer period, when prayers were offered by the following: Mrs. Ross McCracken and Mrs. J. T. Drope of St. James' W.A.; Mrs. M. Black of Alderville; Mrs. N. C. Leach of Penella W.M.S. and Mrs. D. Brisbin of Roseneath W.M.S.

Two hymns, "Breathe On Me, Breath of God," and "O Master Let Me Walk With Three," were sung. Miss Florence Macklin, president of Penella W.M.S., then took charge and called on Mrs. R. Crego of Roseneath W.M.S., who gave an address on the "Purpose of the World Day of Prayer." Miss Macklin and her mother, Mrs. Howard Macklin then sang a duett.

Mrs. R. Crego gathered the offering and after the dedicatory prayer offered in unison, a hymn was sung, and all joined in the prayer of dismissal.

ENJOYABLE PARTY FOR EUCHRE CLUB

Bensfort Organization Meets At Finnie Home—Valentine Parties Held

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BENSFORT, Feb. 17—On Tuesday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Finnie was the scene of a very happy gathering when the members of the Bensfort Euchre Club were entertained. Eight tables were occupied for a series of eight games of progressive euchre. Mrs. Moncrief and Trevor Wood were declared winners, while low scores were held by Mrs. Allen Bell and P. Barnard. Suitable awards were presented in each case.

At midnight lunch was served by the hostess and some of the ladies. The card tables were daintily covered with luncheon cloths and the serviettes were of Valentine decorations. Dainty Valentine candy was also passed during the games.

Dancing was enjoyed for a few hours after lunch. The orchestra, Moncrief, Wood, Emberson and Wood rendered the music as usual.

Valentine Party Held

On Wednesday evening the Bensfort Young People held a very successful Valentine party in the basement of Bensfort United Church.

The president, Miss Isobel Dawson, opened the meeting and conducted the business. The program was in charge of Miss Mary Sharpe who read the story on "Saint Valentine." Misses Beth and Jean Moncrief gave a pleasing vocal duet. The main feature of the evening was a short play entitled, "The Fatal Quest" staged by Misses Isobel Dawson, Grace Finnie and Jack Staples, Melville Patton, Gus Anstey and Billy Moncrief. Finds Third Wife Girl Of His Dreams

Shanghai, Feb. 17 (AP)

TAI Shuang-Chiu, local college professor who divorced two wives because they wouldn't wear cotton dresses, has found the girl of his dreams.

This time, said the account, he took no chances but submitted the following questionnaire to the girl:

Will you obey your husband?

Will you wear native-made dresses?

Will you refrain from interfering with your husband's activities and not ask questions?

The answer in all three cases was yes.

FAIRMOUNT

SCHOOL STAGES BASKET SOCIAL

Enjoyable Program Presented In Howden Memorial Hall By Pupils

FAIRMOUNT, Feb. 16.—A very enjoyable evening was spent on Friday at Howden Memorial Hall, when the pupils of Fairmount Public school put on a splendid musical program. As Mr. C. Rice was unable to be present on account of a severe cold, Miss H. Waddell led the singing and also accompanied on the piano. The program:

Land of Glad Tomorrows and Dear Canada, Dear Land of Mine; recitation, "When Pa Counts," Doris Allen; chorus, "The Little Dustman", "Joy to the World" and "Unto the Hills"; solo, Clark Armstrong.

This was followed by the sale of 20 baskets decorated in many colors and almost every shape and variety. F. G. Ballantyne was the able auctioneer and P. B. Seymour the manager. Lunch was then served to the children who did not purchase baskets. Over $15.00 was realized which is to go toward the purchase of a piano for the public school.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McIndoo, who have been suffering for a week with a severe cold, are able to be out again.

Miss Muriel Hooton of Peterborough is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hooton.

TWO-CENT BOUNTY

Iron Ore Mined In Northern Ontario Will Be Given Bounty.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 17 (CP).—Legislation to establish a two-cent bounty on iron ore mined from deposits in Michipicoten area will be brought before the present session of the Ontario legislature, Sir James Dunn, president of Algoma Steel Corporation, said here in an address last night. The announcement was made on authority of Premier Hepburn, he explained.

Development work at Helen Mill in the district will start in the spring with $1,500,000 set aside by the company for that purpose, said Sir James.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS TEST GETS A BLOW

Staggerer Claims He Made a Mistake By Looking At Chalk Line—Gets Off

DETROIT, Feb. 17 (C.P.).—Police "walk-the-chalkline" tests for suspected drunk drivers suffered a telling blow in Traffic Court here from Clowes Hawkins, 30, Detroit. In fact, his alibis staggered the court.

"Maybe I did stagger when they gave me the test," Hawkins told Judge T. Murphy. "But that was because I kept looking down at the line. There's where I made my mistake. Tightrope walkers say they look straight ahead to keep their balance."

Questioned about the smell of beer on his breath, he explained: "I went into a beer garden after the automobile collision to quiet my nerves. The officer arrested me there."

Judge Murphy dismissed the drunk-driving charge and fined Hawkins $100 for reckless driving.

"I understand you're a salesman," he said. "You also would have made a good lawyer."

BRITAIN WILL FINANCE ARMS SCHEME ALONE

Has No Intention Of Asking Dominions To Aid—Own Defences Their Bit

NO ENEMIES, NO ALLIES

Thinks "Open Door" Colonial Policy Would Lead To Loss Of Empire

LONDON, Feb. 18—(C.P.)—Britain intends to finance alone her vast rearmament plan that calls for an expenditure of $7,500,000,000 within five years.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain, told the House of Commons last night that there was no intention of calling upon the Dominions to make any contribution to a common defence fund.

The Dominions had spent a great deal of money on their own defences, he said. That was their contribution. No other form of contribution was under discussion as far as he knew.

The Chancellor said the defence reorganization problem would be simple if Britain's allies or enemies could be defined in advance. "We have not got a single particular power for the enemy nor are we in alliance with other powers or groups of powers on whose aid we can count," said Chamberlain.

"We have to consider a whole series of hypothetical emergencies, wherein we might be opposed to this or that power or this or that group of powers," he declared. "And we have to draw up a program with the best of our ability and the best advice we can get from our experts that will enable us to feel it will make us safe as we can be against any of these hypothetical sets of emergencies."

Replying to a Liberal suggestion for adoption of an "open door" colonial policy, Chamberlain declared such a step would lead to the loss of the Empire.

The reference to the Dominions closed a day-long discussion on rearmament. The debate will continue to-day with possibly David Lloyd George, the war-time Prime Minister, contributing.

2 LONDON PLANTS SWEPT BY FIRE

$500,000 Outbreak Involving 250 Firemen Is Worst In Many Years

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(CP Cable)—One of the worst fires in the city of London in many years early to-day destroyed the Walters tobacco factory and the Verner and Baxter clothiers factory in Finsbury market.

More than 250 firemen and 50 engines labored to prevent a serious spreading of the blaze, but sparks temporarily ignited adjoining tenements. Total damage was placed at approximately £100,000 ($500,000).

Police had difficulty in protecting crowds attempting to watch the spectacular flames at close range. There were several minor injuries. Falling walls damaged one or two parked cars.

The foremen wore gas masks to protect themselves against tobacco fumes. Hoses were operated from water towers in the street.

The intense heat cracked thousands of panes of glass in nearby buildings and the firemen were repeatedly obliged to retreat.

QUINTS VACCINATED

Did Not Interfere With Daily Routine Of The Five Sisters.

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP).—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe announced from his hospital sickbed today that vaccination of the Dionne quintuplets late last month had been successful. Recovering from a mild attack of influenza, the physician said he hoped to return to his famous charges at Callander in Northern Ontario early next week.

The vaccination did not interfere with the daily routine of the five sisters. There was no old-fashioned arm-scratching as the children were punctured in the left hip, followed by a serum application. Dr. Dafoe said. The serum was applied by a tube and the operations left but small scars.

Northern Presbyteries Want Same Representation as Southern Ones.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.). — Algoma Presbytery of the United Church last night passed a motion asking that Northern Ontario Presbyteries be given equal representation on the General Council of the church with those from Southern Ontario. In 1936 the six Southern Ontario Presbyteries elected 12 commissioners, while there were only nine from the six Northern Presbyteries, the resolution said.

CRIES AT SENTENCE

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18—(CP). — Eighteen-year-old Burton Edwards, Colchester South Township farm boy, cried convulsively in County Court to-day when he was sentenced to two months in Essex County jail for chicken stealing. His brother, Carl, 16, was released on remand until May 20.

Penal Expert Would Have Guelph Prison Ugly

Making It Attractive Very Bad Reformation He Tells Probe Judge

Says Main Object Should Be To Instil Fear Of Ever Infringing On Law Again

WITHOUT BRUTALITY

Would Ban All Dormitories — Have Independent Prison Board

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.). — Guelph Reformatory should be changed from its "pretty" peaceful appearance to an ugly, fearful institution with a big wall around the property, Dr. A. E. Lavelle, active in penal work for nearly a half-century, told the Madden inquiry to-day.

"This is the prettiest prison I was ever in, and I have visited many on this continent and in Europe, but it would be far better if every person who went by it shuddered," he said. "I would not have it beautiful. It is not common sense to have it attractive to onlookers and outlookers, it is bad psychology and bad reformation. Make people who see it shudder and think 'I don't want any part of that place.' I would have only two beautiful parts in the prison, the school and the church."

Dr. Lavelle indicated he preferred "vindictive punishment" in prisons. "The basic idea is that the state does not allow the victim to hit the offender in the jaw or kick him in the stomach, but says it will punish him itself," he said. "If you were ever robbed of $50 you would know that vindictive punishment suited the occasion.

No Trouble Then.

"Early in the 19th century there was no trouble in prisons. The prisoners were made to regret their crimes and it was done efficiently and brutally. Since then we have mixed in a lot of half-truths and sentimentality in our prison work and done so unfortunately without common sense.

"Punishment in prisons has been soft-pedalled and safe custody, the most important duty of a prison has been lessened due to our naive belief in stories from United States of reformation work.

"The one frank object of a prison should be, without brutality, to put fear into prisoners of again infringing the laws of the country or the rights of other people. For instance, as regards the lazy wife-deserter, I would give him the devil in prison for a while and he won't do it again.

"There should be no club atmosphere in a prison," he said. "This place is the best and most congenial club many fellows have ever known. I would have no self-rule by prisoners, but strict discipline for them all. Discipline does not hurt anyone accustomed to it, and is good for those who haven't had any."

Served on Parole Board

Before his appointment as Provincial Historian, Dr. Lavelle was executive officer of the Parole Board and was active in the Prison Reform Association 40 years ago. His father was a warden of Kingston Penitentiary. "I think I am the sole survivor of the group who urged on the late Hon. W. D. Hanna the opening of the reformatory system," he said.

Dr. Lavelle praised the strict treatment and discipline at Wandsworth, war-time prison. "I never heard of a man serving a second time there," he said.

Dr. Lavelle urged penitentiary methods be used at the reformatory. "Place one man in one cell. (Continued on Page 5)

All Ananias Tales 12 Inches to the Foot

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Feb. 18

TALL tales will be told here March 16 when the Hackle club holds its annual ananias contest. While the evening is called prevaricator's night the fishermen, members of the Hackle Club, assert every tale is the truth.

E. I. Scott proves their point at each ananias contest with his elastic rule, one foot long, with 12 inches clearly marked.

No matter how far he stretches his rule it remains 12 inches long.

So the Hacklers claim no matter how far they stretch the truth, it still remains truth.

MONTREAL RACKET SYSTEM COSTING 200 MILLION YEAR

Coming 'D.A.' Heads List With Loan Companies, Ambulance Chasers, Fake Labor Unions

OMITS POLICE BRIBES

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—(CP). — Estimated cost of Montreal's "rackets" is $200,000,000 a year to citizens, according to J. J. Penverne, chief of Mayor Raynault's proposed vice extermination campaign.

Penverne, in New York to study the Thomas E. Dewey prosecutions of "Lucky" Luciano and other "big shot" racketeers, will direct the probe here, the Mayor said.

Penverne, who has had experience as a special Federal prosecutor, is the likely choice for Mayor Raynault's "district attorney" to take over prosecutions of racket and vice cases and direct investigations. He is said to have prepared a list of 20 rackets operating here, including loan companies, ambulance chasers, fake labor unions, booking offices for night shows, Chinese lotteries and others.

The $200,000,000 cost estimate was made by Penverne in an address before a service club here several months ago. "I am not taking into consideration any amounts that may have been paid to politicians, police officers or others, for protection, or collected under that assumption," he was quoted as saying at that time.

Violence has been meagre in underworld troubles here of recent years. Last gangland murder was that of Charles Feigenbaum, ace witness in a Royal Canadian Mounted Police probe of a $1,000,000 smuggling ring, shot down in view of his son on a Montreal street in 1934. His murderers were never captured

FOUND HANGING IN CELL

Prisoner is Found Dead in Kitchener Jail.

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 18. — (CP).Body of Alex Skorey, 37, local electrician, was found hanging from the grating of his cell at police headquarters to-day. Skorey was taken into custody last night on a charge of assault. He was in an altercation with Albert 'French' Salmen at the latter's club rooms on Ontario street. He was arrested on Salmen's complaint and was being held for court Friday.

MARY ASTOR TIES TO LATIN AMERICAN RUNAWAY MATCH

Weds In Yuma, Drives To Mexicali, Leaving Bridegroom To Attend Funeral

HER THIRD SPOUSE

YUMA, Ariz., Feb. 18.—(AP). — Mary Astor of film and diary fame eloped here to-day with Manuel Del Campo, young Latin American, who two hours later was en route alone to Mexico City.

She accompanied him by motor car as far as Mexicali, Lower Calif., where he boarded a plane. After kissing him good-bye, the film star would not admit that they had been married.

The 25-year-old bridegroom had been called to the Mexican capital by the death from pneumonia there yesterday of his father. Five years her junior, he is described as a clean-cut, clean-shaven man of medium height, polished manners, and light complexion.

The couple arrived here after midnight in a chartered plane, Hollywood friends, and Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, divorced husband of Mary Astor, were taken by surprise.

The elopement plane landed here. The couple, Mary wearing dark glasses, sped to the home of Superior Judge Henry C. Kelly and were wed. Later the Judge said he didn't really know it was Mary Astor. She gave the name of Lucille L. Thorpe, her maiden name having been Lucille Langhanke.

Sideslips the Issue.

Interviewers caught up with her at Mexicali, but she sought to suppress the news of her elopement saying she simply accompanied the insurance salesman to bid him farewell. She did not attempt to explain, however, why the devious route of airplane to Yuma, with a visit to the marrying Judge, thence by auto to Mexicali, was taken.

The bride returned without her bridegroom from Mexicali, boarded her chartered airplane and took off for Los Angeles.

The slender film star last year waged a bitter court battle with her divorced husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, over custody of their five year old daughter, Marylyn. During the trial, attorneys for Dr. Thorpe said they were prepared to introduce a sensationally frank diary of Miss Astor. They said it told of her association with prominent men, including George Kaufman, the playwright.

The diary's contents were not introduced in evidence when the case ended in compromise and the court impounded it.

Her first husband, a movie director, was killed in an airplane accident.

BRANTFORD GIRL IS "OFF ORIENTALS"

To Be Deported From U.S.—Lives With Chinese 5 Years—All Trouble

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Mildred Enney, 22-year-old Brantford, Ont., girl who said "I am off Orientals for life," was held at Wayne county jail today for deportation. She looked as Chinese as Leung Wing Wo, 30, with whom she has lived the last five years.

Immigration officials said the Chinese had concealed his companion's nationality by use of hair dye, sandpaper and lemon juice. He called the white girl Gim Yoke.

From her jail cell, Mildred said: "I don't want anything more to do with Chinese. I'm off orientals for life. They just get into a mess of trouble."

Warrant for the arrest of Mildred and Leung was obtained by the girl's mother. Leung will likely be deported to China and Mildred to Canada.

Say Mrs. Simpson No Idea Remarrying

Paris, Feb. 18. (CP-Havas)

LE Matin reported today that Mrs. Wallis Simpson has no intention of marrying the Duke of Windsor.

"Persons in close touch with Mrs. Simpson affirm she has no intention of remarrying," Le Matin said. "She is said to have repeated this many times to friends. Mrs. Simpson's financial situation is such as to permit her to wait some time before making a decision."

WIDOW PERISHES WITH 2 DAUGHTERS

Cook, Nurse Jump From Burning House—Neighbor Saves Two Other Children

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Constance Hayes, widow of J. Moylan Hayes, and two daughters, Schofield, eight, and Constance, six, died today when fire swept their terrace home in suburban Grosse Pointe.

A cook and a nurse jumped to safety from a second floor window with Mrs. Hayes' two younger daughters, Alicia and Mary. The fire broke out while the family slept.

Mrs. Hayes, the former Constance Burns, of New York, was socially prominent here.

Miss Casmira Gzowski, 22, occupant of an apartment the Hayes Terrace residence, told authorities she helped save the two smaller children by crawling from a second-storey window in her apartment into the children's bed-room. The adjoining windows were only inches apart.

Fire and smoke prevented her from returning to assist the other members of the Hayes family, she said.

DUST STORMS FAIL TO CLOSE SCHOOLS

Only About 50 Of 250 Pupils However Show Up For Oklahoma Town Classes

GUYMON, Okla., Feb. 18 (A.P.). —Dust fogged into this panhandle area again early to-day, but Guymon schools were to re-open "dust or no dust."

A "black blizzard" subsided at Hugoton, Kas., where 11 persons have died of influenza and pneumonia in the last few days, but blowing soil still plagued relatively small parts of Colorado and Texas.

Schools closed here yesterday as dust reduced visibility to zero. Only about 50 of the 250 High School pupils appeared for morning class. Those who braved the weather sat in dusty classrooms, playing a game. A few couples danced in the auditorium to piano music. Some read. None returned in the afternoon.

At Hugoton, two church basements were turned into emergency hospitals to aid the stricken community of 1,500. There were as yet no patients. The Red Cross announced two nurses had been sent there.

At Wichita Falls, Texas, the skies cleared of dust. It was reported nearly clear at Amarillo, with a forecast of clear weather. A fine pall of dust hung over Lubbock, Texas. Visibility at Abilene, Texas, was reduced to one-fourth of a mile.

91 YEARS TO-DAY.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.— (CP). — Hugh Neilson, former manager of Toronto Telegram and Despatch Company and associate of Alexander Graham Bell, to-day celebrated his 93rd birthday. He has had a private telephone in his home longer than any other living person.

REV. G. K. TYLER HAS ACCEPTED CALL FROM WOODSTOCK

Minister Of Park Street Baptist Church For Past Five Years

HISTORIC CHURCH

Rev. G. K. Tyler, five years minister of Park Street Baptist Church, announced here today he will accept a call to the First Baptist Church of Woodstock. Although no definite date has been set for the transfer, it will likely be effected shortly after Easter, he said.

The Woodstock church is one of the historic churches of the Baptist Convention. It was established in the year 1822 by pioneers from New York State. Among distinguished pastors who have occupied its pulpit was Dr. Thomas Wearing, brother of Judge Joseph Wearing and now on the Colgate University faculty.

The church has a widely-reputed choir of more than fifty voices and a junior choir of twenty-five boys and girls. It sponsors a thriving mission in the east end of Woodstock.

Rev. Mr. Tyler has been active in many community interests since taking the pulpit of Park Street Baptist Church here five years ago. Through work both within and without the church realm, he has gained a wide circle of friends. Active in the Peterborough Ministerial Association, he has served in various executive capacities.

YOUNG SNEEZER IMPROVES.

CROSSVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 18 (A.P.). — Ten-year-old Bertha Turner showed a slight improvement today, but she still is in the throes of a "sneezing sickness" that came upon her three weeks ago.

Dr. E. W. Mitchell said her family told him "she sneezes as many as 200 times in succession, and apparently on some days, sneezes about half the time."

Roosevelt Chats With Former Slave

Washington, Feb. 18. (AP)

A happy old negro, whose memory stretches back to his slave days before the United States Civil War, sat in the White House study today and chatted with President Roosevelt for nearly an hour.

"Mr. Roosevelt," he said afterward, "is my kind of white folks."

The old man was William Andrew Johnson, 79, who once was owned by President Andrew Johnson and later served as Johnson's personal servant.

He came to Washington from his home at Knoxville, Tenn., at the President's invitation, after Mr. Roosevelt heard that months ago the former slave tried unsuccessfully to meet him.

THREE PROVINCES UNITE ATTACKING TRANSPORT BILL

Protest New Board Having Control Over Interprovincial Truck Traffic

ALSO DOMINION ROADS

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan joined forces today before the Senate railway committee to oppose sections of transport bill broadening powers of the present board of railway commissioners into the board of transport commissioners with wide authority over all phases of commercial transportation.

The three provinces, represented by G. W. Mason, Toronto, protested provisions giving the new board control over motor and truck traffic of interprovincial or international character and also over Dominion highways.

Objections to the clause which were advanced claimed it was unconstitutional, led to duality, public inconvenience and interference with the motor industry.

Starts Back In 1916

The motor transport business in Canada dated back to about 1916, Mr. Mason said. The various provinces were regulating this kind of traffic within their respective boundaries.

Operators were insured under the different provincial regulations, he stated. There were stipulations limiting the hours for which a truck and bus driver might drive for one stretch without rest and also regulations aimed at preservation of the highways from wear and tear. In Ontario particulary, no operator could obtain a license without approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

The development which has taken place in this industry has been due to a large extent to the enormous expenditures of the different provinces, Mr. Mason said. Total paid by Ontario alone to date on highways amounted to $313,000,000, and in 1937 approximately $26,500,000 would be spent by Ontario on highways.

There should be no interference with this motor industry which the provinces have built up, by huge outlays of provincial funds, he contended. Further, the provinces themselves had sufficient control over truck and bus business; and

Bomb Raids On Capital Never Stop—17 Foreign Volunteers Die At Avila

GIBRALTAR, Feb. 18 (AP) — A ring of women spies—one of whom died before a firing squad as she cried "Viva la republica!"—was held partly responsible today by Spanish insurgents for General Franco's failure to smash Madrid's defences.

The ring's centre, reports reaching here said, seemed to be at Grinon, 18 miles southwest of Madrid, where a large Fascist base hospital was the main theatre of operations for the women.

Several of the feminine spies were said to have been captured there—caught in the act of questioning soldiers whom ostensibly they had come to comfort and cheer.

Main items of information the women were said to have sought were the number of troops along the front lines, where they were concentrated and the positions of artillery batteries.

At least one of the women spies was reported to have been shot by an executioner's squad in a small village near the capital.

Moonlight Bomb Raids.

MADRID, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A triple renewal of death and destruction dealt out to this beleaguered capital by night raiding bombers ushered in the eighth month of Spain's civil war today.

Three times last night, insurgent planes droned out of a clear, moonlit sky and hurled their explosive cargoes on to the city and its environs.

In the Vallecas district alone, 10 persons were killed and more than 70 wounded. Bodies of the dead and injured strewed the streets of this district on the southeastern edge of Madrid.

Defence officials hurried a survey of other sections to determine the full number of casualties and the extent of damage.

One bomb fell in Velasquez street near the Associated Press office. Another hurtled into Nunez de Balboa street in the Salamanca district formerly marked out as a neutral zone.

Firemen rushed into these two streets and into the Vallecas and Pacifico districts to save persons endangered by blasted buildings.

Other bombs struck in Ramon Calabuig, Democracia, Arroyo Abronigal, Mendez Alvaro and Menendez Pelayo streets. One bomb fell in the suburb, Colonia.

Attack On Avila.

AVILA, Spain, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Seventeen foreign volunteers in the ranks of Madrid's defenders were reported killed today as General Franco hurled his land and air forces against the city's southeastern barricades.

Two truckloads of government men were surprised by insurgent soldiers who opened fire. One of the government soldiers was taken prisoner.

Dispatches from the Jarama river front southeast of Madrid previously had reported that 28 North American volunteers had been seized when their trucks took a wrong turn and drove into the insurgent lines.

Attacked By 2 Black Bears Farmer Slays One With Axe

Jump Out Of Stump When Roused From Winter Snooze By Dog

IN HAMILTON AREA

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.). —Patrick Kelly, farm hand for William Campbell, to-day showed admiring residents of Nelson Township the carcass of a 300-pound black bear he killed yesterday with an axe.

Kelly said he disturbed a pair of bears dozing in a large tree stump on the Campbell farm yesterday and they climbed out and made after him.

"It was either me or the bears," said the farmhand, telling how he struck one down with his axe and the other fled on all fours.

"I didn't want to fight the bears —I had seen them last year, but no one I told about them would believe me and I had forgotten myself," Kelly explained.

He said when his dogs started barking yesterday he went to see what was worrying them and out popped the bears from the stump.

The animal that got away he believes is somewhere in a 50-acre patch of woods on a farm adjoining the Campbell property.

No one could explain how the bears got to Nelson Township.

Germany Orders Merchants to Cut Orange Prices in Half

BERLIN, Feb. 18—(C.P.-Havas) —German merchants who have stocked up on oranges regretted it to-day.

The Spanish civil war rushed citrus fruit prices throughout Germany sky-high, but the official price-regulating commission corrected this by enacting an ordinance ordering tradesmen to cut prevailing prices in half.

PUP TIES TRAFFIC

Lies Down In Middle Of Street To Lick Paws.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 18 (CP). —Either tired or just lazy, a collie pup lying in the middle of a busy street intersection practically paralyzed traffic. Police made their way through the jam and found the dog nonchalantly licking its paws. "Politely told to leave, the collie pup trotted away and traffic was able to move normally in about 15 minutes.

CHILDREN'S FUNERAL SATURDAY

SMITHVILLE, Ont., Feb. 18—(C.P.).—Joint funeral of Fred and Audrey Dancer, children who drowned in nearby Twenty Creek last week, will be held Saturday, it was announced to-day. Their bodies were recovered last night.

After a private service at their parent's home, a public service will be held in St. Luke's Church.

Predicts Quints Nursing Dr. Dafoe In 1952 Flu Case

New York Times Paints Interesting Picture Looking 15 Years Ahead

HAS TABLES TURNED

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (C.P.). — The New York Times in its "Topics of the Times," to-day states:

"Dr. Allan Dafoe will no doubt soon be recovered from his flu. The real news will come approximately 15 years from now when Dr. Dafoe is once more confined to his bed with a heavy but not too serious cold.

"He will then be taken in charge by a bevy of charming young nurses. Annette will freshen his pillow, Cecile will give him hot lemonade to drink, Emilie will take his temperature, Marie will sponge his face and hands. Yvonne will tell him funny stories.

"When the patient is well again—we are speaking of February, 1952—the five sisters will give a radio talk on how they took care of Dr. Dafoe."

EDWARD B. REID DIES

Native of West Huntingdon Dies in Detroit.

DETROIT, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Services will be held here today for Edward Blake Reid, 68, native of West Huntingdon, Hastings County, Ontario, who died Tuesday. Mr. Reid resided here 21 years. His widow and two brothers, John of Rochester, N.Y., and Boulter of Lindsay, survive.

Find Winter Mildest In Past 22 Years

Cornwall, Feb. 18.

CANAL weather records go back twenty-two years, but they do not chronicle a single mild winter to compare with that of 1936-37. A check-up today revealed that the mercury has not fallen below the zero mark here since December 1, that the average temperature is far above normal, and that snowfall has been many inches short of the averages for December, January and February. The only zero days were November 27 and December 1.

ZAHAROFF ESTATE SHORT OF RUMORS

Step-daughter Says Holdings In France Similar To English--$965,000

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(AP)—Estate in France of Sir Basil Zaharoff, Europe's "mystery armaments salesman" who died last November, is "about the same as the estate in England," Countess D'Ostroroz, one of two step-daughters and co-heiress to his fortune was quoted by French newspapers as saying today.

(British officials announced in London yesterday Sir Basil's estate, in England, was valued at approximately $965,000).

"All the fantastic sums mentioned —running close to $50,000,000—are not correct," the countess was declared to have said.

"I wish they were because I would not mind inheriting a bigger sum."

RESCUERS FIND TWO CHILDREN'S BODIES IN CREEK

Discovery Comes After Incessant Toil By Hundreds Of Men Since Saturday

USE DIVERS, GAS SHOVEL

Young Victims Are Found Half Mile From Spot Where They Fell In

SMITHVILLE, Ont., Feb. 18.—(CP)—Ice-covered Twenty Mile Creek gave up the bodies of Fred and Audrey Dancer after hundreds of men toiled night and day since Saturday, dynamiting the ice, operating grappling irons and building a dam. Their efforts were rewarded last night after the creek had been partially drained.

The boy, 11, and his sister, 6, left home Saturday with their dog and were last seen by their father, Fred J. Dancer, South Grimsby dairy farmer, playing beside the creek, near Smithville, 20 miles southeast of Hamilton. Their dog returned home alone and frantic parents launched the search which drew volunteers from all parts of the district.

Roy and Harold Thomas, using grappling irons, found the boy's body half mile from the place where the children were believed to have fallen through a hole in the ice. Two hours later Arthur Coxall of Welland, Clifford Gee of St. Anne's and Clifford Marsh of Niagara Falls located the girl's body, about 100 yards from her brother's.

Women Supply Food

While the men attacked the ice, women brought them coffee and sandwiches. Dominion, provincial and township officials lent help. Divers Alex MacDonald of Welland and Nelson Willmought of Port Weller crawled along the creek bottom in search of the bodies.

William (Red) Hill of Niagara Falls, famous for his rescues and recovery of bodies at the Falls came here with his son, William Jr., to lend a helping hand in returning the bodies to the anxious parents. Men and boys from nearby farms attacked the ice, some with their bare hands, to permit the use of grappling irons.

A dam was erected by a construction firm to drain the creek, making operations easier for divers and other searchers. Acting District Chief Jerry O'Connor brought an eight-ton pumper and six men from Hamilton fire department. Dynamite was used to blast the ice and a gasoline shovel was put into operation.

OPERATORS ARE THANKED

Remained at Job While Fire Was Raging in Whitby.

WHITBY, Feb. 18. — A resolution was passed last night at the regular session of Whitby Town Council that a letter of appreciation be sent in recognition of the services of Miss Connie Rainnie and Miss Jean Heard, two telephone operators, for their devotion to duty during the night of the recent fire. A letter was sent to the Bell Telephone Company as well as to each of the girls.

SNOW, MUD SLIDES ISOLATE B.C. AREAS

Three C.P.R. Trains Are Held Up In Interior—Wire Lines Cut

VANCOUVER, Feb. 18.—(CP)—Work crews battled today to restore rail and wire communications in the British Columbia interior but new slides of snow, mud and rock roared from mountains to cause further disruption.

Three Canadian Pacific Railway trains due here yesterday were being held up by slides which blocked the main line near China Bar, in the Fraser Canyon about 100 miles east of Vancouver.

Canadian National Railways officials reported a train due here last night was held up in the same district by a slide covering 250 feet of track.

Slides blocked the C.P.R. line on the mountain subdivision east of Revelstoke and indications were another 12 hours would be required to clear the tracks there.

Telegraph and telephone wires were snapped by the slides in the Fraser canyon and in the Coquihalla Pass, 90 miles east of here. Wire communications with United States Pacific Coast points, too, were disrupted by a wind, driving snow and sleet and snapping poles along the line.

Many telephone wires in north and West Vancouver, across the harbor from the city proper, were broken by the weight of nearly eight inches of snow.

Police Provide News.

NELSON, B.C., Feb. 18 (C.P.). — Police came to the rescue when the Nelson News found its leased telegraph wires out of commission.

The newspaper regularly is supplied with world news from The Canadian Press bureau at Vancouver, but yesterday snow and mudslides in the mountains disrupted wire facilities.

An appeal was sent to the British Columbia Provincial Police. Their wireless stations were brought into operation and from The Canadian Press office in Vancouver news reports were filed with the police. After being relayed to the police operator in Nelson, the despatches were picked up by the news.

Late last night a wire circuit with Calgary was established and additional news was supplied from The Canadian Press there.

PENSIONS FOR BLIND

Finance Minister Places Notice On Order Paper of House.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17 (CP)—Finance Minister Dunning today gave notice of a resolution preliminary to introduction in the House of Commons of a bill to make the Old Age Pension Act applicable to blind persons at an earlier age than to others.

Details of the bill, forecast in the speech from the throne, will not be known until it is introduced. The suggestion was made in the House last year, however, that blind persons should become entitled to pensions at 40 years instead of 70 in the cased of the aged.

RED RYAN "WEAK" SALVATION ARMY CAPTAIN TESTIFIES

No Desperado Leader—Hadn't Will To Resist Invitation Back To Crime

HEARING CONTINUES

TORONTO, Feb. 18. (C.P.). — Convicted bank robber and killed by police in an abortive Sarnia liquor store robbery last spring Norman "Red" Ryan, formerly termed Canada's "Public Enemy Number One," had a new description to-day—a "weak brother."

Testifying before the Archambault Royal Commission on Penitentiaries, Captain Wallace Bunton of the Salvation Army told how he had seen Ryan after his parole from prison. Ryan had told the London, Ont., social worker on many occasions men had come to him asking him to return to crime.

Ryan was not the "brains, not the leader of a criminal gang," Captain Bunton said. He was not a desperado, he was a weak brother who could not hold out against an invitation to crime.

Another Salvation Army man, Lieutenant - Commissioner William Dalziel asked the Commission for a "long overdue ruling that relatives of prisoners should be notified without undue delay after the arrests." He described cases where prisoners were not allowed to communicate with friends until long after arrest, and sometimes not until after conviction."

Commissioner Dalziel believed provision should be made to give indigent prisoners adequate defence. He said his fellow-officers had considered the idea of a public defender but had never been fully convinced its practical application would be as simple as the functioning of a Crown Prosecutor.

"Would it not be possible for the Crown Prosecutor, in the cases of indigent prisoners, to act as an impartial advocate, constituting himself as representing the Crown for the purpose of presenting all the relevant facts, and at the same time seek to obtain and present to the courts all evidence for and against the accused?" he asked. On occasions, he added, it has been felt the Crown Prosecutor felt it his duty to obtain convictions.

HEPBURN TO TABLE POWER CONTRACT

Bill To Have Civil Service Lawyers Edit Statute Law Advances

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP) — Ontario judges will be spared the task of editing statute law for the decennial consolidation and revision of Ontario statutes.

The legislature yesterday gave second reading to Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck's bill to provide the revision should be made by lawyers in the civil service. In doing so it approved the principle of the measure.

Mr. Roebuck charged extravagance had marked past revisions. The 1914 job cost more than $275,000, he said, and bills for meals, cigars, taxis and newspapers were tremendous.

Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines, gave notice of the introduction of bills to affect persons who have incorporated personal companies in other jurisdictions to escape Ontario taxation. One bill provides that income tax will in the future apply on the tax paid the federal government in income derived from personal corporations in other jurisdictions.

By another measure, notice of which Mr. Leduc gave, the government hopes to encourage development of Ontario mines. The bill would exempt mining companies from the corporations tax act until their profits are large enough to be taxed under the mining tax act.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn assured the House of the early tabling of the agreement between the Ottawa Valley Power Co. and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. A bill to validate the agreement will also be introduced.

A government bill given second reading yesterday abolishes the post of legislative secretary for Northern Ontario. This was created more than 10 years ago. The first incumbent died shortly after he was appointed and the position was never filled.

YOUTH IS CLEARED HUNTING FATALITY

Boy Is Accidentally Shot By Chum When Out Hunting

OSHAWA, Feb. 18. — A coroner's jury last night found that Clarence Perry came to his death from a gun in the hands of Peter Sobil, but that it was purely accidental and they attached no blame to the youth that carried the gun. The fatal accident occurred on a Sunday when Sobil and Perry, two chums, were out hunting rabbits, when Sobil slipped on the ice and the shotgun he was carrying went off and hit Perry who was a few feet ahead of him. Perry died a few hours later in the Oshawa General Hospital. Coroner Dr. R. E. McMullen conducted the inquest.

Australian Makes Cup Team

This 17-year-old Australian tennis star, Jack Bromwich, has earned for himself a place on this year's Davis Cup team. It was his sensational play in the recent Australian championships that gave him a position on the team. During the championships he defeated the top-flight player of Australia, Jack Crawford, who thinks very highly of the young up and coming star.

WOMAN'S ASSAULT CHARGE BAFFLES HONOLULU POLICE

Officer's Wife Claims She Was Dragged From Hotel And Attacked

PHYSICIAN DENIES IT

HONOLULU, Feb. 17 (A.P.).—Police Captain Don Hays said today he "expected to have a statement soon" concerning the sensational report by a U.S. Navy officer's wife that she was dragged 75 feet across an open yard into a garage and criminally assaulted.

A physician's statement that two examinations indicated she had not been attacked added a baffling angle to the story told by Mrs. Bennett S. Copping, 24—an account in some respects resembling Honolulu's notorious Massie case.

Both Mrs. Copping and her Navy lieutenant husband told police she was attacked by an unidentified white man when she left her hotel room early yesterday.

In the Massie case, involving a socially prominent family, the attack on a Navy lieutenant's wife was followed by the murder of a native and the manslaughter conviction of the woman's husband, her mother and two enlisted men.

Dr. Henry M. Akina, assistant city-county physician, said after two examinations Mrs. Copping had not been attacked.

Captain Hays said Mrs. Copping's throat, lower arms and feet were bruised. He ordered a search for a man described by the lieutenant's wife as dark-haired, tall and wearing dark trousers and a grey sweater.

Find Initialed Handkerchief

The officer attached some importance to a handkerchief bearing the initial "H," which was found in the garage. He ordered it examined to determine if it contained navy laundry marks.

Police also attempted to locate a woman known to Mrs. Copping as Dolores De Beck.

Mrs. Copping told officers she and her husband attended a party Sunday at the Pearl Harbor Navy Base but Lieutenant Copping, commander of the Submarine S26, returned without her to their hotel in the residential district late in the afternoon. She related that later she, Dolores De Beck and two men she believed were connected with the Navy, also returned to the Copping apartment and had drinks. Lieutenant Copping was asleep.

About midnight the other three members of the party left. Early in the morning she went out of their first floor room to go to a washroom, she was quoted as saying. Her asserted assailant was standing at the end of the hallway, grabbed her without saying a word and dragged her to the garage.

After the alleged assault, officers said she told them the man asked her, "Are you all right?" then fled.

FLU GRIPS 2 TOWNS.

WINDSOR, N.S., Feb 17—(CP).—Influenza held two more Nova Scotia towns in its grip to-day as outbreaks regarded as serious gained ground in Windsor and in Annapolis Royal, 80 miles down the south shore of the Bay of Fundy.

Schools, churches, theatres and other public buildings were closed here last night, as doctors reported 300 children suffering from the "flu." Similar steps were taken in Annapolis Royal yesterday after a school roll-call showed only 47 out of 198 children able to attend school.

ASKS WHO'S WHO IN DISARMAMENT

British League Member Warns That Arms Volume Encourages Strife

BIRMINGHAM, England, Feb. 18. —(CP)— Necessity of a new and early European settlement was urged in a speech here by Lord Allen of Hurtwood, member of the executive of the League of Nations Union.

"Public opinion," Lord Allen continued, "is watching with anxious goodwill the valuable exchange of speeches between Mr. Eden, M. Blum and Herr Hitler.

"There is little doubt that Europe is reaching a situation in which the sheer volume of international re-armament will make it increasingly difficult to avoid a sudden explosion which no nation desires.

"Hitherto the time-lag in armed preparedness has prevented dangerous incidents from leading to catastrophe. It is imperative, therefore, that the nations should reach a new European settlement during the next few months.

Issues Are All Entangled.

"There seems little chance of any precise answer from Germany if European problems are approached in isolation from each other Economic demands, territorial claims — justifiable or unjustifiable — and colonial prestige have all become entangled in a web of emotion.

"Nothing short of a comprehensive peace offer can bring to light whether there is a genuine will to peace, or whether we must now accept the fact that the pursuit of power politics overshadows legitimate claims.

"British opinion is most anxious to welcome Germany back to the League on a basis of absolute equality. Isolated concessions are difficult and dangerous but it would be possible to examine every claim and counter-claim with a real prospect of success, and with a desire for give and take provided it was known that the new settlement would include Germany as a member of the League of Nations, accepting its rights and obligations.

"It is possible to be too diplomatic in diplomacy. The time has come when the British nation is in a position of sufficient power and authority to test the risks of an invitation to Germany, which would exclude no controversy, claim or grievance, and would test the sincerity of every European nation."

Three British war horses and a mule, the first to be sent to England of a number left on the Continent after the World War arrived in London from Antwerp, Belgium, to be cared for by Our Dumb Friends' League.

TORONTO OFFICER GETS ORILLIA JOB

Becomes Chief At $1,500 a Year—Four Full Time Men Now On Force

ORILLIA, Ont., Feb. 17 (C.P.).—William G. Carson, patrol sergeant of the Toronto Police Force, was engaged at Council meeting here last night as Chief of Police of the Town of Orillia.

The Police Committee of the Council, which has in the past few weeks gone over between 400 and 500 applications since advertising the position as open for application, brought in a report re-organizing law enforcement machinery in Orillia. The report was adopted on a vote of six votes to five. Under the new system, William Carson was hired at a salary of $1,500 a year. Chief for 14 years, Adam L. Church is retained for 1937 as constable at the same salary he received as chief. $1,200 a year. Constables Louis Carr and Joseph Abernethy were re-hired at the same salaries, $1,000 each.

The report placed four full-time policemen on duty in Orillia instead of three as formerly.

Gold reserves in Switzerland are now valued at $625,000,000.

DOG HELPS MASTER TO SLAY BIG BEAR

Now Is Privileged To Curl Up In Front Of Fire On Bear Skin

DUNCAN, B.C., Feb. 17 (CP.).—Edward Shaw's dog Sandy is privileged to curl up in front of the fire on a big bear skin at his master's home, near here, 39 miles northwest of Victoria, on Vancouver Island.

The rug once adorned an angry, wounded bear, charging down on Sandy's master. Shaw's first bullet only wounded the animal and it turned to attack him.

Working feverishly Shaw inserted a second cartridge that jammed and while he sought to clear the gun Sandy entered the picture. The dog attracted the bear's attention, giving his master time to re-load. It took six shots to kill the animal.

GETS THREE MONTHS

BOSTON, Feb. 17—(A.P.).—Federal Judge Hugh D. McLellan today sentenced Al Shapiro of New York, who, Assistant U.S. Attorney Henrf M. Len said, was the operator of a $2,000,000 fake sweepstakes, to three months in jail.

Lean said Shapiro, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy to use the mails to defraud by shipping fake tickets into New England, was the last of 26 persons indicted to have his case disposed of.

UNCLE SAM BACKS SOIL CONSERVING TO FIGHT FLOODS

New Tactics Of Washington's Experts Emphasize National Menace

WORK AT SOURCES

By SIGRID ARNE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP). — Congress passed an omnibus flood-control bill last spring which authorized expenditure of $310,000,000. Why, then, are hundreds of thousands homeless, hungry, cold and wet today in the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys?

"Wai-ai-ait a minute," say federal flood experts. "There is nothing magic about stopping these annual disasters. It takes hard work, time, and lots of money; nobody knows how much." But on one point they agree: No matter what it costs, it is worth many times the amount.

Flood waters not only wreck homes, tear up roads, wash out bridges, drown people and kill them off from exposure, but also wash life-giving top-soil away from farms. Destruction strikes in two directions, says H. H. Bennett, chief of soil conservation service: In the cities, where waters inundate the streets; and back on the farms, where millions of little trickles of water carry off the soil.

Voted $310,000,000

So the theory of beating floods is changing in government councils. Last spring's flood-control bill is an excellent example. It provided $310,000,000 not only for the building of dams, as such bills used to do, but for soil-conservation work back at the source of streams.

That inclusion of soil-conservation is new. Dams formerly seemed to be the only answer to floods. But look at the Ohio River now. It has 50 dams. Army engineers, extremely expert in such building, constructed 49 of them at a cost of $125,000,000. So there must be another half to the answer of the puzzle, and Bennett thinks he has it in a slow tedious but important change in the way Americans use their land.

Bennett believes the volume of spring floods can be cut appreciably if farmers try soil-conservation; if they strip crop (planting a row of corn, and then a row of grass for instance), if they terrace, and if they plant their crops in rows that follow the lines of the hills. The forest service steps in on the steeper slopes. Its men are planting trees where crops won't grow. The trees take root and cling, underbrush and grass grows up, and the water's headlong rush is stopped.

But all this work moves as slowly as a beetle going uphill, says Bennett, because it costs much money, demands much education of farmers, and takes much preliminary survey work to determine where the money can best be spent.

Still Awaits Money

That preliminary work has been started by the department of agriculture, which is collecting all government data on the subject. But the work under last spring's flood-control bill still awaits the necessary grease—the money. The bill just "authorized" the expenditure.

Some of the money is requested in the President's 1937-38 budget. He asks $26,000,000 for flood control. Half a million of that is asked for the department of agriculture for survey work, and another $500,000 is asked for a survey of army engineers. The remaining $26,000,000 is to be used for actual work and material.

From a private business concern, which made a survey of last year's flood destruction, the soil-conservation office learned the total destruction in 13 states was estimated at more than $500,000,000.

This year, between Cincinnati and Cairo, floods have eclipsed all previous records. Last year saw 350,000 homeless. This year there were 750,000 homeless when the floods were a week old. Last year the Red Cross spent $7,062,964 up to September. This year it had 49 concentration camps and 25 hospitals in the flood area during the early days of the disaster, and what the eventual cost will be is not known.

WOMEN FIND MEN SHIRT CONSCIOUS

Young Fellows Of Today Demand Great Deal In Regard To Lines

VANCOUVER, Feb. 18—(C.P.)—Ask almost any woman what she thinks of men and their idosyncrasies in the matter of shirts—and she'll tell you, says Grace Lockhart in the Province. That is, if she doesn't fall down in a stroke, in the telling. Because after all, the burden of the matter of shirts and their laundering falls upon the woman. And does she pay.

"I've often thought of the old simple days when farmers and some others wore the same shirt all week, worked in it and slept in it, and changed it on Sunday for a Sunday shirt (sometimes) and then got up Monday morning, put on a clean denim shirt and that was all there was to it.

"Now what do we have? Young whippersnappers who won't wear anything in the office but white shirts. Other whippersnappers who won't wear anything but the dark colors in the newest cut of collars. Give any one of them a shirt that hasn't the last word in pointed color, and what have you? Groans of anguish. Pain-furrowed brows.

"And as for their laundry bills. The shirts must just go to a certain laundry because that laundry is the only one in the whole city that knows how to launder a collar. Think of that. Something to do with the points of the collar."

Heads Commission

Edwin J. Brown of Seattle, president of the U.S. Association of Racing Commissioners, sat in on the probe by California state assembly committees into the horse racing set-up at Santa Anita Park. Properly conducted racing within a decade will make California second only to Kentucky in the breeding of fine horses, said Brown, and advised the lawmakers to revise current statutes designed to prevent doping of horses, which he declared a heavy handicap on honest horsemen.

NEW YORK RACKET CHIEFS UNDER FIRE

Prosecutor Dewey Centres Drive On Gang Exacting Toll From Restauranteurs

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (CP).—Full force of an inquiry headed by Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey was turned on the Manhattan restaurant racket today, affording ample opportunity for Montreal officials to study methods used here to rid the city of various racket enterprises.

A similar inquiry, it was announced, is to be started in Montreal and J. J. Penverne, Montreal lawyer, is in New York to obtain first hand knowledge of Dewey's tactics.

At present eight men are on trial as being mobsters who exacted tribute estimated at $2,000,000 annually from restaurant owners on the threat of strikes and stench-bombs being used to disrupt their business.

Louis Beitcher, stony-faced informer on the restaurant racketeers and confessed small-time collector in the alleged extortion plot for which the eight men are on trial, has told from the witness stand how he exacted tribute from the restaurateurs, using the threat of "labor trouble" to bring recalcitrant businessmen into line.

But the restaurant racket is only one phase of the inquiry instituted by the 35-year-old Dewey, a former United States District Attorney-General, two years ago.

His investigation embraced rackets of all descriptions, from small time ambulance chasers to the kings of vice. After his appointment as special rackets prosecutor in 1935 by Governor Lehman of New York State, Dewey announced his inquiry "would be an investigation into everything" and that he was particularly "going after the big shots."

He concentrated for a time on commercial white slavery and was responsible for obtaining conviction and a long prison term in the case of Charles "Lucky" Luciano, vice king.

CORPORATION TAX LOAD MAY EASE

Leduc Proposes Aid For Real Holding Companies

TORONTO, Feb. 18 — (C.P.) — Removal of some of the burden of corporation taxes on real estate holding companies will be effected by legislation which the Hepburn Government is proposing to the present session of the Ontario Legislature.

Hon. Paul Leduc, on behalf of the Government, has filed notice of several amendments to the Corporation Tax Act, among them one providing that "a portion of the paid up capital of every incorporated company whose only business is the holding of real estate for sale or rent and the owning of buildings used as hotels and apartment houses, shall be exempt from tax under the Corporations' Tax Act."

Under the present terms of the act the amount of a mortgage on a building owned by a real estate holding company is regarded as "employed capital" and therefore taxed. The government has found, however, that in the case of many companies which are losing money the burden is excessive and the new proposal is that where the net revenue is less than eight per cent. of the total capitalization, an exemption is to be allowed.

Another amendment to the act will require all corporations to pay their corporation tax within six months of the end of their fiscal year. Under the present terms of the act corporation taxes become due on December 31 and payable before June 30. This permitted a company whose fiscal year ended in January or February to avoid payment for a full year and six months. The new legislation will place all companies on the same basis requiring them to file return at the end of their fiscal year whenever it occurs and to pay their taxes within the following six months.

Tillsonburg Man Fined For Selling Milk, Says He Will Keep On.

TILLSONBURG, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.) — For the first time in the town's history a citizen was convicted of an infraction of the milk by-law, when Herbert Inman, was fined one dollar, and costs, by Magistrate Donald McRimmon yesterday for selling milk without a license.

Inman told the Magistrate he would continue selling milk despite the by-law.

A written report from Dr. T. E. Early read in court said the stables "were dirty and unfit to house cows for the sale of milk."

SEES RESTORATION DIM IN AUSTRIA

Chancellor Bans All Cultural Groups—Often Nazi In Disguise

VIENNA, Feb. 18—(C.P.-Havas)—A ban was clamped down to-day on all pro-German "cultural" organizations in Austria—often Nazi groups in new guise—in the wake of a warning by Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg that their "inopportune" activities would not be tolerated.

At the same time, Monarchists seeking the return of Achduke Otto to the Hapsburg throne, saw a glimmer of hope for an eventual restoration in Von Schuschnigg's address to some 1,500 patriotic front leaders in the main hall of the Parliament Building here yesterday.

It was said, however, restoration in the immediate future was not likely.

Schuschnigg told the government party heads "the Austrian leaders alone are entitled to make a decision through eventual consultation with the people."

He warned legitimists against any "premature action" and declared all monarchist propaganda "should subordinate itself to the internal political composition of the new Austria."

The Chancellor is known to favor a restoration, but only when all domestic and foreign difficulties have been removed. One of the main obstacles at present is the hostility of Germany to such a move.

Von Schuschnigg's warning to pro-German organizations, coming a few days before the scheduled visit of Konstantin Von Neurath, German Foreign Minister, was regarded as significant.

The Chancellor insisted that all one-time anti-government groups must enter the patriotic front. The sole government party, and work with it to safeguard "the Austria of Dollfuss."

Massey Refers to Revision of Anglo-Canadian Pact.

BIRMINGHAM, Feb. 18 (C.P. Cable). — Revision of the Anglo-Canadian trade agreement would mean improved trading conditions between the United Kingdom and Canada, Hon. Vincent Massey said yesterday.

Addressing a Canada-Birmingham reciprocal trade luncheon the Canadian High Commissioner urged a first hand study of markets.

"Tariff preferences and quotas and all the devices of government cannot be substituted for our individual initiative," he said.

37 FLU DEATHS IN CALGARY.

CALGARY, Feb. 18 (CP). — An epidemic of influenza has caused 37 deaths in Calgary during the past six weeks, medical authorities reported today. The epidemic was believed on the wane, although some 200 cases remained in hospital and scores of victims were confined to their homes.

A Question of Importance

It often happens that some person thinks of something the day after which should have been considered the day before. That point is now being raised following the hurrying through the Ontario Legislature of enactments declaring that the Hydro Electric Power Commission is in a position where no findings of courts can penalize it, and that applies even to a decision of the Privy Council.

R. A. Reid, K.C., D.C.L., Toronto, now raises another question. Reduced to a few words it is this: The Hydro Electric Commission is not the owning body of the Hydro system; it is merely a trustee appointed by the government. The real ownership of Hydro is vested in the municipalities to the extent of $300,000,000, and as the various municipalities wipe out their debts they will each own outright a certain portion of this system. We do not believe it is possible to argue or dispute that point. The municipalities, and not the Ontario Government, the Hydro Commission or any other agency, are the owners of the Hydro system.

The recent legislation passed by the Ontario Legislature placed all its powers of protection around the Hydro Commission, but it is difficult to see where that has protected the real owners, the municipalities. If a judgment were to be rendered against the Hydro Commission, and if the recently enacted laws make it impossible to collect from Hydro through the Commission, then what would there be to prevent the suit for collection being pressed directly against the real owners, the municipalities? Mr. Reid is under the impression there would be nothing at all to prevent such a course being taken, and if his contention is correct it means that the object sought by the Legislature has not been accomplished.

Our Increasing Mental Cases

Premier Hepburn is reported as having in his possession a report made by Dr. Samuel Hamilton, relative to necessary changes in dealing with the mental hospitals in Ontario. One story says the report recommends a complete change from what is referred to as the "beaten path" in dealing with such cases. Just what the beaten path may refer to is uncertain, as mental cases do not permit of uniform treatment as a rule. Each is different from the next.

The province will be under the necessity of making extensive additions to existing institutions because all existing hospitals are overcrowded. Anything new in methods of treatment is interesting, also helpful, but the unanswered question is: What is causing the increase in the numbers of those requiring such treatment? The history of mental sickness does not show encouragement in the rate of discharge from institutions, and that holds true in all lands from which statistics can be gathered.

We can go on increasing the number of institutions in which we will house such unfortunates as are entitled to go there, and we can probably bring to bear on the situation the advice and experience of experts, but back of it all is that depressing degree of futility which centres in two considerations—(1) Why do they come in increasing numbers, and (2) Why can't we make more progress in the work of restoration instead of being forced to regard arresting progression of the disease as somewhat of a triumph?

What goes on in the human mind is probably one of the greatest unexplored fields in existence in Ontario and the world over, and the reason is that every person has within himself a barrier to successful exploration.

What the Pioneers Knew

In a report about a debate on pioneer life held in a community in this district we noticed one of the speakers argued this way: "Those who go to new districts in the north today have not the skill of the pioneers who first settled this land. They would scarcely have any idea of how to cut trees or clear land or build a shanty."

We cannot but wonder where the speaker got the idea that pioneers of this country had much knowledge of such matters when they arrived. We have heard and read and verified a good many pioneer stories and the plain truth seems to be that when most of the pioneers who settled Ontario came here and entered the bush they were in surroundings such as they had not seen before. We are quoting here from notes made some time ago, and the gentleman speaking was then a man of 76 who was referring to his father's experiences:

"The first time he started to fell a tree he worked at it all the morning and at noon a stranger passed and was asked to stop for a bite of such food as was available. The stranger asked father if he had ever taken down a tree before, and the answer was he had not. After dinner the two men went to the place where father had been working and it was found he had been using an axe to cut the tree, making a deep notch the entire distance of the circumference. He had no idea of which way the tree would fall, and the stranger spent a couple of hours explaining how to cut the tree so that it would fall exactly where wanted. I recall having heard my father telling how he explained this same thing to several other settlers who moved in to take land in his district."

As far as equipment is concerned the man who wanted to pioneer in a new district today could take with him a good many things which were not in existence when Ontario was first settled, and which were not available for the early settler. Whether he could take with him the spirit of the pioneer is another matter.

Paying for Street Cars

Guelph is on of the diminishing number of small cities which persists in the belief that it can afford a street railway system. Some years ago the Guelph street railway was responding to the urge of old age and the mechanical infirmity which accompanied it. But the decision was then that the Hydro Electric Commission should put the thing in good shape and operate it—and Guelph would pay the bills.

The last report shows that there was an operating deficit for the year 1936 of $8,489.56. That of course is only the beginning, because during the same period provision for taxes, interest and sinking fund brought the total deficit to $42,267.45.

Guelph went ahead and rebuilt its local radial system about the time a good many other cities were going out of the business. St. Thomas now has no street cars; Stratford never did have any; London is gradually turning to buses, nor are there street cars in Galt. Woodstock or Owen Sound, and Peterborough still has some of the tracks on which no cars have run for ten years or more. Guelph has its street cars and even if the city stopped their operation to save the operating deficit it would still have a formidable amount of debt with which to deal each year. Guelph's street car decision was not a good business proposition.

Parking a Serious Business

The St. Catharines Standard says one hour parking is to be permitted on St. Paul street in that city. Then the St. Catharines paper urges "the whole traffic problem needs to be attacked in a big way." The suggestion is offered that an effort be made to cause St. Catharines to be known as the "friendly city."

We are all bent on having friendly cities and friendly people and friendly nations, but how a city can gain that reputation by handling the present-day parking problem is a stickler. It seems to make no difference which way one turns now, each city entered gives a sensation of hostility on account of the multitude of signs about no parking and limited parking. Toronto is probably the worst in the district and that is not the fault of Toronto. There are too many cars for the available space.

The person from the district coming into Peterborough finds the parking space along the main streets taken up, and most of it by city cars. We never could see the reason why an individual felt it was all right to use a space on a public thoroughfare for his own convenience. At home he builds a little house for his car and calls it a garage, but when he drives down town he expects to occupy public space for as many hours as he desires, and the people from outside who want to come in here and stop close to the stores where they are going to shop find it almost impossible to do so. Actually the average city of today cannot look very friendly to those from the surrounding district who want to come in to shop and attend to business and who are unable to find a place to pull up close to the business house of their selection.

An Alderman Bought Horses

Ald. M. W. Andrew of Stratford is a lawyer, and at the last meeting of the Board of Works Committee he paid tribute to the worth of Ald. R. G. Murdie as a horse buyer. Ald. Andrew was named on a committee to go forth and buy horses for the city, and if any man ever faced danger it would be the city alderman on such an errand who knew nothing much about horses. The chances all point toward them encountering a good many horses and each one would be sound and not one over five years of age. Each horse would have so great a hock that it could stand up for work on pavement or sod. When people have horses for sale they always have the same kind; they are always young; none has any defect, and each in turn is a bargain. We cannot at the moment recall of an admittedly poor horse ever having been offered for sale. Goodness runs through them like sap in spring.

Ald. Andrew says he watched Ald. Murdie in action. Ald. Murdie went and poked a horse or felt it in a certain place; then Ald. Andrew would do the same thing. Whether both forced the mouth open to have a look at the teeth is something not stated. The horses purchased turned out to be all right, so whatever it was that Ald. Murdie did must have been all right, and as Ald Andrew did exactly the same thing then he too must have been right, although he admits frankly he had no idea what all the poking and feeling meant. He just went through the same motions as the other alderman. Ald. Andrew may in time learn how to buy a horse if he stays on that committee long enough, and the only way he can learn is by going out with a man who does know horses. He cannot read the rules in a book. It is something which is either a gift or has to be acquired by a lot of expensive experience.

NOTE AND COMMENT

France threatens to clap fines on persons who raise commodity prices unduly. Just when the increases get in the "unduly class" has always been the puzzler.

Hitler has been presented with a complete Japanese costume and he probably will begin figuring out how he can use the material for military purposes.

Brockville's hockey arena has been destroyed by fire but at least the hockey teams of the place can prove an alibi. They haven't been that hot this winter.

De Valera is reported as willing to pay $25,000,000 a year for the protection of the British navy. In Canada we get the protection but never mention the $25,000,000.

Most people do not know exactly what a queen does, but we read where Queen Elizabeth went to the British Industries Fair and bought three dozen pairs of silk stockings.

A Calgary cat travelled all the way to Edmonton in a mailbag and the postal employee who opened the bag probably rushed right out and joined the Prohibition League.

Montreal's mayor promises to clean the underworld out of Canada's metropolis. The idea is sound enough but the trouble with such a feat is that commercialized vice has such wonderful recuperative powers.

A University of California expert says men are better housekeepers than women. A lot of men would like to show the story to their wives but they are afraid they might be asked to give a practical demonstration.

"Texas may ban betting" reads a news heading. The state government may pass a law making betting illegal but we would not mind a small wager to the effect that the ordinance will not put an end to gambling on horse races.

German Protestants are going to vote on the nazification of the church and the re-writing of the Old Testament. To make the thing easy for them Chancellor Hitler will probably tell them just how to answer the questions.

The wife of the new president of Finland will run the farm while her husband looks after the nation's business. That is a set up that rural members in Canada are also familiar with and the farms seem to get along very nicely too.

C.C.F. members in the House of Commons are to stage a fight against increased defence appropriations, which means that before the vote passes there will be a lot of work for the Hansard staff.

Mr. Woodsworth says that he cannot see the reason for spending money to send a Canadian contingent to the coronation. But that should not be surprising; there are really many things that Mr. Woodsworth cannot see.

Peel County C.C.F. will circulate a petition asking the government in case of war to take the profits out of the manufacture of war materials. What the organization would do if wheat went to $2.50 a bushel or potatoes to $5 a bag as a result of war has not so far been revealed.

It has been decided that absentee voting which was provided for at the last Dominion election will be done away with. The cost of the necessary machinery has been found to be out of all proportion to the number of voters who availed themselves of the opportunity, which was exactly what The Examiner pointed out when the system was introduced.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus has another hound, a day or two it hung around, and then he brought it in; I don't think it's well bred at all, in fact it's short and rather small, and it is very thin.

¶ When Angus brought the hound to me, it first sat down to scratch a flea, I said that would not do; but Angus says that every hound, is apt to have a flea around, perhaps there might be two.

¶ I said a hound would howl at night, just when the moon come into sight, and that would not be good; but Angus says he's not all hound, and likely he won't make a sound, but act like how he should.

¶ Wee Angus thinks this newest dog, is hollow like a fallen log, he's older than a pup; he cleaned his dish up on the floor, and started looking then for more, and we can't fill him up.

¶ I said a hound might bark and bite, or else get started in a fight, he might turn out real rough; but Angus says his eye is true, and one is brown, the other blue, his outlook's kind enough.

¶ I knew before we started in, I couldn't get the best of him, Wee Angus argues sound; I knew before a word was said, he had it firmly in his head—that he could keep the hound.

One Claim Meets Prompt Denial

(From Parliamentary Debates)

An hon. MEMBER: Oh.

Mr. COLDWELL: I was one of those who hoped when the great war ended that the British commonwealth of nations would form within the league a nucleus about which collective security for all the world might ultimately be achieved. I confess that to-day I am sadly disillusioned in that regard. Though I believe that the league offered a great ideal to our people and that we must rebuild the League of Nations, I recognize that the British national government quite lately undermined the league. Let me point out one or two incidents that, I think, make that clear. Speaking at Glasgow on November 22, 1936, Mr. Baldwin said:

It is curious that there is growling among the Labour party support for what is called a collective peace system. Well now, a collective peace system in my view is perfectly impracticable.

Mr. Baldwin proceeded to state his reasons for his conclusion that the collective peace system under the League of Nations was "hardly worth considering." Yet less than six months later we find Mr. Anthony Eden, one of the members of his cabinet, stating:

It is clear that our part should be to pursue a foreign policy that is frank, stalwart and above all firm in support of the League of Nations and of the collective peace system.

Less than two weeks after that Mr. Baldwin himself stated:

The League of Nations is the sheet anchor of the British foreign policy.

Why this extraordinary example of blowing cold and blowing hot in relation to the league—the attitude that has undermined confidence in the league? In my opinion it was not unrelated to the fact that during those six months which had intervened a peace ballot had been taken in Great Britain and overwhelmingly the British people had shown their faith in the league and in some measure of collective security within the league.

The dictatorships that threaten the world are made, perhaps, more real by the approach of war. Most of us in this house realize, I believe, that if through our defence preparedness, through our military commitments, we plunge into war, we too may lose, as other nations undoubtedly will lose, democratic institutions upon entry into war. I desire to see no form of dictatorship.

Mr. MARTIN: The hon. gentleman used the phrase "military commitments." Is he suggesting that this country has any military commitments?

Mr. COLDWELL: I did not catch the question.

Mr. MARTIN: The hon. gentleman used the phrase "military commitments." The question is, is he suggesting that this country has at the moment any military commitments?

Mr. COLDWELL: I am suggesting that these estimates and the large increase in the amount appropriated imply that we have in effect understandings which may be interpreted as commitments. That is my interpretation, because, as I said a few moments ago, I cannot see any reason for these increases unless we contemplate the use of our military machine in a war, and as far as we in Canada are concerned, I can see no possibility of a war in the immedite future.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: I must deny categorically and immediately what my hon. friend has said. There are no commitments and no understandings in the nature of commitments between this government and the government of Great Britain or any other government.

Mr. COLDWELL: I am glad to hear that; but may I say that with the increased estimates, with the presence of ten British military gentlemen in our militia department, the inference which I drew from these two facts was, I think, warranted under the circumstances. I am glad to get the Prime Minister's denial, which, of course, I accept.

Mr. DUNNING: But the hon. member keeps on repeating the statement.

Mr. COLDWELL: The Minister of Finance says that I have repeated the statement. I have repeated it, and I have repeated it designedly because up to this time I, at least, have had no denial of this particular statement.

Mr. DUNNING: In the plainest of terms this session.

NATIONAL THINKING.

(Chatham News)

THERE is being forced on the attention of Canadians at this time the necessity for a broader view of everything upon which the welfare of the country depends.

The heads of the great railway systems, leaders in the financial world and the executive heads of some of the great industries, have recently been speaking of the imperative necessity of Canadians getting away from the sectional and partisan standpoints and to think broadly and nationally on every issue that might affect the well being of Canada as a whole.

National thinking is not a new idea by any means. It is sometimes adopted as a slogan by the most rabid of partisans who cannot see good in anything espoused by an opposite party. Sectional interests sometimes appeal for national thinking as a subterfuge, to attract attention to the local view.

It is being impressed upon all open-minded men that partisanship has run wild far too long for the country's good, and that if Canada is to reap her greatest benefits narrow-minded conceptions of sectionalism, provincialism, group rights and privileges, preferences and favors must be abandoned and the rights of all sections weighed impartially and their welfare sought equally with others.

THIS MAY EXPLAIN IT

There are to be eleven weeks of official dinners associated with the coronation. Why Edward abdicated may be more easily understood.

A Pastor Writes a Letter

(And Deals With Affairs of the World.)

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: A letter written by a local minister to a student friend who is completing his fourth year in Queen's University in an Economic course.

Dear Jim. It is such an exception, these days, to know a young man, intelligent and trained who loves the Lord Jesus in all the fullness of His person and purpose. I use the last word with precision; for how can one know the fullness of Christ's eternal purpose, unless one recognizes the Deity of His person.

World affairs, especially in international political matters interest me much. You probably have a full panoramic view of the movements of the nations. How I envy you, because if submitted to God, you will have a perculiar appeal for the masses who are in that tip-toe experience of uncertainty and expectation. Everywhere one goes these days the commonest man on the street is speaking in new terms of world dignatories and systems. The hope is for a way out of the tragic conditions which are upon us.

The grievous thing about it all is, that the leaders are blind, fumbling, groping for a labyrinth of unfounded hope and optimism. The preachers, (many of them) are tenaciously clinging to that well worn doctrine of post-millenniumism, that of making the world into a state of millenium prosperity by their efforts. They have taken the mad bull world by the horns and though it is carrying them straight into the wall of God's eternal decrees, they hang on last they fall to the earth and their sentimental platitudes be disheveled. They have made their statements about "this advancing world," though the enemy of chaotic conditions press in on every side, still these brave souls put on their dress parades, blow their tin trumpets, shoulder their toy guns and brag to one another about the new social order they are creating and the brave new world of which they are a part.

The tragedy is that while these are thus playing with realities, the enemy of mankind—(his own selfish cruel human heart)—is driving a mine tunnel into the very centre of civilization. One of these days some wild madman will touch the fuse off and blow their whole Utopian dream to pieces. What fools men are! How dull and rebellious to the one fundamental and destroying factor of humanity's problems—the depraved heart of sin. What a chance you have to explode these falsities.

In this city there is an Open Forum and between 200 and 300 men gather to discuss and hear discussed matters of world importance. A couple of weeks ago I heard Prof. Prince of your school speak on the theme "The Europe of Today." A sorry picture he painted of disorder, hatred, maladjustment and possible devastion in death. His only hope was that Great Britain and the other "have nations," would make conciliatory gestures, by granting economic concessions to the "have not nations," that the desirable financial and commercial balance might be secured. What hope is there for this, as long as the selfish human heart controls British foreign policy or any other foreign policy?

Yesterday afternoon, I heard that young Baptist preacher from the West, T. C. Douglas, M.P. He has just returned from the World of Youth Congress at Geneva and the World Peace Conference in Brussels. He drew an even more terrible picture of bloodshed and death, of war terror, of the dogs of Mars unleashed, with no government hindrance, such as the League of Nations. He said the League was defunct. He said, war was inevitable, but he did not think it would come before 18 months passed.

After describing the part that coveteous economics and commercialism have played in catering to the needs of the avarice hearts of dictators, for 23 million dollars is supposed to have been made by Canadian Nickel producers in the Ethiopian conflict, after describing the rebellious moods of Japan, Italy, Germany and now France of Spain, that have destroyed the prestige and controlling power of the League, he stated the only hope for peace and world order lies in collective security obtained by a world court of justice, readjustment, and punitive power, to which the nations would submit their grievances, and whose decrees they would accept as sovereign. What a dream! What futile waste of breath! What delusion for the unthinking masses! How can this be a hope as long as satanic influences play on the wicked hearts of men; as long as national coveteouaness is fostered, as long as men think in terms of race prejudice.

Canada has control of 90 percent of the world's nickel, which is essential for the production of armaments. It was suggested that an embargo be placed on all nickel for armaments. Could a government that talked out of resolution for the conscription of resources and wealth in case of war, (and this for our own protection) be expected to pass a benevolent ruling for the preservation of peace in remote Europe? No, not while individual financiers, whose personal interests are at stake control things. It is useless to pin your faith in this for peace.

Jim, we have the more sure word of prophecy, from the Old Book. It has a vivid picture of the future. From it we know a court of nations will be formed within the confines of the old Roman Empire. We know from the Book that this dictator craze will finally culminate in the Master Dictator—the antichrist, who will control ten European kingdoms. Europe is "fast" ripening to this end. We know that this wicked one will at the first make agreements with the Jew, who has returned in thousands to the Holy Land. We also know he will finally lead a crusade of antisemitic hate, to exterminate the Jew of Palestine, then the scriptures clearly state that the long rejected Messiah will appear in the clouds of great glory, for the deliverance of God's chosen people, Israel. He then, the stone cut out without hands, will strike the hordes of hating Gentiles under this master dictator. They in Armageddon's Battle will be slain, and the Son of King David, the seed of Abraham will fulfil the ancient covenant to Abraham—"In thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed," for he will set up that kingdom of which the 11th chapter of Isaiah speaks so beautifully. Then for a millenium, a world court with the "Prince of the kings of the earth."—"The Prince of Peace" at its head will hold sway providing the long desired collective security. Jim, let's stay with the Book, let's preach the word.

Cordially, your friend in Jesus
REV. W. McARTHUR
Pastor of Bethany Gospel Tabernacle

Here Is a New Racket.

(From the Buffalo Times.)

ABOUT sundown last September 23, homeward bound office workers thronging the sidewalks in downtown Rochester paused to witness a pathetic incident.

Crowded into the rumble seat of a battered little roadster drawn up to the curb were four grimy, ragged youngsters, two dogs and a cat; in the front seat sat a white man and an Indian woman, the latter nursing an eight-months-old baby.

As the crowds surged past, the woman alighted from the car took a few faltering steps, rolled her eyes heavenward and collapsed on the sidewalk, still clutching the infant.

Women screamed and men crowded close around the prostrate woman, offering assistance. When she struggled to her feet $27 in coins and bills had been pressed into her hand.

But one man in the crowd—the corner policeman—wasn't impressed. He detained the family and called headquarters.

At the welfare shelter, Mary Copley Carpenter, 35, a Cherokee Indian, told a frank story of her 12 years of married life with the man whom she wed in Chillicothe, Ont.

She said they had spent those 12 years roaming the country from coast to coast. In practically every city in America she had practised a trick—fainting in public—and each time had collected a minimum of $20 from sympathetic onlookers.

Promptly, a Rochester judge sent Edward Carpenter, 36, to prison for vagrancy. Carpenter's "squaw" and her children—all of whom were born beneath the sky and without benefit of a physician—were moved into a house on the outskirts of the city, were provided with clothing, food and fuel by the state welfare agency.

Today Edward Carpenter walked out of prison—and into the arms of welfare officials. "Go to work or get out of town," they told him coldly.

But in the kitchen of her little home Mrs. Carpenter prepared a welcoming meal for him. "I still love him," she said. "The fainting idea was mine. I wasn't very good at it at first, but when the babies began to come along I did better. I guess I fainted a thousand times all together and was only caught one time."

LUCK AND HAPPINESS.

WILLIAM COYLE of Cincinnati believes that sweepstakes winners are more to be pitied than envied.

Five years ago Coyle won $20,000 on a ticket in the English Derby. He quit his job as elevator operator. But just recently he returned to duty—minus his winnings.

Coyle had been beset by all kinds of blue sky stock promoters, and had tried, without success, to establish himself in the garage, cafe and real estate business. Profits, however, were as scarce as hen's teeth, and now the job of running an elevator looks very good, indeed.

If only on the theory of "easy come, easy go," money won by gambling is very likely to be of the fleeting variety. In any event, Coyle is convinced that the road to happiness is not exactly cluttered with people who were simply lucky in the "sweeps."

To The Editor

NO OVERHEAD

Editor Examiner:

Sir: A recent report appeared in your paper on the local C. C. F. Club supplying its members with their winter supply of coal at $13.10 a ton leaving a credit balance of twenty cents.

This must appeal to your readers that the C. C. F. lack business ability from the fact that C. C. F. coal is off-circular coal, selling at from twenty-five to fifty cents a ton less than circular coal. This coupled with having no rent, taxes, insurance, or license fees to pay gives them a decided advantage over the coal dealer, who sells his coal at a few cents over the C. C. F. price. Circular coal is the dealer's guarantee of its quality and cost being bought and sold.

MODERNISM

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Modernism, which is the leading "sin" of today, declares that man is a part of nature, of material nature and no more. It declares that the supernatural does not exist and that by "taking thought" a man may know all that he can know and that outside of him dwells vast, silent and purely material universe whose material is matter and whose manner of working is machine-like or mechanical. Now, modernists are really old-fashioned materialists and far from being "modern" and are so far behind the true facts of the case that as Einstein says they condemn themselves out of their own ignorance. As he says, a man may not know and say so, but to say that he knows and that he knows it all is so absurd as to call for no further comment. But you will say "is there no evidence of the immateriality (spirituality) of man?" There certainly is and the great error of our boasted education as we call it is that this fact is not comprised in it but is treated as if it were non-existent. Where is it then? In the phronema or prefrontal annex to the brain which is not in any way connected up with the rest of the brain or with the body and in which is seated the self-consciousness of man and his power to think or reflect upon himself as if he were somebody else. It is the seat of the will and has only lately been discovered as an actual fact. So far as we know no other organism of any kind possesses it depending as other forms of life do upon the "subconscious" material or animal mind as it is called. Man alone it is now known possesses this reflective faculty and to affirm that it is like the rest merely a phase of "matter" and motion is to show that those who affirm it are ignorant both of the apparent and the real facts of the case.

THIS STRANGE WINTER.

(Belleville Intelligencer)

TAUGHT by strange winter weather, the weather prophets are careful, almost any day the probabilities are very moderate, a little cooler, or a little warmer, perhaps rain, then 'snow flurries' and so on.

While the weather man is hesitant this winter is likely to go down in history as one of the mildest on record. It does not equal the record of that winter a few years ago when there was no zero weather yet the 1936-37 winter mean temperature is no doubt above that of that zeroless year.

MOOSEHEART IS SHOWN IN PICTURE

Norman G. Heyd Pays Visit To Peterborough Members Of Moose Order

Norman G. Heyd of Toronto, regional director of the Loyal Order of Moose for Canada on Wednesday evening addressed a meeting at the Moose Hall here under auspices of Peterborough Lodge No. 813. He was introduced by Dictator William N. Hales.

On his official visit here Mr. Heyd was accompanied by Stuart Slater, Supreme Lodge auditor who has recently completed a tour of all the lodges in the Dominion including the Yukon territories.

Mr. Heyd outlined to a large gathering the principle aims and objects of the Moose Order, and afterwards presented a showing of talking pictures entitled "The Greatest Crime" and "Tomorrow's Citizens".

Both pictures had to do with the world's only complete child city of Mooseheart, Illinois, which is annually both the home and the school for an average of 1,000 children of deceased members of the Moose Fraternity.

The City of Mooseheart represents an investment of over $17,000,000. Spread over its broad acres are miles of paved streets lined with 200 or more fireproof concrete and steel buildings housing stores, shops, schools, and homes.

Living in the small comfortable homes under the care and influence of capable Moose mothers and instructors, these boys and girls are given a high school education and taught one or more of the many useful trades, preparing them to step out into the world as good and useful citizens.

Founded on humanitarian principles, this Fraternity has been most successful in youth movement and child service, a feature which was remarkably stressed by the splendid series of moving pictures.

Mr. Heyd and Mr. Slater held a conference with officers of the Lodge after the showing of pictures was completed, and later a dance brought a most successful program to a conclusion.

Officers of the Lodge here which reports a very sound financial standing, include: Dictator W. N. Hales; Past Dictator F. Roberts; Vice-Dictator William Pallant; Prelate J. Glaum; Treasurer, W. J. Garside; Secretary, Harry Dinsdale; Outer Guard, E. Holden; and Inner Guard, Robert Jones.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, February 19

JUDGING by the positions of the major planets, this may be a day of doubt and confusion, impediments and postponements, if not of distress and sorrow. It may be necessary to find "adversity's sweet milk in philosophy and fortitude." With these one may find solace and a measure of compensation for trials and disappointments in the purely private relations. But guard against subtlety and secret enmities. Business and labor may have some stimulus.

Those whose birthday it is may look for fair activity in business, despite some confusions, difficulties, postponements and frustrations, which may be caused by a bereavement or other sorrow. Comfort may be sought in the domestic, social or effection affiliations.

OBITUARY

RONALD W. DAVIS

After an illness of six years duration the death occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Thursday morning of Ronald Wilfred Davis of 382 George street south, at the age of 26 years 8 months. A native of Wiltshire, England, he came to this city with his parents when about one year old. Predeceased by his father he leaves his mother, also two brothers Ernest and Arthur and two sisters Vera and Leah Davis, all of this city. He was a member of St. James' United Church and prior to the onset of his illness was a student of dentistry for a year. The funeral is to be held from the family residence on Saturday at 2 o'clock p.m., with the Rev. F. W. Craik and the Rev. G. K. Tyler conducting the services. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

MISS ELIZABETH MURPHY.

The death took place today, February 18th, at the home of John J. McCabe, 293 Burnham street, of Elizabeth Murphy, in her eighty-seventh year.

The late Miss Murphy, who was born in Toronto, was educated at St. Joseph's Academy there and taught piano and voice culture in Toronto for many years. In 1901, she went to Norwood as organist of St. Paul's Church and later held a similar position in St. Mary's church at Campbellford. Her only sister, Rev. Sister Francis Borgia, who was an outstanding teacher of piano and vocal music, died at an early age.

The funeral will take place from 293 Burnham street on Saturday morning to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, with interment in St. Peter's Cemetery here.

JOHN BAXTER GIRVEN.

Word has been received of the death in Everett, Wash., on January 29 of a former resident of Otonabee in the person of James Baxter Girven, who passed away at his home in his 89th year. Mr. Girven was a son of the late James and Elizabeth Girven of Otonabee, and was one of a family of ten, seven of whom, Richard, Robert, James and Samuel and Mrs. Fannie Fields, Mrs. Eliza Soence and Mrs. Ann Jane Fawcett, predeceased him. His wife died about two years ago.

Surviving relatives are four sons: James C. of Everett, Wash., Matthew of Calderbank, Robert of Tidewater, Oregon, and Arthur of Sacramento, Cal.; four daughters: Mrs. Ella Tanner of Puyallup, Wash., Mrs. Fannie Gage and Mrs. Belle Hart of Fulda, Minn., and Miss Velma Girven of Medical Lake, Wash., and two brothers, William of North Monaghan and Henry of East City. There are also eleven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, February 2, at Snohomish, Wash., conducted by Rev. C. A. Marshall, Presbyterian minister, and interment was made in the Monroe, Wash., Memorial Park.

Itching, Burning, Stinging Eczema or Salt Rheum

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Eczema or Salt Rheum as it is often called is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases.

The intense burning, itching, smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in water, are almost unbearable.

Use Burdock Blood Bitters internally, and apply it externally. A few bottles are usually sufficient to afford relief from this torturing blood and skin disease.

31 HOTELMEN IN COURT

12 Plead Guilty To Breaches Of Amusement Tax Act.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.).—One of the largest assemblies of lawyers in years poured into police court today when 31 Windsor hotel proprietors faced 36 charges of breaches of the amusement tax and the Theatres and Cinematographers Acts.

Twelve hotels pleaded guilty to the charges, one was convicted, one pleaded not guilty and the case was set over until Friday, while the remaining 17 reserved pleas and had their cases adjourned until either Friday or Saturday.

Fines of $30 and costs or seven days in jail were imposed on the 12 proprietors who pleaded guilty.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18.—Price firmness in wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange coincided with a world-wide revival of demand for the grain. Canadian export sales totalled 1,000,000 bushels. Values closed unchanged to ¾ cent higher, with profit-takers ever ready to take advantage of each advance, trading was not unduly active and the price range was restricted to ⅞ cent.

The Canadian sales were made up of wheat afloat out of Vancouver and a few loads for shipment out of Montreal in May. The bulk of the grain was destined to the United Kingdom. Helping to uphold prices were purchases by Germany of two cargoes of Argentine wheat, two of new-crop Indian wheat and a quantity of Australian varieties. The sale of two cargoes of Australian wheat to Shanghai also was reported.

Firmness prevailed in outside markets. Cash grains showed little change. Coarse grains prices generally were strong. May flax at $1.72 pushing up 1⅞ cents.

THREE PROVINCES

the approval in the bill would only bring about "duality of supervision" as between the federal authority and the provinces.

Mr. Mason attacked the clause on constitutional grounds. The bill purported to regulate highway traffic by a licensing system particularly for "interprovincial or foreign trade."

Outside Ottawa's Hands.

The measure set out that "interprovincial or foreign trade" would cover the transport of goods or passengers between a place in one province and a place in another or between a place in Canada and a place outside of Canada. But, he continued, the bill further defined that this trade also should include "any transport of goods wholly within a province which forms part of a through movement of goods, whether or not one bill of lading, with another carrier when the points of origin or destination are in different provinces."

"The assuming of such extended control is beyond Federal jurisdiction," Mr. Mason said. This contention, he claimed, was supported by court decisions.

The actual working of the clause would be "impossible," he declared. If a truck left Sherbrooke, Que., with a part cargo for Montreal and the balance for Toronto, the proposal in the bill would place the truck operator under Quebec Provincial jurisdiction.

Then because the remainder of the cargo was crossing from Ontario to Quebec, that portion of the load would come under Dominion authority.

"There would be absolute chaos; it would be unworkable," Mr. Mason asserted.

MAKING PRISONS ATTRACTIVE BAD

the bad men don't like it and the good men do," he said.

"Do away with dormitories, they are damnable; I can't say anything and enough about them.

"Do away with close secret meetings between prisoners and friends. I entirely approve the system at Kingston. The prisoner is at one side of a screen, a guard is between that and a second screen, and the friend is behind the second screen. They can't possibly pass money or drugs. Here visitors mix quite freely. The system works a hardship on decent people, but how can the guards tell the decent people from the others?"

STREET FOREMAN IS NEEDED IN CITY

Board Of Works Briefly Discusses Appointment Of a Street Commissioner

Appointment of a street commissioner to take the place of Harry Evans who retired several years ago was demanded by some of the members of the Board of Works Tuesday night.

The subject was mentioned twice during the meeting, at the opening and again towards the close. Mayor Macdonald suggested that this question might be left over "until we see how we are going to come out at the finish."

"Personally, I am through with seat warmers and cheque lifters," was Alderman Stocker's comment. "The Board of Works is the council's largest spending body, and we need a man who will be on the job when work should be laid out and started every morning at 7.30, and we want him there all day."

"We want another Harry Evans," said Alderman McIntyre, and one of the members remarked, "if you can get him."

"I have been convinced for some time that we need more efficiency in the working of this department," Ald. Dutton declared. "There are some foremen on different jobs, but there is not enough difference between them and the men on the job. A street commissioner would have charge over all these groups, working under the city engineer."

ELECTRIC EYE DEMONSTRATED

Many Uncanny Tricks Played At House Of Magic Exhibition

VOICE-CONTROLLED TRAIN

Mayor George A. Macdonald on Wednesday evening introduced William A. Gluesing, of the General Electric laboratories at Schenectady, N.Y. to a capacity audience at the final showing here of the "House of Magic" in the Collegiate auditorium.

Using the phototube or what has come to be known as the "electric eye," Mr. Gluesing picked up the music of a phonograph from a light beam and converted the light back into sound through a loud speaker.

The current from the phonograph pick-up was so arranged that it traveled to a lamp on a tripod, the sound waves being transformed there into light. The lamp having the ability to go on and off hundreds of thousands of times to the second transmitted an ever-changing beam of light equivalent to the notes of the photograph record. Focussed on the receiving end of a phototube pick-up at the other end of the stage, however, the light was turned back to music.

Uncanny Tricks

Mr. Gluesing played many uncanny tricks with the light beam, cutting off the music at will, or diminishing the sound by such means as holding a piece of cellophane in the path of the light beam. By using a phonograph disc and also his hand, and partially intercepting the light beam, the demonstrator produced what he termed, "saxophone music with scalloped edges."

In another experiment which demonstrated the versatility of the phototube, Mr. Gluesing used it to turn the light of an incandescent tube into sound—flickering on and off 120 times a second, too fast for the human eye to observe, but slow enough for the ear to hear.

The voice-controlled electric train which Mr. Gluesing operated by such words as "come ahead again old man," "back-up" and "stop" was among some of the more uncanny demonstrations. The demonstrator explained that he did not rely on the use of any particular word in the control of his train, but the use of certain syllables properly timed. He gave an illustration of what he meant by using the one word "toot" as the basis of his commands which either set the miniature train in motion or brought it to a stop.

Other experiments performed by Mr. Gluesing included high frequency radiations, lighting an electric lamp with a match, the cathode-ray oscillograph, and "invisible" light.

COMEDIAN TAKES HIS CUE HELPS TO PREVENT PANIC

Glasgow Theatre-Goers Ignorant of Fire Until Performance Over

WAS BACK OF STAGE

Glasgow.—A comedian appearing in the pantomime "Sinbad the Sailor" was alone on the stage of Glasgow Pavilion theatre when he heard the manager say to him through the stage cloth:

"Keep your gags short. There's a fire in a dressing-room. We're rushing the final scene to get the safety curtain down." The comedian, Dave Willis, did as he was directed, the final scene went on, the curtain fell, and the audience left, unaware of the turmoil behind the stage.

The fire started when a crinoline frock worn by Miss Phyllis Herbert, 26-year-old London chorus girl, brushed against an electric fire.

She ran into a corridor, her frock in flames.

A one-legged actor and another chorus girl, Miss Grace Peacock, also of London, ran after her and smothered the fire with a coat. Miss Herbert was severely burned.

Some members of the audience saw her being carried to an ambulance on a stretcher as they left the theatre. Fire engines arrived.

Then they learned for the first time what had happened.

A number of frocks on hangers in the dressing-room caught fire, but the call-boy swept them down and stamped out the flames.

Miss Herbert was taken to Glasgow Royal infirmary.

BIRD ASKS HER NAME 'MAE WEST,' IS REPLY

Then Minah Laughs and Asks Woman for an Apple

London.—In a corner of Dorland hall, Regent St., where the management of the Crystal Palace opened its 69th national show of cage birds, a bird with a yellow bill entertained thousands of visitors with its powers of speech.

"I'm a minah. What's your name?" it asked, in a well-marked Glasgow accent.

A woman replied, "Mae West."

The minah threw back its head and indulged in a long and deep-throated chuckle. After a long pause it said: "Minah's not a bit happy. Give me an apple."

Then, recovering its good humor, it gave a good imitation of the laugh of the lonely Australian kookaburra, or laughing jackass, in the next cage.

It is claimed the minah, which is the property of A. Wilson of Glasgow, a fellow of the Zoological society, is the best talking bird in the world.

VICAR'S WIFE OPENED MAIL, CASHED CHEQUES

Consulted Psychologist "Because I Was Doing Pecular Things," She Tells Court

Sedbergh, Yorks.—A vicar's wife, accused of forging a cheque and fraudulent conversion, said that she had consulted a psychologist.

The woman, Mrs. D. D. Lewis, wife of Rev. C. H. D. Lewis, vicar of Cautley, near Sedbergh, pleaded guilty and was sent for trial.

"For some time now I have been doing peculiar things—not criminal things—but things quite foreign to my nature," she said. The psychologist had submitted a report.

R. C. Lilley, for the director of public prosecutions, said that Walter Wadeson, a Sedbergh plumber, fitted a range at the vicarage and a cheque was drawn in favor of Wadeson by Queen Anne's Bounty and addressed to the vicar of Caufley.

Apparently Mrs. Lewis intercepted the letter, endorsed the cheque twice at the bank in the name of Wadeson's firm.

In a statement to Superintendent Elliott, he added, she said that she made a practice of intercepting letters addressed to her husband and, in the case of cheques from Queen Anne's Bounty, of paying them over to herself.

Bail was allowed.

FIND SQUIRE'S 'GHOST' WAS CHAINED DONKEY

Swinbrook, Oxfordshire. — For over a week inhabitants were thrilled to hear in the early hours of every morning the eerie clanking of heavy chains up and down the village street.

Each night they lay awake to listen to what was generally accepted as a nightly visitation of the Fettiplace ghost, the earthbound spirit of one of their former squires.

One night, however, a sceptic, as the solemn clanking approached, peered through a chink in the curtain—and saw no weird figure in fetters with a rapier through his middle, but the homely shape of a donkey escaped from its stable.

PILOT KILLED IN CRASH

Woodland, Durham. — Flying in dense fog over a lonely area a Royal Air Force machine crashed in flames on a farm near Woodland. The pilot, who was killed, was Acting Pilot-Officer Joseph Norman Bell, attached to No. 9 Flying Training school, Thornaby. He was the sole occupant of the machine.

SCOTLAND BEGINS ADULT EDUCATION

Twenty Students at First College at Newbattle Abbey

Edinburgh.—Twenty men and women, mostly from working-class areas, had the distinction of starting one of the most interesting experiments in the history of Scottish education.

They were students at Newbattle Abbey college, Scotland's first adult education college, which is to be run on the model of six similar establishments in England and Wales.

The scheme was inspired by the Marquis of Lothian, who presented the Abbey, his family seat, for the purpose.

GATESHEAD GROCER FACING 11 CHARGES

Commissioners Say J. T. Bainbridge Understated His Income

Newcastle.—A grocer, who was stated to have started life as a pit boy and was now worth $200,000, was charged with having defrauded the Inland Revenue of various sums of money over a period of 24 years.

He was John Thomas Bainbridge, of Wrekenton, Gateshead, and there were against him a charge of cheating and defrauding the revenue by false pretences between Jan., 1912, and Jan., 1936, six charges of perjury and four of forgery.

C. W. Davies Miller, for the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, said that Bainbridge had a small business at Wrekenton which showed no profit, though, in fact, he was a very rich man.

After starting as a pit boy he became an assistant in a co-operative stores, took up grocery business on his own, and dealt in property and stocks and shares.

The commissioners complained that Bainbridge had grossly understated income which he was receiving from property.

If they pressed for treble duty in respect of the years 1930 to 1935 Bainbridge would be liable to the payment of an amount in excess of $50,000.

It was alleged Bainbridge had avoided paying tax by returning some of his income in the name of certain relatives who, because of unemployment or old age, were not liable.

Those relatives would say that they had never received a penny of the money attributed to them.

COW SOLD AT SHILLING

Three Animals Bring Only Seven Shillings at Auction

Stanley, Durham. — A cow was sold for a shilling at an auction here. The sale of three animals realized only seven shillings. They were the property of W. Mitcheson, of Burnhope Flats Farm, and were seized by the county court bailiff on information laid by the milk marketing board. Some 50 farmers attended, and seven police officers were also present.

WHEN WINTER COMES TO ENGLISH PARK

Cold weather and snow near London, England, sharpened the appetites of deer in Richmond Park, and they calmly approached motorists and other visitors for food. A motorist is shown feeding one of the deer.

STRANGLES, KNIFES AND STRIKES DWARF

Unknown Blamed After Mother Is Acquitted of Brutal Murder

Ipswich.—An unknown person strangled to death with his hands a 37-year-old sub-normal dwarf, Freddie Saunders, dealt him a heavy blow on the head, probably with a hammer, wounded him on the throat and chest with a knife.

The dwarf's mother, Mrs. Emma Saunders, 63-year-old widow of Lowestoft, charged with his murder, was acquitted at Ipswich assizes.

Mr. Alpe, her counsel, said to the jury, "Do you think this was a woman's work? Did you, in your whole career, ever know a woman strangler?"

Mrs. Saunders, in evidence, said she was the mother of eight. She was devoted to Freddie, and had saved nearly £100 ($500) for him.

ENTOMBED MINERS SING ERE RESCUE

Refused Stretchers, Walked After 13-Hour Imprisonment

South Elmsall, Yorks. — Singing and cracking jokes while rescuers worked feverishly to reach them, seven miners calmly faced imprisonment in a space four yards square when 90 yards of coal face caved in at Grimethorpe colliery. After being entombed for 13 hours they crawled unscathed to safety through a tunnel two feet high cut by their rescuers. Stretchers were waiting for them, but they refused to use them, and walked to the pit bottom a quarter of a mile away.

PRETTY GIRL TRAPS DOCTOR WHO SENT INDECENT POSTALS

Sold Cards Marked With Invisible Ink — Score of "Friends" Form Watch

GOES INTO EXILE

He had been fined £75, with £107 costs (in all about $900), on 15 charges of sending indecent postcards through the post to two well-known Dorchester men and two women, and his departure fulfilled a promise by his counsel that as soon as the bench had dealt with him he would leave the town to be cared for by his relatives.

Not until he heard the story in court did Dr. Broadway, after eight days on remand in Dorchester jail, learn how, while going about his ordinary business he had been shadowed for months.

A score of people whom he had met on apparently friendly terms, including a pretty post-office assistant who sat in a front seat in court, had formed a chain of watchers. The assistant, Miss Cornick, who was commended by the magistrates, had sold him cards marked with invisible ink.

When the magistrates had left the court Dr. Broadway walked across the room to Detective Inspector Carter, one of the officers with whom he struggled when arrested, and shook him by the hand. They talked for some moments, then Dr. Broadway, his coat collar turned up, walked between two friends to face a huge crowd waiting in the street.

WON'T PERMIT PETS IN NEW TENEMENTS

2,000 Dogs and Cats Are Destroyed Every Week

London.—Two thousand cats and dogs are being collected and destroyed every week in London.

They are pets of slum dwellers who, under the L.C.C. clearance schemes, have moved to new tenement homes.

In these flats and block dwellings the keeping of any animal—even a dog or cat—is barred.

The result is that large areas are growing in London where the cat population is nil.

EARLY ALARM CLOCK SAVED THREE LIVES

"Owe Our Lives to Defect," Says British Woman

Sunderland. — The ringing of an alarm clock an hour before the time at which it was set saved the lives of two sisters and a boy of 11.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hume, her son James, and Miss Adelaide Connolly, sister of Mrs. Hume, were sleeping when fire broke out in the dining-room.

"I was awakened by the alarm clock, and I felt as if I had been strangled," said Mrs. Hume. "The room was black with smoke.

"I awakened my sister, and picked up my son, and we groped our way downstairs.

"We owe our lives to some defect in the clock, as it went off an hour early."

BRITISH FILM STARS ARE TREKKING HOME

Charles Laughton, Merle Oberon, Clive Brook Among the Wanderers Returned

London.—British film stars have started to come home, in the manner of wayward children who ran off to Hollywood only to realize there is something to be said for the home folks after all. Then, of course, the coronation is coming.

Charles Laughton is busy making films in London. Merle Oberon will make a picture on the home lot. George Arliss is back, and Clive Brook has renounced Hollywood. Madeleine Carroll has returned. Before 1937 is over, it is believed, virtually every other British star in Hollywood will have had a fling at British pictures.

These will be added to the stars who have never seriously wandered from the native firmament. Among these is Grace Fields, said to be the highest paid star in the world, and certainly one of the richest. There are Jessie Mathews, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Raymond Massey of Toronto, Jack Buchanan, Gertrude Lawrence, Evelyn Laye, Elsa Lanchester, Vivien Leigh, Sebastian Shaw and Will Hayes, the comedian.

There are several newcomers who look good, including Elliott Markham and Billy Milton. Then there are the former continental stars who have more or less made England their home, some by reason of political necessity, including Elizabeth Bergner, Conrad Veidt and Dolly Haas.

Altogether it looks like a good year for British films, the more so with the steady influx of Hollywood stars of all nationalities. Marlene Dietrich, for example, has just finished "Knight Without Armor." They say even Mary Pickford will have a try at a picture here.

DOCTOR BRAVES GALE TO SEE ISLAND SICK

60 of 70 Soay Inhabitants Have Flu—Message Boatman Ill

Carbost, Isle of Skye.—In answer to a signal from the shore that medical aid was urgently required, Dr. Allan Macdonald of Carbost, set out in a tiny fishing smack in the teeth of the gale to the little island of Soay where 60 of the 70 inhabitants were suffering from influenza.

The boatman who usually takes messages to the Isle of Skye from Soay was himself a victim of influenza, and for many days communication with Skye was impossible.

The Western Isles steamer Dunara Castle got close enough to Soay to pick up the distress signal and transmit it by wireless to Skye.

With heavy seas pounding on the lofty cliffs of Skye, the doctor set out on the hour-and-a-half voyage.

INVENTOR KILLED

Warlingham, Eng.—Trying out an experimental monoplane near here, Richard Taylor, 40, mechanic to Charles Gardner, winner of the King's Cup air race last year, was killed when the plane crashed.

WILFUL WIFE'S DRAMATICS BRING HER SUDDEN DEATH

Seeking to Frighten Husband, Woman of 27 Dies From Poison

LOVED PLEASURES

Luton.—Reunited with her husband after 10 months' separation, Mrs. Alice Monk, 27, was sitting on his lap, listening to a gramophone, when she burst into tears and collapsed. She died a little later from disinfectant poisoning.

"I know in my heart that my daughter did not intend to commit suicide—she only meant to frighten her husband into allowing her her own way," said Mr. J. Baxter of Luton, father of Mrs. Monk, to a reporter.

Mr. Monk, the husband, said: "This tragedy has almost killed me. My wife was in the prime of her youth, and was naturally fond of pleasure. I am out of work and could not afford to give it to her."

At the Luton inquest Mrs. Annie Baxter told how she had found it necessary to reprove her daughter for staying out late at night.

Mrs. Baxter said that her daughter had been living with her since she separated from her husband in March last.

"My daughter was fond of dancing," she said. "She did nothing wrong, but she had a baby 12 months old, and I did not think it right she should be out so late."

Mrs. Baxter stated that without her daughter's knowledge she wrote to the husband, whose home was at Blackburn, asking him to visit his wife. Mr. Monk came to Luton.

During the evening Mrs. Monk put her baby to bed, and then came down into the front room. She started the gramophone and then sat on her husband's knee. He put his arms round her and said, "Are we going back together?" In tears she answered "Yes," and then collapsed.

G. J. M. Whyley, the coroner, recorded a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane.

MISSES BOAT, BRITON FLIES, HITCH-HIKES

London.—D. Banmeyer missed his boat train from London to Folkestone, but he caught lots of other means of transport.

Here are the stages in his exciting journey:

1.—Travelled by tube to Osterley after telephoning to charter an aeroplane from Heston.

2.—Could not get a taxi, so persuaded a butcher's vanman to drive him to the aerodrome.

3.—Aeroplane to Lympne, in Kent.

4. — Still no taxis, so went by motorcycle pillion to the harbor. Four minutes to spare.

SEES BRITAIN IN NEXT WAR

London. — Relationship between the British Empire and the League of Nations is of fundamental importance to the world, according to Prof. S. Brodetzky of the University of Leeds. He told a League of Nations Union meeting if there was another war the mere existence of a state of war would bring Britain into it. It would be madness to suggest the empire could adopt a policy of isolation.

BIRTHS OF TWINS 72 HOURS APART

Bolton Mother Names Sons Brian, Bernard

Bolton.—Mrs. W. Bentley gave birth to a twin boy 72 hours after the birth of the first. The first baby was named Brian and the second Bernard.

In July of last year a twin girl was born to a Walthamstow (Essex) mother four days after the birth of the first twin.

Twins were born three days apart to the wife of a brickyard worker at Eastringdon, East Yorkshire, last March.

CONVICT IS CAPTURED DESPITE FURIOUS GALE

Found Drying Clothing in Shed Six Miles From Dartmoor

Dartmoor.—A convict who escaped from Dartmoor was recaptured ten hours later, six miles from the prison.

Five men had marched across the main road to the prison farm. They were in the act of removing their oilskins when one—Henry Alexander, 43, serving five years for housebreaking—pulled on his coat again and bolted.

The prison siren shrieked the alarm. Soon 200 warders and police were scouring the moor in the blinding storm. They were quickly soaked to the skin. They searched all day.

Then, as dusk was falling, four police officers entered a quarry shed a mile and a half from Tavistock. Alexander was there.

He had removed his sodden clothing, wrung it out and set it to dry. Completely exhausted, he lay under a pile of sacks.

He said to the officers: "With luck I'd have been in Exeter to-morrow and got clear. Still, I've had my fling. I'm ready to go back."

He surrendered quietly, and was marched into Tavistock police station—just as the church bells began to ring.

SWEPT FROM DOCK ON FISHING PARTY

Rescued Man Tells of Vain Efforts to Save His Companion

London.—Heavy seas which lashed the coasts of Britain brought tragedy to a party of three men who went to Newhaven, Sussex, for a day's fishing.

One of them, Jesse Hoskins, of Kenley, Surrey, employed at a Purley cafe, was drowned in the harbor despite the brave rescue efforts of one of his companions, Arthur Edward Carey, of Whyteleafe near Purley, a baker's roundsman.

Describing his attempt to save Hoskins, Carey said: "Hoskins and I were fishing off the breakwater when a huge wave swept over us, knocking Hoskins into the sea.

"Somebody threw a lifebelt into the water while I scrambled down the iron steps alongside the breakwater. Hoskins caught hold of the lifebelt and was pulled to the steps, from which I was clinging.

"I got my arms under him and pulled him halfway up the steps. Then he exclaimed, 'I really can't hold on any longer,' and another huge wave knocked us both into the sea.

"A second lifebelt was thrown. This I gripped and was hauled on to the breakwater."

HARD-LABOR TERM FOR GIRL ROBBER

Street Flower Seller Mother Says "Her Beauty Has Been a Trial"

London. — Susanne Wood, a girl not yet 20, one of a family of 13, was sentenced with two men at the Old Bailey to 22 months' hard labor for robbery with violence. Her real name is Alice Susan Jones.

Joseph Crowley of Bromley met Wood and another girl after he had received £40 ($200) as compensation. They went to Wood's flat. Later Mr. Crowley was attacked and his money taken.

The girl's mother, a street flower seller, who lives with her husband and children in a basement, said: "Susie was the prettiest girl who ever lived in these streets. Her beauty has been a trial to us.

"One night she went out and never came back. Dad and I hunted London for her. We called everywhere, spent nights searching the streets, but it was no use."

TRAIN SOLDIERS CIVILLY

London. — The chief obstable to army recruitment, according to Alfred Duff-Cooper, secretary for war, is the difficulty of finding employment for the men when they return to civil life. To help in solving the problem, the war office has established three vocational training centres at Aldershot, Hounslow and Chisledon in Wiltshire, to fit soldiers for civil occupations during the last six months of their service.

RUSS GRAND DUKE'S WIDOW FAILS IN $5,000,000 CLAIM

Polish Court Holds Estates Are State Property Under Treaty

HUSBAND SLAIN

Warsaw. — The Polish supreme court rejected the claim of the Countess Brassoff, morganatic wife of the late Grand Duke Michael of Russia, to estates and property valued at more than £1,000,000 (about $5,000,000) which belonged to her husband.

The verdict of the seven judges was as follows: "The estates claimed by the countess were included in the Polish-Russian Riga treaty, which declares that all czarist and czarist family estates in Poland become Polish state property."

The verdict is final, but the countess may still petition the Polish president.

After the murder of the grand duke the countess and her son escaped into Poland, where they lived in dire poverty.

SINGAPORE PAPER CRITICIZES ARMY

Pleads for Better Conditions for Tommies

Singapore. — A strong plea for better conditions for men of British infantry regiments on foreign service has been made by the Straits Times. In a leading article this journal expresses the belief that the army can get recruits "but only if it offers better terms, and the sooner the war minister puts the issue before the British taxpayer the better."

Singapore as a garrison town, it contends, knows how well-founded are the criticisms made in Britain of the soldier's life abroad.

BUDAPEST BARRISTERS CLOG MARRIAGE MART

Seek Property-Owning Girls to Safeguard Jobs

Budapest. — Hundreds of Budapest barristers are trying to get married in great haste. A new law threatens with exclusion from the bar all lawyers who have no flat of at least two rooms. The aim of this law is to ban all lawyers of very modest means, who are supposed to be "unreliable."

Many young Budapest lawyers have only one room beside their office, and still more are living in boarding houses. The only means of their salvation is to marry a girl who has a 2-room flat, or enough dowry to pay for such an apartment. The marriage agencies are overwhelmed by the marriage offers of young barristers.

CHOIR BOYS' PEWS BEGAN LEGAL SUIT

Ancient Ones "Displaced" by Soft-Cushioned Variety—Complaints Made

Paris.—Choir boys of Cantal sat on pews, beautiful but ancient. They complained that they were so hard as to cause pins and needles during the vicar's sermons.

The vicar kept his sermons the same length but replaced the old pews by new ones with soft cushions.

Parishioners objected to the change on artistic grounds and brought an action for "mismanagement of communal property."

Their action dragged its way into the supreme court. There the judges decided the pews had not been "mismanaged" but "displaced".

BUILD GREATER ROME IS MUSSOLINI'S PLAN

First Step To Be Huge International Exhibition in 1941

Rome.—Signor Mussolini has decided to build a "greater Rome," extending the city 17 miles to reach the sea at Ostia.

Some years ago Il Duce re-created the port of Rome, silted up since the days of the Caesars, at the mouth of the Tiber. Arrivals and departures of little coastal steamers were faithfully recorded in the Italian press.

It is now planned to link the city to its port. Greater Rome will be built in the open country between Rome and the Ostia Lido.

The first step will be a huge international exhibition in 1941. The buildings of the exhibition will be the nucleus of greater Rome.

To transport the "millions of visitors" expected an underground railway will be built across Rome.

Another great motor road, to be called the "Via Imperiale," will link the city to the sea. A third great road, starting near the Vatican, will run from Rome across the Tiber to the exhibition.

HOLLAND MAY LEVY TAX ON BACHELORS

Minister of Finance Sponsors New Plan

The Hague. — If the minister of finance has his way, bachelors in Holland may as well get married. Even though they have no wives to go through their pockets on pay day, the government may do so instead—for it is considering the possibility of levying a tax on unmarried men.

Great alarm is being felt in bachelor quarters at the possibility of the tax, the question of which is now being examined by a departmental commission, which will make a report on the desirability of its introduction.

BULGARIA PHILATELIST TOOK 10,000 LETTERS

Postman Was Nearly Lynched for Thefts Extending Over 13 Years

Sofia, Bulgaria — Ten thousand letters were stolen in the course of 13 years by a philatelist-postman in Sofia. The letters, from which 56,000 postage stamps had been cut out, were discovered at the home of the stamp collector, who had kept all letters. As the news was spread at the Sofia post-office the philatelist would have been lynched by his shocked colleagues, had not the police come in time to arrest him.

Though a great part of the undistributed letters long ago were considered lost, the post-office direction has, nevertheless, decided to let the letters be distributed. "Better late than never", though the director.

Considering, that some of the letters have been lying at the postman's house since 1923, they are to reach their destination 13 years after they were mailed.

'GO HANG' ADVICE OF MOTHER HEEDED

Belgrade. — Nikola Markeshitch, of Cettingne, ran away from home to escape military service. After many months, he found work in Budapest. He wrote home to his mother, saying where he was and sending her some money.

His mother, a stern old Montenegrin type, wrote back: "Hang yourself, my son—since you have fallen so low as to be a deserter." The body of Nikola has been found in an attic, hanging from a beam.

FIANCEE'S LAST TRIBUTE

Llandrillo, Wales.—A casket containing orchids and a personal letter to her dead fiancee was laid on the coffin of Capt. C. F. O'Connell, killed in an air crash, by Miss Henderson of London, to whom he was shortly to be married.

BROKE MONTE CARLO BANK IS JAILED AFTER 25 YEARS

Beggar Gets Six Months for Deserting Roumanian Army in 1911

WAS ADVENTURER

Kishinew, Roumania. — Theodore Filimonesco, a Roumanian who broke the bank at Monte Carlo shortly before the war, winning within an hour 28 million gold francs, returned to his fatherland after 25 years, a miserable beggar and was sentenced by court martial to six months imprisonment for deserting the army in 1911.

Like all able-bodied Roumanians, Filimonesco was conscripted at the age of 21. The army did not agree with his adventurous temperament and one night in 1911 he knocked down the sentry at the barracks door and disappeared in the darkness. The young deserter was by trade a cook and found a job without difficulty on a Black Sea steamer.

He stopped for some time in Constantinople where he worked at the famous Tokatlian hotel, then successively became a waiter and a butler to a diplomat. One day in Monte Carlo he broke the bank and became a millionaire but soon afterward lost every penny he had. During the war he sold newspapers in the streets of Madrid, and finally entered the Foreign Legion. He was wounded three times in the Riff fights and got decorated for bravery.

When the war was over he established himself in France. After many ups and downs, Filimonesco was too tired to continue his life of adventure and became a tramp. Passing through the streets of Marseilles he saw the shield of the Roumanian consulate and suddenly became home-sick. The consul gave him a free passage to Roumania but as soon as he landed at Constantza he was arrested and brought before the court martial of the town of Kishinew, which sent him to a military jail for six months.

MINERAL PRODUCTION INCREASE IN N.S.W.

Gain of $3,000,000 Predicted by Minister

Sydney, N.S.W.—Big increases in the production of mineral products for 1936 are estimated by the minister for mines. He calculates the value of the output of the mining industry for 1936 will be approximately $640,000,000—representing an increase of $3,000,000 compared with last year. This is the highest figure since 1929.

Gold production is the highest since 1919. The estimate is 61,160 ounces fine, valued at $1,304,200. The yield is approximately 11,058 ounces greater than that for 1935.

MUSSOLINI TO OPEN TUNIS-EGYPT ROAD

1,177-Mile Highway Is Costing $5,500,000

Rome. — One of the longest roads in Africa, the new 1,177-mile highway along the coast linking Tunis with Egypt, will be opened by Premier Mussolini next May when he visits the Italian colonies of Tripolitania and Cyrenaica. Built by Italian and native workmen under the control of Marshal Balbo, governor of Libya, it will then have been under construction for more than two years. The cost is estimated at 103,000,000 lire ($5,500,000).

PUNISH JAY WALKERS

Hanover, Germany.—Compulsory Sunday school is the punishment the city fathers of Hanover have decided to inflict on jay walkers. All pedestrians crossing streets when the signal is set against foot traffic will be made, in future, to attend a class of instruction on the rules of the road on the following Sunday. In addition, they will be compelled to pay one mark each for this instruction.

Peterboro Organizes Home Improvement Plan

ORGANIZATION BEGINS PROMPTLY UNDER DENNE AS THE LOCAL CHAIRMAN

Harry B. Muir, Kingston, Representing Provincial Committee, Discusses Plan With Roland Denne

TO AID EMPLOYMENT

Success Requires Co-operation Of The Entire Community Chairman Says In Accepting

The acceptance by Roland Denne of the chairmanship of the committee which is being organized to promote in Peterborough and its district the federal government's Home Improvement Plan has been heartily endorsed by other citizens who are confident that it can be successfully developed in this community as a means of helping to provide employment.

Mr. Denne was requested by Ryland H. New, of Toronto, chairman of the provincial committee, to undertake the leadership in this effort in Peterborough, and in assuming this responsibility Mr. Denne has given new evidence of his unfailing interest in the public welfare and of his willingness to put that spirit into action again by doing his part in trying to bring the advantages of the Home Improvement Plan to many owners of homes in this city and district.

Mr. Denne's acceptance was promptly followed on Wednesday by a conference here with Harry B. Muir, who is a member of the provincial advisory committee. Mr. Muir came directly from a meeting of the provincial committee in Toronto to discuss with Mr. Denne the practical details of the Home Improvement Plan in its scope and operation and also suggestions for organization of the Peterborough committee.

Meet Thursday Night

The next step in the immediate progress of this public enterprise locally is a meeting of a group of citizens whom Mr. Denne has called together for a conference at which this federal project to stimulate employment will be broadly considered in all its phases from the Dominion government's purpose to the ultimate details of enlisting the sympathy and support of the people of Peterborough.

Co-operation Needed

"I decided to accept the invitation of Ryland H. New, the chairman of the Ontario Committee, because the problem of unemployment is both national and local," Mr. Denne told the Examiner today. "Home improvement will contribute work for men of all trades extending to those who cut timber in the woods, make paint and nails and shingles, bathroom fixtures and all things that are needed to keep city and country homes in good repair.

"As I see it we are all of the one opinion that this country needs more work and less relief. Money that is spent on improving homes is distributed among the men who are engaged in such work, and to that extent it is helping the unemployed, and it should result in less money to be distributed in relief.

Ever Man's Problem

"This problem finally comes home to everybody, and it will be the main effort of the Home Improvement Plan committee to explain how this Plan works, and to get the co-operation of the whole community. It is a non-political, non-sectarian movement. It is an all Canadian plan that is being extended from Halifax to Vancouver.

"As one of the soundest and best cities in the country Peterborough should be as active in getting the benefits of the Home Improvement Plan as any other city in Canada, and from my knowledge of Peterborough I think our work is largely to explain how it works, that is how necessary improvement to homes can be financed over a period of years as provided by the federal regulations.

Appeal to Citizens

"At this early stage I can only appeal to the citizens generally to decide now to do their part in creating a sympathetic interest in the Plan, and as it comes to be understood there is no reason why it should not contribute to a real busy season in Peterborough, especially for men whose employment has been a hit and miss affair for so long."

PLAN IS STRIPPED OF ALL RED TAPE; CASH FOR REPAIRS

Simple Means Of Providing Owners With Money To Improve Homes

NO SECURITY NEEDED

The Home Improvement Plan which has been devised by the National Employment Commission under the authority of the Dominion Government is a means of providing ready cash to be expended on homes throughout the country that need repairs.

For seven years repairs and other desired improvements have been postponed in a great number of homes throughout the country, with consequent reduction in unemployment of thousands of tradesmen, and diminished business in the manufacture of materials of all kinds used in home repairs.

Effects of Delay

Decreased demand for all such material has spread gradually in an ever widening circle to many lines of manufacture, and the result has been that few people have escaped the effects of the postponement of work that has been put off partly because of a lack of money to pay for it, and partly due to the influence of prevailing spirit of delay and doubt of the future.

Business has been steadily improving during the last two years, but the building trades and the branches of industry which provide the materials these tradesmen use, are still affected by these conditions.

The federal government might, as in the United States, embark upon the spending of many millions of dollars without any direct benefit to the taxpayer who eventually has to provide this money.

By the Home Improvement Plan many of these same taxpayers can help themselves and also help the unemployed by undertaking home repairs for which money is made available for periods up to three years at the lowest rate of interest that has ever been offered for such a service on this continent.

Loans From Banks

The home owner can arrange for a loan with any chartered bank or lending institution simply on the strength of being able to repay the loan in instalments out of income or wages. No security or endorsement is needed; and there are no service or investigation charges.

Red tape is eliminated, and the only requirement is that the money shall be expended on work that is involved in home improvement.

The simple details of the plan will be fully explained during the next few weeks by the committee which is being organized in Peterborough, and with the response which this Home Improvement Plan deserves there should be a large volume of new employments in Peterborough during the coming spring and summer.

LAKE CAPTAIN, 87 BOASTS OF HABITS

Drank More Whiskey Than Any Five Men And Hopes To Die With Boots On

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18—(CP).—Armed with an acetylene torch which he wields with an accomplished flourish, 87-year-old Captain Wellington Sphears came forward with the statement to-day that in his varied and colorful life he had "drank more whiskey than any other five men in Essex county." The retired master, unlike the regular run of oldsters who attribute longevity to regular living, boasts he has lived a rough life.

Captain Sphears is in charge of the wrecking of the pleasure steamship, "Tashmoo," which sank at a Canadian dock on the Detroit river last June, without any loss of life. It was not until he was cornered in what was formerly the engine room of the vessel that the captain uttered printable words through his beard. Finally admitting his first name was Wellington, Captain Sphears did not believe it was unusual he should be so active at his advanced age. He hasn't the patience to retire and whittle boat models, he said.

"My father and grandfather died with their boots on and I'll do the same. My dad went to sleep and never woke up after falling downstairs at the age of 105. My grandfather, at the age of 108, ate a hearty meal and died in his chair as he enjoyed his after dinner pipe," Captain Sphears said.

He was born in Gloucester, Mass. "My ancestors on my father's side were sailors back to the Pilgrims," he said.

He has little use for the present methods of bringing up children. He contends they are being over-educated for certain types of work. "If they don't get it, they're useless," he explained.

LIMIT ENGINE POWER

Curtail Reckless Driving by Limiting Power of Car Engines.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (A.P.).—A United States Government Committee advocated to-day limiting the engine power of automobiles "to protect the reckless motorist against his own folly."

The report, submitted to the accident prevention conference organized by the Department of Commerce, blamed high speed and poor lighting for a major part of 36,000 fatalities in a year.

AGAINST THE LAW.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18 (CP).—Amalgamation of health services in Windsor schools is contrary to law, City Solicitor Bruce Macdonald told the Board of Education last night. It was indicated, however, that the board will go into the proposal to unify dental, medical and nursing services in the public, separate and secondary schools, if legal authority is obtained from Ontario Department of Education at Toronto.

Men Behind The Home Improvement Plan In Ontario

An intensive effort to put the benefits of the Home Improvement Plan before home-owners throughout Ontario is to be made following the announcement of the advisory committee which will direct the operations of the plan in Ontario. The above pictures show members of the advisory committee. Top row from LEFT to RIGHT: Wallace R. Many Kitchens Not Worthy of the Name

Can Be Made Into One Of Most Desirable Rooms In House.

In many Canadian homes a kitchen is not worthy of the name. In others, the kitchen is one of the most desirable rooms in the house with bright, shining equipment, attractive decoration, and convenient appliances.

The Home Improvement Plan sponsored by the National Employment Commission, has placed within the reach of Canadian women the second kind of kitchen. To illustrate this fact, the two photographs showing the transition of an old kitchen into a modern one, are here produced.

The kitchen in the picture is the first in Canada to be modernized under the Home Improvement Plan. A resident of Valois, Quebec, near Montreal, realized that opportunity was knocking at her door when the Home Improvement Plan, with its generous terms and easy financing, was announced. She needed a new kitchen and decided that she should have it.

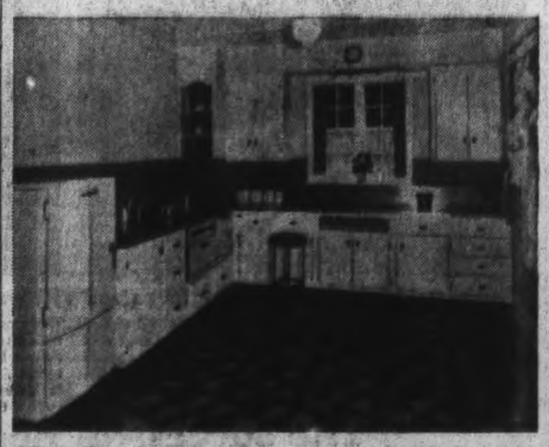
Contrast the two kitchens. In the "before" picture, one sees a reasonably attractive kitchen but one which is now far out of date. One observes the oil stove, the thing that looks like a hot water boiler but which is really a rack for utensils; the open sink with the draining boards at each side and unsightly pails and pans underneath; the refrigerator with ice compartment; the floor without covering except for linoleum under the sink and refrigerator.

The eye is immediately pleased with the compact, clean, artistic kitchen in the "after" picture. There is to begin with, the maximum amount of free space. No unsightly utensils are visible. The utensil rack has gone. One sees a clean, bright laboratory in which meals may be prepared and necessary kitchen work done with comfort and with a feeling of pride in the surroundings. The oil stove and old refrigerator have given place to modern electric cooking and cooling appliances. The sink has become an attractive table with facilities for washing dishes and doing other work of that nature. Cupboard space and drawers for various kitchen uses are everywhere. It is a kitchen to be proud of.

But what of the cost? That is the question which many people will ask. In this case, a loan of $750.00 would cover the entire cost of the complete new kitchen with its new equipment. The actual amount paid the contractor was somewhat under $700.00. On the monthly basis provided by the Home Improvement Plan this would mean payments of just over $20.00 a month for 36 months including interest charges.

All kitchens may not require such drastic modernization as this one. Consequently, the cost of changing them would be less. At any rate, the Home Improvement Plan makes possible the substitution of a kitchen which will gladden the heart of any housekeeper for one which carried with it many handicaps.

BEFORE: A kitchen in Valois, Que., as it appeared last November. There are thousands just like it all over Canada. Clean, but old-fashioned, inefficient and hard to work in.



AFTER: The same kitchen after its owner had it modernized under the Home Improvement Plan. Convenient, labour-saving and a joy to work in. This kitchen has the distinction of being the first in Canada to be completed under the H.I.P.

Construction is to be started at once on the new cable railway in the Gross Glockner region of Carinthia which is to rise to 10,500 feet, making it the highest in the world.

Fifty Millions Are Available To Home-Owners In Canada In Order To Improve Homes

R. H. New Explains Organization And Objective Of Plan

NEED NO ENDORSERS

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—In addition to this Advisory Committee, which has been appointed to head the work in Ontario of the Home Improvement Plan of the National Employment Commission, Ryland H. New, chairman, states that there will be a large number of local advisory committees throughout Ontario, perhaps 100, whose duties will be to promote operation of the plan in their own localities, and to make home owners "home improvement conscious."

These committees, which will include members of chambers of commerce, service clubs, and trades and labor councils, are now being appointed.

Although specific details of local committees have not yet been worked out, at least as far as Ontario is concerned, the general plan of the scheme, already announced, is briefly that under the home improvement plan, a total of $50,000,000 has been made available to home-owners throughout Canada. Each owner may borrow up to a maximum of $2,000, repayable monthly within three years, at a discount rate of 3¼ per cent.

The home owner may borrow on his own signature alone, without security or endorsers, although he must inform the bank from which he is seeking the loan, what specific improvement he has in mind. He may then authorize the contractor he has selected to apply for payment to the bank.

Mr. New pointed out that much more than the original $50,000,000 planned would eventually be spent in home improvement, as many owners who were able to afford it themselves, without assistance, would emulate their neighbors and do some improving. The total spent in Canada for all such improvements is expected to reach $200,000,000.

"You can't put that much money into circulation without greatly increasing employment and improving business conditions throughout the country, and with the appointment of Mr. Denne as chairman of the committee in Peterborough, I am confident that Peterborough District will get right behind this plan," said Mr. New.

Oyster Bed Owner Finds Plenty Of Workers—Rum Dumping Ground.

OCEAN CITY, Md., Feb. 18 (AP).—Liquor that rum runners dumped overboard near here eight years ago has done wonders for Mayor W. Thomas Elliott's oyster business.

The Mayor said he was puzzled by the large number of boats that showed up for duty with a consequent increase in oyster production, until he discovered his oyster bars were, in a sense, whisky bars.

The dredges were bringing up not only oysters, but also occasional bottles of palatable Scotch and Canadian whisky—barnacled, but tightly sealed.

He was a graduate of Gettysburg College in the United States, and a native of York, Penn.

Funeral service will be held here and the body will be cremated for burial in York.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE NOW BEING MADE DOWN U.S. MINES

Professor Finds Ideal Conditions For The Mold Bug In Abandoned Drift

14 WEEKS ENOUGH

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press science Service.)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 18.—(AP).—Roquefort cheese — American style—is coming out of coal and limestone mines in Pennsylvania.

This new development of the dairy industry was announced to-day at Pennsylvania State College.

The roquefort cheese bug, penicillium roquefort, the green mold which ripens the cheese, loves extraordinary weather. He does his best flavoring at a temperature of 45 to 48 Fahrenheit and a humidity of 95. Air conditioning for this is expensive. But the mines furnish perfect cheese weather.

Penicillium, said Dr. R. B. Dahl, assistant professor of chemistry and physics, has been making this roquefort in an abandoned drift, 400 feet down, in a limestone mine at Bellefonte, Pa.

The mold is placed on a product from cows' milk. He molds away for six weeks to two months. Then the cheese is wrapped in tinfoil so none of the dampness can get out. Six weeks of this, and the flavor is done.

The Bellefonte drift, said Professor Dahl, is about half a mile long, big enough, he added, to supply the whole United States.

The same thing has been done in in a coal mine at Blairsville, Pa. The mine was still producing coal when it made the cheese.

The French, who invented Roquefort, have been making it in caves for 1,000 years or more. State College also tried a cave, seven miles from the campus. It worked well but was small, so the professors took to the mines.

In trade, Roquefort is exclusively a French product, but the United States' Bureau of Dairying has developed a "blue cheese," called a roquefort type. The Federal Bureau is cooperating with the State College mine cheese experiment.

New, chairman, states that there will be a large number of local advisory committees throughout Ontario, perhaps 100, whose duties will be to promote operation of the plan in their own localities, and to make home owners "home improvement conscious."

These committees, which will include members of chambers of commerce, service clubs, and trades and labor councils, are now being appointed.

Although specific details of local committees have not yet been worked out, at least as far as Ontario is concerned, the general plan of the scheme, already announced, is briefly that under the home improvement plan, a total of $50,000,000 has been made available to home-owners throughout Canada. Each owner may borrow up to a maximum of $2,000, repayable monthly within three years, at a discount rate of 3¼ per cent.

The home owner may borrow on his own signature alone, without security or endorsers, although he must inform the bank from which he is seeking the loan, what specific improvement he has in mind. He may then authorize the contractor he has selected to apply for payment to the bank.

Mr. New pointed out that much more than the original $50,000,000 planned would eventually be spent in home improvement, as many owners who were able to afford it themselves, without assistance, would emulate their neighbors and do some improving. The total spent in Canada for all such improvements is expected to reach $200,000,000.

"You can't put that much money into circulation without greatly increasing employment and improving business conditions throughout the country, and with the appointment of Mr. Denne as chairman of the committee in Peterborough, I am confident that Peterborough District will get right behind this plan," said Mr. New.

BOOST TO BUSINESS

Oyster Bed Owner Finds Plenty Of Workers—Rum Dumping Ground.

OCEAN CITY, Md., Feb. 18 (AP).—Liquor that rum runners dumped overboard near here eight years ago has done wonders for Mayor W. Thomas Elliott's oyster business.

The Mayor said he was puzzled by the large number of boats that showed up for duty with a consequent increase in oyster production, until he discovered his oyster beds were, in a sense, whisky bars.

The dredges were bringing up not only oysters, but also occasional bottles of palatable Scotch and Canadian whisky—barnacled, but tightly sealed.

Port Hope Chemist Dies Very Suddenly

PORT HOPE, Ont., Feb. 18 (C.P.)—Edward H. Lecrone, 42, staff chemist in charge of uranium production at the radium extraction plant of Eldorado Gold Mines Limited here, died last night in Port Hope Hospital from pneumonia. He was a graduate of Gettysburg College in the United States, and a native of York, Penn.

Funeral service will be held here and the body will be cremated for burial in York.

His widow and one daughter Patricia survive here. John Lecrone, Guelph, is a brother.

ROQUEFORT CHEESE NOW BEING MADE DOWN U.S. MINES

Professor Finds Ideal Conditions For The Mold Bug In Abandoned Drift

14 WEEKS ENOUGH

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press science Service.)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 18.—(AP).—Roquefort cheese — American style—is coming out of coal and limestone mines in Pennsylvania.

This new development of the dairy industry was announced to-day at Pennsylvania State College.

The roquefort cheese bug, penicillium roquefort, the green mold which ripens the cheese, loves extraordinary weather. He does his best flavoring at a temperature of 45 to 48 Fahrenheit and a humidity of 95. Air conditioning for this is expensive. But the mines furnish perfect cheese weather.

Penicillium, said Dr. R. B. Dahl, assistant professor of chemistry and physics, has been making this roquefort in an abandoned drift, 400 feet down, in a limestone mine at Bellefonte, Pa.

The mold is placed on a product from cows' milk. He molds away for six weeks to two months. Then the cheese is wrapped in tinfoil so none of the dampness can get out. Six weeks of this, and the flavor is done.

The Bellefonte drift, said Professor Dahl, is about half a mile long, big enough, he added, to supply the whole United States.

The same thing has been done in a coal mine at Blairsville, Pa. The mine was still producing coal when it made the cheese.

The French, who invented Roquefort, have been making it in caves for 1,000 years or more. State College also tried a cave, seven miles from the campus. It worked well but was small, so the professors took to the mines.

In trade, Roquefort is exclusively a French product, but the United States' Bureau of Dairying has developed a "blue cheese," called a roquefort type. The Federal Bureau is cooperating with the State College mine cheese experiment.

A.O.F. Circle Celebrates Anniversary.

The celebration of the thirty-sixth anniversary of the foundation of the Queen Alexandra Circle of the Ancient Order of Foresters, which had its inception in Peterborough on February 20, 1901, was a happy event of Wednesday evening at the Elite Court, with forty-three guests in attendance at a banquet featured by a happy program and a birthday cake made by Mrs. E. Barnes and cut by Mrs. W. Stevens.

The Charter Members were remembered during the evening. Only two are left: Mrs. J. McLean and Mrs. W. Head, both of whom were unable to attend. Illness prevented the absence also of one of the prominent invited guests, Mrs. Grace Murray of Hamilton, High Chief Companion. Several of the brother members of Court Stanley were present.

With Mrs. W. Stevens, Past District Deputy, presiding, the toast list included "The King"; "The Ancient Order of Foresters," proposed by Mrs. A. Simmons, with a response by G. Tremain; the "High Circle," proposed by Mrs. H. W. Milne, and responded to by Mrs. W. Terrace; "Charter Members," proposed by Miss E. Martin; "Our Guests," proposed by Mrs. R. Bugg, with response by Mrs. F. Millard; "Our Circle," proposed by Mrs. E. Barnes, and responded to by Mrs. W. Terrace; "Court Stanley," proposed by Mrs. F. Shurety, and responded to by S. Adlam; "The Medical Profession," proposed by Mrs. P. Black, with response by Dr. J. A. Morgan.

During the evening, the District Deputy, Mrs. W. Terrace, presented Mrs. E. Barnes, on behalf of the Circle, with a fountain pen, in appreciation of her eleven years' service as secretary.

Community singing was enjoyed, with Mrs. R. Bugg at the piano, and a Major Bowes program was presented, comprised of the following items: Reading by Mrs. F. Shurety; recitation and songs by Mrs. R. Bugg; songs by Mrs. F. Millard, A. Fairey, and Harry Yeates; a sketch by Mrs. W. Terrace; dances by Mrs. A. Fairey and Mrs. Arthur Simmonds; band numbers by Mesdames Simmons and Fletcher, and a comic sketch, "The Quintuplets," acted by Mesdames Pearse, Graham, Black, Milne, Barnes.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Dainton, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Pearse, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Fairey; Mesdames W. Stevens, W. Terrace, T. Ferguson, H. W. Milne, J. L. Pearse, E. M. Taylor, E. MADOC

INSTITUTE HOLDS ANNUAL REUNION

Fifty Guests Attend Enjoyable Affair Sponsored By Madoc Women

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 18.—The annual reunion of Madoc Women's Institute this year took the form of a delightful afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. George West. The capable committee under the direction of Mrs. A. Corrigal, are being highly congratulated on the harmonious carrying out of their plans, and the successful completion of a most interesting social afternoon.

Guests were received by Mrs. George West and Mrs. T. L. Nickle, president; Mrs. S. Ashley and Mrs. W. Hart invited the guests to the tea room. Mrs. Charles N. Whytock and Mrs. R. F. Bristol, past presidents, poured tea; Mrs. A. C. Anderson, Mrs. Charles Johnston, Mrs. T. Blue and Mrs. W. Hulin waited on the guests.

Those assisting in the kitchen were the members of the committee, Mesdames Corrigal, Ashley, Bonny, McCarey and Wellman, with others to help.

About fifty guests were served during the afternoon.

The table was beautifully decorated with dark red tuliips, and delightfully dainty salads, rolls, cakes, valentine cookies and candles were served. The proceeds for Institute funds were most satisfactory.

VISIT TO ORIENT FOR HELEN KELLER

Will Carry Word Of Encouragement To Blind And Handicapped In Far East

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Imbued with her late teacher's admonition to "carry on," Helen Keller planned today to sail for the Orient April 1 to "give a word of encouragement to the blind and handicapped" of the Far East.

The internationally famous author-lecturer, who has crossed the North Atlantic numerous times, never before has turned her sightless eyes toward the setting sun over the Pacific.

The trip will be made in response to pressing invitations extended by women's clubs and educational authorities in Japan. Accompanied by her ever-present secretary, Miss Polly Thomson, she also may visit Korea and Manchoukuo before returning late in June.

"She has always wanted to do something for the blind in the Far East," Miss Thomson said. "There is so much to be done."

LINDBERGHS FORCED DOWN.

BASRA, Iraq., Feb. 18 (AP).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at this city, where the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers meet, today, enroute from Rutbah Wells in the Syrian desert to Iraq. The Lindberghs, who were forced down by a blinding sandstorm on their flight yesterday from Cairo to Baghdad, were reported by airport authorities to be headed for Bushire on the Persian Gulf.

Flowers In Gown

Prints with a black ground and colorful floral motif are the smartest thing for dresses during these closing months of winter.

Kay Francis poses in one such, a late afternoon model of black crepe with enormous yellow flowers. A draped tunic effect off-the-shoulder line, draped, and short sleeves are interesting style features.

Black bag, shoes and gloves are worn with this dress, and the wide hat is faced with yellow or cream.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

THE BEGINNING of all life is a search for individual happiness. We look upon the world as made specially for ourselves, and we expect that everything around us will minister to our pleasure. And in every case we experience a bitter disappointment. There are some instances in which the fortunes of life are unequally bestowed, but here the same lot falls impartially to all. —O. S. Marden.

Dear Friends:

I wonder why from our earliest years we look so diligently to get happiness for ourselves? It seems instinctive to us, we do it naturally, and how little we get of it when it is all counted up.

See how a little child will kick and scream if he does not get his own way, and how soon he must learn that all around him are not there just to make him happy. Gradually he must learn also to conform to the rules of the home if he is not to be a nuisance, to give as well as take to make others happy to a certain degree, if he is to have a measure of happiness himself.

Possibly we get the idea that this life is to go on and on in the same way, and that is why we search so diligently for happiness. But as you grow older, you realize that there is not very much of it in the world for anyone.

Then we start looking for security. We save and scrimp, we invest in a house or a bank account, and the loss of your job soon wipes the bank account out, and the loss of your health even for a few months will often cause the home you strove for so hard, to be taken over for your debts. So there is no security either.

So what to do about it all and retain our sanity. You know that when you go to school you don't expect to go for the rest of your natural life, you look for the day when you will graduate and go out into the world and make for your fortune?

Maybe if we looked at life like that, we would not be so bitterly disappointed. You can make a lot of money, it's still done, but you get more fun out of making it than you do when you've got it. You can get nice clothes, but they won't last forever, so your pleasure does not last either.

Sometimes we are happy and do not realize it until it is taken from us. One curious thing I have noticed is, that I have had more true friends in small homes I have occupied, than I ever had in the large ones.

One thing ill-health gives you, and that is a chance to think things out. You early realize that good health is not permanent with you, and you make the most of the times when you do have it. You also realize that a lot of things we think would make us happier, do not have that effect at all when we get them.

Later in life we reach out for peace as a means of happiness, and we find that no matter how we strive for it, someone else can always throw a monkey-wrench into things, shattering this peace into smithereens.

And then we try this thing of taking no thought for the morrow, and I have found it the best thing yet. Enjoying every little smiling bit of happiness that comes along, enjoying your friends, letting them do you little kindnesses, and doing some back to them, looking for the good in all you meet up with, letting hard words and criticisms slip in one ear and out the other, and having an inner peace which you allow no one nor anything get in to disturb.

"Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long" is a good thing to keep in mind, and that this life is only like going to school so that we graduate for the next where one where all our dreams will come true, is another good thing to remember.

Mr. Marden goes on to say, "There is not a man in this world who has not come to the conviction that his first conception of existence was a dream, who has not arrived at the knowledge that things were not created to minister to his own individual happiness." So don't feel you have been cheated by life, for we are all in the same boat, and have been reaching for the wrong things.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

MOTHERS ARE RESPONSIBLE

The family looks to you to aid your doctor in keeping them well. You can help prevent much illness and poor health by guarding them from common constipation.

Most constipation comes from faulty diet—meals low in "bulk." This condition can be corrected so easily and pleasantly.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides the safe way to prevent constipation by putting "bulk" back in the diet. Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, forming a soft mass which gently sponges out the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron. It is so much better for your family than constant dosing with artificial pills and drugs.

Two tablespoonfuls daily as a cereal, with milk or cream, or in recipes, are enough for the average person. Three times daily in severe cases.

Sold at all grocers—and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

What Is Correct?

How should bread and butter be eaten?

A large piece of bread should never be buttered all at one time. A small piece should be broken off, buttered and eaten before the next piece is buttered. The bread should be held on the butter plate for buttering. It is allowable to butter small hot breads all at once.

When does a man rise?

Whenever there are women standing in the same room, unless they are with different groups at a rather large party. Whenever a woman enters a room. And whenever he is introduced to anyone, including another man. He half rises when bowed to in a theatre or restaurant.

Is it well bred to take a woman by the elbow or arm when helping her across the street?

No, unless the crossing is dangerous, or the woman elderly or feeble. A hand under her arm at every street corner is more of a nuisance than a help. One of the basic rules of good manners is never to touch another person unnecessarily.

Mendelssohn Choir Program Is Announced By Chairman

s Designed To Make Popular Appeal To Varied Tastes

COMING NEXT MONTH

The program to be presented by he far-famed Toronto Mendelsohn Choir at their concert here next month, was to-day announced by F. H. McVity, chairman of this outstanding choral organization of 300 voices, who was in the city with A. W. Hutchison, chairman of the choir committee, completing final arrangements.

The first part of the program comprises four motets in the classic spirit, representing the works of Mendelsson, Bach, Holst and Healey Willan of Toronto. The last-named composer is acknowledged as an authority of ecclesiastical music and his "Apostrophe to the Heavenly Hosts" is the composition to be presented at the local concert.

Has Popular Appeal

Remainder of the program is a delightful series of part songs and lighter classics which are designed to appeal to popular taste. The English air, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," specially arranged by Dr. H. A. Fricker, conductor of the choir, is but one of the numbers that might be mentioned as representative of the appealing nature of the entire program.

Mr. McVity expressed complete satisfaction with the manner in which arrangements for the choir's first visit to Peterborough are progressing and acknowledged the work being done by the Men's Association of St. Paul's Church under whose auspices the city and district is being afforded the opportunity of hearing a choral organization that has gained international fame.

Declaring that the choir is coming here under a mutual arrangement, Mr. McVity asserted, "We are very glad to sing in some of our smaller Canadian cities. There are a lot of people who have never yet had the opportunity of hearing the choir and I really think they should." He added that without exception all members of the choir are looking forward with eager anticipation to their visit here. They expect a warm reception, believing that Peterborough and district contains its full share of people who appreciate good music.

Basing this statement on the fact that Peterborough is the home of the Madrigal Singers, Mr. McVity pointed out incidentally that Dorothy Allan Park, leader of the Madrigals, has sung with Toronto Mendelssohn Choir as soloist on many occasions.

The program to be presented by The Mendelssohn Choir under the baton of Dr. Fricker on March 16 next, is announced by the chairman of the choir, as follows:

Program

National Anthem. Motet, Judge Me, O God, Mendelssohn; Motet, Jesu, Joy and Treasure, S. Bach. Motet, Ave Maria, Gustav Holst. Motet, Apostrophe to the Heavenly Hosts, Healey Willan.

Organ Solo, Toccata and Fugue in D Minor, J. S. Bach; Dr. H. A. Fricker.

Part Song, An Eriskay Love Lilt, arranged by Hugh Roberton. Part Song, How Sweet the Moonlight Sleeps, Eaton Fanning. Songs from the Rig Veda, for ladies' voices, Gustav Holst. Part Songs, (a) The Old Woman, Hugh Roberton; (b) Wherе're You Walk, Handel; for men's voices, arranged by Dr. H. A. Fricker. Entr'acte, Ballet Music from Rosamunde, Schubert, (words by J. Murray Gibbon).

Short intermission.

Scotch Air, Annie Laurie, arranged by Geoffrey O'Hara. English Air, Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes, arranged by Dr. H. A. Fricker. Part Song, Bold Turpin, J. F. Bridge; Chorus, Dance a Cachucua (The Gondoliers), Sullivan.

AT THE REGENT.
"THREE SMART GIRLS"

Brimming with youth and fun and and ingenuous, spontaneous acting, echoing with the marvellous voice of a fresh and youthful songbird, grasping your sympathetic interest right at the start and holding it to the end of an entrancing picture, "Three Smart Girls" is worthy of all the nice things that have been said about it. It has a quality of free and unhampered action that is quite unusual and extremely refreshing.

It has the charming young Deanna Durbin (whose parents lived formerly in Peterborough) as one of the trio of girls who hold the spotlight, and her two companions, also of Canadian birth, are as interesting as is this new singer, with her lovely soprano voice of almost coloratura quality, singing her sweet songs with alluring grace. She has somewhat of the appearance of Norma Shearer and the sweetness of little Shirley Temple and her voice is as fresh as a bird's. When she sings the well-known Arditi composition, "Il Bacio" ("The Kiss") for those stern-faced policemen, they just stand around and you can almost hear them purr with pleasure.

There is a grand cast. Binnie Barnes, who was a brunette beauty in "King Henry Eighth," her first major appearance, has gone blonde in this picture and does the role of "Precious," the designing beauty who longs to grasp ten millions and the person of their owner, Judson Craig (Charles Winninger). The beauty is aided and abetted by her mother (Alice Brady), but Craig's three daughters by his divorced wife, Penny (Deanna Durbin), Kay (Barbara Read) and Joan (Nan Grey), upset the whole apple cart when they come to New York from Europe, bent on effecting a reconciliation between their mother and father. They have two knights errant on their side (Ray Milland and Nan King), while Mischa Auer is the Hungarian count who also plays a part in the picture.

It is a winsome production that uses fresh and bubbling youth as its mainspring, with an entertaining theme and the charming voice of Deanna Durbin bubbling through the story.

It looks as someone has said, as if the sophisticated type of lady is on the wane. Sonja Henie comes over to create a sensation in Hollywood with her dimples and healthy charm, and here is a trio of young girls taking the stage in another successful production. The lady of the orchids, of moonlit glamour and trailing, backless gowns, will have to change her tune. The screen is going native. —C.L.M.

AT THE CAPITOL.
"AFTER THE THIN MAN."

If you liked the "Thin Man" (and who didn't?) you will like this sequel. It has that master showman of the silver sheet, William Powell, with his suavity, his smoothness, his insouciance, and along with him the alluring lady, Myrna Loy, who seems to act better as his picture-mate than with anyone else. But Powell has his faculty of drawing out the best in those who play with him and he never steals the show. He doesn't need to. It is all his, on a platter.

Here you have him with his bride, the music playing "California, Here I Come," as they speed in the Sunset Limited, toward the Golden Gate. Here he is 'Nick' to his chauffeur. Here he spends a queer New Year's Eve with his dainty bride, at the Li-Chi Cafe, where 'Willie the Weeper' just out of the penitentiary, hails Nick Charles as his friend and invites him to the party. Here you have Nick and the ancient 'snorers'; Nick tipping his elbow over the glasses, with the old frequency; Nick engaging in gay badinage, with his gay lady; Nick solving a double murder.

For murder rears its ugly head twice in this bright and airy picture, and there is plenty to wonder about before the solution arrives, with the finger of Fate pointing to an unsuspected source.

There is an excellent cast, as in all the Powell pictures. Elissa Landi, long a stranger, is back as Selma, the tragic wife; James Stewart has the part of David Graham; the dark and sinister Joseph Calleia is 'Dancer,' and Dorothy McNulty is a vivacious cafe singer, with two good numbers: "Blow That Horn" and "Smoke Dreams." There is a fat Chinese also who makes a good impression, and Mr. and Mrs. Asta have a place all to themselves in a gay and fascinating picture which anyone could sit through twice, so entertaining is its filming.—C.L.M.

Fashion Service

The inspiration for this attractive home frock came right from Dalmatia.

The panel front gives it such a slim line. It will make you seem tall and slender. The sleeves "puff up" and there's a big swing to the flared skirt. You can "pull in" as much as you please with the tied sash across the back.

The young housewife will adore this girlish dress in a clear bright checked yellow gingham with orange ric-rac braid. A pert orange grosgrain ribbon bow accents the shirt collar.

Plain blue cotton with bright red or navy blue ric-rac is another scheme you'll like for this peasant dress.

Tremendously smart, too, are the Tyrolean cotton prints and dotted percales in gay coloring.

You'll make it in a couple of hours with the step by step picture dressmaking guide included in the pattern.

Style No. 3441 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 8¼ yards of braid.

SURVEYOR'S POST MAY HAVE CAIRN

Aylsworth Would Mark Spot All Ontario Measurements Extended From

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP)—Erection of a cairn on the ancient "post" at Kingston from which all land surveying in Ontario originally extended, was proposed as a celebration of the 50th anniversary of formation of the Association of Land Surveyors, by C. Fraser Aylsworth, charter member of the organization, at its 50th annual convention yesterday.

The post, approximately 75 feet from the Sir John A. Macdonald monument at King and West streets, is still visible a couple of inches above the ground, Mr. Aylsworth said.

Still an active member of the association, Mr. Aylsworth followed in the footsteps of his father when he became a land surveyor and was a charter member of the association when it was formed by a little group of 20, all the land surveyors in the province at that time, 50 years ago.

He is of United Empire Loyalist descent and yesterday gave a paper on Upper Canada pioneer surveyors and the U.E. Loyalists before the society.

"I spent 20 summers and five winters in a tent, yes, and when it was 50 below here," he said yesterday. "It was mostly in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Those were 'my pork and bean days'."

Of the original 20 who formed the association only half a dozen are still alive, he said.

In the early days to get across country in Manitoba he used to use a team of horses, he said, and sometimes made no better time than an average of 10 miles a day.

LINDSAY BAND VISITS OMEMEE

Concert Is Presented In Coronation Hall By Boys' Organization

ATTENDANCE SMALL

OMEMEE, February 18. — The Boys' Band of Lindsay visited Omemee on Monday evening, February 15 and presented a splendid concert in Coronation Hall. Unfortunately, the crowd was small, but it is hoped that the next time the boys pay a visit to the village the concert will be well advertised and a good crowd will attend. A splendid programme was given under the direction of Martin Chenhall.

Day of Prayer.

A very impresive service was held in Trinity United church, Omemee, on Friday, when the women of the village observed the World's Day of Prayer. Representatives of the three different churches took part in the service.

Mrs. Moyer gave a very interesting and instructive address on Africa. The speaker had a map on which she showed the situation of the different missions.

Sewing Meeting Held.

The Women's Auxiliary of Christ church held their February sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Nurse, with a splendid attendance. The president, Mrs. A. T. Weir, opened the meeting. A few items of business were dealt with and the ladies spent the afternoon sewing, after which the hostess, Mrs. Nurse, assisted by Mrs. V. Jones, served tea.

LAKEFIELD.

WINNING GROUP GUESTS OF HONOR

Young People's Union Of Lakefield United Ho... Valentine Tea

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18. — The Young People's Union of Lakefield United Church, Lakefield, held a Valentine party in the Sunday School room on Monday evening, when members of the Tecumseh Group, headed by Miss Norah Webster, who were winners of a membership contest completed last week were guests of honor. Entertainment was provided by the Mohawk group headed by Miss Phyllis Webster, while the Iroquois Group led by Mr. Delmer Jackman, and the Hurons headed by Mrs. Wm. Millage provided refreshments.

The party opened with an hour's fun and games after which, a short business meeting took place with the president, Wallace Hendren, in the chair.

At the close of the business Miss Phyllis Webster, Chief of the Mohawks, was called upon and took charge of the remainder of the program. She called upon: Miss Myrtle Armstrong who rendered a harmonica solo, "When the Roll is Called", and Miss Harnah Webster who completed the touching story she started a week ago entitled, "Jessica's First Prayer"; Mrs. J. R. Hull then sang a solo, "In the Garden of tomorrow," and five girls, Misses Nona Lymburner, Cora Charlton, Phyllis Webster, Norah Webster and Isobel Bi... sang "Just a Song at Twilight" as a part song, unaccompanied.

After the program, Valentine contests were run off. Then dainty refreshments were served in cafeteria style, and after some active games led by Rev. Mr. Kelly, the evening was brought to a close by the motion song "Good Night Ladies."

The proceeds amounting to $6 are being donated to help wipe out the $55 deficit in the church funds for 1936.

The Young People's Union is holding an executive meeting in the parsonage on Friday evening, February 19 at 7.30 p.m. for the purpose of planning programs for the coming months.

JOKE WINS FREEDOM

Wise-Cracking Chicagoan Gets Off on Disorderly Charge.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (C.P.).—Wise-cracking Frank Rizzo, 32, played upon Judge N. J. Bonnelli's fizibility and won a vacated sentence.

The court asked for a joke so Rizzo came through with one of his choicest drolleries. It worked.

Shaking with mirth, Judge Bonnelli vacated the six months sentence Rizzo had received on disorderly conduct charges filed by his wife.

Wife Preservers

From Mrs. Storey of Glens Falls comes this suggestion: If the rubber sheeting you buy for children's beds hasn't metal-bound holes in the corners, cut four pieces of adhesive tape, about an inch square, one for each corner and paste them down. Then cut a small hole in the center of each and loop a heavy string or cord in the hole. The sheet then is faster to each corner of the bed and stays in place.

MONTREAL STUDIES RACKET CAMPAIGN

Will Send Lawyer To Study New York, Washington Methods Of Combat

MONTREAL, Feb. 18 (C.P.).—An attempt to clean up Montreal's rackets was in prospect to-day.

Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault's announcement of a sweeping racket and vice probe gave notice to crime it must face an investigation moulded upon the famous Dewey inquiry that has rackets on the run in New York.

Already, the Mayor disclosed yesterday, J. J. Penverne, lawyer who, is close to His Worship, is in New York studying methods of Thomas E. Dewey, the youthful prosecutor who has been cracking down on crime there. Penverne may go to Washington to see how the G-men work.

In a month or so, after he is back, Mayor Raynault said the probe will be launched against criminal activities as varied as white slavery, relief frauds, and social welfare racketeering. Special effort will be made to shut up places which rob and dope tourists gathered in with the double lure of women and gambling. Commercialized vice will be another particular quarry of the investigators.

The investigation over, the Mayor said, the city will name a district attorney as head of a permanent bureau whose business it will be to keep Canada's largest city as nearly free from crime as possible.

ROSENEATH

VALENTINE SOCIAL IN ORANGE HALL

Enjoyable Program Held Under Auspices Of United Sunday School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18.—A Valentine social was held in the Orange Hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of the United Sunday School. Nine tables of crokinole were in play, the ladies' prize was won by Mrs. D. Brisbin, and the gentlemen's prize went to Lorne Simpson.

Symbols of the season were found on the tally cards, the ladies' cards were hearts and the gentlemen's, arrows.

Upstairs in the lodge rooms the younger classes under the supervision of Mrs. M. Davey and Mrs. R. Crego played games. There was a relay infantry race, and a relay basket race, musical chair, a treasure hunt; hide the spool, feathers, farmer in the dell, and that old standby, pinning on the donkey's tail. The prize winners were treated to candy.

After all expenses were paid the school had a surplus of $6.50.

W.M.S. Meeting

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. Turner. The president Mrs. T. W. Scott presided and opened the meeting. A letter was read from the Presbyterial secretary of Christian Stewardship and finances, regarding the allocation, and also a notification of a meeting in Port Hope on the evening of April 6.

After discussion regarding different methods of setting the allocation, it was decided to ask that the allocation be allotted according to membership.

Mrs. Crego, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. Andrew Brown were a committee appointed to plan quilt blocks, and distribute them among the members. Mrs. H. Mouncey donated part of the material for the quilts.

Mrs. R. Crego, treasurer, reported $28.50 on hand to date.

The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. Brisbin, when Mrs. K. Harvie will have charge of the study book.

It was suggested that a girl's circle will be organized, the matter being left over, until the March meeting.

Mrs. L. W. Scott presented a portion of the study book, "Pioneers and Missions," telling of Kagawa's wonderful work in the slums of Koba, Japan. Mrs. D. Brisbin sang a solo, "O Love that will not let me go," and Mrs. M. Davey read an article "A Technique of Prayer." The devotional leaflet "Jesus the Pioneer of Life," was read by Mrs. R. Crego.

Following the closing exercises the hostess served refreshments, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

WOOLER

The Men's Bible Class are sponsoring a special meeting on Friday evening, with a guest speaker from Toronto.

Earl Elliott of Toronto spent the week-end with his mother, who is suffering with a stroke.

Mrs. C. R. Terrill entertained a W.M.S. group at her home on Tuesday, to quilt.

On Wednesday evening a community shower was arranged at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sharpe in honor of their daughter, Bernice, who was united in marriage to Tommy Sheppard of Brighton.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill and Mrs. Nellie Sprung spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Thompson, Hilton.

Mrs. Fanny Clarke returned home after spending two weeks in Bloomfield with her brother, Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw.

MARMORA

MEN'S CLUB HEARS ABOUT PARASITES

A. B. Baird, Entomologist From Belleville, Proves Interesting Speaker

MARMORA, Feb. 18.—A. B. Baird, entomologist in charge of the Parasite Laboratory at Belleville, operated by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, was the guest speaker at the regular meeting of St. Paul's Men's Club held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening.

Members of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild and a few other invited guests swelled the attendance to over fifty. The president, W. J. Cottrell, was in the chair, and Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell opened the meeting with prayer.

An instrumental duet having been given by Fred Izzard and Bert Kouri, Mr. Baird was introduced to the audience and proceeded to deliver a most instructive talk on parasites and insects. He quoted Biblical passages to show that in those far-off days, many centuries before the coming of Christ, the human race understood that insect life was something to cope with.

Parasites Used For Control.

He then reminded his hearers that in more recent times, poisons had been considered the most effective way of subduing pests. Still more recently, it had been considered more advisable to keep undesirable insects in control through the release of parasites. He touched upon some of the injurious insects which had emigrated to Canada to thrive where they were immune from the particular parasite which kept them under control in their native land.

The entomologists of this country by getting into touch with the entomologists of the country from which a particular injurious insect has arrived are able to obtain a number of the parasites for that particular insect and at the favorable time, release them.

A question period was allotted the audience and interesting discussion ensued. In answer to one question, Mr. Baird dealt in an interesting manner with the saving of the peach crop in the Niagara district through the introduction of the necessary parasite there.

E. I. Gale, M.A., sang a couple of songs to his own accompaniment, and with Bert Kouri and William Hart gave instrumental numbers. Upon motion of Rural Dean Caldwell, seconded by H. B. Smith, vice-president, the thanks of the club were extended to Mr. Baird and to the others taking part in the program.

At its close those present inspected some exhibits of parasites and insects which Mr. Baird had brought with him. The serving of a delicious lunch closed a very enjoyable meeting.

CAVAN

Mrs. G. Morton, Cavan, was hostess for the W.A. of St. John's church, Ida, on Wednesday afternoon, February 10th.

A pleasant social time was enjoyed in the Sunday School rooms of the Cavan United church on Tuesday, when the W.A. sponsored a Pot Luck dinner and quilting. Thirty-four ladies were present. Three quilts were quilted, one for the W.M.S. annual bale and two for relief work.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBERT CAMPBELL.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18. — The funeral service for the late Mrs. Robert Campbell, who passed away at the family residence, one mile north of Roseneath on February 15, was held on Wednesday afternoon, February 17, at her late residence.

The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott of Roseneath United Church. Mr. Scott based his remarks on the 23rd Psalm always a favorite of the deceased. He also read two hymns, "What a Friend we have in Jesus" and the hymn based on the above-mentioned Psalm.

Mrs. Campbell before her marriage was Miss Jennie Stevenson, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Stevenson of Alnwick Township. She was a member of the former Presbyterian Church at Roseneath, where for many years she officiated as organist.

Mrs. Campbell was the first president of the Roseneath Women's Institute when it was organized 30 years ago. She was one of Alnwick Township's highly esteemed ladies, and as long as health permitted served her community well. She was in her 75th year, and is survived by her husband, one son Archie on the homestead, two daughters Mrs. James Campbell of Guelph, and Mrs. N. C. Leach, of Fenelia. Surviving also are two half-sisters, Mrs. J. H. Connor of Detroit and Mrs. A. Couch of Michigan, and two half-brothers, Frank and Fred Harper of Western Canada.

The pall-bearers were neighbors: Messrs. Archie and Harry Monorief, Corell Thackeray, Andrew Brown, Albert Halstead, and C. W. Varcoe. Interment was made at Centenary Cemetery.

School Days Recalled By Colorful Valentine Affair In United Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 18.—School days were recalled at the Valentine party held Monday evening by the Young People's Society of Trinity United church when a large number of old and young were present. Instead of a regular admission, three members of the Mission Circle dressed as school girls, looked after the receipts of the door, the charge being seven cents to enter and seven cents to leave and every seventh person admitted free.

The Mission Circle girls under their president, Miss Jessie Lamb, were responsible for the evening's entertainment and Mrs. G. Sine, Mrs. E. Hess, Mrs. H. Edwards and Miss Margory Scriver responsible for the program.

Mrs. Grant Sine, "Samanthia Peabody" was a most efficient school teacher of days of long ago. She looked most quaint, attired in her black gown, white apron, hair in a knob, and gold rimmed spectacles, as she gave instruction to her class of 15 to 20, supposed to be little girls and boys. Miss K. German as a young lassie in short dresses and braided hair, Mrs. C. Baker as another sweet little girl, Frances Metcalfe as a boy, the teacher's pet, and others, caused great laughter as they lined up in school to sing their favorite opening number, "Oh Canada". Then followed physical exercises, recitations, compositions, etc. Mr. Victor German, the Public School Inspector, arrived and asked some amusing questions to the clever class of pupils. Pop corn and tooth picks were given the pupils and they were asked to make some sort of animal from them. Master Everett Brown, 8 years old, was the winner. Recess was an exciting time for the pupils as well as the others present, when lunch boxes, pails and card-board boxes were passed around containing a dainty luncheon which was served with hot cocoa.

The singing of "School Days" and a Valentine game concluded the program, which was one of the best to be held in the basement of the church, which was prettily decorated for the occaston with valentines and hearts.

St. Andrew's Party

Valentine Day was fittingly observed on Monday evening, February 14th by the Young People's Society of St. Anderw's Presbyterian church, when the Literary conveners, Everett Whitred and Frances Kennedy prepared a regular Valentine program. Mrs. Stewart Whitred took charge of the devotional part. Frances Kennedy gave a reading "The Origin of St. Valentine's Day". Misses Lily and Marjorie Dodd rendered a duet, "How Mother Played the Organ and Daddy Sang the Hymn." Fred Hand gave a humorous reading entitled "Farmer Always Pays". Mrs. Stewart Whitred and Miss Muriel Wilson sang "Let me Call you Sweetheart."

Following the program excitement was caused by the exchange of valentines.

SPRINGVILLE

W.M.S. OBSERVES PRAYER SERVICE

Springville Women Gather To Carry Out Annual World Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Feb. 18. — The Springville W.M.S. met on Friday afternoon at the home of the president, Miss J. Schaffer, to participate in the World Day of Prayer service. In spite of the icy condition of the roads the attendance was good at sixteen.

Mrs. A. Hunter conducted the service of prayer giving suitable introductory talks for each subject of prayer following a program designed to meet the needs of the general public; Sins of Omission, the Royal Family, Medical and Evangelistic work of our Missionaries, Youth and their present day temptations and Community Prayers were lead by Mrs. H. Rowan, Miss J. Schaffer, Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour, Mrs. S. S. Staples, Mrs. L. Hetherington and Mrs. A. Hunter.

Business of the day included another "Pot Luck dinner and quilting in the near future. The place of meeting for March was undecided as road conditions must be considered.

The program committee will consist of Miss A. Brown and Mrs. Jack Whitfield with Mrs. (Rev.) Semour in charge of the devotional period. The lunch committee for March comprises Mesdames Hunter, Johnston, Kelk and Murray.

Lunch was served by the lunch committee assisted by the hostess to all of whom a hearty vote of appreciation and thanks was extended.

LEDUC PROPOSES NEW TAX PENALTY

Would Hit Ontario Citizens Who Form Personal Corporations Abroad

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP).—Hon. Paul Leduc today filed notice to the Legislature of introduction of an amendment to the Income Tax Act to penalize Ontario residents who form personal corporations outside the province.

Both Federal and Provincial income laws contain provisions for taxation of the income of Ontario residents from personal corporations in other countries. Ontario legislation provides the amount paid in Federal tax as deductable from the amount of income on which the Ontario tax is paid.

The proposed amendment would wipe out that exemption as far as regards income from personal corporations outside Canada. The amendment would affect a number of Ontario residents who have formed personal corporations in the British West Indies.

150,000 REFUGEES BOMBED ON ROAD FLEEING MALAGA

Doctor Tells Of Seeing Second Shambles In Nearby Port Of Almeria

THOUGHT THEY WERE SAFE

VALENCIA, Feb. 18.—(AP)— Insurgent airplanes and warships were reported today by Dr. Norman Bethune, of Montreal, to have bombed and shelled 150,000 fleeing men, women and children during the "terrible evacuation" of captured Malaga.

The refugees, Dr. Bethune, head of the Spanish - American blood Transfusion Institute, said, "staggered and stumbled, with cut and bruised feet, along the white flint road while the Fascists (insurgents) bombed them from the air and from the sea."

Dr. Bethune said he saw the flight from the southern seaport, captured by the insurgents February 8, during a trip from Barcelona with a truck-load of refrigerated blood for transfusions.

"Imagine," he said, 150,000 men, women and children setting out for safety to a town situated more than 100 miles away with only one road to take on a journey requiring five days and five nights at least."

Haven Shattered.

Then on the evening of February 13, Dr. Bethune said, "when the little seaport of Almeria was completely filled with refugees who thought they had reached a haven of safety, German and Italian airplanes dropped 10 bombs in the very centre of town where refugees were sleeping, huddled so closely together on the main street an auto could pass only with great difficulty.

"After the planes passed, I picked up three dead children from the pavement where they had been standing in line waiting for a cup of preserved milk and a handful of dry bread, the only food some of them had had for days.

"The streets were a shambles of dead and dying, lighted only by the orange glare of burning buildings. In the semi-darkness the moans of wounded children and the shrieks of agonized mothers rose in a massed cry higher and higher to a pitch of intolerable intensity."

MOTION PICTURES AID ADVERTISING

Best Way To Advertise Your Territory To Tourists, W. A. Gluesing Says

"If you want to sell this district to the American tourists the surest approach lies in motion pictures," William A. Gluesing of Schenectady, New York, in charge of the "House of Magic" demonstration here, said yesterday. "One reel of pictures of your beautiful lakes and rivers, of leaping fish and gorgeous sunsets is worth a ton of literature," he declared.

Mr. Gluesing is widely-known in the Eastern States as an outdoor man. He was partially responsible for creation of one of the largest winter sports resorts in the United States and has been a devoted visitor to the wilds of Northern Ontario in past vacation seasons.

Few people in the Schenectady district know of the Kawartha Lakes, he said. When they think of a vacation in Canada, they think of Canada as a whole, lacking specific information on such distinct resort regions as the Kawartha Lakes, he stated.

He said most American summer tourists want good fishing but from that point on their desires vary. Some want wild seclusion while others want beautiful settings without foresaking convenience of good roads. Motion pictures and literature should be designed to satisfy the full range of desire, he suggested.

Two different motion pictures portraying the summer resources of this region have been in circulation in the United States for a number of years and have brought excellent returns.

PHOTOGRAPHER IS FINED IN COBOURG

Court Imposes $10 Fine Plus $250 Penalty Under Transient Traders' Bylaw

COBOURG, Feb. 18. — Walter Gillies, commercial photographer, was found guilty of a breach of the Transient Traders' bylaw and fined $10 and costs by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell here Tuesday. The magistrate also imposed a penalty of $250 as provided under the bylaw.

The charge was laid by the town, it being stated that a group of commercial photograpers were doing business in Cobourg without paying the special levy as provided by the bylaw. In January a firm of photographers took pictures in Cobourg, sending the films to Toronto for development and finishing. Two weeks ago a charge was laid against Gillies, one of the photographers, alleging that he took orders and sold photographs without paying the necessary license.

It was revealed that a Mr. Bushnell, who was associated with Gillies, signed a contract whereby the business was to be done in partnership with Mrs. Marshall, a hairdresser. Evidence showed that Mrs. Marshall had no part in the photographing, nor were her premises used. Magistrate Campbell at that time reserved his decision.

"The apparent intention of the agreement is that Mrs. Marshall is on the assessment roll and occupies a hairdressing establishment and is for the purpose of giving these photographers the right to take pictures," he pointed out in his judgment. "I hardly know why Mr. Bushnell refers to it because there is no evidence that her premises were used for that purpose.

"This paper looks strongly as though it were some kind of subterfuge to get around the point that the defendant was not duly entered on the roll," the magistrate continued. "I find that this paper between Meyers, Bushnell or Mrs. Marshall had no legal effect in regard to this matter and no bearing on the sale of the pictures."

In summing up the evidence the magistrate alluded to the fact that one of the forms, signed by a customer, had the name, Meyer's Studio, on it.

The town was represented by A. R. Willmott and the defendant by C. Payne, K.C., of Belleville.

The Rambling REPORTERS

STOP CRUELTY

If members of the Peterborough Humane Society have their say, there will be no repetitions of past cruelty to animals in the filming of motion pictures in Hollywood. The local Society joined the Humane Societies of the United States in sending a protest to Warner Brothers in Hollywood and Will Hayes in New York against alleged cruelties to 400 horses used in filming "The Charge of the Light Brigade," it was reported to the annual meeting last evening.

As a result of the protest, the motion picture industry has agreed to submit plans for all animal scenes for approval of a humane commission before filming, it was revealed.—C.P.K.

1,000 ANIMALS RECEIVED CARE IN PAST YEAR

Humane Society Reports Year Of Great Activity In Peterborough District

ANNUAL MEETING

A year of increased activity and encouraging progress was reported by officers of the Peterborough Humane Society as members gathered for the annual meeting of the association in the Chamber of Commerce last evening. During 1936, more than 1,000 animals received the attention of the society in the course of its full program of work, it was reported.

Stamping out of an epidemic of tuberculosis among the city's feline population and continued prosecution of the fight against many forms of cruelty to animals were among highlights of a report by Veterinary Surgeon Dr. Thomas Johnston, the society's inspector.

Busy Year

"The year was a very busy one," Dr. Johnston said. "We looked after about 300 dogs and 350 cats. Several horses were ordered out of work until their condition improved. Stock in trucks received our attention.

"I inspected the horses at the Fair Grounds during training season and Exhibition time. No cruelty was noticed and no complaints were received beyond a few cases where hobbles had chafed. I have looked over the rural mail horses and retired one as unfit for service.

Many Injuries

"About 200 dogs have been injured and killed on our streets and 25 cats. Most were struck by automobiles after dark."

Stating in few cases were car drivers at fault, Dr. Johnston urged owners to keep their dogs off busy streets unless on leash. Many cats were rescued from trees and poles and two dogs were rescued from the icy waters of Little Lake, he said.

"We have had a bad outbreak of distemper among dogs and influenza and mange among cats. Many owners were unable to pay for the treatments, but we are repaid through the kindness of such persons as one grateful lady who, for a little kindness left the society $200 from her estate.

Horse Destroyed

He told of the instance of a horse used in logging operations north of the city which he ordered destroyed recently.

Through Mr. Brown, foreman at the incinerator, 16 live chicks were discovered in the garbage. Living puppies were also found in an ash can. I investigated both these complaints. I did not find out who put the puppies in the garbage but I did find where the chicks came from. I paid a personal visit to the owner who admitted the offence but said he did not realize he was doing wrong. He promised it would not take place again."

Full Confidence

The meeting demonstrated full confidence in President Thomas E. Sargent and his executive by re-electing them for another year. The following slate was adopted: Honorary patron, Mayor George A. Macdonald; honorary presidents, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave and Col. C. H. Ackerman; president, Thomas E. Sargent; first vice president, Robert Abbott; second vice president, Mrs. E. S. Martin; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Young; treasurer, E. S. Martin; press secretary, Miss E. Wood; calendars, Mrs. R. N. Stuart; "Animal Life" magazine subscriptions, Mrs. M. V. Powell.

The following were named to the executive committee: Mrs. S. C. Warne, Mrs. R. Ross, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. R. Abbott, Mrs. G. Nelson, Mrs. M. Burnham, Mrs. Howden, Miss Mabel Collins, Miss Bessie Latimer, James Dutton, G. A. Gillespie, George Nelson, James Skinner, M. V. Powell, Robert Manley and Rev. W. P. Robertson.

Presenting her report as secretary, Mrs. Young said the Society held nine regular meetings during 1936. Through the annual tag day, $296.97 was raised, she said. She reported distribution of "Animal Life" was down here but sale of Humane Society calendars advanced.

Humane Sunday.

She commented on the fact a Humane Sunday was observed in Peterborough for the first time during the year through the co-operation of local ministers and a small sum was netted for the treasury.

"We are fortunate in having been remembered in the will of the late Mrs. Henrietta H. Archer of Millbrook. Mrs. Archer left the Society $300. We are grateful to all those who in any way have helped us." She mentioned among other organizations, the Peter Robinson chapter, and the Major Bennett and Otonabee chapters of I.O.D.E., the press and Mrs. McWilliams and Miss Ross who each year make 10,000 artificial violets for tag day sale.

Through the generosity of a member of the executive, the local Society is to obtain an electrical disposal chamber for disposal of animals of a type which has been put into service at Ottawa. The device provides an instantaneous, painless death for animals and is economical in operation, she said. The cost of the chamber installed at Ottawa was $500.

People Never Consulted In G.E. Renewal Gordon Says

Quite Aware Majority Of Council Opposed To His Private Bill

EXPECT FIREWORKS

The Hon. G. N. Gordon told the Examiner today that he was quite aware that the majority of the city council was opposed to the private bill declaring the attempted renewal of two fixed assessments of companies in this city, void, but the fact is that they are invalid as the law clerk of the Ontario legislation stated in his letter yesterday.

In addition to that the lease of the Canadian General Electric Company is the renewal of a bonus which is illegal and $398,000.00 worth of property was handed over to the Canadian General Electric Company, for that is the value of the lands and plant and the people were never consulted for five minutes.

In addition to that, Mr. Gordon said that ex-Alderman Edgar, a number of years ago with some of his friends had a private bill passed by which the aldermen were elected, half the number one year and half the number the next year, and it was necessary to vote for four out of five candidates.

The object of that private bill was to prevent Roman Catholics and accredited labour leaders from being elected to the City Council, and the scheme worked out that way because there is not a single Roman Catholic or an accredited labour leader representing the factory employees in the City Council, the Peterborough City Trust, the Utilities Commission or the Board of Health, and yet the Catholic people represent one-quarter of the population in this city and the industrial portion of the population must be considerably near seventy per cent.

Alderman Gordon says that he expected that the real fireworks would start for the returning of a power plant worth approximately $400,000,000 which was given away for twenty years on a cold February night when the ratepayers did not have a chance to protest against the handing over of this Christmas present.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

PETERBOROUGH ENTRIES.

Entries from Peterborough have been received for the matinee dog show which is to be held under the auspices of the Humane Society in Oshawa on Saturday afternoon next. Belleville, Port Hope and Aurora dog fanciers will also be represented.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

When she pleaded guilty to uttering a forged cheque on a local store, a Cavan girl employed as a housemaid in the city, was this (Thursday) morning placed on suspended sentence for a period of two years. Her father made restitution in the sum of $18.96.

TOO BUSY FOR MARKET.

Farmers in the Belleville district have been so busy taking advantage of the more seasonable weather of the last two weeks by getting in their supply of wood that many of them have not been attending the Belleville market, and a report from that city says the farmers' mart has virtually disappeared.

STRIKES CAR DOOR

Driving his automobile north on Reid street, Barrett Harrison of R.R. 4, Peterborough reported to police that he struck the door of another car in attempting to pass it on the off side. The other car, the owner of which was not stated, was said to have stopped his car near the centre of the road to set down a passenger when the mishap occurred.

NO LICENSES.

Folk who failed to take out their radio licenses for the fiscal year which is soon coming to an end are still being dealt with by the courts. Five residents of the Orono-Newcastle district have been charged with operating sets without having discharged the formality of paying the government $2 for the privilege, and it is understood a number of Port Hope offenders will also be prosecuted on the same count.

VISITING FACTORIES.

The manufacturers' committee of the city council arranged to visit this afternoon the De Laval and Raybestos factories for the purpose of enquiring about the fulfillment of the agreements attached to their fixed assessments. The members of the committee are Aldermen Glover, chairman; McIntyre, Hamilton, Wilson, and Juby, with Ald. Dutton added by the committee Tuesday evening.

SURVEYING HIGHWAYS.

Surveyors have been working on No. 7 Highway east of Peterborough on No. 14 Highway from Foxboro to Marmora recently, and indications point to a considerable program of paving on these roads this year, says The Havelock Standard. Paving on No. 7 Highway will probably start at Peterborough and extend eastward and it is expected that the four-mile gap between Norwood and Havelock will be completed.

HOCKEY TOURNAMENT.

Results of hockey games in the big Fenelon Falls tournament so far this week: Juveniles—Cobconk 4, Fenelon 0; Woodville 3, Bobcaygeon 2; Woodville 4, Cobconk 0; Woodville wins the A. E. Tiers Trophy. Senior results—Red Rock 4, Cobconk 2; Orillia 3, Victoria Road 2; Woodville 4, Toronto Copelands 2. Games to-night: Lindsay vs. Fenelon; Peterborough vs. Oshawa; Bobcaygeon vs. Kinmount. A week-end train will bring a crowd from Toronto Friday night, and a special will leave Lindsay for Fenelon Falls that night at 7.23, returning after the games. Saturday will see hockey finals, ice baseball and golf on the lake, and other winter sports.

ADDRESSED SOCIETY.

Mayor George Macdonald paid an eloquent tribute to the various service organizations in the city in an address to the annual meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society. He declared that one of the contributing factors to the city's sound condition was the fact that it affords groups of men and women who will give unsparingly of their time and efforts through such organizations as the Rotary, Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Lions Clubs, the Peterborough Health Association, the Children's Aid and the Humane Society.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Judgment was reserved by Judge Sheldon L. Smoke after trial of Roger McMillan of Norwood, on a charge of having converted to his own use $10 collected from Allan Haynes of Otonabee for the W. A. Richardson insurance agency was completed in the County Court today. The decision is to be given on March 11. Rogers was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducting the prosecution.

LAKE OPEN AGAIN.

Wide stretches of open water appear again in Little Lake as February assumes the sunlight and mildness of Spring.

FEW MEN WANTED.

The movement of labor through the Employment Services Bureau is at its lowest ebb of the year, Superintendent Dan M. Douglas reported to-day. A few skilled workers are being placed each week, but the demand for unskilled workers is at a standstill. More than 800 applicants are currently on the lists, including 400 relief recipients who are required under present regulations to renew their applications each two weeks. Mr. Douglas is anticipating a renewed demand for laborers shortly with the opening of the Spring road construction programs. If work is continued on Highway 28 north of the city and Highway No. 7 to the east, the program this summer will afford unusually wide opportunities for local labor.

WATCH TRAINED ANIMALS.

The Peterborough Humane Society plans to seek the co-operation of Peterborough Exhibition officials in eliminatoin of cruelty to trained animals in stage performances. Had the Society been consulted for its approval of the Exhibition vaudeville bill last year, such incidents as the collapse of a dog after performing three days here, would have been avoided, members said at their meeting last night. The dog was here to be destroyed, they reported.

MAY ERECT WADING POND.

The executive of Peterborough Kiwanis Club is considering the possibility of erecting a wading pool in the south-end of the city for the children of that section, according to brief announcement in the club bulletin. Plans are being laid for organizing of Jackson Park Camp and one of the prominent Kiwanians has been asked to take the chairmanship of the Camp Committee, but has not yet given his answer in the affirmative.

FOUR RINKS ARE STILL UNBEATEN TORONTO 'SPIEL

One From Kitchener And Three From Toronto Are Leading Bonspiel

OSHAWA ELIMINATED

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (C.P.). — One Kitchener and three Toronto rinks rode on ahead of the curling pack at the Ontario Bonspiel to-day, each in the race for grand aggregate honors and striving for three trophies —The Royal York, Seiberling, and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie.

Unbeaten after nearly four days of play were rinks skipped by Bert Hall of Kitchener, E. D. MacInnes and Earl Green of Toronto High Park, and Dr. F. T. Knight of Toronto Stratheonas. They swept into the fourth round of Birks-Ellis-Ryrie competition this morning.

Hall picked up an 11-10 victory from S. Burns of Palmerston; MacInnes eliminated F. R. Michael of Oshawa; Green turned back James McLean of Richmond Hill; and Knight won from F. C. Wilson of London, 14-13.

With them in the quarter-finals were M. W. Binkley of Stratford, victor over James Govan of Toronto by 15-7, and A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia, who defeated Bert Kennedy of Stratheonas by 12-9.

Previously unbeaten, W. Braithwaite's Meaford rink dropped a 12-5 decision to R. G. L. Harstone of Hamilton Thistles.

Feature of third-round play for the Seagram Trophy was the extra-end victory of W. J. Drysdale of Kingston over Dr. C. Brereton of Toronto Granites. Score was 11-10.

COMMITTEE ASKS $3,500 FOR YEAR

Manufacturers' Committee Fears Need More To Offset Adverse Publicity

"We might have to spend a little money to offset the adverse effect of what we have been getting of late," Alderman Glover, chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Council, remarked on Tuesday evening in proposing that $3,500 be allocated to his committee in the 1937 budget.

"I have taken Alderman McIntyre's advice from his experience as former chairman of this committee, and am asking that $1,500 be definitely ear-marked for expenditure in trying to secure new industries," Ald. Glover said. "He found that his appropriation was likely to be spent for other things because it was not designated for a definite purpose. We are also asking for $1,500 for tourist advertising and $500 for incidentals."

The committee's total requisition is $3,500, which Alderman Glover said: "I don't think that is out of the way, if we are to attempt anything this year."

Dr. Fred Warriner To Address Kiwanis

Dr. Fred Warriner, mayor of Winnipeg, will be the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon Friday.

Born in Stouffville, Ontario, Dr. Warriner attended high school in Markham and graduated from the school of Dentistry, University of Toronto. He practised at Gravenhurst and Winnipeg in 1913. In his municipal career he was mayor of Winnipeg Beach, chairman of the Winnipeg School Board, and is now serving his first term as Mayor of Winnipeg. Mayor Warriner was formerly well known in the east as an amateur lacrosse player, and was champion pole vaulter of the University of Toronto.

SEEK CO-OPERATION OF MANUFACTURERS FOR FACTORY NEWS

Plan Of Informing Public About Industrial Affairs Is Suggested

LETTER GOES OUT

Desiring to cultivate the harmony and co-operation which has existed between the city's administration and its manufacturing industries, the manufacturers committee of the council has written the managers of these local companies the following letter, of which about forty copies have been mailed:—

Appreciating the fact that the city's progress depends in quite a measure upon the success of its manufacturing concerns, the Manufacturers Committee of the City Council desires to assure the city's manufacturers of its complete co-operation.

Peterborough has been fortunate in the cordial relationship maintained between its civic representatives and industrial executives. It is the council's wish that such a happy condition will continue.

In the past, the Manufacturers Committee has been able to assist manufacturers, particularly in their contacts with the Governments and sometimes in securing orders. Such assistance is assured the manufacturers again whenever such opportunities arise.

It has been thought that more attention might be drawn to the progress of the city's industries. The manufacturer is often hesitant about giving stories to the newspapers. Yet often a little favourable publicity properly handled, could be of benefit to the city and to the plant.

With this in mind, it was considered that the City Hall might give useful service as a clearing house for industrial news. With perfect confidence the manufacturer may communicate with the writers of the City Clerk's office, items of progress. These stories will be written, submitted to the manufacturer for approval, then furnished to the newspapers in and out of the city.

We join in thanking you for your co-operation in the past. May 1937 be a banner year for Peterborough's industries.

Yours sincerely,
G. A. Macdonald,
Mayor,
R. M. Glover,
Chairman Manufacturers' Committee.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

What It Is!

This is no mere salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that fester stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloat and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) as they were NEVER CLEANSED BEFORE. It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give complete relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and dyspepsia.

IT WILL give you the greatest appetite you EVER HAD IN YOUR LIFE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headaches.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis, giving quick relief from pain.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver, and will put the ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, years younger than your real age.

150,000 REFUGEES BOMBED ON ROAD FLEEING MALAGA

Doctor Tells Of Seeing Second Shambles In Nearby Port Of Almeria

THOUGHT THEY WERE SAFE

VALENCIA, Feb. 18.—(AP)— Insurgent airplanes and warships were reported today by Dr. Norman Bethune, of Montreal, to have bombed and shelled 150,000 fleeing men, women and children during the "terrible evacuation" of captured Malaga.

The refugees, Dr. Bethune, head of the Spanish - American blood Transfusion Institute, said, "staggered and stumbled, with cut and bruised feet, along the white flint road while the Fascists (insurgents) bombed them from the air and from the sea."

Dr. Bethune said he saw the flight from the southern seaport, captured by the insurgents February 8, during a trip from Barcelona with a truck-load of refrigerated blood for transfusions.

"Imagine," he said, 150,000 men, women and children setting out for safety to a town situated more than 100 miles away with only one road to take on a journey requiring five days and five nights at least."

Haven Shattered.

Then on the evening of February 12, Dr. Bethune said, "when the little seaport of Almeria was completely filled with refugees who thought they had reached a haven of safety, German and Italian airplanes dropped 10 bombs in the very centre of town where refugees were sleeping, huddled so closely together on the main street an auto could pass only with great difficulty.

"After the planes passed, I picked up three dead children from the pavement where they had been standing in line waiting for a cup of preserved milk and a handful of dry bread, the only food some of them had had for days.

"The streets were a shambles of dead and dying, lighted only by the orange glare of burning buildings. In the semi-darkness the moans of wounded children and the shrieks of agonized mothers rose in a massed cry higher and higher to a pitch of intolerable intensity."

MOTION PICTURES AID ADVERTISING

Best Way To Advertise Your Territory To Tourists, W. A. Gluesing Says

"If you want to sell this district to the American tourists the surest approach lies in motion pictures," William A. Gluesing of Schenectady, New York, in charge of the "House of Magic" demonstration here, said yesterday. "One reel of pictures of your beautiful lakes and rivers, of leaping fish and gorgeous sunsets is worth a ton of literature," he declared.

Mr. Gluesing is widely-known in the Eastern States as an outdoor man. He was partially responsible for creation of one of the largest winter sports resorts in the United States and has been a devoted visitor to the wilds of Northern Ontario in past vacation seasons.

Few people in the Schenectady district know of the Kawartha Lakes, he said. When they think of a vacation in Canada, they think of Canada as a whole, lacking specific information on such distinct resort regions as the Kawartha Lakes, he stated.

He said most American summer tourists want good fishing but from that point on their desires vary. Some want wild seclusion while others want beautiful settings without foresaking convenience of good roads. Motion pictures and literature should be designed to satisfy the full range of desire, he suggested.

Two different motion pictures portraying the summer resources of this region have been in circulation in the United States for a number of years and have brought excellent returns.

PHOTOGRAPHER IS FINED IN COBOURG

Court Imposes $10 Fine Plus $250 Penalty Under Transient Traders' Bylaw

COBOURG, Feb. 18. — Walter Gillies, commercial photographer, was found guilty of a breach of the Transient Traders' bylaw and fined $10 and costs by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell here Tuesday. The magistrate also imposed a penalty of $250 as provided under the bylaw.

The charge was laid by the town, it being stated that a group of commercial photograpers were doing business in Cobourg without paying the special levy as provided by the bylaw. In January a firm of photographers took pictures in Cobourg, sending the films to Toronto for development and finishing. Two weeks ago a charge was laid against Gillies, one of the photographers, alleging that he took orders and sold photographs without paying the necessary license.

It was revealed that a Mr. Bushnell, who was associated with Gillies, signed a contract whereby the business was to be done in partnership with Mrs. Marshall, a hairdresser. Evidence showed that Mrs. Marshall had no part in the photographing, nor were her premises used. Magistrate Campbell at that time reserved his decision.

"The apparent intention of the agreement is that Mrs. Marshall is on the assessment roll and occupies a hairdressing establishment and is for the purpose of giving these photographers the right to take pictures," he pointed out in his judgment. "I hardly know why Mr. Bushnell refers to it because there is no evidence that her premises were used for that purpose.

"This paper looks strongly as though it were some kind of subterfuge to get around the point that the defendant was not duly entered on the roll," the magistrate continued. "I find that this paper between Meyers, Bushnell or Mrs. Marshall had no legal effect in regard to this matter and no bearing on the sale of the pictures."

In summing up the evidence the magistrate alluded to the fact that one of the forms, signed by a customer, had the name, Meyer's Studio, on it.

The town was represented by A. R. Willmott and the defendant by C. Payne, K.C., of Belleville.

The Rambling REPORTERS

STOP CRUELTY

If members of the Peterborough Humane Society have their say, there will be no repetitions of past cruelty to animals in the filming of motion pictures in Hollywood. The local Society joined the Humane Societies of the United States in sending a protest to Warner Brothers in Hollywood and Will Hayes in New York against alleged cruelties to 400 horses used in filming "The Charge of the Light Brigade," it was reported to the annual meeting last evening.

As a result of the protest, the motion picture industry has agreed to submit plans for all animal scenes for approval of a humane commission before filming, it was revealed.—C.P.R.

1,000 ANIMALS RECEIVED CARE IN PAST YEAR

Humane Society Reports Year Of Great Activity In Peterborough District

ANNUAL MEETING

A year of increased activity and encouraging progress was reported by officers of the Peterborough Humane Society as members gathered for the annual meeting of the association in the Chamber of Commerce last evening. During 1936, more than 1,000 animals received the attention of the society in the course of its full program of work, it was reported.

Stamping out of an epidemic of tuberculosis among the city's feline population and continued prosecution of the fight against many forms of cruelty to animals were among highlights of a report by Veterinary Surgeon Dr. Thomas Johnston, the society's inspector.

Busy Year

"The year was a very busy one," Dr. Johnston said. "We looked after about 300 dogs and 350 cats. Several horses were ordered out of work until their condition improved. Stock in trucks received our attention.

"I inspected the horses at the Fair Grounds during training season and Exhibition time. No cruelty was noticed and no complaints were received beyond a few cases where hobbles had chafed. I have looked over the rural mail horses and retired one as unfit for service.

Many Injuries

"About 200 dogs have been injured and killed on our streets and 26 cats. Most were struck by automobiles after dark."

Stating in few cases were car drivers at fault, Dr. Johnston urged owners to keep their dogs off busy streets unless on leash. Many cats were rescued from trees and poles and two dogs were rescued from the icy waters of Little Lake, he said.

"We have had a bad outbreak of distemper among dogs and influenza and mange among cats. Many owners were unable to pay for the treatments, but we are repaid through the kindness of such persons as one grateful lady who, for a little kindness, left the society $200 from her estate."

Horse Destroyed

He told of the instance of a horse used in logging operations north of the city which he ordered destroyed recently.

Through Mr. Brown, foreman at the incinerator, 16 live chicks were discovered in the garbage. Living puppies were also found in an ash can. I investigated both these complaints. I did not find out who put the puppies in the garbage but I did find where the chicks came from. I paid a personal visit to the owner who admitted the offence but said he did not realize he was doing wrong. He promised it would not take place again."

Full Confidence

The meeting demonstrated full confidence in President Thomas E. Sargent and his executive by re-electing them for another year. The following slate was adopted: Honorary patron, Mayor George A. Macdonald; honorary presidents, Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave and Col. C. H. Ackerman; president, Thomas E. Sargent; first vice president, Robert Abbott; second vice president, Mrs. E. S. Martin; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Young; treasurer, E. S. Martin; press secretary, Miss E. Wood; calendars, Mrs. R. N. Stuart; "Animal Life" magazine subscriptions, Mrs. M. V. Powell.

The following were named to the executive committee: Mrs. S. C. Warne, Mrs. R. Ross, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. R. Abbott, Mrs. G. Helson, Mrs. M. Burnham, Mrs. Howden, Miss Mabel Collins, Miss Bessie Latimer, James Dutton, G. A. Gillespie, George Helson, James Skinner, M. V. Powell, Robert Manley and Rev. W. P. Robertson.

Presenting her report as secretary, Mrs. Young said the Society held nine regular meetings during 1936. Through the annual tag day, $296.97 was raised, she said. She reported distribution of "Animal Life" was down here but sale of Humane Society calendars advanced.

Humane Sunday.

She commented on the fact a Humane Sunday was observed in Peterborough for the first time during the year through the co-operation of local ministers and a small sum was netted for the treasury.

"We are fortunate in having been remembered in the will of the late Mrs. Henrietta H. Archer of Millbrook. Mrs. Archer left the Society $200. We are grateful to all those who in any way have helped us." She mentioned among other organizations, the Peter Robinson chapter, and the Major Bennett and Otonabee chapters of I.O.D.E., the press and Mrs. McWilliams and Miss Ross who each year make 10,000 artificial violets for tag day sale.

Through the generosity of a member of the executive, the local Society is to obtain an electrical disposal chamber for disposal of animals of a type which has been put into service at Ottawa. The device provides an instantaneous, painless death for animals and is economical in operation, she said. The cost of the chamber installed at Ottawa was $500.

People Never Consulted In G.E. Renewal Gordon Says

Quite Aware Majority Of Council Opposed To His Private Bill

EXPECT FIREWORKS

The Hon. G. N. Gordon told the Examiner today that he was quite aware that the majority of the city council was opposed to the private bill declaring the attempted renewal of two fixed assessments of companies in this city, void, but the fact is that they are invalid as the law clerk of the Ontario legislation stated in his letter yesterday.

In addition to that the lease of the Canadian General Electric Company is the renewal of a bonus which is illegal and $398,000.00 worth of property was handed over to the Canadian General Electric Company, for that is the value of the lands and plant and the people were never consulted for five minutes.

In addition to that, Mr. Gordon said that ex-Alderman Edgar, a number of years ago with some of his friends had a private bill passed by which the aldermen were elected, half the number one year and half the number the next year, and it was necessary to vote for four out of five candidates.

The object of that private bill was to prevent Roman Catholics and accredited labour leaders from being elected to the City Council, and the scheme worked out that way because there is not a single Roman Catholic or an accredited labour leader representing the factory employees in the City Council, the Peterborough City Trust, the Utilities Commission or the Board of Health, and yet the Catholic people represent one-quarter of the population in this city and the industrial portion of the population must be considerably near seventy per cent.

Alderman Gordon says that he expected that the real fireworks would start for the returning of a power plant worth approximately $400,000,000 which was given away for twenty years on a cold February night when the ratepayers did not have a chance to protest against the handing over of this Christmas present.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By an Examiner Reporter.

MAY LOSE RAILWAY.

From Bethany comes the report that the village will shortly lose its last remaining railway service, the C.P.R. which it is said will be discontinued after April 1st.

WILL SPEAK TO-NIGHT.

Dr. R. E. Hooper of Ethiopia, who was advertised to give an address at Bethany Tabernacle on Wednesday night was unable to fulfill his engagement on account of illness. However, Dr. Hooper will be heard at the Tabernacle to-night.

AT THE EMPRESS.

PETERBOROUGH ENTRIES.

Entries from Peterborough have been received for the matinee dog show which is to be held under the auspices of the Humane Society in Oshawa on Saturday afternoon next. Belleville, Port Hope and Aurora dog fanciers will also be represented.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

When she pleaded guilty to uttering a forged cheque on a local store, a Cavan girl employed as a housemaid in the city, was this (Thursday) morning placed on suspended sentence for a period of two years. Her father made restitution in the sum of $18.96.

TOO BUSY FOR MARKET.

Farmers in the Belleville district have been so busy taking advantage of the more seasonable weather of the last two weeks by getting in their supply of wood that many of them have not been attending the Belleville market, and a report from that city says the farmers' mart has virtually disappeared.

STRIKES CAR DOOR

Driving his automobile north on Reid street, Barrett Harrison of R.R. 4, Peterborough reported to police that he struck the door of another car in attempting to pass it on the off side. The other car, the owner of which was not stated, was said to have stopped his car near the centre of the road to set down a passenger when the mishap occurred.

NO LICENSES.

Folk who failed to take out their radio licenses for the fiscal year which is soon coming to an end are still being dealt with by the courts. Five residents of the Orono-Newcastle district have been charged with operating sets without having discharged the formality of paying the government $2 for the privilege, and it is understood a number of Port Hope offenders will also be prosecuted on the same count.

VISITING FACTORIES.

The manufacturers' committee of the city council arranged to visit this afternoon the De Laval and Raybestos factories for the purpose of enquiring about the fulfillment of the agreements attached to their fixed assessments. The members of the committee are Aldermen Glover, chairman; McIntyre, Hamilton, Wilson, and Juby, with Ald. Dutton added by the committee Tuesday evening.

SURVEYING HIGHWAYS.

Surveyors have been working on No. 7 Highway east of Peterborough on No. 14 Highway from Pomboro to Marmora recently, and indications point to a considerable program of paving on these roads this year, says The Havelock Standard. Paving on No. 7 Highway will probably start at Peterborough and extend eastward and it is expected that the four-mile gap between Norwood and Havelock will be completed.

HOCKEY TOURNAMENT.

Results of hockey games in the big Fenelon Falls tournament so far this week: Juveniles—Coboconk 4, Fenelon 0; Woodville 3, Bobcaygeon 2; Woodville 4, Coboconk 0; Woodville wins the A. E. Tiers Trophy. Senior results—Red Rock 4, Coboconk 2; Orillia 3, Victoria Road 2; Woodville 4, Toronto Copelands 2. Games to-night: Lindsay vs. Fenelon; Peterborough vs. Oshawa; Bobcaygeon vs. Kinmount. A week-end train will bring a crowd from Toronto Friday night, and a special will leave Lindsay for Fenelon Falls that night at 7.23, returning after the games. Saturday will see hockey finals, ice baseball and golf on the lake, and other winter sports.

ADDRESSED SOCIETY.

Mayor George Macdonald paid an eloquent tribute to the various service organizations in the city in an address to the annual meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society. He declared that one of the contributing factors to the city's sound condition was the fact that it affords groups of men and women who will give unsparingly of their time and efforts through such organizations as the Rotary, Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Lions Clubs, the Peterborough Health Association, the Children's Aid and the Humane Society.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Judgment was reserved by Judge Sheldon L. Smoke after trial of Roger McMillan of Norwood, on a charge of having converted to his own use $10 collected from Allan Haynes of Otonabee for the W. A. Richardson insurance agency was completed in the County Court today. The decision is to be given on March 11. Rogers was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C., V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducting the prosecution.

LAKE OPEN AGAIN.

Wide stretches of open water appear again in Little Lake as February assumes the sunlight and mildness of Spring.

FEW MEN WANTED.

The movement of labor through the Employment Services Bureau is at its lowest ebb of the year, Superintendent Dan M. Douglas reported to-day. A few skilled workers are being placed each week, but the demand for unskilled workers is at a standstill. More than 800 applicants are currently on the lists, including 400 relief recipients who are required under present regulations to renew their applications each two weeks. Mr. Douglas is anticipating a renewed demand for laborers shortly with the opening of the Spring road construction programme. If work is continued on Highway 28 north of the city and Highway No. 7 to the east, the program this summer will afford unusually wide opportunities for local labor.

WATCH TRAINED ANIMALS.

The Peterborough Humane Society plans to seek the co-operation of Peterborough Exhibition officials in eliminatoin of cruelty to trained animals in stage performances. Had the Society been consulted for its approval of the Exhibition vaudeville bill last year, such incidents as the collapse of a dog after performing three days here, would have been avoided, members said at their meeting last night. The dog was here to be destroyed, they reported.

MAY ERECT WADING POND.

The executive of Peterborough Kiwanis Club is considering the possibility of erecting a wading pool in the south-end of the city for the children of that section, according to brief announcement in the club bulletin. Plans are being laid for organizing of Jackson Park Camp and one of the prominent Kiwanians has been asked to take the chairmanship of the Camp Committee, but has not yet given his answer in the affirmative.

FOUR RINKS ARE STILL UNBEATEN TORONTO 'SPIEL

One From Kitchener And Three From Toronto Are Leading Bonspiel

OSHAWA ELIMINATED

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (C.P.). — One Kitchener and three Toronto rinks rode on ahead of the curling pack at the Ontario Bonspiel to-day, each in the race for grand aggregate honors and striving for three trophies —The Royal York, Seiberling, and Birks-Ellis-Ryrie.

Unbeaten after nearly four days of play were rinks skipped by Bert Hall of Kitchener, E. D. MacInnes and Earl Green of Toronto High Park, and Dr. F. T. Knight of Toronto Strathconas. They swept into the fourth round of Birks-Ellis-Ryrie competition this morning.

Hall picked up an 11-10 victory from S. Burns of Palmerston; MacInnes eliminated F. R. Michael of Oshawa; Green turned back James McLean of Richmond Hill; and Knight won from F. C. Wilson of London, 14-13.

With them in the quarter-finals were M. W. Binkley of Stratford, victor over James Govan of Toronto by 15-7, and A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia, who defeated Bert Kennedy of Strathconas by 12-9.

Previously unbeaten, W. Braithwaite's Meaford rink dropped a 12-5 decision to R. G. L. Harstone of Hamilton Thistles.

Feature of third-round play for the Seagram Trophy was the extra-end victory of W. J. Drysdale of Kingston over Dr. C. Brereton of Toronto Granites. Score was 11-10.

COMMITTEE ASKS $3,500 FOR YEAR

Manufacturers' Committee Fears Need More To Offset Adverse Publicity

"We might have to spend a little money to offset the adverse effect of what we have been getting of late," Alderman Glover, chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Council, remarked on Tuesday evening in proposing that $3,500 be allocated to his committee in the 1937 budget.

"I have taken Alderman McIntyre's advice from his experience as former chairman of this committee, and am asking that $1,500 be definitely ear-marked for expenditure in trying to secure new industries," Ald. Glover said. "He found that his appropriation was like ly to be spent for other things because it was not designated for a definite purpose. We are also asking for $1,500 for tourist advertising and $500 for incidentals."

The committee's total requisition is $3,500, which Alderman Glover said: "I don't think that is out of the way, if we are to attempt anything this year."

Dr. Fred Warriner To Address Kiwanis

Dr. Fred Warriner, mayor of Winnipeg, will be the guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon Friday.

Born in Stouffville, Ontario, Dr. Warriner attended high school in Markham and graduated from the school of Dentistry, University of Toronto. He practised at Gravenhurst before moving to Winnipeg in 1913. In his municipal career he was mayor of Winnipeg Beach, chairman of the Winnipeg School Board, and is now serving his first term as Mayor of Winnipeg. Mayor Warriner was formerly well known in the east as an amateur lacrosse player, and was champion pole vaulter of the University of Toronto.

SEEK CO-OPERATION OF MANUFACTURERS FOR FACTORY NEWS

Plan Of Informing Public About Industrial Affairs Is Suggested

LETTER GOES OUT

Desiring to cultivate the harmony and co-operation which has existed between the city's administration and its manufacturing industries, the manufacturers committee of the council has written the managers of these local companies the following letter, of which about forty copies have been mailed:—

Appreciating the fact that the city's progress depends in quite a measure upon the success of its manufacturing concerns, the Manufacturers Committee of the City Council desires to assure the city's manufacturers of its complete co-operation.

Peterborough has been fortunate in the cordial relationship maintained between its civic representatives and industrial executives. It is the council's wish that such a happy condition will continue.

In the past, the Manufacturers Committee has been able to assist manufacturers, particularly in their contacts with the Governments and sometimes in securing orders. Such assistance is assured the manufacturers again whenever such opportunities arise.

It has been thought that more attention might be drawn to the progress of the city's industries. The manufacturer is often hesitant about giving stories to the newspapers. Yet often a little favourable publicity properly handled, could be of benefit to the city and to the plant.

With this in mind, it was considered that the City Hall might give useful service as a clearing house for industrial news. With perfect confidence the manufacturer may communicate with the writers or the City Clerk's office, items of progress. These stories will be written, submitted to the manufacturer for approval, then furnished to the newspapers in and out of the city.

We join in thanking you for your co-operation in the past. May 1937 be a banner year for Peterborough's industries.

Yours sincerely,
G. A. Macdonald
Mayor,
R. M. Glover.
Chairman Manufacturers' Committee.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

What It Is!

This is no mere salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloat and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

Sciences brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to place this famous medicine within easy reach of all. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening tablets and harsh drugs.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis, giving quick relief from pain.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver, and will put the ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, years younger than your real age.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) as they were NEVER CLEANSED BEFORE.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give complete relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and dyspepsia.

IT WILL give you the greatest appetite you EVER HAD IN YOUR LIFE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your face more attractive.

RAILWAY EPIC HAS BEEN SCREENED IN CANADIAN ROCKIES

Depicts Struggle Of Rail Builders Against The Mighty Mountains

BRITISH PRODUCTION

TORONTO, Feb. 18.— The thoroughly Canadian film epic, "The Grea, Barrier," which had a brilliant pre-view performance in London in the presence of Queen Mary recently, will be released in March throughout the Dominion. Filmed amidst the breath-taking beauty of the Canadian Rockies in British Columbia, it depicts the heroic struggle of pioneering railwaymen in building of the first Dominion transcontinental railway—the cross-Canada line of the C.P.R.

Six Months' Work.

From March, 1936, until September, Revelstoke, B.C., and its vicinity hummed with excitement and activity as the largest film production unit ever to invade the Dominion shot scenes. The film is based on the story "The Great Divide" by the Canadian author, Alan Sullivan. A company of 52 featured players and technicians plus more than 600 Canadian "extras" made up the unit.

The first party arrived in March, and at the end of June the main body of artists and directors reached Revelstoke. The main set, "Moodyville" street, was only two blocks from Revelstoke's main street.

Canadian Interest.

It is interesting to note the Canadian element among principal players of the "The Great Barrier." The star, Richard Arlen, enlisted in the Royal Flying Corps at Winnipeg and trained at Toronto, Beamsville, Deseronto and Camp Borden before proceeding overseas.

Antoinette Cellier, leading lady, went to school at Halifax, N.S., and has relatives in London, Ont. J. Farrell MacDonald, veteran character actor and one of the principal players in this film, was educated in St. Michael's college in Toronto, then at Peterboro and at St. Dunstan's college in Prince Edward Island before going to Yale. Roy Emerton, another principal actor, lived at Field, B.C., for some years, and was a Great Lakes sailor in Canadian waters for a time. Reginald Barlow was schooled at Upper Canada college in Toronto.

Used Local "Extras"

For local "color" in "The Great Barrier," cowboys were brought from Calgary, Indians from Banff, a Negro and others from Vancouver. Chinese were recruited locally and powdermen secured from highway camps.

While the film units were in operation several noted men of the empire visited the location. Among them were Sir Percy Vincent, lord mayor of London, and Viscount Elibank of Scotland, chairman of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the Empire. Sir Percy was on his way to attend the jubilee celebrations in Vancouver, while Viscount Elibank was passing through Canada on his way to New Zealand. Hon. R. B. Bennett was another distinguished visitor on the set.

In short, the story is this. A group of builders and financiers at Montreal bent themselves to the task of constructing a transcontinental railway, even using their personal fortunes to push the project through on Canadian soil.

Story of Construction.

Given the task of penetrating the Rockies was Major "Hell's Bells" Rogers, a railway engineer. Beset by physical difficulties, a crisis is reached when the way is blocked by seemingly impassable mountains and the workmen become disgruntled through lack of wages and supplies. As a last resort, the major with a band of volunteers makes a final thrust into the mountains to find a pass. All but the major and one companion are lost on the way, through accidents. Just when the pair are ready to give up, an eagle, disturbed by the firing of a rifle, reveals a pass to them. They realize that an eagle flies between mountains, not over them.

Back in "Moodyville," the base of building operations, the workmen have become unruly and begin to riot. At a crucial moment a beacon signals success of the major's expedition, the rioting turns to rejoicing and the work is enthusiastically resumed to make the transcontinental railway an assured fact.

The romantic element is supplied by Richard Arlen, who plays the role of the heroic workman and companion of Major Rogers on the expedition, and Antoinette Cellier, beautiful daughter of a contractor.

Oaumont British Films, the producers, have endeavored here to make a Canadian counterpart of the spectacular "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" as first of a new series of colorful empire films. According to Director Milton Rosmer, "The Great Barrier" cost in the neighborhood of $500,000 to produce.

REVISING THE RULES

Germany to Allow Persons in Army if Having No More Than 2 Jewish Grandparents

BERLIN, Feb. 18—(C.P.-Havas)—Persons of one-half and one-quarter Jewish blood will hereafter be compelled to do military and labor service under a conscription ordinance made public to-day. The new law modifies legislation enacted in 1934 which specified that only "Aryans" were eligible for active army service.

Henceforth a man will not be considered a Jew for military or labor camp purposes if he has not more than two Jewish grandparents.

40 P.C. "MARK UP" NEED OF SHOEMEN

Ontario Business Men Told They Cannot Operate On 33 1-3 Margin

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP).—Allan E. Ross who made a survey of the Ontario retail shoe business yesterday said the average shoe retailer in the province must obtain an original "mark up" of 40 per cent on his stock if his business was to break even. He made his survey under the direction of P. H. Hensell, Department of Business Administration, University of Western Ontario.

Mr. Allan told the convention of the National Shoe Retailers' Association few retail shoe stores in Ontario could break even on a 33 1-3 "mark up." It should be at least 40 per cent which means a shoe costing the retailer $3.00 must be sold at $5.00.

The average gross profit of an Ontario store was 3.14 per cent and the average net profit 2.9 per cent which, he said, left the margin between gross and net profit too narrow. This margin was usually an unknown quantity until the end of the year when it was not uncommon for a merchant who thought he was making a profit to discover he actually had been operating at a loss.

FINLAND IS AHEAD IN WOMEN MEMBERS

Manitoba's Effort Is Compared With That Of The Baltic Nation

WINNIPEG, Feb. 17.—(C.P.)—A visitor from Finland announced with considerable pride his country had been first to grant equal suffrage to women. Asked if the women made use of the vote, he said they certainly did. Of the 200 members of parliament, 15 are women, and he confided, "we have been getting along better than most places I visit."

In Manitoba from 1920 until 1936, Mrs. Edith Rogers was known as the one and only woman elected to the Manitoba legislature.

At the last provincial election a second woman won a seat, and at present the only woman in the house, she is Miss Salome Halldorson, Social Credit member for St. George.

According to statistics of the 1936 provincial election, 44,952 votes were cast by men; 35,738 by women. And the population of men in Manitoba is considerably higher than that of women.

Sharp words were the only missiles hurled by Manitoba suffragettes. At the time the bill was being passed most women were too busy with their war work to give much thought to the franchise.

At one time they did stage a considerably uncomplimentary mock parliament of men at the Walker theatre in an effort to let the men know they were not cutting such fine figures as statesmen. "Nellie" McClung took the part of Premier Roblin. Possibly the determined spectacular efforts to go to jail, throw stones and gain attention by fasting on the part of English militants helped on the cause in Manitoba, but the methods were never adopted here.

IN MEMORY OF LAURIER

McEvoy, vice-president of Ontario Women's Liberal Association.

STALIN SHADES HIS HOME LIFE

Silent Dictator Of Soviet Said To Be Affectionate Father

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(AP).—The home life of Joseph Stalin, the "steel man" who guides the destinies of Russia, always has been pretty much of a closed book to the outside world.

Stalin resolutely declines to parade his private concerns for public inspection. His official life is the affair of the people, but he draws the shades in his humble abode. School teachers are forbidden to point out his children to visitors.

Stalin lives with his children in a little flat in the Kremlin. It consists of a tiny hall, three bedrooms and a dining-room. There is no kitchen; meals are sent in from a restaurant. The elder son sleeps on a couch in the dining room, his half-brother in a recess off the dining room. There are no frills of any sort.

Young Daughter

The dictator is said to be a most affectionate father and his eight-year-old motherless daughter is one of his chief comrades of his private life. Frequently they are seen at the movies.

In 1932 when his second wife died very suddenly, the cause of death was not published, with the inevitable result that mystery became attached to it. One rumor was that she had died from poison intended for her husband and accidentally diverted to her.

Stalin remained stonily silent in his grief. The poison story still persists in many places abroad, but it is reported authoritatively that Madame Stalin died after an operation for appendicitis.

He married twice. He has a grown son, Jasheka, by the first marriage. After divorcing his first wife, Stalin married a 17-year-old Georgian girl, Madya Alliueva, in 1919. She bore him a boy and a girl—Vasili, who is now about 14, and Svyetlana, who is eight.

PREDICTS DECLINE IN WORLD PEOPLES

Peak Of Population In Britain During Next Five Years, Official Says

LONDON, Feb. 18—(C.P.)—Great Britain will reach the peak population within the next five years and then undergo a gradual, progressive decline, says F. J. C. Honey, official of the National Confederation of Employers' Associations.

Children born in 1937 on reaching the age of 34 or so will discover there are so many old men and women for whom they will be taxed, little of their earnings will remain to raise families of their own, he predicted.

Mr. Honey declared there would be about 3,000,000 fewer people in Britain in 1971 than at present, with approximately 2,000,000 more men over the age of 45 on employment rolls.

The drop in birth rate, Mr. Honey believed, was becoming acute and from 1942 on not only Britain but the whole world would be effected. "It's a pity," he says, "because the general standard of living and the real value of wages have been higher since the war than at any time in our history. The present generation can afford to bring up children more easily than their parents did."

WOMEN FINDING PROGRESS HARD

Success In Scientific Career Is Difficult—Routine Jobs Good Start

By MARGARET BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—(CP)—Young women embarking on scientific careers "will find every step difficult," says Dr. Helen Chataway, chemist at the National Research Laboratories here. "This is nobody's fault. It is natural and inevitable. The first requisite of success is to keep from feeling resentful on this score."

Dr. Chataway says that although few women hold scientific positions it is seldom realized how small would be their number if it were not for the practice of employing women in routine, monotonous jobs, prized by nobody except as a means of earning a living.

Dr. Chataway feels that on the rare occasions when a woman is appointed to a responsible scientific position her appointment is almost always attended by grave misgiving.

This, she says, is not the result of prejudice alone. The hard facts of life are against a woman making a success of such a position. Women have plenty of ability, plenty of natural aptitude for any kind of work, but ability alone does not carry either a man or a woman very far. Even less reliable is youthful enthusiasm which often evaporates. What is essential is a fundamental feeling of well-being, of having found one's niche in life, and this is something which cannot be found through a job alone.

Play Game Right.

However, Dr. Chataway has a recipe for success. She says life is a greater adventure than its greatest pat. "Aim at playing the game of life right, and it is surprising how good luck and bad, successes and disappointments will all fall into their proper place."

Dr. Chataway explained some details of her work. Her problem is an industrial one dealing with the best methods of turning soy beans into oil, meal, flour, casein and a number of other products. These methods are in process of rapid development since it is only within the last few years that soya bean cultivation has leaped to a position of importance in North America. Even now the expansion of this industry in Canada is being retarded by the lack of sufficient seed of suitable Canadian varieties. Seed is being developed at several agricultural experimental stations.

In this breathing space the National Research Council plans that at least one of its staff shall become conversant with problems of the industry in the hope that by being ready to supply timely advice it may save many costly mistakes.

Dr. Chataway says, laughingly, that day by day as she becomes immersed in her work, she forgets all about being a woman.

'PEG RAILROADERS BACK UNION STAND

2,500 Authorize Leaders To Take Any Step To Get Ten P.C. Cut Back

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18—(C.P.). — Twenty-five hundred railway workers, meeting at the call of union officials to hear an explanation of the railway wage controversy, were on record to-day endorsing their leaders' opposition to acceptance of the majority report of a conciliation board.

The board, named to adjudicate claims of employees for return of 10 per cent. cuts, recommended in its majority finding that one per cent. be returned February 1 and two more before November 1. A minority report recommended complete restoration of the reduction made in 1931.

A resolution passed at the meeting last night instructed union leaders to go to any limit to force restoration of the 10 per cent.

A nation-wide general strike ballots among 117,000 Canadian railway workers is being taken by 17 labor unions.

VARSITY DEMANDS SKIRTED BATHERS

Decision Of Institution's Athletic Body Provokes Discussion

TORONTO, Feb. 18 — (C.P.). — Phyllis Griffiths in the Evening Telegram: After a solemn discussion in which eyes centred upon two sample swimming suits, one skirtless, the other skirted, the Varsity Women's Athletic Directorate decided to purchase the latter variety of suit for the U. of T. co-ed team to wear at the women's intercollegiate tournament in Hamilton, March 5.

Which is not in line with the wishes of the Varsity girl swimmers themselves, nor with the fashions of feminine competitive swimmers in general. For at least a decade, girl swimmers racing in Toronto and Ontario tanks have, with the odd exception, worn skirtless suits.

"Gross stupidity," exclaimed a well-known Toronto swimming authority when he heard of the varsity verdict. "They're going back to old Mrs. Grundy. A skirt, no matter how brief, cuts down a swimmer's speed. Don't they know the female form is the most beautiful thing on earth.

At any rate, the die is cast and the suit selected. And as one who has sat on Varsity directorates, we have no doubt that the decision was influenced by a desire to avoid any criticism from conservative parents of competitors, and because the women's intercollegiate events will be part of a mixed meet. As Miss Parker says: "The directorate is old-fashioned but is anxious to promote swimming and wants no criticism at this first intercollegiate women's meet. Hence the little frills.

Actress Now Recuperating From Operation—Plans English Trip.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18 (AP) — Mary Pickford, Toronto-born actress, has booked passage for England March 10, friends said today. She will leave the hospital, where she has been recuperating from an operation, within a week, they said.

Meanwhile, her fiance, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, already has left Hollywood for England. The couple will be together in London for nearly a month before Rogers is scheduled to return.

It was intimated that they may be married there.

RESPECT FOR ENEMIES

New War Would Be Catastrophe For All Says Hitler.

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Feb. 18 (CP-Havas) — Chancellor Adolf Hitler yesterday told war veterans from 14 countries that Germany held nothing but respect for its former enemies.

"We are all animated by the same thought," he said, "that a new war would be a catastrophe for all nations."

Speaking as one veteran to another, he cited the "absolute peace" reigning within Germany as an example that might be followed along international lines.

NO DOMINION TIES TO ASSIST FRANCE

Not Bound To Help Britain If She Is Called To Uphold Locarno Pact

LONDON, Feb. 18 (C.P. Cable).—No question exists of the Dominions possibly associating themselves in any way with the British Government in respect to commitments for the defence of France and Belgium, Viscount Cranbourne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the House of Commons to-day.

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked whether the Dominions were parties to any arrangement for assistance to France and Belgium in the event of unprovoked aggression.

Lord Cranbourne: "I think the honorable gentleman is under some misapprehension. I would recall that in conformity with Section 111 of the proposal of March 1936, the position of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom is in this respect still governed by the Treaty of Locarno, to which the Dominions are not parties. His Majesty's Governments in the Dominions have been kept informed of every phase of the negotiations."

Mander: "The point is, have the Dominions associated themselves in any way with the action the British Government are taking with France and Belgium in this matter."

Lord Cranbourne: "There is no question of association, but they have been kept informed.."

PELLETIER ASKS FOR COMMISSION ON WEST'S WOES

Thinks One King Proposed Will Not Cover Tariff, Immigration, Freight Rates

PRIVATE MEMBERS' DAY

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—(CP).— National defence returns to the centre of the stage in the House of Commons to-day after an absence of a day while private members' resolutions had precedence. The House resumes debate on a want-of-confidence motion in the government issue with no signs of an early vote.

A long list of speakers on the books of the party whips indicates the debate will continue most of Friday and perhaps into next week. So far there has been little out-and-out opposition to the Government's proposed enlargement of the military, naval and air services outside of the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups, but many Liberal members have taken advantage of the opportunity to put their views on record.

Problems of Western Canada were brought before the House yesterday by Rene Pelletier (S. C. Peace River) who proposed a commission to investigate them broadly from economic and psychological points of view.

Financial problems were not alone in creating difficulty for the western provinces, he said. The commission propcsed by Mr. Mackenzie King would not touch the tariff, immigration and freight rate questions which were now causing discontent.

His Resolution.

Mr. Pelletier proposed the following resolution:

"Whereas, the Western Canadian provinces have materially increased in wealth and population since entering Confederation;

"And whereas, the geographical location of Canadian financial and industrial centres have prevented friendly understanding on Western Canadian life leading to an accumulation of grievances either justified or psychological, tending to disrupt the harmony of Confederation.

"Therefore be it resolved,—That this parliament would serve a great need and greatly enhance Canadian unity by appointing a commission to investigate broadly the various problems of Western Canada, both from an economic and psychological point of view and to bring in recommendations to this parliament."

He said he joined with Conservative Leader Bennett in protesting discrimination against Alberta by the Federal Government. Because Manitoba and Saskatchewan were faced with default they were to receive temporary financial assistance. A year ago Alberta had been in the same position and had been allowed to default. The reason given was that Alberta would not consent to a loan council and impossible conditions. But the other two provinces were not being asked to submit to a loan council. They were to receive the help they needed without strings.

Mr. Pelletier agreed aid was necessary to the Western provinces but felt there had been "serious discrimination against some Canadians."

People Forced to Take Relief

Relief had been increased in Alberta, as had been referred to several times in and out of the House, but there was a reason for it. The Dominion made road grants to Alberta, but only persons on relief could be employed in the construction. So people wishing to earn a few dollars had done their best to get on relief, he said.

Western Canada would not be satisfied merely with a review of its financial condition. There were many things Western Canada wished to discuss. It felt it did not have the understanding of the East. It should be given an opportunity to air its grievances, some which might be psychological, some justified. In either event they tended to disrupt the harmony of Confederation.

C. R. McIntosh (Lib., North Battleford) denied the suggestion there had been any discrimination between provinces by the Dominion Government.

Opposition Leader Bennett interjected that that happened to be inaccurate, because Alberta had been driven to default, and people holding their bonds had been practically ruined because of the inability of Alberta to pay.

"Now the Minister of Finance would not help Alberta although they asked and the other two provinces are to be helped," he added.

Mr. McIntosh maintained the responsibility lay with Alberta, "headed by the government existing in that province at the present time."

Is Alberta to Blame.

J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit House leader, asked Mr. McIntosh whether he thought the Alberta government was responsible for Alberta's financial condition of April 1936.

If anything was wrong financially or industrially with Alberta, said Mr. McIntosh, the Dominion government was not responsible and Alberta representatives should go back and put sound policies into effect.

"Will you apply the same rules to Saskatchewan?" asked A. A. Heaps (C.C.F.-Winnipeg North).

Mr. Blackmore asked Mr. McIntosh again if he thought Alberta's financial condition last April was due to its own government.

Mr. McIntosh replied that it had either not faced its obligations constructively, or had failed to co-operate with the Dominion.

J. Gordon Ross (Lib. Moose Jaw) declared taxing power, which used to rest in the House of Commons, had gradually been turned over as a protecting tariff to industrialists and in some cases to customs officials.

Certain sections of the customs act really placed the taxing power in the customs officials since it was they who determined classifications, after the budget was announced. It was not difficult for those interested in classifications to bring pressure to bear on the department for concessions, while the consumer had no chance to place his case before them.

At a comment from W. A. Walsh (Cons. Mount Royal) Mr. Ross recalled that Mr. Walsh had dubbed the Turgeon Textile Commission "political window dressing."

That commission, he declared, was one of the best fitty government ever appointed and had showed the men in the textile industry were racketeers. When the report was ready, he hoped the government would act on it so that no industry will ever again try to do what the textile industry had done for the last 20 or 30 years.

"Will they act?" a member asked.

"Sure, they'll act," said Mr. Ross.

Mr. Walsh asked what authority he had for saying that. Mr. Ross retorted that every member of "this government" had the right to speak as he saw fit.

Halifax Prelate

Rt. Rev. John T. McNally, fifth Roman Catholic bishop of Hamilton, has been appointed Archbishop of Halifax. Born in the maritimes, son of rugged Irish parents, his see will include the land of the Acadians and will extend as far south as Bermuda. He was formerly first Roman Catholic Bishop of Calgary.

QUEEN OF GYPSIES GIVEN FREEDOM

Husband Musters Aid While Detroit Debates On Deporting Her To Canada

DETROIT, Feb. 18 (CP).—Queen Lena Stanley, 22, formerly of Toronto, was released from county jail today, but a threat of deportation still hangs over her head. Lena was released on her own recognizance after questioning and it will be probably several weeks before the Federal Labor Department decides whether Lena should be deported.

Meanwhile Steve Stanley, her kingly husband, musters the help of his 9,000 American subjects to fight the proceedings which would place an international boundary between himself and his bride.

Married 16 months ago to the gypsy ruler, Lena was arrested Tuesday by United States immigration officers on a charge of illegal entry. The complaint was made by her father, Pete Mitchell, of Toronto, because he opposed her marriage to Steve. Gypsy leaders from several nearby states are flocking to Detroit to comfort and aid him, according to Stanley.

ONLY ONE BABE OF QUADRUPLETS SURVIVES RIDE

Three Little Bodies Still Lie In Montreal Morgue Awaiting Burial

TO HOLD INQUEST

MONTREAL, Feb. 18 (CP)—Bodies of three quadruplet babies lie in the Morgue here awaiting burial, while the fourth child, Marie-Rita Rondeau continues to gain strength at St. Justine Hospital.

A Coroner's inquest into deaths of the babies a few hours after their arrival at the hospital Jan. 22 has been postponed pending official identification. Coroner Lorenzo Prince today despatched notification to Arcade Rondeau, farmer, at St. Thomas, fifty miles north of here, and father of the quadruplets, that the bodies were awaiting his order for disposition. They will be buried in pauper's graves if unclaimed, the Coroner said.

Marie-Rita survived birth in the Rondeau farmhouse, a trip to the village church for baptism and a midnight ambulance ride in which the ambulance was smashed in a collision with a snowplow near Montreal. The 26-day-old mite weighs two pounds six ounces, according to Dr. Gaston Lapierre, and she is getting along well. Her [illegible] the doctor refused to disclose.

QUEBEC LOWEST DEBT PER HEAD

Gross Debt Per Capita Of Dominion Of Canada Amounts To $324.44

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—(CP).—An up-to-date compilation of the funded debts of Canada and its provinces, issued by Wood Gundy and Company Limited, shows that the Province of Quebec has the lowest net per capita of any of the Canadian provinces with $48.31, compared with $62.15 for Prince Edward Island, the next lowest. The gross debt per capita of the Dominion of Canada amounts to $324.44, not including contingent liabilities of $117.16 per capita.

New issues of Canadian Government and municipal bonds issued during the period from 1933 to 1936, are given in comparative tables. In 1936 a total of $1,065,900,922 of new Canadian Government and Municipal issues was sold. Of this amount 91.74 per cent. was sold in Canada and 8.26 per cent in the United States. More than 86 per cent was for refunding purposes, with the balance for new money.

The compilation includes charts showing the trend of bond interest rates in Canada from 1900 to 1936 and the movements of sterling and the Canadian dollar.

The index used to obtain this trend was the average monthly yields from long term internal Province of Ontario bonds. During the war years the yield increased to over six per cent, but since that time the trend has been downward with a few exceptions.

Purpose of Contest to More Quickly Introduce to Your Home This Latest Amazing "No-Scrub" Soap Discovery by the Makers of Gentle Ivory . . . OXYDOL!

● Here it is... "Hidden Gold"! The most unique and fascinating contest of the year! Just like an interesting game, and yet you have an opportunity to win $1,000 cash first prize, or one of 366 other cash prizes! The reason we offer these large cash prizes is to induce more women to try OXYDOL . . . the Ivory soap people's latest amazing "no-scrub, no-boil" laundry soap, in the orange and blue "bull's-eye" package. OXYDOL is often called the "miracle soap of modern science," because of its great difference in action and results.

OXYDOL FEATURES

Combining speed and safety in a way no single soap has done before, it does these four amazing things:

(1) Soaks out dirt in 15 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Even grimiest spots come white with a gentle rub between the fingers. (2) Gets white clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter than other soaps, proved by scientific Tintometer tests. (3) Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. (4) Yet so safe that every washable color comes out sparkling and fresh, and your hands stay soft and white. Even sheer cotton prints have been washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds, without perceptible sign of fading.

In addition to its marvelous results, OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests show that it will go ½ to ⅔ again as far as even the latest soap chips on the market.

Remember, just by trying this marvelous new soap, and entering this simple contest, you have an opportunity to win $1,000 cash first prize, or any one of 366 other cash prizes. PONTIAC CHIEFS ARE HELD TO TIE IN FIRST GAME

Trenton Team And Toronto Outfit Draw 2-2 In Playdowns

FLIERS PERSISTENT

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 18 (CP)—The R.C.A.F. team from the air station at Trenton was held to a 2-2 tie here last night by the Pontiac "Chiefs" of Toronto in the first game of a home-and-home series goals-to-count in the Intermediate "A" series.

The largest crowd of the season watched the thrilling contest and the game only slowed up when the ice became heavy in the last period. The Fliers matched their city rivals with speed, had a slight edge in the defensive zone but were slightly outclassed on the front line. Gibson and Doble, the rival goalies, stood out in the tense struggle with Gibson having the harder job. In the ganging plays the "Chiefs" showed more system but the Fliers offset this advantage with more persistence in following the plays up.

"Sugar" Cain, on the defense for the Pontiacs, was the real star of his team, he blocked effectively and his rushes usually ended with a shot on goal. He earned an assist for the night's work.

Kitson also played a smart game, with Summerhill only playing in spots. Lalonde, hefty defenceman for the Fliers, played a swell game and gave Gibson plenty of protection, the "Chiefs" taking the other side for their sorties goalwards. Lowery played a bang-up game with the McNeeley twins and Lecompte setting the pace for the rest of the squad.

Game Was Clean

The game was comparatively clean there being but four penalties evenly divided.

The Fliers opened the scoring at the seven minute mark in the first frame when Lalonde engineered a play and Lecompte finally sent him into the clear with a well directed pass. Shortly before the period ended Pontiacs got it back when Cain handed Phillips a perfect pass inside the defence and Gibson was beaten all the way.

The Pontiacs went to the front in the second canto, when Cooper riding high scored the prettiest goal of the night. He outguessed the forward line, feinted his way through the defence and pulled Gibson out of the net to score.

Lowrey came back with the equalizer two minutes later, Cooper being in the hosegow for a trip.

Lineups:

R.C.A.F.—Goal, Gibson; defence, Lalonde and Partridge; centre, Lowrey; wings, Cowley and Ernie McNeeley; alternates, Lecompte, Eric McNeeley, Laing, Beck and Higgerty.

Toronto Pontiacs—Goal, Doble; defence, Cain and McKay; centre, Phillips; wings, Summerhill and Cooper; alternates, Dunlop, Haste, Kitson and Hack.

Referee — "Army" Armstrong, Oshawa.

Sets Pin Record

Collecting 31 of a possible 36 strikes in a regulation three-game bowling performance, Harvey Braatz, 27-year-old Cleveland clerk, rolled a new league record total of 864. The former league mark was 853, recorded by R. Holmes of St. Louis. Joe Miller of Buffalo, N.Y., rolled an 888 last March, but his score was made in an exhibition match. Braatz games' scores were 276, 300 and 288. Here he is delivering a ball.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

"I didn't intend to play short, and I am ashamed of myself." That's how J. J. Howden tried to explain to us how George Cairns (subbing for Ira Moore) came to slip a great big seven over him in their regular schedule game Wednesday night.

We have been curling a great number of years and we have yet to discover any skip who intentionally played short when his opponent is laying a big end against him—Those big ends come and cannot be stopped—We have been all through it and can understand just how "J. J." feels—There have always been big ends scored and while we are no prophet or a son of a prophet we are looking forward to seeing many more seven ends chalked up.

No, J.J., there is nothing to be ashamed of...the bright side of it all is that your opponents must have been doing some fine curling to score seven out of a possible eight.

And, just to show how this game goes . . . On Tuesday night Norm. Hamley outscored V. Currie eight ends to four, yet he loses the game ...and then Wednesday night he loses again to Geo. Hall notwithstanding the fact he won seven out of the twelve ends...So, if there is anybody in this man's town that can figure out this game, kindly call around and have a chat with "yours truly"...The uncertainty of curling is the best part of it.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

SO TONIGHT, ladees and gemmen, we have a junior hockey play-off game. Belleville Redmen—or Redboys—meet our Colts at 8.30 in the Brock St. rubber plantation and the group title is at stake. The Colts have a three-goal lead and if they do not cop the bunting we will not only definitely refuse to speak to them forever after but—what is much more serious—we will misspell their names so long as we are on this job! Not that the Colts will have any waltz; they'll have to battle plenty hard as the Bellevillains are by no means setups. But the Colts should nose out the verdict and get on into the O.H.A. playdowns. We run along about 50-50 in calling winners, and tonight is our turn to be right again.

* * * * * *

UNDER THE flower pot on our front window sill is our life savings of $6.15—and we will take any part of this and wager it at even odds, or at 2 to 1 on the short end if the other guy is blotto, that the Colts will emerge victorious. But we would not put our watch in hock and bet the works as one never knows in sports, and especially when teams are pretty well-matched like Belleville and the Colts. It should be a swell scrap with plenty of action and excitement. Belleville will go all the way out in a desperate attempt to stave off elimination. Yeah, it rates a huge crowd.

YE SECRETARY of the Senior City Hockey League—nee Blood and Thunder Loop—informs us that no city circuit contests will be staged here tomorrow in the gloaming. On account of several teams have other plans on tap like carnivals, dances and whatnot. They'll play Monday or, if there is an O.H.A. tilt here that eve, on Tuesday of next week. There are three postponed games yet to be run off, too, and these will likely be necessary as the race is plenty jumbled and heated. But more again about these merry mayhem maniacs, if they'll podden plizz the mild expression.

AND THE basketball picture for this weekend. Friday p.m. at the Y.W. these gals' games are listed: Westclox Seniors vs. C.G.E. at 7.45, St. John's Juniors vs. Westclox at 8.15, and C.G.E. Juniors vs. "Y" Quakers at 9.00. The senior Westclox girls have an exhibition game Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. with Toronto Alerts at 8.30 o'clock, between the two men's Senior City Cage Loop games. St. Paul's play P.C.I. there at 7.30 Saturday e'en while C.G.E. meets Dominion Life at 9.15. With a dance following at two bits per couple. Admish for the three tilts Saturday night at the "Y" is 15 cents. Our P.C.I. senior boys go to Cobourg tomorrow night as do the P.C.I. senior girls and the junior boys. A heavy enough cage weekend, eh?

* * * * * *

THERE WAS an executive meeting of the senior ball club last night and much chatter was passed about. We can't say a great deal—it wasn't that secrets were the order—but the purpose of the session was just to talk things over, discuss bringing in a few players, lining up a good set of officers and workers, and talking over financial matters. It is amazing the number of good players that want to come here. We know of at least a dozen and there must be more. About all we can say at this time is that the Petes will most likely be in there again and with a real ball team for a change. We expect it'll be bolstered but don't know anything definite as yet except that there are.. some gents, who are sportsmen and in a position to help, interested. A general meeting will be called in a week or so and then something more definite will be known. But we feel fairly confident that local fans will see lots of good C.O.B.L. ball here this summer.

* * * * * *

THERE WILL be eight teams in the Can.-Am. pro ball loop, Class "C", this year. Smiths Falls, Ottawa, Perth and Brockville of Ontario; and Ogdensburg, Rome, Oswego and Gloversville of N'Yawk. Other teams to apply were Watertown, Utica and Cornwall. Knotty Lee, when he was here the first of the year, told us he expected to bring Smiths Falls and Cornwall into the fold. Apparently they are going for that pro baseball down through the east. The new Rome club is said to have the support of the St. Louis Browns with Art Knight, former American League umpire, as business manager. P. Williams, a Canadian railroad official, is said to be backing Smiths Falls. Knotty is busy now lining up his Ogdensburg squad and we believe Eddie Murphy, Petes' ex-shortstop, will get a tryout again with the team.

* * * * * *

READING THE Belleville sports column concerning the Colts' win there the other night, we hardly know who won the tilt. It seems, from that account, that Belleville had all the play. However, ultimate results are what count and it's pretty hard to explain away that 9-6 verdict. No doubt it is true that Goalie Sharpe looked worse than usual since he was just in the midst of a Sharpe vs. flu fight and he will probably be a lot tougher to fool tonight. The way he missed on Crowe's long easy shot reminded us strongly of some of the local left-hand batters' feeble attempts last May 25th as they faced a guy named Biddie on the Oshawa ball diamond. Yeah, Sharpe fanned, too.

* * * * * *

MANAGER TOMMY Cain of the Trenton hockey team gained his point in the recent controversy with Skipper Thomas of Belleville. You will no doubt recall that the Thomas team declined to fulfil an engagement in Trenton and the latter squad squawked loud and long—and rightly—about it. Seems the O.H.A. informed 'em that if they insisted, the Belleville crew would have to live up to the schedule and cut out their practise of defaulting and ducking out of games where the "take" was small. Cain then decided that the tilt was of no importance and wouldn't draw beans, so he notified Thomas that the game was off. It amounted merely to another twist in a screwy setup and if the O.H.A. ever appoints Thomas group convenor again they most assuredly deserve everything critical scribes write about that Association.

FOURTEEN TEAMS ARE UNDER CARE OF CLINT BENEDICT

Veteran N. H. L. Goalie Now Coaching "Kids" Exclusively

IS OTTAWA PRODUCT

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 18.—For 18 years the name of Clint Benedict often appeared in the headlines of sport pages throughout Canada, for he was one of the greatest goal-keepers to ever stop a puck in the National Hockey League. Like all athletes, however, Father Time finally caught up with him and the season of 1931 saw the end of one of the most brilliant careers ever recorded in hockey's history book.

When the time came for Clint Benedict to hang up his stick, he was quite willing to admit that he was through as a player, but that was all. He had no intention of breaking away from the game he loved and of which he had made a career. Thus six years later, finds him in England, teaching the youth of this country how to play hockey.

Went to Coach Seniors

When Benedict first received an offer to come to England, it was for the express purpose of coaching the two teams at Wembley, Monarchs and Lions. However, he had not been on the job long when he found himself in charge of an enthusiastic bunch of English schoolboys who were eager and anxious to learn to skate and to play the "fastest game in the world."

Last season there was only a couple of "kids" teams at Wembley and "Benny" found it quite easy to look after them and attend to his other duties as well.

However, this season he has no less than 14 teams under his care and he is now devoting all his time to the imparting of the valuable knowledge he gained during his 18 years in the "big time," to these youngsters, whose ages range from eight to 18.

Sees Native Team

The teams practice twice a week and play games against one another every Sunday. In the early part of the season the ice was divided in half and two games went on at one time. Now, the players have improved to such an extent they insist on playing on the full-sized sheet of ice.

Benedict is of the opinion that within a few years, England will be able to turn out a native-born and native-trained hockey team that will take quite a lot of beating.

"The boys I have in my classes are anxious to learn. They sleep, eat, drink and dream hockey. The greatest ambition of everyone of them is to "make" the English Olympic team of 1940," he said to me.

However, Benedict does not believe the day will come when an honest-to-goodness English team will ever triumph over the best teams in Canada. Climatic conditions are against the English boy, and at the present time, only the sons of people who are fairly well off get the chance to learn the game.

Is Ottawa Product

So much for the future English hockey players. Now for a little about the man who is training them. Clint Benedict was born and raised in the city of Ottawa. At the tender age of 16 he turned professional with the famous Ottawa Senators.

For eleven years Clint guarded the nets of the Ottawa club, then he was sold to Montreal Maroons and spent the remaining seven years of his N.H.L. with that team.

Benedict has one record of which he is quite proud. During his 18 years as a professional hockey player, the teams with which he played were out of the play-offs only twice.

And another one for the books. He has played with, against or been managed by every manager in the National Hockey League today.

Many highways connecting the provinces are to be built in the Philippines.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

46—SIDE-SLIPPING.

Side-slipping is an important part of ski technique. It is used for descending steep slopes where, due to obstructions, traversing is not feasible and experienced skiers side-slip more or less instinctively as occasion demands. It also enters into the execution of practically all swings, so should be thoroughly mastered.

Take the normal running position with skis horizontal on a steep slope, having a fairly hard and smooth surface. The skis are held somewhat apart, the upper one slightly advanced and both normally edged. The lower ski is weighted rather more than the upper one, the knees thrust forward and in toward the slope, keeping them, the lower one in particular, quite springy. The body is leaned outward from the slope to keep the weight on the lower ski. If the uphill arm is carried across the front of the body, when practising, it will assist in keeping the weight on the lower ski and the body leaning away from the slope, figure 1.

By bending the ankles outward flatten the skis sufficiently to slide sideways. The skis are kept horizontal by equal weighting of the toes and heels. By leaning the body forward and increasing the weighting of the toes the front part of the skis will side-slip faster than the rear part and they will point more downhill and start to slide ahead as well as sideways. By leaning backward and weighting the heels they can be brought horizontal again, or even pointed uphill.

Control the speed by edging and flattening the skis. Care should be exercised to prevent the downhill stick from catching in the snow, hold it trailing above the snow to the rear.

CANADIANS BEAT FRENCH TEAM 12-0

England Shuts Out Germany 6-0 At World Hockey Championship Meet

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(CP Cable).—Canada overwhelmed France, while England defeated Germany by a wide margin last night, as the world's hockey championship started. The scores:

Canada	12	France	0
England	6	Germany	0
Hungary	4	Rumania	1
Poland	3	Sweden	0
Czechoslovakia	7	Norway	0

The Kimberley Dynamiters, representing Canada, scored almost at will in their penaltyless game against the French sextet. The Allan Cup holders ran in two goals in the first period and plied up five counters in each of the two other periods.

"Puffy" Kemp ran riot around the French defense to score five goals himself. Bill Burnett scored twice, while single goals went to Ralph Redding, Doug Klever, Gordon Wilson, Fred Botterill and Paul Kozack.

The English team, largely composed of Canadians, was far too powerful for Germany. Alex. Archer of Winnipeg, was high scorer with three goals, while Gordon Dailley, Winnipeg Gerry Davey, Port Arthur, and Archie Stinchcombe, Windsor, Ont., tallied the others. Stinchcombe and Archer are English-born, but learned the game in Canada, where they were reared.

Eleven nations are competing in the tournament, divided into three pools.

In the first are England, the defending champions; Hungary, Germany and Rumania. The second is composed of Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and Norway; while Canada, Sweden, Poland and France make up the third.

Three leaders from the first and third groups and two from the second pool will advance into the second round, which will be divided into two pools, from which will emerge the four teams to participate in the final pool.

Goal averages will count in the event of a tie.

Lakefield Prep Team Beats High School

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18.—The Lakefield Preparatory School's second team defeated the Lakefield High School in a close game of hockey in the Lakefield rink on Wednesday afternoon. The final score was 4 to 3.

Bayley on the Grove's first forward line scored two of the winning goals, with Morley II, on the same line, and Ledger each registering a single counter.

Hurl, Stabler and C. Birch did the scoring for the High School.

The lineups:

Preparatory School—Goal, Morley I; defence, Stewart, Goldsmith; centre, Morley II; wings, Bayley, Gemmel; alternates, Ledger, Roberts I, Winslow, Potts, Crickmore.

High School—Goal, J. Morrison; defence, Quigley, Stabler; centre, F. Lloyds; wings, D. Hurl, E. Robinson; alternates, C. Pearson, M. Bullock, J. Birch, C. Birch, F. Hudson.

8 TORONTO RINKS STAY IN SIXTEENS ROYAL YORK CUP

Kitchener, Meaford, Strathconas, Two High Park Outfits Unbeaten In Entire Play

ENGLEHART DEFAULTS

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—It's Toronto in fifty-fifty proportion against "The Rest" in the "sixteens" of the Royal York Trophy, major event of the tenth Ontario curling bonspiel. There are eight rinks representing local clubs left in the running for the Royal York, namely: Skips H. H. Chisholm, T. S. Graham and Colonel W. O. Morris of the Toronto Curling Club; Dr. F. T. Knight and C. E. McConkey of Stratheonas; Earl Green and E. D. MacInnes of High Park; and T. J. Smith of Granites.

Rinks from outside points in the "sixteens" of Royal York play are: J. McLean of Richmond Hill, T. G. Bishop of Kingston, Dr. J. A. Wright of London, C. E. Pickering of Ottawa, W. B. Walton of Agincourt, H. Sutcliffe of Oshawa and W. Braithwaite of Meaford.

Five rinks are still unbeaten in the entire 'spiel, as follows: Hall of Kitchener, Knight of Toronto Strathconas, Braithwaite of Meaford, and two from Toronto High Park, Earl Green and E. D. MacInnes.

In one of the most interesting matches of the Royal York third round last night Dr. Wright of London shaded R. G. L. Harstone, President of the Ontario Curling Association, by 11-10—a verdict that may or may not have settled their argument over the result of a match this winter in London, where the "hacks" are said to be above ice level, and, therefore, illegal.

Continuance of the big 'spiel will be maintained to-day with games in practically all events, including the Royal York.

The last United States threat to the Royal York passed out last night with the defeat of Nate Cornwall's Detroit rink by C. E. Peacock of Oshawa.

Yesterday's play began at 9 in the morning, with the second rounds in the Seiberling and Seagram events. And without the least semblance of "home town" cheer-boys-cheer stuff this observer must point out that among the sixteen Seiberling survivors are seven rinks from Toronto clubs, four of them being from High Park. Toronto Granites get their big chance in the Seagram, where they have four of the five Toronto survivors in the sixteen.

Two previously unbeaten rinks fell by the wayside in the Seiberling second round. They were A. C. Gardiner of Sarnia and H. Walker of Chatsworth.

Englehart Rink Defaults.

Skip H. G. Murdoch of Englehart was forced to default to W. B. Walton of Agincourt in the Royal York second round, but he plans to continue in the Canada Dry consolation event to-morrow.

Third round of the North American Life Trophy got going late yesterday afternoon, and a couple of games in the Seagram third round were due in late afternoon and evening.

Yesterday afternoon also saw the start of the Canada Dry Trophy competition for rinks which had lost their first three games.

Toronto Granite Club is the only one to have two rinks reach the "eights" of the North American Life. Others reaching the quarter-finals in this event early last evening were a rink apiece from Toronto, Kingston, New Liskeard, Midland, Toronto Royal Canadians and Barrie. Skip Ed Young, of the Royals, got into the eights by defeating H. Sanders, of Stouffville, by 11-9, after an extra end had been played.

Skip Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg was first to move into quarter-finals of Seagram Trophy play, when he defeated P. Gilbert of Chatham by the decisive margin of 11-3 in a late afternoon encounter.

MADOC PUT OUT OF SCHOOL HOCKEY

Stirling High Trounces Them In 2 To 1 Battle On Home Ice

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 18. — The last game for Madoc of the High School series was played on Monday evening in Madoc Arena, when Stirling High School won with a score of 2-1. The loss of this game puts Madoc out of the play-offs. A fair crowd was in attendance, and the game was handled by Referees Wells of Stirling and Alexander of Madoc.

The goal-getters for Stirling were Jones and Reid, while Reeves tallied the lone counter for Madoc. Penalties were handed out to Armstrong and Morton for Stirling and Hawthorne received two against Madoc.

After the game the teams were entertained and lunch was served at the school.

Marmora and Tweed High School teams play in Madoc Arena on Friday, February 19. An interesting game will probably be shown as both teams have good records.

Madoc — Goal, Martin; defence, Irwin and Hawthorne; centre, Reeves; wings, Parks and Munro; alternates, Nayler, Stewart, Moon, Armstrong.

Stirling — Goal, Mumby; defence, Jones and Long; centre, Butler; wings, Morton and Reid; alternates, Ward, Lummis, Armstrong, Brooks.

St. Mirren vs. Cowdenbeath.
Morton vs. Partick Thistle.
Clyde vs. Dundee.
Hamilton Accies vs. Hearts.
Aberdeen and Queen of the South drew byes.

Aurel Joliat Completes 650 Games

AUREL JOLIAT

Rolling along as seemingly unstoppable as time itself, little Aurel Joliat of Montreal Canadiens, played his 650th National league game when the Flying Frenchmen opposed their intracity rivals, Montreal Maroons. The 135-pound Ottawa native, acclaimed by many critics as the finest left-winger the game ever has known, is playing his 15th season. Though most of the veterans who started with him in the season of 1922-23 have closed their careers, the Mighty Atom shows no signs of cracking.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB HAS SPRING PLANS

Kawartha Club To Arrange Competitions Soon—Charles Banks To Give Address

Plans for outdoor activities were discussed by Kawartha Motorcycle Club members at a recent meeting, the outdoor season probably commencing in March. Membership is approaching the 100-mark set for and the club at present is engaged in bowling competition and social functions. Charles Banks, member of an old-time motorcycle club here, will give a general address on motorcycling to members in the Chamber of Commerce on February 26.

Main item of business discussed at the last meeting was a questionnaire drafted by the sports program committee — Gord. Colmer, Keith Jackson, Al. Holmes, and Bruce Payne. This questionnaire gave the impression that such active competitions as speed trials, endurance runs and hill climbing, would meet with the members' hearty approval. And social week-end tours of the surrounding districts were also planned with enthusiasm. The secretary has received the assurance of practically all the clubs in Eastern Ontario of co-operation in these activities.

Sport Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 18—(A.P.). — Eleanor Gehrig (Mrs. Lou) has written another song entitled, "We Wrote Our Love Song Together", . . . Her first, "I Can't get to First Base With You," would make a good theme song for Lou's comic skit with Col. Ruppert, the Yankee owner, . . . The dope here is that Gehrig will take $36,000 this year or stay home.

Jimmy Dykes, White Sox manager, is hanging out at Santa Anita these days. . . . "A lot of my pals in Chicago wanted me to see what was holding back their horses," says Jimmy. . . . "Beans Reardon gave me a couple of tips, but I didn't bet. Umpires are never right."

It just seems to be a habit with England's Phil Scott. . . . Even his team room collapsed the other day.

Ed Brandt took one look at his Pittsburgh contract and in 10 seconds had it signed and ready for delivery. . . . That's how glad he was to get away from the Dodgers.

Russ Blinco, centre for the National Hockey League Montreal Maroons, has been fitted for special shatterless glasses.

Jack Dempsey celebrated the second anniversary of his entry into the restaurant business yesterday by declaring a general raise for his employees. . . .

"How many lawyers are there in this country?" asks Joe Gould, Jimmy Braddock's manager. . . "And why do you suppose they're all having this fuss over the Supreme Court?" . . . "Well, I'll tell you—it's because people break contracts. And that's what I'm gonna do to the Schmeling-Braddock thing—break it."

Junior Group Title At Stake To-night

The district O.H.A. Junior B group championship is at stake here to-night when Belleville's young Redmen meet the local Colts at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock Street Rink. It is the second of the two-game playoffs, goals counting on the round, and the Colts have a three-goal lead from their 9-6 victory on Quinte ice on Tuesday. If they hold that lead, they will move into the first round of the O.H.A. playdowns against Kingston next week; but if Belleville should win on the series, the locals are all through for the year. The biggest crowd to see a junior hockey game here this year is expected to witness to-night's important battle.

Belleville has a smart outfit, heavier and rougher than the Colts. The homesters, however, have probably more speed and teamplay. In their last two games against Belleville, the young Petes have shown an edge—after a tight three scheduled tilts earlier—and they should win out to-night. But it will be a rousing junior jamboree with plenty of action, good hockey, and excitement. Juniors are noted for maintaining flying speed right to the finish. Probably the same starting lineups as were used last game will be the order to-night. It's either curtains or a group title for the Peterborough boys this evening.

BRADDOCK TO SIGN

Champion Heads For Detroit In Bomber Pact.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18 (A.P.).—Jimmy Braddock, world heavyweight champion headed west today to sign papers for a bout with the Brown Bomber of Detroit, more concerned about anti-Nazi boycotts against Max Schmeling than the coming title clash.

"I'm in good shape," said Jimmy of the bout with Joe Louis, top-ranking challenger.

To Defend Title

JOE LOUIS WINS OVER NATIE BROWN WITH KNOCKOUT

Semi-Burlesque Finish In 4th Leaves Fans Suspecting They Were The Losers

TAME OPENING ROUNDS

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 18 (AP). — Referee Walter Bates ruled it a fourth-round knockout, so that's the way Joe Louis' victory over Natie Brown was on the books today. More than a few of the 10,222 spectators at municipal auditorium last night thought the only thing really out was their pocketbooks.

They paid $27,138 to see the Brown Bomber patch up his maimed prestige at the expense of the punch-weary Washington Heorew, who provided a burlesque ending that must have made journeymen wrestlers green with envy.

It was Louis' first start since his unfortunate affair with young Bob Pastor, in which Louis trailed by two laps at the finish, but was given the decision for trying. Visioning a championship bout with Jim Braddock in the offing, Louis had to be the bomber of old against Brown. The four-round knockout was the answer.

The bout was as dull as the expressionless eyes of Louis. For two rounds, Brown carried the fight to the Bomber, but neither man landed a punch hard enough to dent a grapefruit.

Midway in the third round Louis caught Brown coming in and flailed him with short rights and lefts. Brown's face began to assume a well-cushioned appearance. As the round ended he apparently was in a bad way, half out of the ropes and half out of his head.

Lands 15 Times.

The fourth was Louis' subpar round. He started at the gong, driving in a barrage of rights and lefts which slipped through Brown's protecting gloves to jolt against various parts of his anatomy. Fifteen times the Bomber bombed without answering fire. Finally the weary Natie sank to the floor in a sitting position.

Louis, his expressing the same animation of a coal scuttle, ambled to a neutral corner. Referee Bates started counting, ceased abruptly as the apparently groggy Brown grabbed him by a leg and pulled him over.

Brown staggered to his feet and weaved an unsteady way toward the unconcerned Louis, who stood, soft cushion lips in a perpetual whistle, idle in the corner. Before Brown could make it, Bates recovered his footing, took a short cut to Louis and hoisted his hand aloft.

Bates said the timekeeper had completed the count before Brown regained his feet.

For his brief exercise last night Louis and his stockholders received $8,826.84. Brown's cut was $3,310.

Lakefield Curlers Defeat Unionville

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 17.—The Lakefield rink, composed of Messrs. D. H. Charlton, P. H. Spence, B. Q. Dench and Bert Kidd, who are representing the Lakefield Curling Club at the tenth annual Ontario Bonspiel in Toronto at five Toronto clubs this week, were successful in winning the first game in the first round of the North American Life Trophy contest, when they defeated the rink skipped by W. C. Gohn, of Unionville, 14 to 7 on Tuesday.

The Lakefield rink was defeated in the first round of the Royal York Trophy contest played on Monday, by Earl Green's rink of the High Park Club, Toronto. The score was 14-10.

Fighting Irish After The Ball

DIED

DAVIS, Ronald Wilfred.—On February 18, 1937, at Nicholls Hospital, Ronald Wilfred Davis, beloved son of the late Archibald Davis and of Mrs. Davis, 382 George Street South, in his 27th year. Funeral from the residence at 2 p.m. on Saturday, with the Rev. F. W. Craik and the Rev. G. K. Tyler officating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

MURPHY, Elizabeth.—In Peterborough, Thursday morning February 18, 1937, at the residence of J. J. McCabe, 293 Burnham street, in her 87th year, Elizabeth Murphy, late organist of Norwood and Campbellford and formerly of Toronto. Funeral on Saturday morning at 8.45 a.m. from 293 Burnham street to Church of Immaculate Conception for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of my dear grand-daughter, Gladys Ivy Whitworth, who passed away February 18, 1930.

Though her smile is gone forever
And her voice we cannot hear,
We shall never lose sweet memories
Of one we loved so dear.
—Sadly missed by her grandmother, Mrs. G. Wilkinson

GROTTICK.—In loving memory of a dear Daughter and Sister, Gladys Ivy Whitworth, who passed away February 18, 1930.

Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a loved one gone to rest;
In our memories' frame we will keep it
Because she was one of the best.
Sweet are the memories that never fade
Of one we loved but could not save,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory she left behind.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother, Dad and eight Sisters.

McCALL.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Wm. McCall, who passed away three years ago February 18.

No one knows a mother's worth
Until she's taken from this earth.
She had a cheery word for all.
—Lovingly remembered by her daughter, son-in-law, and grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Armstrong.

McCALL.—In loving memory of a dear Wife, Mother and Grandmother, Mary Anne McCall, who passed away February 18, 1934.

Gone, dear Mother, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face.
But you left us to remember,
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memories still.
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fulfill.
—Ever remembered by Husband, Son and Daughter-in-law, Wilbert, Marietta, and family.

PETERS.—In loving remembrance of our darling little daughter, June Eileen, who left us so suddenly February 18, 1936; aged two years and ten days.

Little feet have vanished
From this lonely earth,
All our joys were banished
With her baby mirth.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Brother and Sisters.

CARD OF THANKS

Members of the family of the late H. G. Gould wish to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to Mr. R. S. Cotton, members of the C.G.E. staff, and friends, for their sympathy and help during their recent sad bereavement.

The Day That I Forget
By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

In Hollywood following an ingenious maneuver on the part of his young wife, Janet, Joel Paynter, second-rate Broadway actor, begins work under a short term contract. Meanwhile Janet makes a point of cultivating the right people, joins a tennis club and meets Vernon Chester, an important director. Chester asks her to play tennis and have lunch with him.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 14

IN THE women's locker room Janet slipped out of her shorts and pulled her blouse over her head. She stepped under the shower and turned on the cold faucet and then, while it ran so icy she could stand it no longer, she got a grip on herself. She knew how important it was to look cool and calm and restful.

Vernon Chester had given her a good workout teaching her a backstroke that she had learned years ago (but could conveniently forget when it meant the opportunity for a great director to teach a little girl a trick and feel like a great big man doing it.)

Oh, Janet didn't have eyelashes to sweep her cheeks provocatively. She didn't have a Dietrich look in her eye but she had a sound psychology for making men feel comfortable and rested and it was a distinguishing gift in Hollywood where glamor was served by the shovelful.

Dry and fragrant with a pine powder that was refreshing and not cloying, Janet hurried into her dimity frock. It was an English print and had a touch of lingerie in the small round collar and at the cuffs of her short sleeves. She wound a bandeau of the same fabric about her head and stepped into her white sandals. She did it quickly. Ever considerate, a lesson she had learned in the school of marriage, she did not keep Vernon Chester waiting.

The waiter had only just arrived at their table on the screened porch bearing tall frosty glasses topped with a sprig of mint.

"Where do you girls pack your energy?" Chester inquired admiringly as he noted the cool, fragility of her. "I'm worn out, but you look as though you'd come out of a bandbox."

"That's just what I was going to say to you," she said. "Instead, suppose I just say that I think you've been most kind, Mr. Chester, to give me this lesson. You're a fine player and your form is perfect. I thought people in that class didn't really bother with amateurs."

"See here," he said when he had ordered their luncheon. "You're no amateur! You're doing all right." He looked over his horn-rimmed glasses at her. "I suspect that you do everything well. Just what else do you do?"

Janet buttered a piece of her roll and said, "Very little. I'm married, you know, to Joel Paynter."

"That's right. He's a new young feller on our lot."

"Oh, yes," Janet said softly, "that's how I knew so much about you." She stopped speaking and devoted herself to her crab ravingote. No need to overdo anything.

"Well, come on, what do you do?"

"I'm very uninteresting," she said simply. "I keep house, play a little bridge, read a great deal, try to play tennis. I plan the meals, count the laundry, talk about pictures to my husband and, like all other girls in Hollywood who haven't jobs, I kill time."

Vernon Chester was an observant man. He had seen all there was to see and know of the women in the picture colony. He knew their pretenses, their subtleties, their purposes and their ways and means of accomplishing them He wasn't quite sure of what Janet wanted or if she wanted anything.

He was inclined to think she did want something. He didn't believe that she was "like the other girls" she had mentioned. He thought there were wheels ticking back of that smooth brow of hers, ideas and ambitions lent brightness to her fine, deep eyes.

He thought philosophically: They all want something and why shouldn't they? He would give to them if he could and if he liked them.

He liked Janet Paynter. He'd liked her the first time he had met her three weeks before. Liked it that she hadn't ever before identified herself as Joel Paynter's wife. So many of them had gushed over him in an effort to interest him in their sons or husbands. No, Janet wasn't like that. And she had been genuinely pleased when he telephoned and asked her to a lesson and a bit of lunch. Pleased, he knew, because it was obvious in her delight in their game.

When their salad came, he asked her what sort of things she liked to read. Janet thought, this is the moment for me to tell him about "The Dance Was Long". She wanted to talk about it sincerely and she could have done so adroitely since it was not a generally known idea that Chester was going to make the picture.

But she found she couldn't do it. Somehow it wasn't quite honest and, even while she realized that, a small regret was haggling at the back of her mind as she thought of how she had managed the business of meeting Chester for just this one reason.

But she couldn't do it when she realized that the man sitting across the table from her was enjoying himself, content in the belief that it was his company that gave her pleasure. She realized that he liked her.

She found herself telling him about the books she had read before she came to California, the books she had discovered in the public library. Biographies and books on strange arts and crafts, old novels, revealing philosophies.

"How did you find time to read those things?" he asked interestedly.

And there was Janet telling him how empty her life had been during those months. No, not empty, for as she told him about her lonely hours, her eyes told him of her love for Joel. Janet didn't know how revealing she was. Naturally, from talking of the books that she and Joel had read together, Janet began to talk of Joel. To tell Chester what he had done in the theater, of his ambitions.

Chester thought: I'll look this boy up and see what he's got that's good enough for that girl.

Chester and Janet became friends.

He dropped into the little English house one afternoon quite unexpectedly. He marched around the room looking at the prints, he thumbed through the music on Janet's piano. He picked up a book on her reading table. It was a copy of "The Dance Was Long". It was a marked copy; bits of pink paper stuck out untidily from its pages, pages where the character, Jan, was the center of the situation.

He held the book in his hand and gave Janet a questioning glance. His meaning was plain. There was no reason why Janet should have felt her face flush. She hadn't expected him to stop by her house with a raquet he had had restrung for her. She hadn't marked the book for him to see. Nevertheless she flushed because now the news was all over the picture colony that the cast was being selected for "The Dance Was Long."

She flushed but nevertheless she did not answer the question until he asked her. And then she answered honestly.

She said, "Joel and I have been reading it. We knew that it was being cast and we knew that Joel could play Jan if he had a chance to do it."

Vernon Chester sighed: So this was what she wanted.

Janet read his thoughts and with a great deal of dignity she said, "Mr. Chester, I know what you are thinking. Partly you are right; I would like to have interested you in Joel but, if you will please remember, I have never said anything about it and I didn't intend to. I had no way of knowing that you were coming here and the book is not a prop, Joel... Joel doesn't need me to help him find the thing he's going to do."

Chester said nothing for a few minutes. Then,

"Maybe he doesn't, but he's a lucky man to have you, Mrs. Paynter."

He left in a few minutes and went directly to the studio.

He called a projection room and said, "I want you to run off the rushes of the scenes with Joel Paynter in 'Husband Hunter'. I'll be right up."

SKATING PARTY PROVES SUCCESS

Young People of Selwyn United Church Stage Enjoyable Event

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, Feb. 18.—On Thursday evening last, a jolly skating party was held on the local skating rink, by the Y.P.S. of Selwyn United church. About two and one-half hours of skating were enjoyed and then all adjourned to the hall, where refreshments were served and games and contests enjoyed.

Help Hockey Team

On Friday evening last Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey opened their spacious home for an evening of dancing which was held in aid of the Long Point Hockey team. About fifty of the host and hostess' friends and neighbors were present, and everyone enjoyed themselves to the full. Music was supplied by Orville McConkey and his sister Bertrice McConkey. At midnight delicious sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

W.A. Meeting Held

The February meeting of the Women's Association of Selwyn United church, was held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Nicholls, with thirteen members and two visitors present. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald. Very little business was discussed except for the planning of quilting some quilts, which have been pieced by the members this past winter. It was planned to hold the March meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald. The hostess served very delightful refreshments, assisted by her helpers.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stenner and son Douglas of Peterborough were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wilson over the past week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tully and family of Lakefield visited with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald on Sunday.

Miss Elva Preston of Lakefield visited with her friend, Isobelle Fitzgerald, over the past week-end.

Mr. R. F. Downey of Peterborough was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fitzgerald on Tuesday.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S RESCUE

While Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail were having their funny picnic lunch in the snowdrift house, at 8 o'clock at night, the families of the two animal gentlemen were, of course, much worried.

"I don't see what is keeping Wiggy!" said Mrs. Longears for perhaps the tenth time. It was late in the afternoon and snowing hard. It was also getting dark.

"He only went to Mr. Chuck's grocery," said Nurse Jane. "He was going to get a large basket of food. He should be home now."

"Maybe Unkie Wig is having an adventure," said Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit.

"It would be just like him," said Mrs. Longears. "Oh, but I am so worried!" she exclaimed as it snowed harder and grew darker.

"Uncle Wiggily knows how to take care of himself," said Nurse Jane. "We'd better have our suppers, I think."

Didn't Worry

The rabbit children were hungry and didn't worry much. Neither did Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the pig boys. And Squeakie Squealer, the littlest pig of all, he didn't worry either. But Mrs. Twistytail did. And finally, when her husband hadn't come home and it was late and dark and snowing harder she said:

"I'm going to call Uncle Wiggily's bungalow on the telephone. Maybe Twisty is over there."

When the telephone rang in the bungalow Baby Bunty said joyfully: "Oh, maybe that's Unkie Wig now. I'll answer it!"

But after listening a moment she said:

"It's Mrs. Twistytail. Her husband hasn't come home either."

"Oh, dear!" sighed Mrs. Longears. "Why don't you call Mr. Chuck, the grocer, on the 'phone?" asked Nurse Jane. "Maybe they're both there and have forgotten to start home. Or they may be waiting for the storm to stop."

"That's a good idea," said the rabbit lady. Mr. Chuck had gone to bed, having closed his store early. He was so sleepy, when he answered Mrs. Longears, that he thought she was talking dustpans when she asked about missing husbands and said:

"All out of dustpans now, Mrs. Longears. "But I'll have some fresh ones in next week—Oh, your HUSBAND—and Mr. TWISTYTAIL. Oh, they left here long ago. They must be stuck in a drift. Sorry." He hung up.

Now what are you going to do?" asked Nurse Jane.

"I'm going to get up a rescue party!" said Mrs. Longears. "I'll call the Police Dog and have him get out the bear snowplows."

"The bear snowplows! squeaked Nurse Jane.

"Yes, Mr. Whitewash the Polar Bear and Mr. Stubtail the black bear. They can lumber through the drifts like snowplows and find my husband and Mr. Twistytail."

To the Rescue!

No sooner said than done, as it is in story books. The Police Dog got Mr. Whitewash and Mr. Stubtail out of their warm houses. The powerful bears, like a team of snowplows pushed through the drifts this way and that until, at last, in their snow house where they were having a picnic, Mr. Longears and Mr. Twistytail heard them.

"Here we are! Here we are! Resue us," grunted the pig.

"We're in a snowdrift house!" called Uncle Wiggily.

Soon they were dug out with what remained of the groceries. The bears plowed paths and in a little while Mr. Twistytail and Uncle Wiggily were safe after their adventures.

And if the football doesn't try to kick the back fence over the church steeple for a touchdown, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily frozen in.

PONTYPOOL

FARMING METHODS GREATLY CHANGED

More Cattle Finished For Market In Stables—Winter Milking

(Examiner Correspondence.)

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 18.—Within recent years the ways of farming have changed to a great extent. In past years practically the only means of income of a farm was the selling of grain, and young cattle which were sold off the pastures. Cows were milked in the summer but dried up when weather became cold and were what might be termed a boarder until spring.

Nowadays all grain grown on farms is feed and in many cases quantities of feed are bought. Each year more cattle are being finished for market in the stables, and with many farmers the feeding of hogs has become an industry. Many farmers find it more profitable to milk cows in the winter as the price of cream is better and there is more time to work with them. A number of calves are now being vealed and sold at from eight to ten weeks. These are also a better price in fall and winter.

The care of poultry has also changed within the past few years. Nearly every farmer now has a flock of laying hens in winter from which an income is received.

On visiting a farm a few days ago, where one young man who has attended agriculture short courses and is quite interested in the caring of poultry, has at the present time 150 White Leghorn hens; 100 of these are pullets; the remaining 50 being year-old hens.

These pullets are kept in a bright well-ventilated poultry house which was constructed last summer in an unused granary; this makes it dry and of a good size. The hens are kept in all the time and are fed a good balanced ration. Laying mash is kept in front of them at all times while a damp mash is given at noon and grain for a scratch at night. Fresh water is kept in front of them all the time and a dust box is placed at a south window.

With the little work of caring for these pullets they are laying about 75 per cent; after buying all feed the profit made is from $3 to $4 per week, which sounds much better than the former way of keeping hens in some old building all winter feeding them hard grain and letting them lay the following summer when eggs are the lowest in price.

It is found that pullets are more profitable on this farm as the year-old hens are only laying about 50 per cent. However, year-old hens are preferable for breeders, and where baby chicks are not bought they should be kept separate for this purpose.

English Tea Custom Great Exam 'Bracer'

Sarnia, Feb. 17 (CP)

ENGLISH custom of serving tea as a "bracer" in the late afternoon could be adopted with good result by educational authorities during examination time, in the opinion of Prof. D. J. Wilson of the University of Western Ontario.

In an address before the St. Andrew's Church Men's Club last night, Dr. Wilson said he had authorized the serving of tea during the middle of a final examination in one of his classes and was considering making the idea a fixture.

He decried the competition fostered by examinations in the present-day educational system. He claimed it caused pupils to suffer nervous breakdowns and also tended to make them cheat.

FORMER MEMBER DIES IN BRIGHTON

Wesley Montgomery Represented East Northumberland In Drury Government

BRIGHTON, Feb. 18. — Wesley Montgomery died here Monday in his 78th year. The flag on the town hall flew at half-mast and the schools were closed for his funeral.

Born in Brighton Township, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Montgomery, Wesley Montgomery was one of three children, two sons and a daughter. His sister, Mrs. Theresa Dean, widow of Dr. N. B. H. Dean, survives him, but his brother, Keith Montgomery, died about a year ago. He was married to Miss Gertrude Wade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wade, who died some five years ago. Their only child, a daughter, Hilda Montgomery, is now on the staff of the local public school.

His death, from a heart attack, was most unexpected and the entire community was shocked. He was well known in Masonic circles and a Past Master of Brighton Lodge. Under the Drury government, Mr. Montgomery represented East Northumberland in the Ontario Parliament as U.F.O. member. He was also well known as an apple grower and buyer in this district. He belonged to the United Church.

Largely attended and under the auspices of the Brighton Masonic Lodge, the funeral Tuesday afternoon took place from the family residence on Prince Edward street, where the service was conducted by Rev. C. W. Barrett. The pall-bearers were four nephews, Messrs. Oscar and Wade Morrow, of Brighton; Mr. Hugh Montgomery, of Oakville, and Dr. K. C. Dean, of Caledonia, and Mr. Norman Raney and Mr. H. A. Beech, of Brighton. Interment was made in Mount Hope Cemetery, Brighton.

WESTWOOD

WOMEN TALK OVER ECONOMY PLANS

February Meeting Of Institute Is Featured By Interesting Discussion

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, Feb. 18. — The members of Westwood Women's Institute met on Tuesday afternoon for the February meeting with an attendance of twenty-five, and the president Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, presiding. The roll-call was answered by a health-giving habit. Several books were presented to the Institute library by members whose birthday comes in this month. It was decided to order a hooked mat from a Trent River Institute member, upon which tickets will be sold. Plans were also made for the making of a quilt. Mrs. Birdsall gave an interesting demonstration of an invalid's tray. The feature of the meeting was a two-minute talk on ways to economize by each member, and was enthusiastically responded to. Mrs. James Clysdale continued her report of the Buymanship course which was very instructive.

At the close of the meeting a social half-hour was enjoyed, when refreshments were served by the group of which Mrs. Stuart Harrison is convenor.

7 Years "On Wagon" To Get $200 Reward

London, Ont., Feb. 17 (CP)

IF Wesley Couch, 18, of Putnam learns to smoke or drink in the next seven years, he will have no share in his grandfather's estate of $49,831, under terms of Joseph Couch's will, filed for probate to surrogate court today.

Joseph Couch, who died November 5, 1936, left $200 and a gold watch valued at $5 to Wesley. The bequest will be turned over when the youth reaches 25 "provided at that time he is not addicted to the use of tobacco or liquor."

The remainder of the estate is divided among 23 children, grandchildren and great grandchildren.

WANT LAKEFIELD TO PURCHASE RINK

Directors Decide To Offer Building To Municipality—May Be Plebiscite

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18. — At a meeting of the directors of the Lakefield Rink Company held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, Tuesday evening the directors of the Rink Company came to a decision to sell the company's assets to the municipality, providing the village will buy.

Reeve C. S. Tanner told The Examiner this morning that the council had not arrived at any decision concerning this matter and will not know until the next meeting which will probably be held Thursday evening, February 18, whether the council are in favor of this village accepting the Rink Company's offer.

He said it is possible a plebiscite will be held in near future to ascertain the attitude of the ratepayers toward this project.

It is believed that the mortgage, said to amount approximately to $1,800, is due and is rumored about to be foreclosed.

As a result of this there is considerable anxiety in the village lest the rink fall into private hands with the possibility that it be torn down for its lumber. Its orginal cost is believed in the neighborhood of $12,000.

LINDSAY

ACTION IS TAKEN AWAY FROM JURY

Mr. Justice Chevrier Declares Case Against Ops School Section Non-Suit

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 18.—Declaring it a non-suit, Mr. Justice Chevrier at the Court House Tuesday evening, took the case Gilson vs. S.S. No. 2, Ops, from the hands of the jury on the grounds of no negligence and liability. The jury, however, was asked to assess the damages which were set at $1,500 for the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gilson, $200 for the father and $50 for the mother. The little girl suffered injury to her eye when the glass fell out of one of the windows at the school striking her in the eye.

Appeal Dismissed

The appeal of Joseph Roberts, of Oshawa, formerly pro of the Lindsay Golf Club, who was sentenced here to a term of four months for criminal negligence, has been dismissed at Osgoode Hall. Roberts was the driver of the car which turned over on the Oakwood Highway, causing the death of Sidney Udell, of Lindsay, a passenger in the car.

Jailed for Bigamy

An elderly woman from Hamilton and who formerly lived at Tory Hill, was sentenced to two months in jail yesterday by Magistrate Gee on a charge of bigamy. The evidence went to show that the woman went through a form of marriage at Tory Hill last year while her first husband was still alive. The woman sobbed bitterly during the court proceedings.

OSHAWA GENERAL MOTORS BODY CREW STRIKE

WHITBY FEUD COMES TO HEAD WITH SHOOTING

Police Claim Woman Admits Firing Shots At Her Neighbor

"POURING STUFF IN WELL"

Victim Boards Bus, Travels 35 Miles To Toronto To Have Wounds Treated

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 19.—(CP)—Provincial Police said today an East Whitby township woman, whose name they withheld, had admitted firing shots yesterday at Nicholas Zwarech, a neighbor. Wounded about the head by gunshot, Zwarech was in serious, but not critical condition.

The shooting developed from a feud of long standing, police said they had learned. The woman who fired the shots was said to have asserted Zwarech was pouring something down the well beside her house. She shot at him from a window.

After the shooting Zwarech boarded a bus and travelled 35 miles to Toronto to have a physician attend his wounds. Provincial police brought him back last night.

'HYDRO BUYING BEAUHARNOIS

Sees Increase In Power Rates Result Of Liberal Policy

CLASHES WITH HEPBURN

TORONTO, Feb. 19 (CP)—Debate on the throne speech temporarily set aside, members of the Ontario legislature today entered committee stage to discuss government bills. They heard Premier Mitchell Hepburn and George S. Henry, Conservative House leader, during the throne speech debate yesterday, with the premier informing the House his government had no desire to extend beer and wine authorities to restaurants.

The beer and wine question was raised by Mr. Henry who assailed the grant of authorities to buildings recently converted into hotels. The Conservative House leader remarked the restaurants under certain conditions should be given beer and wine authorities.

This was the intention, he said, when the government he leaded passed the amendments to the Liquor Control Act in 1934. He charged subterfuge prevailed in granting the authorities to recently-established hotels.

"No doubt the premier wishes he could open the door to restaurants to avoid this," Mr. Henry said.

"No," said Mr. Hepburn. "I have no desire to do that."

Mr. Henry said he was opposed to the sale of beer in bottles or kegs without permits being held by the purchasers and to the sale of liquor on the 25-cent individual permit.

The day was fast approaching, Mr. Henry also said, when the government would wish it had not cancelled the Quebec power contracts. The present Hydro-Electric Power Commission was living from day to day on a hand-to-mouth basis. He foresaw an increase in power rates as an inevitable sequence to this policy.

Beauharnois Next

"Two years ago in this House the attorney-general said the province won't require a single horsepower from Quebec," said Mr. Henry. "What do we find him and hydro doing now? Buying more power. Going from strength to strength. They have bought all the Ottawa valley they can get; all the Gatineau except the 60-cycle which is in reserve; one-third of Maclaren and they'll shortly be buying from Beauharnois."

The government should not take all the credit for cheaper money, the opposition leader continued. It was rather the reverse, he said. Money was a commodity when business flourished, interest rates went up.

Premier Hepburn said money should not be a commodity. It was a medium of exchange.

"It may have been made a commodity by those who benefitted and their greatest assistants have been the Tory party," he said.

The premier told the legislature Britain's repudiation of her war debt to the United States provided ample justification for Ontario's action in nullifying power commission contracts to buy Quebec power. He said Ontario's former Conservative government had repudiated an obligation when it failed to pay off debentures in gold though the contract terms called for such payment.

In his 30-minute address Mr. Hepburn announced the budget speech would show the first reduction in Ontario's gross debt in many years.

Reveals Guards On Bull-Gang Dine On Stolen Tea, Sugar, Milk

GUELPH, Ont., Feb. 19.—(CP). — Prisoners are afraid of the consequences of testifying at the Madden inquiry, a young prisoner of 20 told it to-day.

"They are afraid because a half-dozen guards take a prisoner and beat him with baseball bats and fists," he said. "I have proof anytime it is needed."

The prisoner said he had not been beaten nor had he seen others beaten. He declared that in the summer of 1935 one prisoner had been "knocked cold" by guards and taken to Kingston penitentiary. He named Guards Stuart and Griffin. All others "beaten by guards" have been transferred out or moved to Kingston, he said.

Prisoners get "shots" of cocaine or codeine during week-ends when the doctor is away from the reformatory hospital, he said.

Prisoner Has the Keys.

"A prisoner is left with the keys and is in charge during week-ends of narcotic drugs," he said. "Other prisoners go up and take shots of cocaine and codeine. I have had them myself."

He said he had the dope in September, was moved away from that section of the institution in September.

"Since the riot the doctor has been there because they are afraid of you fellows," he told members of the commission.

Witness declared that when prisoners were leaving a dormitory "to surrender after a tear gas bomb was thrown in" during the riot, he had seen a guard knock a prisoner over the head with a "blackjack."

Gambling in the institution is necessary so that prisoners can have enough to smoke, said the prisoner, declaring not enough tobacco is issued them.

Witness told of reading a newspaper account of injury proceedings.

"Where did you get the newspaper?" demanded Gordon Gillanders, commission counsel.

"It was a clipping slipped in by one of the prisoners," said witness.

Guards Use Stolen Tea

Prisoner said he found "bull-gang" work too hard.

"Guards go into shacks and have tea stolen from the reformatory kitchen," he declared. "I used to make the tea for them when I was in the bull-gang before. They get sugar and powdered milk from the kitchen, too. I saw Guard Livingstone drinking tea out there this morning."

"How do you know it is against regulations?" asked Judge Madden.

"Because I've heard them say to hide the tea, here comes the superintendent," said the prisoner.

Eats His Two Bears To Even Food Bill

Brampton, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP)

J. C. Patterson's two pet black bears grew so large they were eating him out of house and home so he did away with them yesterday and now his turn has come and he'll be eating bear-steak for the next couple of weeks.

The bears were shot and turned over to a butcher. Brampton residents were relieved too, authorities said. Some time ago the bears had escaped from their pen and roamed through town scaring everyone not indoors although they were "perfectly harmless," Patterson says.

GERMANY'S ARMY BOOSTED 250,000 MEN INSIDE YEAR

1937 To See It Well Over Million With Over 200 Squadrons Fighting Planes

183,000 TONS FOR NAVY

LONDON, Feb. 19—(C.P.-Havas)—Germany's army has increased in a year from 550,000 to 800,000 men and its Air Force from 50 squadrons to 137, with 2,060 first line fighting ships, The Manchester Guardian said to-day in a survey of German armed strength.

During the course of the coming year, The Guardian said, the armed forces will draw enormously from the 1,000,000 men now taking preliminary training. The Air Force will be increased to 200 squadrons and the German navy, augmented by 23,000 tons during 1936, will be increased by the completion of 183,000 tons now under construction.

Since the beginning of this year, The Guardian went on, two new army corps, comprising 15 divisions of infantry, have been created. The infantry, which totalled 65 regiments, now totals 100. The artillery has been increased from 42 to 67 motorized corps. Two new divisions, each containing artillery, cavalry, tank and special motorized corps, have been formed and a new army corps, the 13th, in the process of the formation.

Calling on Police

Due to lack of officers and trained specialists in sufficient quantities for the increased forces, many trained detachments of the police have been called to the colors, The Guardian said. Meanwhile the training of young officers has been accelerated.

PRINCIPLE APPROVED

Dominion Group of Railway Brotherhood Approves Transport Bill

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—(CP)—Principle of the transport bill was endorsed today by the Dominion joint legislative committee of the Railway Transportation Brotherhoods in a memorandum submitted to the senate railway committee which is studying the legislation.

The approval by the railway organization came after various sections of the bill had been condemned by six provinces, bus companies and transport organizations.

Perry J. Giffen

Perry J. Giffen Dies After Week's Illness Result of War Wound

Managing Director of The Peterborough Examiner Was Well Known by Newspaper Men Throughout the Dominion

EARLY BECAME ASSOCIATED IN CITY WITH EVERY MOVEMENT FOR PUBLIC WEAL

Following an illness of only a week's duration Perry J. Giffen, managing director of The Examiner died at Nicholls Hospital early this morning. Only a week ago when he came to the office it was evident he was far from well. His old war injury was bothering him again; he was suffering pain and his temperature was high. The following afternoon he was removed to the hospital.

It was a recurrence of the trouble which had made him an invalid for almost two months a short time before, which illness had included before recovery was considered certain several visits to Christie Street Hospital in Toronto. When it was considered safe for Mr. Giffen to return to the office it seemed certain that the old trouble had been definitely dealt with, as all reports and the reading of X-ray plates seemed to agree that he could expect a greater measure of health and strength than had been his for some time previous.

The severity of his second illness was much greater than the previous attack, and it had been recognized for several days that Perry J. Giffen was seriously ill. The wounds which had been inflicted on him at Hill 70 in August of 1917, and the exposure he suffered from two days and two nights before being removed from the field of battle were determined and relentless in their continued attacks of almost 20 years later. He was a war casualty as surely as though he had fallen in action with the Nova Scotia Highlanders, with whom he enlisted in 1916.

Made His Place in Peterborough.

Perry J. Giffen came to Peterborough in early November of 1935 from Edmonton, and evidence of the place he had made for himself in the city has been found during his recent illness. Telephone calls to the Examiner have been constantly increasing in number, and the inquiries have nearly always been accompanied by the added request "Is there anything I can do?". Mr. Giffen wanted to be associated with any movement or effort in the city which was for public benefit. The enthusiastic support which he brought to any undertaking made success certain, and on many occasions he has given himself to such activity when pain from his injuries was always present. Never did he complain about it. There were times when on his return to the office he would admit the arm and shoulder had been bothering him a little, but that was all, and that information was imparted to only a few intimate friends. Never would Perry Giffen allow it to be made known publicly.

His boundless energy was well exemplified in the problem of loading a car in Peterborough under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club for shipment to the relief sufferers in Cincinnati district. There was danger of the car being held up at the border for customs appraisal and it did not seem to be right that those who would receive the gift from Peterborough should have to pay duty on the contents of the car.

Mr. Giffen called the American Consul in Toronto, and found that no regulations existed for allowing such cars to cross the border. Then it was that the suggestion was made that the American Consul should go direct to President Roosevelt with the matter. It was at Perry Giffen's request that the case was taken to the highest authority at once,

CITIZENS JOIN IN MOURNING PERRY J. GIFFEN

Expressions Of Regret And Sympathy In Sudden Death Are Received

DEEP NOTE OF SADNESS

Grievous Wounds Received During War Terminated a Most Promising Career

Leaders of Canadian newspaperdom joined with citizens of Peterborough to-day in expressions of sympathy and regret in the sudden death of Perry J. Giffen, managing director of The Peterborough Examiner.

A sombre chord running through most of the tributes to the personality of Mr. Giffen was a deep note of sadness that his war service, in which he was grievously wounded causing a permanent disability, finally overtook and terminated his career of achievement and his promise of greater fulfillment.

To the men who bear the scars of war the handicap from which such men as Perry Giffen suffer in the daily affairs of business can be most sympathetically appreciated.

"He laughs at scars who never felt a wound," is a quotation that does not apply in the attitude of Canadian citizens toward the men who fought in France and Flanders, but it carries perhaps an intimation that time tends to lighten public thought and estimate of war wounds. They may mend and heal, but in so many instances they leave an impairment of strength for the daily struggle in the peaceful arena of business that casts a grim reality over the phrase of the ex-service men with which they casually refer to comrades, if not to themselves, as "old crocks," men still young in years but with the shadow of untimely death hovering over them with a greater uncertainty as to the hour and occasion when the pains and hardships of war will demand at length the deferred and ultimate sacrifice.

Mayor George Macdonald

"His death represents a great loss to the city," Mayor George A. Macdonald declared. "Despite the short time he had been here, he had made himself known in many branches of community activity. He tried in every way to further the interests of the city and, proudly had set about to do his part in advancing Peterborough in every way possible."

Mayor Macdonald remarked particularly on a readiness to co-operate at all times where community good was concerned and spoke of a generosity he demonstrated in disposition of his time and energy.

"I feel not only a loss to the city as a whole but a heavy personal loss, for I valued highly his readiness to aid with advice and material assistance whenever the need arose."

Rev. G. S. Easton, minister of Trinity United Church and chaplain of the Canadian Legion, in whose congregation Mr. Giffen was a member, said:

"Many Peterborough citizens will arrest their activities to pay tribute to a young man who came to this city a little over a year ago and who has been suddenly taken from us in the midst of the administration of his trust and at a moment of highest possibilities of service. This will be a tribute inspired by love of country and patriotism, knowing full well that ungrateful communities and nations can not endure. The temples of democracy will be but as vain vestiges of a vanished faith if their altar fires are not kept burning by the memory of men who.

230 Men Down Tools When Line Is Speeded 27-32 Jobs Per Hour

Charge Seven-Cent Pay Raise Does Not Cover Cost Of Extra Work

HOLDING SECRET BALLOT

Manager Warns Bodies Can Be Produced Cheaper In U.S.—Less Efficient Here

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 19—(CP)—Striking General Motors Corporation of Canada employees met here to-day to decide by secret ballot whether they will continue their strike against a recent speeding up in their work.

More than 230 workers in an important part of the production line are involved. They laid down their tools yesterday afternoon just before the usual quitting time.

They object to a recently company ruling which called on them for 32 jobs an hour instead of the previous 27. At the same time the new schedule went into effect their pay was raised seven cents an hour but the men claim that increase did not cover the additional work.

After the strike was called the workers asked Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Corporation to address them. He urged the strikers to try the new schedule until the end of the month, when he would reconsider their demands if they were not satisfied.

Can Import Bodies Cheaper

The vice-president warned the men bodies could be produced in the United States and imported into Canada. He said they would be cheaper even after the tariff was paid than the present cost in Oshawa.

Mr. Carmichael declared that early this year United States officials of the company wished to eliminate production of bodies here. Thirty-two jobs an hour were necessary to maintain a certain efficiency level and that figure had been arrived at after a careful study of costs.

The vice-president added that efficiency in the Oshawa plant was 30 per cent. below that of General Motors plants in the United States. He offered to pay the expenses of four Oshawa employees on a trip to the United States so they could compare production speed in plants there with speed in Canada.

So far as could be learned here the strike is not connected with the walkout which held up production in United States General Motors plants for more than a month and was settled only last week. Wage negotiations are still going on in the United States dispute.

New Problem for Head Office

DETROIT, Feb. 19 (A.P.). — A strike in one of General Motors' two Canadian plants placed a new problem before the corporation's labor executives to-day only a few hours after another one had been settled at St. Louis.

The new strike was called in the plant at Oshawa, Ont., as negotiators for the corporation and the United Automobile Workers of America turned to the consideration of a basis for establishing seniority rights for workers in their U.S. factories.

A strike which interrupted operations in the Chevrolet and Fisher body divisions at St. Louis was settled last night and the workers return to their machines to-day. It began when 70 Chevrolet workers charged that five union employees had been replaced by the management.

Burglar Gets Wed, Enough Says Judge

Montreal, Feb. 19 (CP)

RAYMOND Huppe, 22, self-confessed burglar, sentenced himself to a life term yesterday. When he appeared before Judge Gustave Marin he asked for the clemency of the court—"I was married this morning."

"I don't know if you are better off with the life term you have imposed upon yourself," said the Judge, "than with the jail term I would have imposed—suspended sentence."

NAZIS FORTIFYING SPANISH BORDER FRANCE IS TOLD

Reports Of Trenches And Gun Pits Inspire Paris To Dispatch Picked Troops

WORRIED OVER FRANCO

PARIS, Feb. 19 (AP)—France, concerned over her unfortified Pyrenees border, moved toward an investigation today of charges that Spanish insurgents, under supervision of German engineers, were building earthworks opposite French territory.

Refugees from insurgent territory were said by the Basque government at Bilbao to have declared General Franco's troops were throwing up strong fortifications along the Spanish side of the international line.

Large trenches were being constructed, the Basque communique asserted, from Irun to the French border.

On Mount San Marcial at Irun, the Bilbao officials quoted the refugees, gun emplacements were being erected.

Picked troops were on the march to the Pyrenees border, however, to enforce the ban on volunteers which France has ordered under the international non-intervention agreement.

The Communist newspaper L'Humanite headlined the communique in Paris today as "Germany installed on the frontiers of France."

The organ linked the charges with reports Gen. Franco had reached an accord with the Reich, placing his government in the German - Japanese anti - communist lineup and pledging mutual assistance in case of attack by France's Soviet ally.

Last Minute News Flashes

OSHAWA.—Early settlement of a strike which took 230 metal finishers off General Motors' production line, was forecast here to-day, though early this afternoon no word had come from the committee room where representatives of the strikers met Company Vice-President Harry J. Carmichael.

EDMONTON.—The reduction and Settlement of Debts Act, the corner-stone of the debt legislation of the Aberhart government, was declared unconstitutional here to-day by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing in the Alberta Supreme Court.

6 RETURNED MEN BEATEN BY GANG

Three Go To Hospital After 50 Union House Wreckers Hurl Stones, Clubs

TORONTO, Feb. 19—(C.P.). — Six returned soldiers, employed with a house-wrecking gang, were set upon to-day by about 50 men hurling stones and clubs when they turned up for work.

Three of the veterans—Frank Steen, 46; Leslie Burton, 43; and Walter Hinds, 44, were injured and taken to hospital for treatment when police intervened.

The fracas followed a dispute allegedly over the returned soldiers' refusal to join a house-wreckers' union, police reported. Joseph Jassener, contractor for the job on which the six victims of the attack were employed, told authorities a gang had gathered in the street near a house being torn down.

When the six laborers arrived they were set upon and beaten, he said. Members of the gang which started the trouble objected to non-union workers being employed on the job, the contractor added.

'Met Whole Darn Royal Family' U.S. Cutlery Executive Exults

Wife Is So Excited When Queen Mary Speaks To Her She Forgets What She Said

"JUST LIKE REAL FOLKS"

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(AP).—Fred E. Fuller, business man from Flatbush, Brooklyn, hugged his wife in a London hotel room to-day and exclaimed proudly:

"Oh boy." We met the whole darn Royal family."

Mrs. Fuller still was so excited she couldn't remember what Queen Mary said to her Wednesday at the cutlery section of the British Industries Fair in Olympia.

"We were just standing there when the Queen Mother walked over and held out her hand to my wife," related Fuller, who is president of a Manhattan cutlery works.

"They exchanged a few words and then the Queen turned to me and said: 'How's business in the United States?'

About that time, the American continued, King George and Queen Elizabeth strolled over and a little later the Duke and Duchess of Kent and the Princess Royal Mary, Countess of Harewood, joined the group.

The Duke of Kent entered the conversation by "cornering me and discussing business matters," Fuller declared, "while the Princess Royal talked with Mrs. Fuller—who can't remember a thing she said.

"They All talked business except the King—who didn't say anything except: 'How about having lunch?'"

He added quickly:

"He didn't say that to me. He was asking the Royal party. They were all just like real folks."

Feat That Inspired Famous 'Cremation'

Fort Erie, Ont., Feb. 19. (CP)

MICHAEL A. Mahoney of Ottawa told a gathering here last night that his feat of carrying the body of Judge Humes out of the Klondike in 1898 inspired Robert W. Service to write the poem "The Cremation of Sam McGee."

Mahoney, vice-president of the International Sourdough Association, said it took him 26 days to pack the body on a sleigh down to civilization. He was being attacked by wolves when Eskimos found him exhausted.

The city of Seattle rewarded him with $10,000 Mahoney stated.

ALGOMA WANTS CHANGE

Votes to Join London Conference of United Church.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.). — Algoma Presbytery of the United Church of Canada voted yesterday to become part of the London Conference, in agreement with a recommendation recently made by the General Council of the Church. Algoma Presbytery was formerly in Toronto Conference.

In its closing session the Presbytery passed a resolution endorsing the peace defence policy of the Dominion Government.

"Keedoozle" Grocery Store Gives You Electric Service

Memphis Inventor Hopes To Sell Everyone But The Cannibals

CASHIER ONLY EMPLOYEE

MEMPHIS, Tenn, Feb. 19 (AP)—Dynamic Clarence Saunders announced today he is ready to try for a third fortune with an amazing new "Keedoozle" grocery store in which electricity delivers the customers' purchases and adds up the cost.

"These stores will be open all over the world under standard franchises," Saunders said. "We are going to sell everybody except the cannibals. This one store will gross $1,000,000 the first year."

Saunders speaks easily of millions.

"Losing fortunes didn't dishearten me," the gray-haired executive declared. "I don't love money except for the purpose of using it."

He plans to open his first "Keedoozle" store about March 6, he said, adding others as needed. The name, "Keedoozle," doesn't mean anything particularly.

A newsman "previewed" the new store today.

Key to Every Purchase

The customer enters and obtains a "key"—a fibre rod about seven inches long with a knob on the end containing a red light bulb.

He walks past glass-encased shelves. If he sees an item he wants, he inserts the "key" in a cor-

Has No Fingerprints Shaw Finds, Too Late

London, Feb. 19 (UP)

SAVA Botzaris, Jugoslavian sculptor, finished a bust of George Bernard Shaw yesterday and asked the playwright to put his thumbprints in the soft clay.

Shaw tried several times, but left no mark.

Examination under strong light disclosed that his fingertips were smooth; without lines.

"It's a pity I didn't know this before," Shaw remarked. "I would have chosen another profession."

FOUR OF QUEBEC'S LIBERALS OPPOSE DEFENCE PROGRAM

None However Are Ready To Side With MacNeil In Non-Confidence Motion

J. J. DUFFUS IN FAVOR

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—(CP)—Four days debate on Canada's defence needs or the lack of them probably will end in the House of Commons today with a vote on a want-of-confidence motion in the government. Sponsored by Grant MacNeil (C.C.F. Vancouver North), the motion has drawn no support outside the C.C.F. and Social Credit groups.

Most of the debate, however, has been between Liberals, some of whom are opposed to the government's defence program. None are willing to go the length of voting for the MacNeil resolution which, if it passed, would mean the Government's defeat.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King is expected to speak towards the close of the debate today and possibly Conservative Leader Bennett will follow him. Conservatives have been silent throughout the debate but are expected to vote with the Government on the issue.

John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, approved of the defence program but some of his followers were opposed. Walter Kuhl of Jasper-Edson and Norman Jacques of Westaskiwin last night announced they would vote for the MacNeil motion.

Four Quebec Liberals yesterday went on record as opposed to additional defence preparations but none sided with the MacNeil motion. Earlier in the week two others took the same position, one from Quebec and one from Manitoba.

It will be illegal for Canadians to enlist for service in the Spanish civil war as soon as a bill introduced yesterday becomes law. Justice

MAKE GOOD WILL MUTUAL PURSUIT

Canadians In New York Urged To Promote Progress In Two Countries

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(C.P.). — Canadians resident in New York should act as ambassadors of goodwill, says Douglas S. Cole, Canadian Trade Commissioner here, in a message in "The Maple Leaf," magazine of the Canadian Club of New York.

Mr. Cole's "Message of International Good Will" follows:

"Canada, in common with the people of the United States, desires peace, progress and international co-operation. This is exemplified by the many years of peaceful trading between our two countries, and by the recent successful reciprocal trade agreement which is gradually increasing the volume of trade between both countries.

"Citizens of our two nations enjoy mutual friendships based on a deep sense of a common inheritance and a great tradition of liberty and justice. We have similar ideals of human conduct which furnish indestructible grounds for enduring understanding and neighborly co-operation.

"Canadians resident in New York should do everything in their power to make themselves ambassadors of goodwill, not only as a connecting line between our two great nations, but likewise between Great Britain and the United States."

WINDSOR'S PLANE LEAVES HENDON

Craft Is Flown By Edward's Former Pilot, Carries Monckton His Cornwall Manager

LONDON, Feb. 19—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor's private airplane took off from Hendon airdrome today, believed bearing Sir Walter Monckton, attorney general for the Ducky of Cornwall, to Vienna for a financial conference with the abdicated king.

Captain Edward Fielden, the Duke of Windsor's former pilot, was at the controls when the plane left.

Dispatches from Vienna earlier had said the two were expected to arrive at Enzesfeld Castle today, adding interest to reports the Duke was enlarging the airfield near the castle.

The Duke of Kent, the former king's brother, will also leave for a three weeks holiday on the continent Saturday, it was learned, and may go to Enzesfeld.

Accompanied by his wife, the former Princess Marina of Greece, the Duke will fly to Paris and then go to Munich to visit the duchess' sister, Countess de Toerring-Jettenbach.

It was pointed out Munich is only two hours by air from Enzesfeld Castle.

SENATOR HOCKEN DIES IN TORONTO

Pneumonia At 79 Ends Career As Newsman, Mayor Of Queen City, And M.P.

TORONTO, Feb. 19—(C.P.). — Senator Horatio Clarence Hocken, staunch Conservative and Orangeman, died last night, removing from Toronto political life one of the city's most loyal supporters. He died in Toronto General Hospital from pneumonia which followed a week's illness from a gall bladder ailment ending a career as newspaperman Mayor of Toronto, House of Commons member, and Senator on the Conservative side of the Upper House.

His illness became critical in Ottawa last Wednesday and he was rushed to hospital here. He died barely two days after his wife's death at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William R. Plewman of Toronto. They were married for 57 years, making Toronto, Senator Hocken's native city, their home throughout their lives.

Senator Hocken was 79 years of age and his wife, born in London, England, was a year younger. Present plans are for a double funeral Saturday afternoon at St. Clair Avenue United Church.

The Senator's political and newspaper career found him a doughty

Defend Arms Increase As Guard Against Hostile Air Raids

Defending his greatly increased estimate for national defence against the attack of opposition members, Defence Minister Ian Mackenzie, supported by Premier King repudiated the suggestion that increased Canadian armaments were part of an empire program and painted a picture of possible hostile aerial attacks on Canadian grain elevators, ports and key points. He declared that the estimates were justified as expenditures for adequate defence of grain and food stores which could be subjected to bombardment from aeroplanes of a hostile nation, operating from aircraft carriers. A view of the grain elevators at Quebec City, which, according to the minister's word picture, might be vulnerable to attack, is shown here. At the LEFT an anti-aircraft gun, designed particularly for coastal defence, pokes its nose into the sky. It is for this type of protection, according to Mr. Mackenzie (inset), the government seeks defence expenditure increases totalling $14,000,000.

CAYUGAS ARE PAID NEUTRALITY MONEY

Get $5 Each Annually For Staying Out Of Revolutionary War

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP) —Under the watchful eye of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Superintendent E. P. Randall of the Six Nations Indian Reserve, 10 miles from Brantford, for two days has paid out $5 to each member of the Cayuga tribe of that famous league of nations.

It was interest on the $100,000 paid in 1929 to the government Dominion in trust for the Cayuga's as a complete payoff on an agreement reached in the Revolutionary War, whereby the Cayugas, in return for $2,000 a year, agreed to remain neutral in that war.

The account was duly paid until 1812 when the government held that as the Cayugas had assisted the British, they were no longer entitled to the sum.

Not until 1929 was the claim of the Cayugas settled. The payments varied from $5 for an individual to as much as $50 to the father of a family, the payment being per head. The other five nations do not share in the payment. The payments will be continued again on Friday.

Feast of the White Dog

Some of the members walked as far as 14 miles to and from their homes. Others dropped off afterwards at the Cayugas long house where the annual festivities connected with the "feast of the white dog," are continuing, including dancing of the old tribal ceremonial dances. The feast usually coincides with the annual coldest stretch of winter weather.

Darkly silhouetted against the window as they moved in single file about the floor in the gloomy log house at Atkin Corners on the Six Nations Reserve, the forms of Indian maidens, young braves, wrinkled and white haired old men bent rythmically and slowly backward and forward and suddenly stopped.

Slowly they started to move again and, to the accompanying chant and the seedy rattle of a hollowed instrument shaped like a potato masher, began to pick up speed and jiggle up and down. It was the dance proceeding what was formerly known as the "sacrifice of the white dog," a ceremonial of the Six Nations. It is no longer such a sacrifice because there is no white dog. Tradition demands that the animal be pure white "without blemish or spot," but, as has happened every year for some years past, no such dog could be found by medicine men of the Cayuga.

Peckham Hopes To Open More Offices In Answer To Women's Pleas

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (AP).—Ted Peckham, who deals in dukes, and has two already, would like to get a few more.

He needs them for the expansion of his bizarre business of supplying male escorts — "not gigolos, but gentlemen who will act like gentlemen"—at $10 an evening and up.

With offices flourishing in London, Paris, New York and Palm Beach, the 22-year-old youth who was working for $15 a week two years ago said yesterday he is all set to establish branch offices in Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and New Orleans.

"American girls need more men to ferry them around," he said. "I get letters from all over—women who have read about my guides and want me to open bureaus in their cities. But I can't do it too fast. It takes time to get the right kind of men and train them.

"At present, unless they are foreign noblemen, I won't take anybody except Yale, Harvard and Princeton men. And they have to be employed elsewhere. No professional gigolos. They have to have steady jobs and work as escorts only because they like it or need extra money."

Peckham has 180 men on his New York staff, 20 in Palm Beach, 100 in England (all noblemen, including one duke; the other duke is now in Palm Beach, hired out full-time at $500 a month) and more than 100 others in France.

Government bans against price raises in Italy has resulted in the lowering of quality and in the consequent increased buying of higher priced goods.

NO COUGHS! "NO COLDS FOR ME THIS WINTER!"

I used to dread the winter—one cold after another! Tried many tonics, and then my druggist recommended Fellows' Syrup—told me what a fine builder it is. One bottle proved it. I'm not worrying about attacks this winter—I'll head them off with 'Fellows'".

The vital minerals in Fellows' Syrup strengthen resistance to illness. Three generations have depended upon 'Fellows' to help build strength and vigour. Doctors in 52 countries prescribe Fellows' Syrup.

'Fellows' is widely imitated. The name 'Fellows' on the wrapper is your assurance.

NAVAL GUN BLAST KILLS 6, HURTS 11

Tragedy Occurs As U.S. Fleet Manoeuvres Off Pacific Coast

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Feb. 19 (A. P.). — First eye-witness' descriptions of bodies shattered by explosion of a training ship's gun were disclosed as a United States naval board was formed to-day to investigate the killing of six men.

Eleven others were injured, some gravely, when a 30-pound powder charge of a five-inch shell went off yesterday in the breech of a starboard gun on the battleship Wyoming during manoeuvres.

"I saw one boy sort of drift past me, floating through the air, half of his head shot off, and land on the deck," said a marine aboard. "It was awful."

The Wyoming was laying down a barrage to cover evacuation by a landing party on the beach of San Clemente Island when the explosion sent fragments of steel and iron through the bodies of the gun crew and against bulkheads.

"It was a terrible accident," said Captain C. N. Hinkamp, commander of the Wyoming. "The dead are of the regular marine personnel and fleet marine force brought out from Quantico, Va., for the battle problems here."

Seven months ago two men were killed and nine injured aboard the cruiser Marblehead when the breech block of a forward six-inch gun blew out.

TABBY IS IDENTIFIED

CALGARY, Feb. 19 (CP)—"Tabby," the kitten that travelled from Calgary to Edmonton in a mail bag, has been identified. She was the "chief mouser" at a railway station lunch room here before her journey to the capital. Now she has joined the "mouser brigade" in the Edmonton post office.

Undertakes a Real Task

Roland Denne has agreed to do something which needed doing in Peterborough. That is he has accepted the chairmanship of the local committee which will carry on the organization of the Home Improvement Plan in Peterborough.

For a good many years homes have been left alone. A good many people who own them have not protected their investment by keeping them in repair, nor have they done much to modernize them and make them easier places in which to work and better places in which to live.

There is money available now for the home-owner who needs to get it, but this Home Improvement Plan is not exclusively for the person who is under the need of borrowing. There are people who do not need to borrow money and the desire is to touch them into activity as much as to interest the man who will work on borrowed money.

If and when this plan gets under way it will be found that those in the building trades will be employed; so will those from whom they purchase supplies. Going back a little more it will mean that there will be a call for apprentices in a good many trades which have been dormant for six or seven years.

We are certain Mr. Denne will have the support of the people of his own city as well as the help of the provincial body. He is going to need it all because it is no minor assignment which he has consented to undertake.

Not Pleasant Either Way

Something else which drivers of motor cars might read about. A youth in Brantford of 17 years was knocked off his bicycle by a car, and for the moment we are not inclined to consider whether the rider of the wheel or the driver of the car was to blame.

The point is: There was so much laceration behind the ear of the injured youth that it required 40 stitches to close the wound, and they are still in doubt regarding whether the skull has been fractured.

Perhaps it is not pleasant to think of one wound with 40 stitches when driving through the country or through the city, and it is quite possible there are more pleasant things about which one could think.

But the stubborn fact is that 40 stitches was also not a pleasant experience for the youth of 17 years.

He Is Going to Woodstock

Rev. G. K. Tyler is going to Woodstock to become pastor of the First Baptist Church. The trouble with such a move is that Park Street Church loses a good pastor and Peterborough a good citizen. Mr. Tyler is a good preacher; he makes his gospel cakes of wholesome material and puts them on a lower shelf of the theological pantry where folk can readily reach in and take them.

The people in Woodstock will like him; if they don't there's something wrong with them. He goes to a church which has a great deal of tradition and history associated with it. His friends here will be glad to know he is going to a hospitable city situated in a wholesome and outstanding county—Oxford. Woodstock will have no occasion to regret the coming of Rev. G. K. Tyler and Mrs. Tyler.

Twenty at The Table

There was something in the paper a few days ago about the 21st child arriving at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Masse. These people, French-Canadians, live near St. Joseph, which is about eight miles north of Grand Bend, a popular summer resort on Lake Huron. The mother, a woman of 45, has her family of 21 children all living, and the oldest is a son of 24 years. Mrs. Masse has never been in a hospital. On all of the 21 occasions the family doctor has been called and some of the women of the neighborhood come in and help.

Although several of the older children have left home, some of them with homes of their own, there are generally 20 at the Masse home, including the parents. The children are trained to work. It is explained that "Marie churns the butter, Joan and Cecelia milk the six cows, Yvonne peals the potatoes, Alphonse and Louis do the chores, and so on. Each week it is necessary to buy a 100-pound sack of flour and that makes 42 large loaves of bread; it takes 20 pounds of oatmeal for the same period. About 10 quarts of milk are consumed daily and it takes 15 pounds of butter for the week's supply. A 200-pound pig lasts about two weeks, and the family will eat from 100 to 150 bags of potatoes during the year. All the above are produced on the farm with the exception of the flour and oatmeal.

Mr. Masse explained there are two masses at church they attend, "so we pile 10 or 12 members of the family in the car for the first mass, and come back to get the rest in time for the second mass."

The father of this family admits that in recent years when prices of farm produce have been low it has been difficult to make a 300-acre farm produce enough to keep them all, but it has been successfully done. Twenty people at a table three times a day means 60 meals per day or 21,900 in a year. So if there are three or four persons in your family and you are inclined to complain, we commend to your consideration the happy and healthful family of Mr. and Mrs. James Masse.

About Getting Married

A broken engagement is better than a broken marriage. Such is the belief of Rev. J. D. Parks, minister of Carlton Street United Church, Toronto. He has been conducting a winter school for young people generally and that is the advice he has been giving the young folk who attend.

Dr. Parks says engaged couples "should make a most careful survey of the cost of establishing a home, the budgeting of a family and the provision of such important incidentals as life insurances."

Perhaps they should, but we doubt if most of the young people who are contemplating marriage spend much of their time in the serious business of figuring what it is going to cost them to establish a home; doubt too whether they spend much time making a study of what they refer to as budgeting or keeping accounts of how much is going to be coming in and what is likely to be going out, and we doubt if the average married woman today can tell exactly how much life insurance her husband carries.

Perhaps Dr. Parks can promote a more scientific way of doing things, but there are a good many men right in Peterborough and all over the country who have been married when their finances were weaker than they might have openly admitted. In fact had they spent much time with pen and ink and a piece of paper in the presence of their future wives it might have been demonstrated that getting married was a risky business which had better be abandoned or postponed.

Men in Peterborough have discussed this matter quite frankly. One man in an executive position today admitted he had a fondness for a certain kind of elaborate looking curtains. He had a little furniture secured, but when he bought the curtains on which he had set his heart his finances were reduced to $20, but he went ahead and got married. We know of another who got married on $180 capital and a job at $15 per week, but that was 27 years ago. Both these men and their wives and families have fared well since. Some men have told us they never had anything until they got married, and they found their wives much better able to look after their finances than the men had been. There is a whole lot to say in favor of young people who go ahead and get married regardless of the financial barriers they face. When they start that way it is often found they have a problem of their own and they have to deal with it, and dealing with it makes them pull together.

As It Was on the Tenth

Looking through the report of a teachers' and trustees' gathering in a Western Ontario community we noticed an address on teaching music in the rural schools. In it we found that if a boy was taught to blow a horn he was not likely to blow a safe. He would just keep right on blowing the horn. There was considerable said about the advantage of having a music teacher visit the country schools and teach the boys and girls how to sing. There were good voices there which might be "discovered" and afterward developed to advantage.

No doubt there is much in what this speaker said; much that is new; much that was never done in the red school on the Tenth Concession. In that school we sang the 'Maple Leaf" and the "National Anthem." Sang them indoors and on Arbor Day when a new tree was planted and the trustees were present they were rendered out in the wide open spaces as the 16 scholars stood in a ring around the new tree. A little vigorous singing seemed to be a good thing for a new tree just making a start, for most of them lived and did remarkably well.

Whether there were any great voices in the school on the Tenth which might have been "discovered" by an expert and later on developed we do not know. Fond memory leads to the belief that they were all great voices. Perhaps too great. The teacher understood how to work a tuning fork, and it was a moment of mystery when she tapped it on the desk and did a little humming up and a little humming down and finally arrived at the spot from which the vocalists could make a safe take-off. She waved her arms to beat time, but there were no subdued passages; no soft music. It was patriotism in the raw which was being unleashed, and by the time it had been musically recounted how "In days of yore from Britain's shore," the tide of song was close up to flood levels. It rose and kept on rising; there were no sit-down strikers and no one had ever heard of the danger of straining the voice by too much effort. It was indeed the declamative and forthright style of singing which was followed in the red school on the Tenth. Like as not the vocal teachers of today would say it was terrible, but when it was tried out on the trustees on Arbor Day they clapped together their hands and admitted that it had substance like good beef cut in thick slices.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Dr. Irving Fisher says that life can be greatly prolonged. Looking both ways before crossing a street on foot is one way.

Some districts report that sap is starting to run, and that recalls the old rule that it takes about four gallons of sap to make a pint of syrup.

Admiral Leahy says the United States may be compelled to match the three additional battleships Great Britain proposes to build. Once again the vicious circle.

Hon. Duncan Marshall is lending his support to a Drink-More-Milk campaign and we helpfully suggest that he might be able to line up the Liquor Control Board as associates in the drive.

Tim Buck's statement that Canada would be better off without penitentiaries would be more accurate if he had said that Canada would be better off if she had no need for such institutions.

Premier Aberhart says Alberta is the forgotten province, and we have an idea that many of those who have been waiting for social credit to start working have the same opinion.

A New Jersey man drank a pint of whiskey in three minutes on a wager and one of the first duties of his executors will be to see that his estate gets the stakes.

Hon. Neville Chamberlain says Britain has no intention of asking the Dominions to contribute to a common defense fund. At the same time the United Kingdom would probably not refuse any aid that was offered.

Tommy Church, M.P., wants stricter penalties for persons who cause motor accidents through reckless or drunken driving. The difficulty however seems to be getting convictions, and amendments will not remove that feature.

Leading a government that has not a majority in the House, Premier Bracken of Manitoba, probably feels much like the fellow who has to do a juggling act while walking along a high wire.

Experts say that a really bomb-proof shelter must have a fifteen feet of concrete. If the construction of these shelters is undertaken on any great scale happy days should indeed be here again for the cement industry.

Soviet Russia's biggest automobile factory is idle because of a shortage of steering rods. The authorities had better look round and see if there is not a sit-down strike somewhere along the system.

Transients who apply for food and shelter in the town of Harriston are required to go through certain preliminary movements with a bucksaw. The result is that Harriston has few transients—and no bucksaw champions.

In the face of Great Britain's program of $7,500,000,000 for defense purposes the increase in Canada's appropriations toward the same end looks so small that the debate it is causing in the House seems a case of much ado about nothing.

A Chicago doctor says that it is really imagination you feel when the dentist goes to work And now will he please explain why a tooth usually stops aching about the time you get to the door of the dentist's office?

It is not too early for the city council to give some attention to the question of how Peterborough is to celebrate the coronation of King George VI. Other communities are beginning to plan for a fitting recognition of the occasion.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra had a nose, that seemed to turn each time he blows, it never was the same; he got it mussed up years ago, and on strange lines it went to grow, it wilted in the rain.

¶ So Ezra quietly went away, and he came back but yesterday, his nose is made like new; and with that snout he looks so strange, for it has made an awful change, the like I never knew.

¶ Now Ezra's nose before was blunt, it could be called I think a runt, for it was flat and small; in summer days when it was hot, quite often have I stopped and thought, he had no nose at all.

¶ But Ezra says they had a book, of noses straight or with a hook, he marked the one he chose; he said he knew right from the start, the one on which he'd set his heart, it was a Roman nose.

¶ Now Ezra looks like some great jay, who might be president some day, and take on lots of rank; or he might own a chain of stores, hire fifty men to do his chores, or he might own a bank.

¶ But Ezra's not quite used to it, the doctor said the thing would knit, when come the days of spring; meantime my cousin's worried too, for there's one thing that he can't do—he fears to blow the thing.

Kind Words For The Examiner

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

MR. A. R. KENNEDY, formerly editor of The Beacon-Herald and now managing editor of The Peterborough Examiner, has brought new distinction to his newspaper and to himself. According to a compilation of the Dominion Press Clipping Bureau, of Toronto, the Examiner stood third among Canadian newspapers in the number of quotations by other publications throughout the Dominion in the last quarter of 1936.

A not infallible memory tells us that this is the first time a provincial paper has attained that distinguished position.

Of course, readers of The Beacon-Herald can understand why the Peterborough paper is so widely quoted. During the ten years of Mr. Kennedy's association with The Beacon-Herald his friendly personality was written all over the editorial page. He became known to the paper's readers as one of themselves. That is an elusive goal towards which all sensible editors strive, but the portals are not cluttered with arrivals.

Our readers know that Concession Ten and the little red hen have not been forgotten for they see frequently on this page articles from the much pupished typewriter of the Peterborough editor. And the evidence is that few editorial pages in the Dominion are considered complete without some bit of reprint from the Examiner. Witness the scores of the first dozen newspapers out of the 118 listed by the clipping bureau:

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

THE Dominion Press Clipping Bureau's tabulation of newspaper standing in respect of quotations in other publications throughout Canada is to hand. Merger of the Globe and Mail having been subject of general and frequent comment, it is not surprising that the Globe and Mail stands at head of the list, even though the newspapers were published separately for part of the quarter covered by the statistics, namely, October to December, 1936. Thereby the new paper ousts, at least temporarily, the Ottawa Journal from its long held leadership. Feature of the tabulation, perhaps, is the showing of Peterborough Examiner, which under the editorial direction of A. R. Kennedy, rose to 10th place, then seventh, and is now third. Stratford Beacon-Herald meantime has climbed to fifth place. Along with these, a number of Western Ontario newspapers frequently quoted in the Sentinel Review are found among the leading 25. The clipping bureau's list includes 118 newspapers. As readers have occasionally indicated interest in the standing, the upper bracket is listed here:

1.	Toronto Globe and Mail ..	2,156
2.	Ottawa Journal	2,103
3.	Peterborough Examiner ..	1,718
4.	Windsor Star	1,559

DOING GOOD WORK.

(Whitby Gazette and Chronicle)

THE fact that the Town Council did not see fit last week to restore salary cuts of ten per cent. to civic employees does not show a lack of appreciation of the faithful and efficient services they are rendering to the town. This fact was fully recognized and taken into full consideration by the Council, but as a majority felt that the finances would not permit at this time the salaries, with one exception, were left as they have been since 1933. Another fact taken into consideration was that while the town's financial condition is now showing a little improvement, many ratepayers are still finding it hard not only to pay their taxes but to make ends meet, thus it was felt that salary increase at this time would not be in order. We believe that another year the Council will again consider this matter more favorably, with the hope that before that time civic finances and business conditions in town will have further improved.

CANES ARE OUT.

(Wall Street Journal)

FASHION'S whim is pathetically revealed by the sudden passing of a London firm that had been making walking-sticks for 104 years, says Pearson's London Weekly. In the leisurely days of old, no man was completely equipped unless he had a smart walking-stick. Now-a-days with a great increase in sports and motoring walking-sticks have gone out of fashion, and the demand for them has almost vanished. One firm used to supply sticks to every corner of the world, including distant Tibet and Iceland; but even those countries no longer want walking-sticks.

Seeing a Coronation.

(From the Kitchener Record.)

OLD London is having its face lifted and extensive preparations are underway to accomodate the thousands of spectators who will be there to witness the traditional pomp and ceremony attending the coronation on May 12.

Seating arrangements are being made for the throngs that will want a place along the processional route. Vantage points such as seats in houses and shops are being advertised at prices from eight guineas per head upward for those who want to see the procession.

Commenting on the prices for the present coronation, the Christian Science Monitor says that perhaps they are not unreasonably high due to changed circumstances. The Monitor delves into history and gives the prices of seats at a number of previous coronations. We quote:

English men and women have always flocked to royal coronations. For centuries they have been willing to pay good money to get a glimpse of the proceedings. The price at the coronation of Edward I, who ascended the throne in 1272, was half a farthings. So much did he add to the prestige of the monarchy that, when his son Edward II came to the throne thirty-five years later, the value of a good view point had risen 100 per cent.

From then onwards, prices rose steadily to twopence at the coronation of Henry V; Henry VI had several coronations, and, according to a wellknown rule of economics, prices consequently fell. They recovered, and appreciated to fourpence when Henry VIII assumed the crown.

In this day and age people have the urge to go places and see things. The coronation affords an inducement to the tourist to make his long planned visit to the British Isles. Since coronations in Britain are no longer the local affairs of bygone years, the demand for seats along the professional route will in all probability exceed the supply. Hence the higher prices. And as the Monitor points out, the value of money was much greater in past centuries.

The Menace of the Wolf.

(From the Chatham News.)

THE natural home of the wolf in Ontario is in the district lying between the Severn and Trent water systems on the south, and the French and Mattawa systems on the north; and between the Ottawa River on the east and the Georgian Bay on the west. This was once the material habitat of the white pine and the white spruce, the pine being peculiarly valuable for lumber and the spruce for newsprint pulp. This area is now scientifically designated the "Pre-Cambrian" region of Ontario because its rock foundation is geologically older than the earliest of the lime-stone strata. It contains many millions of acres and the Algonquin Park tabes up nearly thirty of its townships. It includes the watershed of the rivers flowing respectively into the Georgian Bay and the Ottawa River, most important of which are the Severn, the Muskoka and the Magnetewan tributary to the former, and the Madawaska, the Bonnechere and the Petawawa tributary to the latter.

The beginning of the exploitation of the pine timber of the eastern slope of the region thus delineated, commenced a century ago, when immigrants began to settle in the counties of Lanark and Renfrew. Their methods were extremely destructive because they squared the tree trunks and left a great mass of fuel to feed destructive fires. Midway of the century the lumber industry began on the Georgian Bay side, but there the operators built sawmills and transported the sawn lumber in lake vessels and later by railway. In various ways the pine forest areas were stripped of their valuable trees, until, as the result of fires and the lumbering industry, the latter has reached almost the last stage of exhaustion. The soil of the Pre-Cambrian area is generally good where there is depth enough to make farming worth while; and to supply the needs of local lumbermen many settlers followed the lumbermen, cleared their farms and enjoyed a fair measure of prosperity. Like the lumber industry, the local farming which depended on it faded away, and now the whole region is dotted with abandoned farms.

This is one explanation of the increase in recent years of the multiplication of the wolves and the decline of the deer. A generation ago the latter were half domesticated, because they were safer with the agricultural settlers and with the lumbermen whose food supplies they furnished than they were either before the lumber industry began or since it has virtually ceased. Left to themselves deer and cattle live quite amicably together, and the domestic dog is not by nature any more hostile to the one class of animals than he is to the other.

The obvious inference is clear; utilize deforested areas as cattle ranches; prohibit deer slaying within the area above described; and encourage systematic and continuous warfare against the wolf by offering liberal bounties to make his destruction profitable to the hunter.

The Craze For Gambling.

(From the Galt Reporter.)

REPORTS from Winnipeg are to the effect that the municipal authorities are going to crack down vigorously on the keno and similar games that are intriguing the population there, as they are all over the Dominion. It is proposed to close them down entirely, mainly for the reason that the racket feature now overrides benefits that might have accrued to genuine charity when churches and other organizations, working for the public welfare, resorted to the gambling games as a convenient medium through which to raise funds.

There is evidence that private interests have taken a hand in these games of chance and have profited by the enthusiasm that has attended the play. Gambling has taken a strong hold in Canada and it is not likely that it can be eradicated by so simple a gesture as closing down the keno game. In fact, it is probable if such an outlet is closed, there may be popular resort to some other form that might not be as inocccuous. It is generally recognized that the liquor prohibition crusade of a couple of decades back was a premature outbreak of morality that could not be maintained. If the movement had been carried on more patiently we likely would not have had the intense reaction that virtually swept away all the gains that temperance had made in half a century.

It is doubted that regulations can counteract the inclinations of a majority of the people. Unless there is substantial public support behind a reform, there is no advantage to be gained from permitting a few fanatics to have full sway. In such things as the liquor traffic and horse-racing, it might as well be recognized that the only rational course is to try to educate the public against them. Arbitrary legislation that has not popular support only does damage to the cause. At the present time some well-intentioned people are clamoring for official action against such gambling devices as keno. It is questionable whether prohibitory laws would be effective. It appears that such games have become a popular craze for the time-being. They are bound to wear out their welcome if they are not injudiciously suppressed.

THE BEST MEDIUM.

(Kitchener Record)

QUITE frequently we come across tributes to the effectiveness of newspaper advertising in the way of producing the desired results. Here is what H. K. McCann, president of the McCann-Erickson Advertising Agency has to say. "Newspaper advertising will continue to carry the major load of retail sales in America. In 25 years' experience I have found that newspaper advertising is highly productive of results, and extraordinarily flexible."

Mr. McCann's advertising agency is closely associated with automobile sales. And we all know how the motor car companies have greatly increased their sales in the last year. A large proportion of this gain was no doubt due to well-planned advertising campaigns conducted through the newspapers.

Mr. McCann is in a position to know whereof he speaks. There are many others who know full well that the newspapers provide the best medium through which to reach the buying public. This reason is quite obvious: Everybody reads the newspapers.

CRIME ON WANE?

(Oshawa Times)

CRIME in South Ontario has been on the wane since Christmas, according to Provincial Constable H. Clark, of Oshawa, who last week reported that no major crimes have been committed since the festive season. Chicken stealing, which up until that time was very prevalent in the county, has apparently been brought under control. The constable's findings are borne out by the fact that the number of cases in district police courts has been very few.

Perhaps this lull in criminal business for our courts is a calm before a storm. Looking on the brighter side of the picture, perhaps it is an indication that criminals find it convenient to keep away from this district or that there are fewer crimes being committed. At any rate, the picture painted by the police is a very encouraging one.

DYING ART?

(Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

A FEATURE of American life that has flourished since a lad first asked for a ride on a hay wagon seems to be passing into the discard in the United States. According to a veteran hitch-hiker, who has thumbed his way for some 60,000 miles in 41 States, it is growing harder daily to obtain rides by this method. Speed, he believes, is making hitch-hiking a dying art.

And this view is confirmed by the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission which has recommended that States enact legislation barring ride-thumbers from trucks and other vehicles subject to the Motor Carrier Act.

If the wagging thumb, and the pleading eye are increasingly ignored, however, it may be a good thing all around. There would be no more instances in which drivers are robbed, or even slain, by hitch-hikers, to whom they were giving rides. And, undoubtedly, more youths would remain at home where they ought to be.

MEN PAST SEVENTY.

(Detroit News)

INSTANCES of faculties retained and activities continued by aged men, in present times and the past, are numerous and frequently cited. Titian retained his powers as a painter until his death at 99. Michelangelo's death at 90 occurred at the height of his career as an architect.

William Ewart Gladstone was 85 when his fourth administration as Premier of Great Britain ended. Benjamin Disraeli's public career was closed at 77, Bismarck's at 75. More recently, Georges Clemenceau became the war Premier of France in his 77th year. Oliver Wendell Holmes continued to render the service which established his fame as a liberal member of the Supreme Court until he was 91, at which age, in 1932 he resigned. He died in 1935.

Lists of living men past 70 who are famous, many still active, occupy a page in the 1937 World Almanac. Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the surgeon, is 82. Pope Pius XI is 79. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, is 74; Henry Ford, 73.

ASKS FOR BREAK.

(Calgary Herald)

THE drought areas of the southern prairies produce the highest quality wheat for which Canada has been famous throughout the world. The authorities in charge of the reclamation work are convinced that these areas will again be highly productive. Certainly they are putting forward every possible effort along carefully thought out lines to give the people in these areas every chance to re-establish themselves. The drought areas badly need a crop this year. Unfortunately moisture reserves are at a very low level and the grain crops will have to depend for their development on the rainfall during the spring and early summer. It may be that the dry cycle has ended and the weather will be more propitious this year.

PETTICOAT BACK.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

BELIEVE it or not, but the red flannel petticoat is coming back, or something like it. Remember the time when mama—or was it grandma?—always wore a red flannel petticoat, which peeped dangerously below the hem of the dress she used to have to elevate when walking along the street to keep it from trailing in the mud or dust? And now they say the red flannel petticoat, or red woollen undies are here again, and according to the Rev. Alice Phillips Aldrich, of Chicago, they are improving the morals of the country.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 19. — Brisk rallies in wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, came in the wake of reports of dust storms sweeping sections of the United States south-west. Quietly irregular most of the day, values moved up suddenly in late dealings to close near their best levels of the day, ⅝ to 1⅛ cents advanced.

The bullish weather reports offset pessimism engendered by a lull in foreign demand for wheat which followed Wednesday's transient revival. Export sales were 250,000 bushels, insufficient to cope with the early-session scattered selling. Helping to pull up prices toward the last were late recoveries at Chicago from early setbacks. Liverpool was off ¼d, coincident with expectations of heavy Argentine wheat shipments again this week in the face of restricted United Kingdom demand.

Cash-grains were steady. Coarse prices moved up with wheat.

Dr. Wood's NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mother Not to Blame For the Children's Colds

Despite all the mothers can do the kiddies will run out of doors not properly wrapped up; have too much clothing on; get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bedclothes, and do a dozen things the mother cannot prevent.

Half the battle in doctoring children's colds is to give them something they will like; something they will take without any fuss, and this the mother will find in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It acts promptly and effectively.

PERRY J. GIFFEN PASSES AFTER WEEK'S ILLNESS

and a ruling was issued that exception be made in favor of such gift cars going from Canada. And there again he objected strenuously to his name appearing in connection with the story. Always was it like that. If he appeared at any public gathering it was an office rule that anything he said must be kept within the measure of a few lines.

Planned The Examiner's New Home.

When it was decided that The Examiner should have a new home the brunt of the planning for the transfer fell on Mr. Giffen. The moving of a newspaper plant without missing any days of publication is an imposing task in itself, but it was made comparatively simple due to the plans which had been made. Every piece of machinery and all the office furnishings had been marked in advance with a shipping tag, and all lettered or numbered. In the new building there were similar markings to indicate where each piece should go. The result was that the day after the moving there was no confusion in the new home. Everything was in place just as the loads arrived.

When it was decided to have an official opening of the new premises, marked by the presence of Col. the Hon. Herbert A. Bruce and the daily newspapers publishers of the province, it was Perry J. Giffen who saw to it that all arrangements were made so that nothing would be left undone which should have been done, and also that everything should run on a schedule which would be faultless. After it was all over a few friends were left in Mr. Giffen's office and it was then remarked: "Looking back at it all now that it is over one could not have wished anything to be better or different."

Was A Lover of Outdoors.

Although Perry Giffen had been in this city for the duration of but one summer season there were few points in the entire district he had not visited. Returning after spending a day with an Indian guide where the canoe had been much in evidence and where dinner had been cooked on the shore, he exclaimed with all the enthusiasm he could command: "The greatest day one could spend any place in the world!"

A lover of art and music, Mr. Giffen was an amateur painter who took a keen delight in spending hours sitting at some point in the district which attracted him, and there he would sketch and paint. He had much to do with interesting and gathering together a number of the amateur artists of the city with a view of developing the work and creating new interest in the work of those who followed the urge to paint. Mr. Giffen had always restricted himself to the use of water colors in his work, but had often expressed strong desire to try his hand at oils. Often he had expressed the wish which was strongly rooted in him: "When I get through with business I want to paint all the pictures I have in mind."

From Scottish-Canadian Stock.

Perry J. Giffen was born at Goldborough, Guysboro County, Nova Scotia, in 1895, of sea-faring Scottish-Canadian stock. He was the son of Captain and Mrs. O. C. Giffen, both of whom are still in Halifax, living, and whom Perry Giffen visited last summer, it having been his first opportunity of doing so since coming from Edmonton.

Mr. Giffen was educated at the Halifax Grammar School and the Halifax County Academy, later attending Dalhousie University. Early in life he was attracted toward journalism and was editor of the Halifax Academy Annual for two years and founder and first editor of "The Live Wire," a monthly magazine published by the Maritime Business College.

When the war came he enlisted with the Nova Scotia Highlanders and became battalion sergeant major, and served in France with the 29th Battalion. It was in early August of 1917 that he received wounds at Hill 70 from the effects of which he never fully recovered. It was not until the lapse of considerable time that he was picked up by members of a burial party, and not until then was it found he was living. A long period of months passed while he was in hospital, and on being discharged he immediately signed on with the Naval Service, serving with the Intelligence Staff until May of 1919.

Returned to Newspaper Work.

Upon his return from overseas duty Mr. Giffen joined the staff of the Halifax Herald, it being his intention at that time to follow the reportorial and editorial section of the business. The advertising department afterward enlisted his services, and there is where he found the beginning of what was to be his life's work, and in a field for which he was admirably suited. He afterwards became advertising manager of the Herald and finally assistant business manager.

Leaving his native province Mr. Giffen became executive manager of the Hamilton Herald, and in October of 1924 joined the executive staff of the Toronto Star, and was for some time in charge of advertising promotion work for the Toronto Star Weekly. It was in 1928 that Mr. Giffen joined the Southam organization, being assigned to the Edmonton Journal as business manager, and in 1929 was elected as a director of the company. During the years he spent in Edmonton Mr. Giffen took an active interest in the work of the Chamber of Commerce, and was also Honorary Treasurer of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind for the Northern Alberta Committee.

Prior to his return from overseas Mr. Giffen was married to Katherine Mailing, Oxford, England. There are two children, James, a student at Trinity College School at Port Hope, and Betty, at home. Besides Mr. Giffen's parents at Halifax, there are surviving the following brothers: B. A. Giffen of Vancouver, B.C., M. E. and H. R. Giffen, of Halifax, N.S.; C. B. Giffen, Brockville; O. L. Giffen, Boston, Mass., and W. V. Giffen of Hamilton.

The remains are resting at D. Bellegheen and Sons funeral home until eleven o'clock on Saturday morning, following which a service is to be held at Trinity United Church at 2 p.m., with the Rev. George S. Easton officiating. Interment is to be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

like Perry Giffen, met the supreme test of war, suffered painful wounds and eventually has laid down his life in heroic fidelity, service and self-sacrifice. Above all, we give the tribute of the deep affection which moves us to speak in tender remembrance of a generous and kindly spirit that counted human fellowship more than rank and fortune. By hard work and dogged persistence he rose to a high place of influence and service and was a martyr in fidelity to the interests of the people of his community and his nation and for the cause of the peace of the world. If Canadian life, with all its possibilities of conflict and turmoil is to be worth living it must be lived in the spirit of brotherly understanding and service of which he will ever be an exemplar in office and position."

President of Kiwanis.

"The Kiwanis Club has lost one of its most valued members," Al. Sharpe, club president, commented. "He was so full of energy and ideas that his place in the club's work will be filled with great difficulty."

Mr. Sharpe spoke of his work on the Kiwanis Public Affairs committee and commended his untiring assistance in the recently concluded flood relief project. Mr. Giffen had a large share in the work of assembling the carload of relief supplies shipped from here to the Kiwanis Club of Cincinnati, he said. He reminded that he came to this city already in high standing in Kiwanis circles through his work in the Edmonton Club.

"On behalf of the club, I wish to express the sense of heavy loss felt by every member."

J. J. Dorris.

"The news of Mr. Giffen's passing is a very severe shock to me," J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said. "I found him a very fine chap, ready to take on at any time almost any work for the good of the community. As an organizer he was outstanding, combining an amazing ability for general direction and attention to detail. Those engaged in community interests will certainly miss him."

Showed Untiring Zeal.

R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, who had been associated with Mr. Giffen in several public enterprises, particularly the Winter Sports Committee, commented on an untiring zeal he demonstrated in any work he undertook.

"He was a citizen who will be widely mourned," Mr. Hicks-Lyne said. "He seemed interested and willing to aid in any community enterprise and never seemed to tire. I believe his war injury was a handicap much more serious to him than his ever cheerful, energetic outlook suggested."

Mr. Hicks-Lyne remarked that western friends recommended Mr. Giffen highly to him on his removal from Edmonton to this city.

Postmaster Charles Lacheur expressed deepest regret at news of Mr. Giffen's death. "I would like to express my sincerest sympathy to his bereaved wife and family. I feel that Mr. Giffen always tried to work for the benefit of the city and there is no doubt his death will create a great loss."

From City Hall.

As one who came in close touch with Mr. Giffen when he was working on production of the City of Peterborough booklet issued by the city council, Assistant City Clerk E. A. Outram declared "The outstanding characteristic of Mr. Giffen's dynamic personality was his enthusiasm and his sympathy. His sympathies were easily aroused and during his brief period of service in Peterborough he championed many worthy causes."

Mr. Outram had particular reference to Mr. Giffen's sponsorship of the Edmonton Grads Basketball team here, The Examiner Buckaw Contest, and his splendid energy and enthusiasm in regard to the recent appeal on behalf of flood victims in the Ohio Valley, which he directed as chairman of the Kiwanis Public Affairs Committee.

From Canadian Legion.

As president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, Max Sloan expresed deepest sympathy on behalf of all ex-servicemen of the city. "During his short time in Peterborough, Mr. Giffen had proved a wonderful friend to all returned men. While in Edmonton he succeeded with others in putting the Edmonton branch of the Legion in a wonderfully favorable position. The returned men here feel that the gaps being created among such leaders are occurring all too often and with ex-soldiers of the entire Dominion they feel they can ill afford to lose men of such high calibre." Mr. Sloan said he was glad to acknowledge the unfailing sympathy which Mr. Giffen had extended to the returned men of the city and declared, "anything we asked of him on behalf of the ex-soldier was never denied us."

Last Public Mention.

The last public mention of the name of Perry J. Giffen prior to his death was made by R. Denne at the meeting of Home Improvement Plan committee in the Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening. About nine o'clock, the hour at which Mr. Giffen's condition took a fatal turn, Mr. Denne told the group of citizens who were present that Mr. Giffen of The Examiner was 100 per cent behind the Home Improvement Plan, and that he would lend his aid as soon as he was out of the hospital where, Mr. Denne said, he is suffering from the effects of an old war wound.

From The Examiner

A. R. Kennedy, Managing Editor of The Examiner: "It seems only a short time ago when R. M. Glover brought a stranger to my office in the old Examiner building on George street and introduced him as Perry J. Giffen. I had never met him before, but he was the man with whom I was to be closely associated in the future development of the Examiner. I am quite certain I liked Perry Giffen from the first time I met him, and have reason to believe the feeling was mutual. There was always that feeling of mutual trust and confidence. The editorial department always felt that in Mr. Giffen there was some one who knew what it was all about. Almost daily there was something which came up for discussion. He was keenly appreciative of good effort and if moved to criticism it was always of the helpful kind which no one could possibly resent. Only a week ago he came into my office and it was easy to see at a glance something had gone wrong. He had had no sleep during the night; his temperature was then over the 100 mark and he admitted his old trouble threatened to return. It is not adequate to say that news of his passing has come as a shock; that does not express it. It seems as though something had gone out of life itself—something in which and on which one unconsciously learns to depend knowing it will not fail. Perry Giffen's enthusiasm and love for people never had to be aroused; it was always in a state of preparedness; it needed only some visible and worthy objective to touch it into immediate action. The whole staff feel today that we have lost not only a splendid business executive but a personal friend. It is difficult indeed to prod belief to the point where it realizes that what has happened has actually taken place."

Dr. J. E. Middleton

"As vice president of the Trinity Men's Association, Mr. Giffen gave us valuable advice and assistance," Dr. J. E. Middleton, president of the association, commented. "He could be called upon without notice to help out on any occasion. His platform ability was above the average and indicated a familiarity with the best literature. He will be greatly missed in Trinity Church."

Fred L. Roy.

The announcement of the death of Perry Giffen came as a very great shock to me this morning. He was my friend, Fred Roy said. In the short time that I have known him I had come to admire his many fine qualities. He was so alive—so vital—so sincere. There was never any doubt about where Perry Giffen stood on any question. When I sought his assistance it was freely and intelligently given. Coming to Peterborough only a few months ago he had entered whole-heartedly into community life and shouldered a large share of the responsibility. Peterborough is the poorer for the passing of Perry Giffen.

George A. Gillespie.

"I just heard of it this minute," declared George A. Gillespie, a neighbor of Mr. Giffen's, when a reporter approached him around eleven o'clock this morning. "I was dumbfounded. I had no idea he was so ill." He declared that Mr. Giffen's passing had created a distinct loss to the city, and paid tribute to the enthusiasm and energy which Mr. Giffen had displayed in the promotion of many worthwhile efforts for the benefit of the community at large.

A Close Friend.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon said that he had lost a close friend and neighbor in the death of Perry Giffen this morning.

Mr. Giffen was at one time the Private Secretary to the Honorable F. B. McCurdy, who was the Minister of Public Works when Mr. Gordon was first elected to the House of Commons, and Mr. Giffen had the reputation then of being a wise administrator and a popular and highly-thought-of member of the Civil Service.

Many evenings, Mr. Gordon said, were spent by Mr. Giffen and himself in Mr. Gordon's library at his home discussing the matter of attempting to establish a Civic Improvement Commission of men in the city as an advisory board to the City Council, and also to support the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association and the Chamber of Commerce, and if Mr. Giffen's career had not been cut short he would have been able to have given some very splendid suggestions for civic improvements and extending the knowledge of the outside public, with the advantages that Peterborough City and County had over other districts.

Mr. Giffen's death is a very serious loss to the people of this city and this part of the province, because he was a man of broad and generous views, and in addition to that, he had joined in the citizen life and activities in several cities in Canada.

The demise of Mr. Giffen has shocked the business and professional men of the city, and there has been such a uniform expression of sympathy for his family and that his life should be suddenly cut short that it indicated the wide respect and affection the public had for Perry Giffen.

Past President of Kiwanis.

Harold R. Scott, Immediate Past President of Peterborough Kiwanis Club, paid brief and fitting tribute to the memory of Mr. Giffen with whom he came in particularly close contact during his year as head of the club. "I always appreciated the splendid co-operation I received from him in the running of the club. He was a man of boundless energy and enthusiasm who could be depended upon for staunchest support in all worthwhile activities. His death is not only a distinct and regretted loss to the club, but to the entire community."

Charles Shaw.

"I wish to express on behalf of our company our deepest sympathy in the passing of our friend and colleague," Charles Shaw, general manager of the A. Wander Company, said. "Although only with us a short time, he has won his way into the hearts of everyone. His sterling qualities and affable manner will long be remembered by all who had any association with him."

"Loss To Journalism."

TORONTO, Feb. 19. — Perry Giffen's death is a shock to his numerous friends in the advertising business. He was popularly known in every city in Canada. Since he joined the Toronto Star following the war he had made rapid progress in daily newspaper work in both eastern and western Canada. He undoubtedly was one of the outstanding advertising men in the Dominion. His passing is a distinct loss to Canadian journalism.—J. A. MacLaren, president of the Canadian Advertising Agencies' Association.

"Splendid Newspaperman."

OSHAWA, Feb. 19.—Sincere sympathy in death of Perry Giffen. He was a splendid newspaperman and warm friend.—A. R. Alloway, Oshawa Times.

The Toronto Star.

The Toronto Star says editorially to-day: "Perry J. Giffen, managing director of the Peterborough Examiner, whose untimely death is reported today, was a member of the Star's advertising staff prior to taking a position with the Edmonton Journal, which he left only about one year ago to come east again. He recently presided over the opening of The Examiner's new building, and no one would have predicted this unfortunate end to so promising a career."

From the C.D.N.A.

"The president, directors and members of the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association have learned with deepest regret the death of Perry J. Giffen, business manager of The Peterborough Examiner, after a long illness, from which apparently he had been convalescing successfully. Mr. Giffen's efficiency in business as well as his personal traits of friendship had earned the respect and affection of the daily newspapermen throughout Canada, and our deepest sympathy is extended to his family and to the directors of your publication."—Arthur Partridge, manager of Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association.

William R. Wallace, advertising manager of the Toronto Star, wired as follows: "As former colleagues, may I extend the sympathy of the advertising department of The Star to The Examiner and the family in sad bereavement in the loss of Perry J. Giffen."

H. B. Muir, President of The Examiner, and his associate, W. Rupert Davies, managing editor of The Kingston Whig-Standard, have been in close telephone connection with Peterborough since early this morning. Both arrived in the city this afternoon. "Not only was Perry Giffen a friend of many years' standing," said Mr. Muir, "but we regarded him as one of the best newspaper executives in the country. We were delighted when it was found possible to bring him to Peterborough. The news of his death came so suddenly and so unexpectedly that for the moment it is difficult to give adequate expression of the esteem and affection which I had for Mr. Giffen. This I do know,—in the comparatively short time he had been in Peterborough he built a place for himself in the community life exactly as I expected he would do."

FIVE YEARS FOR BULLOCK

Pleads Guilty To Robbery And Slugging Garageman.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 19 (C P)—James Bullock Brantford who pleaded guilty in county police court here a week ago to charges in connection with the robbery of Melvin Lachman's garage at Plattsville during which Lachman was slugged as he and his assistant attempted to stop the marauders, was today sentenced to five years in penitentiary. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing the general store of Clark and Grant, Teeterville, of goods to the value of $600 and was given a second five year term, running concurrent with the first.

YEAR FOR BIGAMY

Man and Woman Get Same Sentence.

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 19 (C.P.). —Sentences of one year each in reformatories were to-day imposed by Magistrate Arnold on Mrs. Mary Almeda Thibodeau and David John Edwards of Chatham for bigamy. The woman will go to the Mercer Institution, and the man to the Prison Farm at Guelph.

Following their apprehension two weeks ago, the couple admitted going through a form of marriage before Rev. Mr. James at Thamesville in August, 1935. There are two children by the bigamous union, and Mrs. Thibodeau has a family of four. Arrangements have been made for the care of the children, Crown Attorney H. D. Smith, K.C., announced.

Valentine Tea Is Very Successful.

A very successful and pretty Valentine tea was held on Thursday afternoon at the Prince of Wales School, under auspices of the Home and School Association.

The guests were received by the association president, Mrs. H. Darling, and the president of the Home and School Council, Mrs. G. A. Spicer. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. R. Morris at a central table arranged with red cupids on a lace cloth, red candles, and a beautiful central bouquet of tulips, narcissus, pussy willow sprays and fern, filling a silver basket placed on a mirror reflector. A dozen individual teatables scattered about the room were done with tulips and Valentine serviettes.

The Social convenors, Mrs. Reg. Gurney and Mrs. W. Constable, were in charge of arrangements, assisted in various ways by Mesdames N. Todd, G. Davis, C. Gardner, Roy Parnell, G. Webb, O. Kidd, G. Worboy, H. Beatty, P. Black, F. J. Frape.

A pleasing musical program, in charge of Mrs. G. Davis, included piano music by Mrs. Charles Ross, Edward Rowe and Adele Fitzgerald; a musical reading by Mrs. George Rowe; vocal solos by Mrs. N. Todd, and a tap dance by Betty Jackson.

A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. S. Shields, Mrs. N. Foster and Mrs. G. Penhall.

Banquet for St. Paul's Choir.

The annual banquet of appreciation by the congregation of the excellent work done by the choir throughout the year was a happy event of Thursday night in the Sunday School auditorium of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, with the members of the Ladies' Aid Society acting as hostesses. Choir members and their friends sat at tables prettily arranged with green and white streamers, potted plants, silver vases filled with daffodils and yellow candles. A delicious dinner was served by the members of the Ladies' Aid Society, supervised by the president, Mrs. C. Blewett.

Half-minute speeches which lauded the good work of the choir were made by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, Dr. J. J. Craig, E. F. Mason, H. Dodds, W. L. Ferguson, W. H. Taylor and O. M. Steer. As the speakers kept within the time limit imposed, a small gift was presented to each one.

A gift of tobacco was also presented by the members of the Sunday School orchestra to their conductor, M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O.

After a hearty vote of appreciation to the members of the Ladies' Aid, a pleasant program of entertainment included a cornet solo by Miss May Birchard and the playing of games and quoits, with President Adam Sands as chairman.

New Honor For W. J. O'Brien.

Friends here of William J. O'Brien of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, where he was principal of St. Peter's High School and where his father, the late Michael O'Brien, was Inspector of Separate Schools, will be interested in the following excerpt from the current issue of The Catholic Register:

"William J. O'Brien of Toronto, who has just been appointed Manager of the Trusts and Estates Department of the Chartered Trust and Executor Company, is a son of the late Michael O'Brien, former Separate School Inspector, and Secretary of the Catholic Educational Council of Ontario. He received his early education in the Separate School and High School at Peterborough, and later at St. Michael's College, Toronto. He graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1920, and then joined the staff of Chartered Trust and Executor Co.

"Mr. O'Brien served overseas in the Great War from 1915 to 1919, joining the 25th Battery as a gunner, and receiving a field commission during the Somme offensive in the Fall of 1915, and later serving as Lieutenant with 1st Brigade Canadian Field Artillery. At the conclusion of hostilities he was Adjutant of this Brigade. He also served during the last 100 days of offensive on the Intelligence Staff of the First French Army.

"He is a charter member of the Newham Club, Toronto, and since the club opened its new premises at 89 St. George Street in 1921, he has been Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Governors. He is also Treasurer of the newly - formed Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society of York County. He has been a member of the

Navy blue bias bands—give a peasant touch to this full-skirted dress of raspberry synthetic novelty crepe.

The solid navy color is "picked up" again in the tiny buttons down the front of the tight bodice.

A peasant print crepe silk would also be very effective for this little "girl" type dress.

You'll want to use the pattern again for summer and choose a peasant print cotton in red and green with red trim or plain misty-blue linen with copper trim.

It's easy to cut and sew with the illustrated dressmaking chart included. The cost is moderate. The 16 year size takes only 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with 16½ yards of bias bands.

Style No. 2556 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19 years.

DR. BRUCE OFFERS MEDAL FOR PLAY

Open To Best Of Native Productions In Western Section Of Ontario

GALT, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP).—Clubs and theatre groups staging Canadian plays in the fifth annual Western Ontario drama festival here had an added incentive today to excel themselves following the announcement by Hon. Herbert A. Bruce he would offer a Lieutenant-Governor's medal for the best native play produced in the western section of the province.

Dr. Bruce made the announcement last night as he witnessed the three plays opening the three-day festival. The plays drew some pointed criticism from Adjudicator George de Warfaz, London, Eng., who will choose the section winner to receive the festival award Saturday.

The Galt players, who offered a comedy, "Heaven on Earth," erred by treating it in "too comic a manner," M. de Warfaz said. He had words of praise, however, for Kathleen Moyer, who acted the part of Laura Hubbard, the mother, and for the scenery and lighting effects.

Individual players for the most part were singled out by the adjudicator in his criticism of "The Man Who Wouldn't Go to Heaven," presented by the London Little Theatre. Henry C. Fairbank, who impersonated Timothy, the Fool, gave the best performance of the night, M. de Warfaz said. H. W. Auden, Loraine M. Smith, Clara Malcolm, George Morehead and Vincent Perry were commended on their ability.

The Sarnia Drama League's "Who Killed Me," was termed a "very bad, tedious and unnatural play, made worse by the producer with its comic furniture." C. Q. Woodrow and Pam Haney were praised on their acting by the adjudicator. He termed the diction of Gale Gilry "wonderful," but she expressed too little emotion.

Transient In Need Of Shoes Raises Repairs Among Police.

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP).—Stratford's husky policemen aren't so tough, as George Scott, a transient, found out.

Scott applied at the police station for a meal and asked if they knew how he could get a new pair of shoes from town authorities.

Stratford doesn't give away shoes to transients, but the policemen did the best they could. They raised enough to have Scott's shoes repaired.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

LOVE, Hope, and Joy, fair pleasure's smiling train,
Hate, Fear, and Grief, the family of pain,
These mixed with art, and to due bounds confin'd
Make and maintain the balance of the mind.
—Pope's Essay on Man.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever stop to think that everything you feel lies all in the mind? And it is up to us as to what we let stay in our minds. None of us have all sunshine, neither have we all shadow in our lives, but there is a mixture of both.

As a rule, troubles do not come singly, but one follows close on the heels of the other, until you begin to wonder if it will ever end. And yet, you cannot forget that things please or irritate you all inside of the mind. When you have much physical pain, it is your body that is suffering, and mental pain causes your brain to suffer.

But pain of any kind is not visible. You cannot take and handle it, as you would a dish or a piece of cloth. You can see the evidence of it alright, but under no circumstances can you see itself.

And yet severe bodily pain can be helped by the way we think about it. In fact anything can be helped by right thinking, but the trouble is that we have never been taught how to think properly, and so that is why we go around in a daze most of the time.

We are taught, (or left to find out for ourselves) about morality and immorality, but the trouble again is, no one explains to us that our thoughts control these things. When we have been taught about good, it is generally painted in such a form like, "be good and you'll be lonely" sort of stuff. Never do they tell us of the inward peace and satisfaction we get when we do try to be good.

We love someone, and they say or do something unkind to us, and if only we knew how to stop thinking about it, how much happier we would be. But I do think we are going in the right direction when we study psychology, for that and that alone shows us how our thoughts control our destinies and happiness.

If you think you are happy why, you are happy, and if you think you are unhappy, all the things that the world is full of cannot bring this happiness to us. Really and truly our thoughts control us. You could not move your little finger if the thought impulses were stopped in your brain.

And what is all this leading up to? It leads to the fact that until we learn to think right, we shall always be in a muddle, we shall torture ourselves unnecessarily, we shall hurt and be hurt.

The curious thing is, that when you have learned to control your thoughts, you find it much easier than the haphazard way we think now. Most of us have a disorderly mind, all cluttered up with the hard things that have happened to us, and the cobwebs of the years that have gone, the loved ones we have lost, and the ills real or fancied that portance to the important things, we have endured.

Once we learn, we shall give in and burn up with the fires of indifference the no-account things. We shall learn to store up in our minds all that is good or beautiful, all that we liked, all the friends we have had and the places we have seen.

No longer shall our minds be stored with useless out-of-date happenings, like an attic crowded with junk. Periodically we shall clean the house of our minds, saying out you go to the thoughts that have outgrown their usefulness. We will not tolearte broken furniture, nor old rags and tags of clothing, but oh how we store up bits and torn ends of thoughts which are no good to anyone, all dusty with age.

So, if you are going to spring-clean your house or store or office or factory, do for your own sake, housclean your mind, and let some worthwhile thoughts occupy the space taken up now by all these worn out ones. More later.

Your Friend
ROBERTA.

Weddings

EDWARDS—WEBB.

HASTINGS, Feb. 19.—The chapel of St. John's Anglican church, Smith Falls, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding when Rev. R. E. Osborne united in marriage Marjorie Louisa, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Webb of Smith Falls, formerly of Alnwick township and George Alexander, second eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Edwards of Smith Falls.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a picture of girlish loveliness in her wedding gown of heaven blue satin, made in Princess style on long, graceful lines. She wore silver slippers and a floral and silver head dress and carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliffe roses tied with long white and silver streamers. The bridesmaid, Miss Alda Louisa Bretzlaff of Ottawa, was charming in a gown of shell pink crepe with brown hat and slippers to match, and wore a shoulder bouquet of yellow Fusia and Talisman roses. Dr. William Edwards, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony a wedding reception and luncheon was held at Arran Hall. Miss Gwen Hyndman receiving the large number of invited guests. Tables were prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, pink tapers and roses and a large white bell hung over the bridal table centred with a large wedding cake.

Afterwards the young couple left on a wedding trip to Montreal and points east, the bride travelling in an ensemble of green with hat, purse and gloves to match. On their return they will take up residence here.

During the past few weeks several entertainments and showers have been held in Smith Falls in honor of the bride.

Social Service Worker from Cobourg Tells of Defectives

Asks Peterborough Women To Provide Employment For Trained Girls

GOOD WORKERS

A suggestion to the Local Council of Women that they take an active interest, through their affiliated societies, in the employment of girls who have been trained for domestic service at the Ontario Hospital at Cobourg, was made to the Council members at their meeting on Thursday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., by Miss M. S. Poulson, the social service worker from the Hospital who comes to Peterborough twice a month with the psychiatrist and psychologist who have charge of the fortnightly Mental Health Clinics here. The psychiatrist examines the patient physically and mentally, the psychologist gives the Intelligent Quotient test, and the social worker establishes direct contact with the patients and their environment. Miss Poulson gave a brief account of the system in her address to the Local Council.

The meeting, with the president, Mrs. C. M. Scott, in the chair, heard reports by affiliated societies whose annual records were not included in the business of last month, also the reports of several convenors of Standing committees, including Mrs. Karl Simpson, for the Telephone committee; Mrs. B. F. McNeely, Citizenship committee; and Mrs. Joseph Mills, Professions and Employment for Women. Mrs. Simpson, in her report, expressed gratitude for "unfailing co-operation," to her group of assistants: Mesdames R. G. Cottrell, W. Stocker, S. C. Kernaghan, F. Millard, W. G. Scott, G. Snowden, N. Stanger.

Reports for affiliated societies were presented as follows: Mrs. T. W. H. Young, for the 57th Regiment Chapter of the I.O.D.E. and for the Church Women's Association of St. John's; Mrs. F. E. Johnston, for the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United Church; Miss Margaret Ferguson, for the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's; Mrs. P. Hetherington for the Women's Association of George Street United Church; Mrs. W. H. Morton for the W.M.S. of George Street Church; Mrs. R. Bugg for the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion and for the Ladies' Liberal Association; Mrs. P. M. Somerville for the Young Women's Christian Association; Miss Emily Hand for the Women's Art Association; Mrs. J. Mills for the Well Babies' Clinic.

At the conclusion of the reports, Mrs. Scott spoke with warm praise of the fine work carried on by the affiliated societies.

Resume of Meetings

Mrs. Scott reviewed for the ladies the deliberations of the recent executive meeting of the National Council of Women in Toronto, which she attended, and announced that the annual convention of the National Council will be held this summer in Hamilton, instead of Vancouver, as scheduled, the latter point having been abandoned owing to greater travelling expense for delegates. The semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Council is to be held in Stratford in May.

A letter from the Provincial Council in Toronto was read, speaking of the inadequacy of funds received by the Provincial, the total sum of $100 which represents its annual intake being sufficient only to cover costs of correspondence and printing, while the officers who desire to travel in the interests of the Council and its work are compelled to pay their own expenses.

To obviate this difficulty, the suggestion is made by the Provincial Council that public-minded women to be known as "Sustaining Members" be approached and asked to contribute the sum of five dollars annually to cover these expenses.

Mrs. Scott brought to the attention of the ladies the Home Improvement project in the city, and asked her hearers to interest themselves in it. She also suggested as a local need more adequate provision for children's playgrounds.

The Council approved the action of the executive in sponsoring the bestowal of an Honorary Life Membership in the National Council on Mrs. J. Wesley Bundy of Toronto, possessor of a long and honorable career in Council activities. It also decided to carry on as at present with Mrs. E. Wand acting as substitute corresponding secretary, until the return of Mrs. B. Law from Quebec, the latter having written offering to resign the office owing to her absence from the city for some months to come.

Miss Poulson's Talk

"Mental defectives and mental patients are different people altogether," declared Miss Poulson in the outset of her talk. "The first has been born defective and will require supervision all during his or her lifetime, while the second has been made a mental case through some cause such as friction in the home or the depression, which worked much havoc with the minds of men especially who had been workers all their lives and found themselves deprived of employment. But they usually come back to a normal state."

There are six mental hospitals in the province and two for mental defectives, one at Orillia and one at Cobourg. The latter has ceased to be known as an asylum, as was formerly the case, and is now an institution devoted to the care of mentally defective girls from the ages of 18 to 34 years.

Referring to the Mental Health Clinics, Miss Poulson said: "The public pays for this work, but it doesn't know much about it. I go to the schools in Cobourg and Port Hope, but don't do much in Peterborough because these cases should come to us from the school nurses."

Miss Poulson said that her work consists of visits to the home and to the parents in the home, of advice given to the school teachers as to the standard of the child. "Here in Peterborough, not enough advantage is taken of it," she declared.

The speaker referred several times to the damage caused by "friction in the home," and said that investigations start in the pre-natal stages and with the parents of the child examined, and proceed right through the child's early illnesses.

At the Cobourg institution, two full years' training is given the girls in work in the laundry, in the sewing-room and dining-room, and in housework generally, so that they may be turned out good domestics. In two Colony Houses maintained in Toronto, there are twenty of these trained girls. After a two-year probation term, they are discharged, if they have homes to which they may go.

At the Cobourg Hospital, said Miss Poulson, there is a large waiting-list for admission, and the superintendent wished her to try to interest Peterborough women in hiring some of these girls, who would be under her supervision.

In her talk, Miss Poulson stressed the lamentable lack of proper knowledge evidenced by these girls, many of whom, she declared, went astray through ignorance. They learned about life from undesirable sources, instead of in their homes and many of them, she said, were unwanted children who came down there from Children's Aid Societies, never knowing what it was to have a father or mother, a proper background, or a chance to act as normal people.

C.P.R. TO TEAR UP PT. McNICOLL LINE

Over 600 Box Cars Stored On Road From Lindsay Will Be Scrapped

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 19.—According to official information received here today, the C.P.R. Port McNicoll line, running through Lindsay to Medonte, will be torn up, starting April 1. Some eight hundred box cars, which have been standing on the line between Lindsay and Grass Hill, will be moved. Fully six hundred of the cars will be scrapped. No move has been made by the C.P.R. to abandon the Lindsay-Dranoel line. Such action would leave Bethany without train service.

The sudden death took place on Wednesday at Manilla of Charles Powley, a well-known resident of the village. The deceased, who was in his seventy-seventh year, is survived by one son and one daughter.

George Wool, a pioneer resident of Somerville Township, passed away a few days ago in his eighty-first year. The deceased was a native of England, and when coming to this country first settled in Verluam Township.

A pioneer engineer of the C.P.R., in the person of Nicholas Leber, passed away in Bobcaygeon this week. The deceased, who was born in Guernsey Island, brought the first passenger train into Bobcaygeon in 1903. He is survived by his wife, one son, one daughter and one brother.

Mossom Walker, caretaker of the Janetville rink, was the victim of a painful accident this week. He was assisting at a sawing bee in the village when his left hand came in contact with the saw. He sustained a bad gash across the palm and severe lacerations on the little finger and thumb.

Rev. M. Zeidman, of Toronto, was the speaker at an Orange gathering here last night. He made a slashing attack on the Roman Catholic Church, claiming that it was responsible for all the rebellion and revolution throughout the world at the present time. He urged his hearers to unite against all dictatorships, ecclesiastical as well as political.

HAROLD NICHOLSON CONDITION SERIOUS

Former Ball Player Was To Undergo Operation In Kingston Hospital

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 19 (CP).—The condition of Harold Nicholson, former well-known hockey and baseball player of Kingston, was reported as serious in the Kingston General Hospital, where he has been with sinus trouble for several days. An operation was to be performed today.

Nicholson formerly played with Kingston Frontenacs, and in 1912 was defence player for Frontenac Seniors when they played off with Toronto Eatons for the championship. The Kingston team included the late George Richardson, the late "Scotty" Davidson and others, while "Glad" Murphy, "Jerry" Laflamme and Rankin were Toronto players.

In addition Nicholson played centre field for Kingston ball teams for several years, being one of the greatest fly catchers to ever don a uniform for Kingston.

PERFECT HUSBAND NEEDS 10 QUALITIES FOR FANNY BRICE

Suggests He Be Comforting, Have Sense Of Humor, Be Man Woman Can Respect

TIPS FOR WIVES

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 — (A.P.). — Thrice-married Fanny Brice, throaty singer of Broadway's famous torching, "My Man," to-day told of 10 qualifications for the "perfect husband."

She threw in four tips to her own sex of appraising this human paragon—"just to make the subject more complicated."

Her 10-point specification:

1. He should be as comforting as old pair of slippers—and have the glamour of new shoes for romancing.
2. He should wear old-fashioned underwear.
3. He should grow up as the woman grows older.
4. He should have the technique not to let the woman he loves find it out when he steps out—as all men will.
5. He should like children.
6. He should be interested in his wife's career or profession, for that "interest in work" business works two ways.
7. He should be a man a woman does not always have to put on an act for.
8. He should be enough interested in his wife's appearance to compliment her.
9. He should have a sense of humor.
10. And tops—a man a woman can respect.

Here's the advice she handed women:

1. Don't expect too much—you won't get it anyway.
2. Treat husband like your children who forget to write but whom you know love you anyway.
3. Don't expect to get in return the love you give.
4. Have interests in common, and your own interests apart.

DRAMA FESTIVAL MAY BE BROADENED

Dominion Executive Think It Time Three-Act Plays Used

OTTAWA, Feb. 19 (CP). — The executive committee of the Dominion drama festival has sent inquiries to interested organizations asking their opinions regarding the proposal to change the festival from a competition for one-act plays to one for works of three acts.

Word that the inquiry had been sent was confirmed by William D. Cromarty, president of the Ottawa Drama League. He said any decision on the matter would be reached probably at the April annual meeting of the festival and not before.

Cromarty said a letter had been sent out in line with a suggestion made last year by H. Granville-Barker, adjudicator in the finals here, that the festival had almost reached the limit of the one-act field and that consideration should be given to the question of whether it could be broadened.

SLIDES ARE CLEARED

Trains Are Again Moving in B. C. Interior.

VANCOUVER, Feb. 19 (C.P.). — Slides which for two days disrupted rail and wire communications in the British Columbia interior were believed to have been cleared to-day and railways officials reported all delayed trains were moving.

Colder weather in the mountains was expected to stiffen the snow blanketing the slopes and so lessen the danger of further slides.

Repair crews worked at high pressure to restore telegraph and telephone lines. Partial service had been restored to-day, but the Kootenay district in the southern interior remained without wire communications.

Police of Weymouth, England, are seeking a thief, believed to be a boy, who leaves a card marked "The Shadow" at the scene of his robberies.

CALVES SOFT SPOT DROP $1 PER CWT. ON TORONTO MART

Cattle Market Has Been Fairly Active And Hold-up Is Cleared Up

WEEKLY SUMMARY

TORONTO, Feb. 19 (C.P.). — Calves were a soft spot on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported, dropping $1.00 cwt. Cattle sold at steady to firm prices, while hogs regained an early loss of 25 cents. Lambs were steady to 25 cents lower in spots, quality considered. Receipts were about in line with last week's run.

The cattle market was fairly active on the small supply. A holdover of 700 head from Monday was cleaned up by the close. Buffalo reported several hundred Canadian cattle selling slightly down from last week's levels. Shipments to United States from Toronto were light.

Choice steers and heifers showed small advances near the close. Medium to good weighty steers brought $5.50 to $6.75. Some choice heavies sold from $7 to $7.50. Butcher cattle were mostly between $5 and $5.75. Tops closing at $6. A few choice light steers reached $6.50 cwt.

Choice fed calves went as high as $8, with mediums generally at $6 to $7. Butcher cows ranged from $3. to $4.50, with canners and cutters between $1.75 and $2.50. Top butcher bulls were priced at $4, while bolognas moved slowly at $3.25 to $3.60.

A few good stockers traded at $4.60 to $4.85, with common as low as $3.25. Milkers and springers sold about steady at $60 to $65 for tops on untested kinds.

Calves opened at $10 for tops, but slipped to $9. Common lights closed at $4 to $6. Shipments to United States totalled about 1,000 head. Desired weights for export calves were from 165 to 195 pounds and heavier calves were discounted towa s the close.

Off-truck bacon hogs firmed after early weakness to close at $8.25 to $8.35. Sows were mostly $6 cwt. with export buyers taking the majority. Packers quoted rail-grade hogs delivered on a basis of $10.75 to $11 cwt.

Sheep generally ranged downward from $5 cwt. though some good light Western ewes went at $5.50.

OBITUARY

W. W. COLLINS.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 19.—Word was received yesterday of the death of Mr. W. W. Collins of Darlingford, Man. Mr. Collins was well-known in the district, having resided at White Lake, prior to his departure to Manitoba nearly thirty years ago; since that time he has resided in or near Darlingford. His wife, who was formerly Julia Fox, predeceased him about two years ago. Surviving are three sons and one daughter, John Collins of Saskatchewan, Jarvis Collins of Darlingford, Keith Collins at home, and Ottie (Mrs. Wm. Davis) of Thornhill, Man.

Mr. Collins had been in good health and spent six weeks last summer visiting friends in and around Tweed. In November he was the victim of an accident in which several ribs were fractured; later pneumonia developed and complications set in which were the cause of his death.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 19.—Word has been received here of the death of Michael Donald, fifteen months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Casey, at the home of his parents, in Rochester, N.Y., on Wednesday, following a short illness. Mrs. Peter Casey and other members of the family were recent visitors in Rochester, when the infant was in the best of health. He later contracted a cold and died within a few days.

MARY AGNES HUNT.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 19.—The death occurred at Read, of a well-known citizen, Mary Agnes Hunt, wife of Mr. Pat Hart, on Thursday. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and two children, Rosaleen of Belleville and Harold of Detroit.

Skating Queen Demonstrates Grace

FOUR OF QUEBEC'S LIBERALS OPPOSE DEFENCE PROGRAM

Minister Lapointe presented the Foreign Enlistment Act to replace the British Act of 1870 which up to now has been in force in Canada.

Wider Than British Law.

The new measure is modelled on the British law but is adapted to modern conditions and is more sweeping in character. It would prohibit not only enlistment for service in foreign wars of an international or civil character but would also ban recruiting or enticing for such services on pain of imprisonment or terms up to [illegible] years and fines up to $2,000.

Sharp denunciation of its treatment of the defence issue was levelled at a section of the Quebec press by H. E. Brunelle (Lib. Champlain).

A great deal of the Quebec press was trying to mislead the people and make political capital of the issue, he said. Many papers were guilty of falsehood, sins of omission and commission, regarding the attitude of the cabinet and particularly the ministers from Quebec.

Naming one paper in particular (L'Illustration), he declared it was showing how "vile, low, reptilish, a newspaper can be in the paid service of unscrupulous partisans."

He lauded the service being performed by the independent press for the people of Quebec.

Mr. Brunelle made it clear that he was not getting nearer the Conservatives when he found he had to vote against the government. Rather, he was getting farther away from the Conservatives, who were the imperialists.

Tremblay In Favor

L. D. S. Tremblay (Lib. Dorchester) said he was the father of 11 children and did not want them to endure the suffering of war, yet he was in favor of the defence estimates. Canada could not rely on the protection of Great Britain and the United States, he said. Belgium was an outstanding example of a country with powerful friendly neighbors whose territory was invaded.

"We are not arming against anybody," he said, "but we want everybody to know that we are prepared to defend our territory."

Mrs. Jacques held the best guarantee for external security was internal security, but few Canadians now enjoyed security. The condition of hundreds of thousands of Canadians, he said, was a national disgrace.

J. A. Verville (Lib. Lotbiniere), in French, declared himself against the amendment and against the increase in the estimates. He saw no immediate danger and no reason for increasing defence estimates. He deplored the fact that at the same time the agricultural estimates had been reduced.

He believed defence for Canada useless, because even the most Canada could do would not provide the expected security.

He objected to the estimates for warships and aircraft being spent in England. If it was to be spent in Canada he might have supported it, he said. He questioned whether it would not be an indirect contribution to British arms plans.

Armand Sylvestre (Lib., Lake St. John-Roberval) was also against both the amendment and the estimates increase. Arms and munitions were only of benefit to munitions manufacturers, he said.

He had always been opposed to militarism and imperialism, so felt compelled to vote against the estimates.

Not Over Last War Yet

Wilfrid Lacroix (Lib., Quebec-Montmorency) declared Canada had not yet recovered from the crisis of 1914 which left this country with $4,000,000,000 debt.

While this Government might intend to use its armament only for defence another government might do otherwise, he suggested. Under Section 64 of the Militia Act, he claimed, troops might be sent out of Canada for defence purposes, by the Governor-in-Council.

As to participation in the League of Nations, he said, in the event of war between Japan and Russia, since the latter was a league member, Canada would be required to defend Communism.

For these and other reasons, he said he would oppose the increased estimates as well as the amendment.

Mr. Kuhl contended war was not an incurable disease, nor inevitable.

Advocates of greater defence estimates pleaded the defence of democracy, he said; but if what Canada had to-day was democracy, it was not worth saving.

The world was said to be dividing between Fascism and Communism, but Canada was already suffering from a financial dictatorship.

Canada had the facilities and wealth to make its people healthy and happy, living in good houses, but instead they were languishing because the country had no money.

He was not yet convinced of the necessity of arming Canada, but if it was necessary it could be done without loading the people with debt.

Because the Government had not carried out its election promises, he said, he would support the amendment.

Duffus Favors Outlay

J. J. Duffus (Lib., Peterborough West), said he had assumed that everyone saw the need for increased defence so clearly that he had not intended to speak on the issue.

The need of an adequate defence force should be as apparent as the need of local police protection, to guard against any insidious outbreak, he felt.

CHEETAHS MAY RACE

LONDON (CP)—K. C. G. Dower, big game hunter, has 12 cheetahs—hunting leopards—in kennels here and they may be used for track racing. The big "cats" are trained in India for coursing and are said to be the fastest of all four-legged creatures over the quarter-mile.

SENATOR HOCKEN DIES IN TORONTO

fighter for Toronto's welfare, for the Conservative Party and the Orange Order. When E. F. Clarke died in 1905 he took over The Orange Sentinel as editor and president of The Sentinel Publishing Company. In 1926 Senator Hocken, former Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of British North America, sold the paper to the order, but remained as editor.

Fought For Toronto 21 Years

His public spirit was emphasized in the great struggle he waged for years after he submitted in 1910 the subway scheme to relieve Toronto's street railway problem. For 21 years the short, slight, bearded Senator fought the city's problems.

He was member of the Board of Education and an alderman. In 1907 he became a member of the Board of Control and five years later was mayor of his home city, a post he long cherished, as chief magistrate he was re-elected in 1913 and the following year.

In 1917 he went to the House of Commons as member for Toronto West Centre and a supporter of the Borden Union Government. He held the seat as a Conservative until 1930 when he quit the Dominion field only to return to Ottawa Dec. 30, 1933 as a Conservative Senator.

When Hon. George Brown was owner of the Toronto Globe he joined the paper as an apprentice printer. From there he went to the Toronto News to become foreman of the composing room, reporter and editorial writer. He became managing editor of the paper in 1895.

It was during his career as composing room foreman of the News that the mechanical setting machines appeared. He joined in opposing the new machines, quitting the paper with the entire staff when they went on strike.

He was destined to return to the News, however, but before this transpired he joined W. F. Maclean, who became editor of the Toronto World, in founding the Toronto Star.

Born in Toronto Oct. 12, 1857, he was the son of Richard Hocken. His marriage to Isabella Page took place in 1880 and they had four children. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. W. R. Plawman and Mrs. F. D. Chapman of Toronto, and one son, H. G. Hocken, also of Toronto. Richard, a second son, was killed in action during the war.

MRS. SPIEGELBERG PRODUCES A PLAY

Wife Of Santa Fe's Mayor Makes Debut As Playwright At 80

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(CP)—Mrs. Flora Spiegelberg, who prefers to be known as Great Grandma Spiegelberg, made her debut as a playwright Sunday when her fantasy, "Princess Goldenhair and the Wonderful Flower," was enacted by a cast of East Side children.

Mrs. Spiegelberg sat with the critics in the front row. Like most playwrights she was a little disturbed by the liberties taken with her script.

There were not enough dwarfs in the third act to suit Mrs. Spiegelberg.

"I put the dwarfs in to emphasize good will and kindness," she said. "Dwarfs are good-will folk who do good deeds simply for the good they do and not for compensation."

Mrs. Spiegelberg is the wigow of Willi (Handsome Willi) Spiegelberg, a former mayor of Santa Fe, N.M. She is the oldest living American pioneer woman of New Mexico.

Born in New York 80 years ago she went to Santa Fe after her marriage in 1874.

"The Indians were on the warpath," recalled Mr. Spiegelberg between acts, "but they didn't catch up with us. The trip by stagecoach from Colorado took six days and six nights."

CROWNING PLANS REFLECT CHANGE

Events Of The Last 25 Years Bring Their Imprint To Program

LONDON, Feb. 19 (CP). — King George VI's Coronation program shows many changes from that of his father, George V, in 1911.

Radio will enable His Majesty to broadcast a Coronation message to his people throughout the Empire.

The Great War, resulting in the creation of the great leagues of ex-servicemen, brings another change, and at the end of June the King will review a representative gathering of these war veterans.

In 1911 Crystal Palace was the scene of a Festival of Empire and the gathering place of 100,000 school-children. Today the Crystal Palace is a ruin, destroyed by fire.

King George V visited Dublin following the Coronation. The new King will go to Belfast instead. For King George V the day before the Coronation was a Day of Intercession. This has been omitted this time.

In 1911 the King and Queen made a "Royal Progress" through London. This year, instead, the Coronation procession route itself has been lengthened to allow as many people as possible to see the majestic pageant.

MINARD'S "KING OF PAIN" LINIMENT

Deafness May Be Due To Catarrh.
People should be taught to recognize the symptoms of catarrh, because here is one ailment which can do a lot of damage if treatment is neglected. Loss of taste and smell and a general, lazy, let-down feeling often result from neglect of this trouble. The hearing becomes impaired to such an extent that partial deafness may result. Too, catarrh causes head noises, a roaring, hissing in the ears; the ears have a full, stuffy feeling in the morning when you awake. All these symptoms should have immediate care.
For this purpose secure from your druggist a bottle of Parmint Concentrate (double strength) which is an old reliable English formula. One ounce of this concentrate will make 8 ounces of medicine by adding a little sugar and water.
Parmint Concentrate is a handy home treatment for those symptoms which lead to catarrhal deafness and head noises and should be used by everyone who is troubled this way. Any druggist can supply Parmint Concentrate and you can easily add water and sugar to make a big bottle of the medicine. It is an excellent preparation and is widely used by our English cousins. If you have the annoying symptoms of catarrh, don't run the risk of letting it become so deep seated that you may lose your hearing.

NEW AIRPLANE GUN BEING DEVELOPED

Fairchild Experts Experiment On Firing Through Hub Of Propellor Shaft

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (A.P.). — An airplane engine with an aircraft "cannon," which fires heavy projectiles through the centre of the propeller shaft hub is being developed by the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, Sherman Fairchild, president, announced today.

He said that by eliminating the necessity of synchronizing gunfire with the revolution of the propeller it would be possible to use heavy calibre, rapid fire weapons.

The projectiles, he said, are 20 times the weight of ordinary machine gun bullets.

PLANS OUTLINED FOR IMPROVING HOMES IN CITY

Group Of Citizens Chosen Who Will Become Nucleus Of General Committee

WORK FOR YOUNG MEN

With characteristic enthusiasm and "confidence in Peterborough," Roland Denne discussed Thursday night the plans of organization for the success of the federal government's Home Improvement Plan in Peterborough district with a group of citizens who become the nucleus of the general committee which will be expanded next week.

Among those present were Mrs. (Dr.) C. M. Scott, president of the Local Council of Women; Alderman Jas. Hamilton representing Mayor Macdonald; Fred J. Overend, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Thomas J. McMurray, president of the Trades and Labor Council; Alderman James Dutton, D. B. Faulkner of the Bank of Commerce, T. L. Ashton of the Peterborough Examiner, Al Sharpe, president of the Kiwanis Club, Max J. Swanston, president of the Lions Club, Jas. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

The next step in the procedure of organization is to enlist the co-operation of the various groups of tradesmen in the city who are being invited to meet separately in the Chamber of Commerce board room on designated evenings next week and appoint their own representative to the general committee.

Group Meetings

The following dates have been assigned to these groups:—

Tuesday night—the building contractors, carpenters and roofers.

Wednesday night — bricklayers, plasterers, cement men and stonemasons.

Thursday night — plumbers, steamfitters, sheet metal workers and tinsmiths.

Friday—Painters and decorators.

These meetings are being called for 7.30 o'clock on the four evenings of next week.

When the general committee has been fully recruited, and it has authority to add its numbers whenever additional help is required, various essential subcommittees will be appointed to give the Home Improvement Plan all the driving power that can be mustered to ensure its successful operation in this district.

Mayor Vice-Chairman

Mayor Macdonald was appointed vice-chairman, and Mr. Dorris secretary.

On Mr. Overend's motion, seconded by Mr. Faulkner, the responsibility of assembling a speakers' committee was passed on to Alderman Dutton who in accepting this post said: "I shall try to do the best I can."

Alderman Hamilton referred to the fact that the city council had already endorsed the Home Improvement Plan as a means of providing employment.

"The council suggested to the government that it might consider the removal of the sales tax from the materials used in home improvements, but I suppose that would involve certain difficulties," Ald. Hamilton said.

Appeal to Women

Mr. Denne extended a welcome to Mrs. Scott as the representative of the Local Council of Women. He said that the women of the city and district could do a great deal in helping to explain the details of the Home Improvement Plan, and when the public thoroughly understood it he believed that a large number of home owners would take advantage of it.

Mrs. Scott said the Local Council of Women had forty affiliate societies in Peterborough and Lakefield. "I know the women will be eager to do their part," Mrs. Scott stated.

A Voluntary Movement

The men who have undertaken the task of promoting the Home Improvement Plan throughout Canada and Ontario were giving their services voluntary and at the request of the government of Canada. From the personnel of the Ontario committee it was obvious that politics had been thrown overboard. The national chairman, Arthur Purvis was giving his time to this big effort to stimulate employment. Ryland H. New, the Ontario chairman, was also acting in the same spirit, and Harry B. Muir of Kingston who visited Peterborough this week as the representative of the Ontario Advisory Committee was actuated by the same motives.

"There are no salaries in this work, and these men are paying their own expenses," Mr. Denne said.

Work For Young Men

"The Ontario committee is organizing local committees in all the centres of the province on that basis because unemployment is not just a local problem but extends throughout the country, and this is an effort to get men work. The country wants to get men off relief, and the slogan is put men on pay rolls," Mr. Denne said.

"If the men of all the trades will get together next week and appoint their representatives in that same spirit there isn't any question about the success of the Plan in Peterborough. And the committee is hopeful that young men who are not employed will find work this season. It will be a start for them possibly in learning some trade or other. That is what we are hoping for, here and everywhere else, and if we all go into it in that way we are bound to get a large number of men off relief."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, February 20

A RATHER interesting and eventful day, with sudden developments, may be expected, judging by the predominant planetary influences. Employment is under excellent auspices for promotion, increase and favors from superiors or those in power and authority. New plans and propositions may be presented to these persons with an assurance of co-operation.

Those whose birthday it is face a year of progress, achievement and promotion, with superiors, employers and those in authority disposed to lend substantial support to worthy propositions.

A child born on this day may be versatile and talented in untried fields. It may win the attention, favors and ready support of employers and those of prestige and power.

GIFFEN FAMILY EARLY SETTLERS IN NOVA SCOTIA

Perry Giffen Direct Descendant Of First Presbyterian Elder In Canada

DEEP SEA FISHERMEN

The passing of Perry J. Giffen recalls early family history, centred almost entirely in Nova Scotia. It was in June of last year that Mr. Giffen received from Miss Ella A. Giffen of Brampton, Ont., a letter asking if Mr. Giffen was related to her family. It was a matter to which Mr. Giffen had given some attention in the past, and he was able to furnish considerable information. From a letter which was written in reply to the one from Brampton, the Examiner is able to present some interesting historical information regarding the Giffen family of Nova Scotia.

In 1749, Simon Giffen and John Giffen, two Scottish gentlemen who had retired from His Majesty's service after serving for some years in Highland Regiments, arrived in Halifax, Nova Scotia, with Lord Cornwallis, as original settlers of that then pioneer village. Simon was granted 50 acres in what is now the city of Halifax, and a thousand acres at Chester, Nova Scotia, while John had smaller grants near Musquodoboit, Nova Scotia. Simon married a widow named Janet Dwyer, and John died unmarried. The grave stones of all three are in St. Paul's cemetery at Halifax, and they record the death of Simon in 1775, his wife in 1774, and John in 1777.

Perry J. Giffen was a direct descendant of Simon Giffen, who holds the distinction of being the first Presbyterian elder in what is now Canada. His name is engraved on the walls of St. Matthew's Presbyterian church, Halifax, and the transfers of land at various times during his life time, are in the registrar's office in that city.

Shortly after his death his children moved to Lockport and Louis' Head in Shelburne county, Nova Scotia. The Halifax and Chester properties had been deeded to the children of his wife by her former marriage, and from the family properties of the Dwyers of Nova Scotia to this day. The Honorable Michael Dwyer, Minister of Mines of Nova Scotia, is a direct descendant of this lady, who was also Mr. Giffen's distant progenitor.

During the early part of the 19th century, the Giffens of Lockport engaged in the deep sea fishing industry off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and in order to make two trips to the Grand Banks, they put into an unnamed harbor on the eastern shore of Nova Scotia to cure and dry their fish of the first trip, and then returned to the Grand Banks for their second catch of the season. Three families who were thus engaged in the fisheries, fell in love with the little harbor on the eastern coast, and in 1834 Mr. Giffen's grandfather, Simon Giffen, his brother, Samuel Giffen and a cousin, John McMillan, settled in what subsequently was known as Isaac's Harbor, Guysboro' county, Nova Scotia.

Perry J. Giffen's father, Captain Obed Chute Giffen, followed the sea throughout his entire life time, and finished his service as a Captain in the Royal Canadian Navy during the war. He is now 85 years of age, in excellent health, and on the reserve list of Naval Officers. He was one of eighteen children. His sister died last year at the age of 99 years and 3 months, and not one of the 18 died under 72. Three of the eighteen are still alive.

The family removed to Halifax when Perry Giffen was 10 years of age, and he was able to complete his education there in Halifax Academy and Dalhousie University.

The family consisted of ten boys and no girls — Perry was the 9th son. Four boys besides the father served during the recent war.

During the almost two centuries since Simon Giffen arrived in Halifax with Lord Cornwallis, the family have scattered throughout the globe. Judge Nathan Giffen, of New York Supreme Court, wrote a book about the family some years ago, and his son, Mr. Nathan Giffen, an Attorney at Law, situated at 20 Broadway, New York, has kept as far as has been possible, a running chronology of the family. He found there were then living, over 1,800 descendants of Simon Giffen, among them being Samuel Giffen, President of the Sun Maid Raisin Company of California, the President of Newton Theological College, over sixty ministers (mostly Congregational and Presbyterian), two judges, and many sea captains.

Captain Huntly O. Giffen, the Commodore of The Canadian National Steamship fleet, is a second cousin of his.

Captain Theodore Giffen had been in correspondence with some of the Giffens of Ontario, and had definitely established the fact that the Giffens of Peel County, and those of Paisley district, had actually moved from Nova Scotia, and were relatives.

Mummies of Pharaohs May Go Back Tombs

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 19. (CP)

THE fate of the Pharohs of ancient Egypt is being considered by the Egyptian Government, and the shrivelled mummies of the kings, now in the Cairo museum, may be returned to their tombs.

Experts are unanimous that the climate of this city is too damp for mummies and that there is danger of the precious relics being damaged by it.

Replacing the mummies in their original resting places in the famous Valley of Kings is considered the happiest solution of the problem.

Once In 40,000,000 Births

"It happens once in 40,000,000 births," that's the comment made by a Detroit clinic director on the unusual case of these two Detroit high school girls, Pauline Taylor No. 1 and Pauline Taylor No. 2. The girls have the same name, look alike, dress alike, think alike, but they are not sisters. They were born on the same day—two hours apart—in different countries. Pauline Taylor No. 1 was born in St. Ignace Mich. Pauline Taylor No. 2 was born in St. Catharines. The girls were brought together when they were both students in an elementary school in Detroit three years ago. They have been inseparable companions ever since. Pictured here is Pauline Taylor (LEFT), born in Michigan, and on RIGHT is Pauline Taylor, born in St. Catharines, Ontario.

KING'S OWN CLASS HAS FINE MEETING

Mrs. L. Bearne Hostess To Members Of St. James' S. S. Organization

Mrs. L. Bearne, Princess street, was hostess to the members of the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' Sunday school on Monday night when their monthly meeting was held with a splendid attendance.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Hess, with Mrs. E. Kitney leading the singing. Mrs. W. K. Sloane read the Scripture lesson and Miss M. Hanbidge offered prayer.

The business session was capably conducted by the president, Mrs. A. Rosborough, and the reports revealed the secret of much of the success of this class.

Many "thank you" cards were received for gifts derived from the "Sunshine Box" and the quilt committee members are very busy at their work meetings, which are held each Friday afternoon.

Much interest was aroused in the report of the talent money brought in as well as in the many new ideas for making it.

Mrs. Ball, convenor of the program, took over the meeting and presented an unusually interesting entertainment, including a Valentine reading by Mrs. Clarke, followed by games and contests. The prizes for these were won by Mesdames Butcher and Clarke.

Delicious refreshments served by the social committee, with Mrs. Stanbury as convenor, were done in Valentine colors and made a pleasing effect.

A sincere vote of appreciation was tendered Mrs. Bearne for her kind hospitality, by Mesdames O. Pearson and J. Pinnie, which the class endorsed with a hearty clapping of hands.

The next meeting will be held March 15th at the home of Mrs. Butcher, Prince street.

URGES TRANSFER OF LORDS' VETO

British M.P. Would Substitute Referendum To Municipal Councils

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 19 (C.P. Cable).—Herbert Williams, Conservative, submitted to the House of Commons to-day a Bill which would substitute a referendum to the municipal councils for the existing House of Lords veto over legislation.

The Bill provides that if the House of Commons so decided, a Bill rejected by the House of Lords would be referred to members of the municipal councils, who would vote on it by ballot. If members of the municipal councils approved the Bill, it would become law after Royal Assent had been given, notwithstanding a refusal by the House of Lords to give its consent.

Local authorities in England and Wales—rural, urban, and county—total 1,700. Their total membership is estimated at 60,000.

The Bill would not affect the present constitution of the House of Lords.

Williams urged the necessity of a second Chamber. He thought the real tragedy of the House of Lords was that its members had lost faith in themselves, the result of which had been that the work of revision was not being done as it should be done.

J. J. Tinker, Labor, moving rejection of the Bill, said he never went to the House of Lords but was glad he was a member of the Commons. The Lords, he said, were like a Sunday School class. He objected to the Bill because he thought the real remedy of the situation was abolition of the Lords.

TABLETS KILL CHILD.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., Feb. 19 (C. The two-year-old daughter of Rev. D. H. McFarlane, pastor of Vankleek Hill United Church, died yesterday after mistaking poison tablets for candy.

Young Patricia was playing in the kitchen when she opened a cupboard and discovered the tablets.

Hsinking, Manchukuo, believed immune to earthquakes, recently experienced a temblor lasting 50 minutes.

The effect of the very mild weather today was enhanced by the very summer-like sight of a motor car travelling south on Water Street with a trim canoe carefully tied on the top of the machine.

BANK CLEARINGS.

An increase of over seventy thousand dollars was reported at the Peterborough Clearing House today over the same week one year ago. Clearings during the past week totalled $575,399, and one year ago they were $505,025.

BRINGS GOOD PRICES.

At a recent sale at the farm of Melville Miller in Douro Township, Durham cows brought as high a price as $61 each, it is reported, while yearlings sold for as high as $36 apiece. The cattle was sold at auction by J. H. Miles, local auctioneer.

WHERE THE STRAWS GO.

Inquiry at Lindsay as to what becomes of all the straws from the curlers' brooms that are strewn over the ice during the season and have to be swept up has disclosed the fact that they are converted into flowers. They are deposited in a Lindsay garden and burned to make fertilizer.

SHOWING AT OSHAWA.

The General Electric "House of Magic" which created so much interest here earlier in the week when it was exhibited in the Collegiate Auditorium under the management of W. A. Gilheany, of Schenectady, is being shown in Oshawa today and tomorrow.

SCRAPPING BOX CARS.

Some 600 of the 800 box cars that have been standing on the abandoned Port McNicoll branch of the C.P.R. between Lindsay and Grass Point are to be scrapped, while it is expected the remainder can be repaired and used again. The track is to be torn up in April. C.P.R. officials in Lindsay doubt the story that the train service to Bethany is to be discontinued.

TICKETS IN DEMAND.

Evidently Peterborough hockey fans regard the clash between the New York Americans and the Toronto Maple Leafs tomorrow night as an attraction well worth seeing. Eddie Wright, who handles the sale of pro. hockey tickets here, states that he had sold 28 tickets up to last night and this number will be increased.

SUM WAS CONTRIBUTED.

Through an error it was suggested in a report of the Humane Society annual meeting that the Society gained a small revenue from the observation of "Humane Sunday" in Peterborough churches last year. The report should have read that they voted a small sum toward the cost of the observation.

TO HAVE LOCAL SHOWING.

"The Land of Promise," a screen epic of a people's rebirth revealing the saga of the Jewish people who are reclaiming Palestine after 2,000 years of wandering, is to be shown at the Regent Theatre here on Sunday at 4 p.m. The picture, which was produced by Leo Herrman for the Palestine Foundation Fund, is being shown locally under auspices of Peterborough Chapter of Hadassah.

TEXTILES TOP OFF BRITISH EXPORT GAIN TO CANADA

Claim Tariff Always Be Needed Long As Other Nations Undersell Home Product

JAPS GIVEN TOO MUCH

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—(CP)—Almost all the United Kingdom's gain in exports to Canada since 1932 has been in Textiles, Roy L. Kellock, counsel for the primary textile industries, said in a brief to be argued before Justice Turgeon's one-man textile royal commission.

British textile industries, Mr. Kellock's brief said, were powerful competitors in the Canadian market and the Canadian cotton textile industry was meeting competition also from the United States.

"Tariffs on textiles will always be necessary so long as other countries produce at a lower cost or sell at prices lower than the cost of production in Canada," said the brief.

British preferential tariffs, set at a point to equalize costs, were therefore required, and higher foreign tariffs were needed to protect the export trade of British mills to Canada against exports from foreign countries, it held.

Not Enough On Jap Goods.

The brief claimed existing duties against importations of Japanese textiles were inadequate to prevent serious inroads in the Canadian market and said it was likely this situation would become more aggravated with the fall in value of the yen.

The trade agreement concluded with Japan which became operative January 1, 1936 stabilized Japanese currency at the five-year average, but in more recent years, said Mr. Kellock, the exchange rate had been lower than in earlier years, and even now "the yen shows definite signs of further decline."

To permit imports on consignment from Japan to enter Canada free of currency dumping duty was an anomaly which resulted in loss of revenue to the government, the brief said. When this was considered side by side with the lack of Canadian government machinery to check fair market values in Japan, it added, the door was open to fraud and unfair competition between Japanese imports and the products of Canadian textile mills.

The most satisfactory means of equalising low costs of production in other countries and costs in Canada was by fixed valuations, counsel argued. So far as Japan was concerned these had been eliminated when the trade treaty became operative.

IRISHMAN TO RUN KING'S STABLES

Capt. Charles Moore Known On Both Country's Courses Succeeds Brig. Tomkinson

LONDON, Feb. 19—(C.P. Cable).—Captain Charles Moore, a familiar figure on English and Irish racecourses, to-day was appointed manager of the King's stables in succession to the late Brigadier H. A. Tomkinson.

Captain Moore, a Papal Count, has been a member of the Jockey Club since 1932, was senior steward of the Irish Turf Club in 1928 and 1929 and has bred and owned racehorses for a number of years.

During the war, when he was captain of the Irish Guards, Moore married the Irish sportswoman, Lady Dorothie Fielding, daughter of the Earl of Denbigh. She was decorated for gallantry while an ambulance driver with the Belgian army. She died in 1935.

Captain Moore inherited from his father, the first Count Moore, Mooresfoot in County Tipperary and Aherlow Castle, Banaha. He is 58 years old, having succeeded his father to the Papal title in 1904.

The Rambling REPORTERS

Should the presidency of the Peterborough Ananias Club go to former Game Warden Fred Marshall? Here's a yarn he was telling yesterday:

"Up by Apsley there is an old settler who is a fiddler of wide local renown. After satisfying the encores of dancers at a country dance until his fiddle arm was tired one night, he was making his way homeward through the dark countryside when a pack of wolves took after him.

"The old settler ran for his life with his fiddle under his arm and took to his barn. The wolves followed him in and he was forced to climb up on the rafters, the vicious animals howling for his hide down below. He knew not what to do until he recalled stories of music charming wild animals and realized he still had his fiddle with him. And so he put the fiddle to his chin and swung the bow into action.

"A few bars and the wolves stopped howling. A few more, and they fell under the influence of the far-famed rhythm. They stood on their hind legs and began to dance. Two hours later, the last wolf fell in exhaustion and the old fiddler descended to make his way to his house unharmed."—C.P.R.

THREE TO COMPETE IN SKI CONTESTS

Peterborough Skiers Have Entered Ontario Championships At North Bay

Three local skiers left the city today for North Bay to represent the Peterborough Ski Club in the Ontario ski championships meet there Saturday and Sunday. They were Otto Laderach, Jack Holland and Andy Rutter.

Winners of club championships here last winter and distinctive participants in the last Ontario championships at Toronto, the three plan to represent the city in all classes of jumping, downhill, slalom and cross-country for which they are eligible.

Their hopes of bringing back trophies for the local club mantel were not bright on their departure and the lack of snow in the Peterborough district this winter has deprived them of needed practice, they stated. They are looking forward to the experience as a stepping stone to championships in future meets, however.

Making the trip at their own expense, the delegation is accompanied by Karl Duffus and Howard Shields. North Bay is reported to have thirteen inches of snow on the ground at present.

LEGION PARADE.

Ex-service men will parade at the Legion Hall on Saturday at 1.15 p.m. sharp to take part in the service of the late Perry J. Giffen. Berets and medals are to be worn.

KIWANIS CLUB DEEPLY MOURNS PERRY J. GIFFEN

Tribute Is Paid Departed Member At Weekly Luncheon Of The Club

PASSING IS GREAT LOSS

Kiwanis Club members mourned the passing of their distinguished fellow-worker, Perry J. Giffen, as they assembled for their weekly meeting at the Empress Hotel today. In simple words, they voiced a club tribute.

"This morning there passed from our midst one who, though a comparatively new arrival in Peterborough, has endeared himself to us as business men and fellow-members of the various organizations in which he was interested," Charles Saunders stated. "I have seen more of him through business contacts and association in our Amateur Art Club of which he was a member than in Kiwanis work."

"Though not agreeing with him at all times, it was always with real pleasure that we entered into his arguments and usually followed his suggestions. His ever ready smile and energetic personality made one feel the better for having been associated with him.

"He came to us from Edmonton to undertake the re-organization of our local newspaper, The Examiner. He threw himself into the work, a really difficult job, and his death at a period when success was crowning his efforts seems doubly tragic.

"Perry Giffen was a real business man of the best type. He will be missed even more than we know in the business world of Peterborough. There are all too few men possessing his energetic line of thought and capacity for a vigorous follow-through and I feel his chair in the new office he so recently fitted up for himself will be a difficult one to fill."

President Al. Sharpe commented succinctly: "His coming to this club was a great gain. His passing is a great loss."

Paying tribute to the departed member as a Kiwanian, Adjutant Neil Warrander said: "If there is a real embodiment of our motto, "We Build," it was Perry Giffen. He was by nature an energetic builder."

Rev. J. D. Paterson extended the club's sympathy to Mrs. Giffen with well-chosen words. "The heart of every one of us go out to Mrs. Giffen," he said. "We would want her to know that we are her friends as well as his friends."

Kiwanian Cliff Hall sang "Crossing the Bar" in an appropriate contribution to the solemn program of tribute. Members observed a minute of silence as the meeting closed.

Airplane pilots sent recently to find and render aid to the crews of 300 Russian fishing boats which were trapped among drifting ice floes in the Caspian Sea have reported to Moscow that the men were found in good condition.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

What It Is!

This is no mere salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 13 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloat and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

Science brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to place this famous medicine within easy reach of all. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening tablets and harsh drugs.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, is it surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) as they were NEVER CLEANSED BEFORE. It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give complete relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and dyspepsia.

IT WILL give you the greatest appetite you EVER HAD IN YOUR LIFE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your days glow again.

thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headaches.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis, giving quick relief from pain.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver, and will put the ROSY GLOW OF HEALTH into your cheeks.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you LOOK, ACT and FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, years younger, than your real age.

NO RINK UNBEATEN ONTARIO BONSPIEL AS HALL TUMBLES

Harstone Of Hamilton Thistles Bumps Kitchener Four Out Of Charmed Circle

PLAY NARROWS

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—There is no undefeated rink in the tenth annual Ontario curling bonspiel. Skip Bert C. Hall of Kitchener and his hard-battling men passed out of the perfect class late last night in the fourth round of the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy after having carried for just a few hours the distinction of alone being unbeaten.

Oddly enough it was the President of the Ontario Curling Association, Ross G. L. Harstone, of Hamilton Thistles, who skipped the rink that finally beat Hall. The score was tight, 13-12, and a big five for Harstone on the sixth end was the big turning point of the match.

Hall's defeat and the win registered by Earl Green of Toronto High Park late last night left their pair of rinks tied for top place in the scrambling for the Grand Aggregate prize. Each has 10 wins and one loss. Others heaped in a bunch right on the heels of the leaders are Dr. Wright of London, Harry Howard of Granites and E. D. MacInnes of Toronto High Park. Each of these skips has nine wins and one loss.

In Semi-Finals.

The Seiberling, Birks-Ellis-Ryrie, and Seagram Trophy playdowns had all boiled down to semi-finals. In the Birks A. C. Gardiner, Sarnia, and Harstone of Hamilton were the contenders, and Western Ontario had another pair, Dr. Wright and Hall in the running for the Seiberling. Other remaining rinks in the two events were from Toronto.

W. A. Watson, Sarnia, and Judge L. V. O'Connor, Cobourg, were out-of-town survivors in the Seagram. Col. Mackie of Ottawa went out the hard way, 13-12, before a Toronto Granite rink yesterday.

Finals of the North America Life, in which a winner was to be decalred earlier than in any of the other competitions, pitted Harry Howard of Toronto Granites, last year's cup-holder, against Ed Young, Toronto Royals.

Features of yesterday's play included three six-ends and one seven-end. Dr. Wright, London, made the seven score playing against Bert Kennedy, Toronto Strathconas, in the third round of the Seiberling, when Kennedy lost 15-13. Kennedy was leading 10-5 at the time the seven was made.

Oshawa Goes Out.

One of the sixes was made in the same competition by C. R. Redfern, Toronto, in defeating F. R. Michael, Oshawa, 15-8. The other sixes occurred in the second round of the Canada Dry play when F. Roberts, Unionville, won 13-6 over D. H. Charlton, Lakefield, and A. E. Walton, Toronto Royals, defeated P. Shiells, Kincardine, 17-16.

Of the five unbeaten quartettes that started yesterday, M. Braithwaite of Meaford was the first to lose, defeated 15-12 by Harstone, of Hamilton Thistles. He in turn eliminated Dr. F. T. Knight, Toronto Strathconas, 15-14 in the third round of the Seiberling.

Earl Green, High Park, who stayed in the unbeaten group till the fourth round of the Royal York, narrowly escaped the same fate as Knight in the same competition, beating Pickering of Ottawa 11-10 on his last stone.

United States entries were eliminated from all events yesterday. Dr. A. J. Batty, Portage, Wis., was beaten in the third round of the Seagram by Col. R. J. Mackie, Ottawa, and a Toronto High Park entry defeated H. B. Holden, Detroit, in the third round of the Seiberling Trophy.

Wants $16,500

BILLY SULLIVAN

Asking for more money than has been paid to any player on the Cleveland Indians since Wesley Ferrell drew 18,000 in 1931, Billy Sullivan (ABOVE), hard-hitting second string catcher, demands 16,500 for his services in 1937, according to C. C. Slapnicka, general manager of the Tribe. Sullivan says he is entitled to that much money because the club depends upon him as a utility infielder, saving salary and expenses of another player.

China Clippers Lose To Keene Pucksters

KEENE, Feb. 19.—Keene defeated China Clippers on their home ice, 8-7, in a lively tussle. For Keene, Richardson and Fletcher scored three apiece. Bowie and Nelson got one apiece. For Clippers, Rowbottom and Fleming scored three apiece with Heath tallying the other. Fleming, Jamieson, Heath and Rowbottom looked good for Clippers', while Bowie, Fletcher, Nelson and Joyce went good for Keene.

Line-ups:

Goal, Renwick; defence, Nelson and Joyce; centre, D. McCarthy; wings, McCarthy and Fletcher; subs., Richardson, Bowie, and Campbell.

Peterborough.—Goal, Jamieson; defence, Heath and Leggott; centre, Fleming; wings, Conroy and Rowbottom; subs., Inkpen and Jobe.

Referee—C. Barnes.

RANGERS VICTORS OVER HAWKS 2-1

Break By Heller In Overtime Session Gives New Yorkers Victory

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(C.P.)—An overtime goal gave New York Rangers a 2-1 win over Chicago Black Hawks last night, and kept them tied with Boston Bruins for second place in the United States Section of the National Hockey League.

Marty Burke and Glenn Brydson were out of the Chicago lineup, and Bill Cook did not dress for Rangers. Joe Lapraire, one of Hawks' all-American hopefuls, played. About 10,000 saw the game.

Ott Heller, speedy defenceman, gave the New Yorkers victory by breaking away early in the overtime to score with a shot from the the left side.

The teams battled through a tame and scoreless opening frame, and it was late in the middle chapter before the first goal was rung up. It went to "Pep" Kelly, Chicago wingman. "Butch" Keeling, the New Yorkers' "minute-man," knotted the score three minutes later after taking a pass from Heller.

The winning goal came while the Rangers were playing shorthanded, Murray Murdoch having been penalized for holding.

Rangers.—Goal, Kerr; defence, Coulter and Heller; centre, Watson; wings, Murdoch and Keeling; subs, Johnson, Pratt, Cooper, N. Colville, M. Colville, Shibicky, Patrick, Boucher and Dillon.

George St. Bantams Beat Park St. 4-2

George Street Bantams defeated Park Street, 4 to 2, last night in the first game of the Church Hockey League finals on a poor sheet of ice. Bert Hamilton's squad had a slight edge in the heavy going. The Baptists worked hard with their usual good combination and had a good share of play; and when the United's ace, Parnell, was off the ice, they had George Street on the defensive.

Parnell was the best player on the ice, and but for him the George Streeters would have undoubtedly been beaten. Campbell was best for the losers on defence. R. Ainslie made many fine stops in goal, but muffed a couple of soft ones. Reader and Martin also looked outstanding for Park Street. Richardson shone in the winners' net with nonchalant saving. Routley, Hamilton, Saunders and Ralph were also effective.

Park Street scored first, Anderson from Reader. George Street got two in the first, Saunders and Parnell tallying. The latter crew got two more in the second, Routley sinking both. The Baptists took the aggressive all through the third, but could get only one goal, Ainslie scoring from Smith. The senior and juvenile games were called off due to soft ice. The teams:

George Street.—Goal, Richardson; defence, Parnell, Metheral; centre, Routley; wings, Burns, Hamilton; alternates, Saunders, Armstrong, Powell, Henry, Woodgate Wellwood.

Park Street.—Goal, R. Ainslie; defence, Campbell, Drury; centre, Anderson; wings, Martin, Reader; alternates, J. Ainslie, Briecoe, Smith.

Referee.—G. Beauclere.

Church Puck Games

Church Hockey League playoff games at All Saints' rink on Monday evening.—George Street vs. Park Street in the second game of the bantam finals, at six; St. Paul's vs. Mark Street, in a juvenile semi-final game at seven; and All Saints vs. Murray Street in the second game of the senior finals at 8.30 o'clock.

GULF CHAMPIONSHIP

J. H. Noel Wins With Manitoban, E. C. Plummer, Runner-up.

BILOXI, Miss., Feb. 19 (AP).—J. H. Noel, Nashville, Tenn., won the Gulf Coast championship to close the three-day tournament of the Mississippi State Trapshooters' Association here yesterday. Noel's score was 95 out of a possible 100.

E. C. Plummer, Flin Flon, Manitoba; W. H. Soubs, Minneapolis, Minn.; A. H. Amman, Pictone, Ill., and A. L. Nelson, Detroit, Mich., were tied for runner-up money with 92 out of 100 each.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

THE LITTLE ladies who bounce the ball around in cage contests will be very active this evening in the Y.W. gym what with three tussles on the program. Westclox and C.G.E. meet in what should be a humdinger of a senior struggle at 7.45; St. John's Juniors tackle Westclox second team at 8.15; and C.G.E. Juniors joust with "Y" Quakers at 9.00. Tomorrow eve at the Y.M.C.A., Westclox senior gals have an exhibition game with Toronto Alerts at 8.30. Two men's Senior City Loop basketball battles are billed for the "Y" tomorrow night, too, St. Paul's vs. P.C.I. at 7.30 and C.G.E. vs. Dominion Life at 9.15. Our three P.C.I. school squads have home games this p.m. in Cobourg.

THE O.R.F.U. meets Saturday at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. Peterborough will be represented but we didn't hear just who is going. Lou Brooks, group convenor, will be unable to make the trip. The local club is quite in favor of the suggestion to have intermediate group winners go on into senior "B" playdowns, while the runners-up continue in intermediate playdowns. The plan gives two teams in each group something to shoot at. Not much else of importance is likely to come up at this time.

BACK OF the scenes on any hockey club is a chap who does plenty of work and worrying while getting no publicity. He is the trainer—though this is a misnomer. He should be known as the handler, as he handles all equipment, drying and airing uniforms, packing and unpacking kits for trips, checking on sticks to be taped, seeing skates are sharpened, serving gum, oranges and water, bandaging cuts, giving rubdowns and goodness knows what all! His is an amazing amount of work before, during and after every game and practise. His monetary reward generally amounts to little, depending on how far the team goes in competition. We would never, never, never raise our son—if we had one—to be a hockey handler! But these guys seem to like the job. Shucky Mein was handler for the intermediate Petes this year, and Bill Murphy looks after the Colts. Two efficient fellows, too.

AST. John's Ambulance Corps man told us a few days ago that most of the injuries he had to treat at the Brock this winter were cuts received from high sticks. He suggested that the upper end of sticks should have a tight-fitting rubber cap on 'em to lessen chances of facial cuts. It sounds like a right smart idea to us. Also, referees should be tough with high-sticking players.

CONGRATS TO Coach Buckland and the local Colts on winning their O.H.A. junior "B" group title. They defeated Belleville here last night, 9-3, to cop the playoff round by an 18-9 score. They will play the Kingston-Whitby winner in first round playdowns next week. The Colts earned the verdict last eve though play was quite close till the third. They ran wild in the final frame to slap home seven goals to one for the fading visitors. A splurge like that in all their future games would carry 'em a long, long way. The ice was sticky and it was only a fair game. First period was a yawn, second one saw play somewhat livelier, and the third was wide-open but onesided. Belleville tried hard but were outclassed.

• • • • • • •

STARR, KINGDON and Gee Clark were best of the forwards, all playing an effective game. Their teammates didn't show so much till the final period but all looked good in that heat. You couldn't expect very smart puck-carrying or teamplay on sticky ice, but the locals worked quite a bit of nice combination at that. Two of 'em, Kingdon and Jopling, are wearing stitched cuts today on their faces but the squad came through the series pretty fair as a whole. They'll practise hard in preparation for their next round, which most likely will be against the Kingston crew—and we hear the Limestone City juniors aren't as individually brilliant as the 1936 Colts' conquerors, but better balanced and smart.

LOCAL KADUNKS were eliminated in the Fenelon Falls hockey tourney last night by General Motors of Oshawa, 5-3, in two 25-minute periods. A good game but on heavy ice and the strong Mercantilers had a little edge. Jim Lehane's crew were minus Gord Clarke, Ned Vitarelli and Shrimp McDougall—all out with colds. They used Charlie Clarke in goal with Weir and Magee on defence. One front line had Calladine, Ellis and Burton; and the other consisted of Coughlin, Creighton and Gardiner. It was tough to be drawn against the strong GM-men right off the bat, but that's hockey for you. Kadunks will defend their Pelt Trophy later in the Lindsay tourney.

IT WAS with a decided shock today that we heard of the sudden death of F. J. Giffen, managing director of The Examiner. He was a genial, active man who took quite an interest in sports since coming to this city. Mr. Giffen was entirely responsible last summer for the famous Edmonton Grads playing in Peterborough, having been a former officer on the club in Edmonton. He worked hard to put the Winter Sports Meet across here this winter; he donated a trophy to the Southend Hockey League; and he was keenly interested in various lines of athletics in Peterborough. "How goes it with the demon sports writer-upper today?" he would holler as he passed our desk; or "Well, Damon Runyon, what kind of a hockey team will we have in the playoffs?" Yes, we will miss Perry Giffen.

BRADDOCK READY SIGN WITH LOUIS

Gould Meets Bomber In Chicago Hotel To Put Final Papers Through

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (AP)—Throwing down the gauntlet to Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York, champion James J. Braddock was ready to sign articles with Joe "Brown Bomber" Louis today for a 15-round world's heavyweight title bout June 22 at Comiskey Park.

Making complete their break with the Garden, which threatened legal steps to block the bout and insisted it will hold the champion to a contract calling for a New York match with Max Schmeling June 3, Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, met with Louis at the La Salle Hotel for the long-awaited penmanship ceremony.

Col. Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, told Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois Athletic Commission, Gould and other Chicago principals yesterday that the Garden will use every legal weapon to prevent Braddock from fighting under any but Garden auspices.

Lakefield Boys' Team Held To Tie By Girls

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 19.—A lot of merriment was caused at the Lakefield Rink on Thursday afternoon, when Principal T. W. Chaplin's team of Public School boys, who were scheduled to play the Lakefield High School team, appeared on the ice in skirts. The skirts did not hamper the play, however, and the fans were treated to a real game. There was a great amount of cheering from the supporters of both sides. The girls put up a good battle, the boys showing them no mercy, and the play, which ended in a 4-4 tie, kept the crowd on their toes to the end.

A highlight of the game was when Charlie Earnshaw, goalkeeper for the boy's team secured the puck, and leaving his goal undefended, took the disc the length of the ice to register a counter unassisted. Geo. Wong, Bob Brown and Lloyd Allan scored the remainder of the goals for the boys.

The girls' team, which is coached by Miss B. Dunn showed some good talent. Isobel Bullock secured two of the goals credited to the feminine enthusiasts while Paddy Lampman and Pat Wannamaker each tallied once. Final score 4-4.

The lineups:

Girls' team—Goal, Luella Spafford; defence, Paddy Lampman, Betty Nichols; centre, Dorothy Smith; wings, Betty Lampman, Cubby Lampman; alternates, Pat Wannamaker, Isobel Bullock, Helen Kelly, Betty Brown, Marian Twist, Margaret Lymburner, Margaret Hunter, Winifred Nichols.

Public School Team — Goal, C. Earnshaw; defence, Don Fry, Bob Brown; centre, R. Hopkins; wings, Clifford Dunford, Lloyd Allan; alternates, R. Bennington, Gerald Pearson, Geo. Wong, Percy Edwards.

KING OF WINTER SPORTS

Ski-ing

By Charles Schaer

Sponsored By Peterborough Ski Club

47—CHANGE OF DIRECTION TURNS.

There are six basic methods of changing direction while running, as follows: Snowplow turn, stem turn, Christiania, Telemark, jump turn and stepping around. The first two are classified as "TURNS," the Christiania and Telemark as "SWINGS." The use of turns is limited to slow and moderate speeds, whereas the swings may be made at any speed.

Two factors are necessary for the execution of turns. (a) Stemming action, (b) Rotary action of the skis. The stemming action is produced deliberately by placing one or both skis in a stemming, that is, partially broadside on, position to the direction of motion. Rotary action of the skis may be produced by any one of four elements, but usually all are used to speed the action; they are as follows: (1) Body muscular effort. This is a screwing motion of the body, commencing at the hips and finishing with the shoulders, see illustration. The hips are swung to one side and the shoulders to the other. (2) Utilization of the body momentum. (3) Utilization of the body weight. Two and three act on the skis through the centre of support and the location of this point may be varied between the toes and the heel by the distribution of weight thereon.

With toes and heels equally weighted this point is approximately at the centre of the ski's bearing surface which is the centre of resistance to turning, and by unequal weighting this point is moved forward or back of the centre. If the ski is in the stemming position, or are traversing, this change in location of the centre of support will cause a rotary action of the ski. (4) Steering effect: When the skis are held at an angle to each other and evenly weighted, particularly with one ski leading, the leading and trailing portions of the skis produce a steering effect comparable to the action of rudders at the bow and sterns of a boat.

As turns are generally used only at low speeds, momentum and steering effects are more pronounced in the swings due to the higher velocity.

Next: Snowplow Turn.

Colts Cop Group Title Over Belleville Crew By 18-9 on the Round

Local Juniors Ram Home Seven Goals In Lively Third Frame To Win Second Playoff Game By Score Of 9 To 3

GO INTO O.H.A. PLAYDOWNS

Sweeping aside Belleville juniors last night by a 9-3 score, the Peterborough Colts copped their O.H.A. group championship by 18 to 9 on the playoff round. A fair-sized crowd of fans saw the locals blast in seven goals in a scoring orgy in the third period to walk away with the decision after even first and second frames. There was no count in the first and it was 3-2 starting the third.

Sticky ice spoiled play, interfering with stickhandling and passing. Play was speedy in spots and fairly exciting with a lot of close backchecking in the centre zone. Only five penalties were drawn in a clean contest, the visitors getting three. Kingdon, Jopling and Logie all suffered facial cuts from high sticks.

SHINE IN THIRD.

The Colts looked much superior during the last half of the tussle. Before that, Belleville held them on even terms but they failed to stay with the speedy homesters during a wide-open third heat. The winners played good combination for the ice condition, broke fast and showed finish around the nets. They also checked fairly effectively. Several of their third-period markers resulted from breakaways as the Quinte crew ganged up.

Picking stars for the group champions in this game is difficult as most of the players turned in a good performance, especially in the third inning. Kingdon, Starr and Glee Clark looked best of the forwards while Jopling did some neat checking on defence and Al Clark looked smart the last half of the contest doing both ways. Harding has some great saves in goal and had no chance on two of the Belleville team's three goals. The rest of the Colts worked hard and looked good at times. The losers put up a game fight but were badly outclassed toward the end. Cain, Storms, McCreary and Tompkins went best for them.

Ice Gets Heavy.

The game started off fast but later slowed up as the ice became heavy. Harding robbed McCreary as play ranged back and forth in nice rushes. Kingdon went off hurt and Brady made a nifty rush but shot wide. There was little excitement in this first frame and not many serious threats on either goal. Kingdon nearly tallied toward the close. Plenty of bell-ringing for offsides slowed up play, too.

It was livelier all through the second with both goalies having to stop. The Petes pressed for a time and then a Tompkins-Cain combination did everything but flash the light. Tompkins finally tallied, his shot from the side glancing in off Harding's skate. Jopling pulled a dangerous rush and then Storms went off for hooking. Five Colts went on the attack but couldn't get organized for a single shot on the cage. Later, G. Clark rifled home a great one on Kingdon's passout. Kingdon broke away clean but shot it into the goalie's pads. On A. Clark's pass, Starr picked the upper corner with a bullet shot to make it 2-1. A. Clark was gated for tripping and five Quinte kids pressed, with Cain finally finding the hemp in a scramble. Storms was waved overboard for tripping and Starr broke away but the puck rolled away from him. The Colts were pressing hotly at the bell.

Score Seven Straight.

Belleville made their last stand in the first few minutes and Harding had to be good to open the third period. A Clark once saved a sure goal on McCreary's shot with the local netminder out of his cage. Logie got their last goal, going around defence handily. Then the Colts suddenly opened up and rammed home seven straight without a return. Kingdon started it with a beautiful solo effort, and the same player got another fast on A. Clark's assist. Logie went off hurt and Starr scored on a breakaway. G. Clark got another on Connelly's pass and the latter puckster scored one more right away on assists from G. Clark and Kingdon. Jopling got a cut and had to leave the game. McCreary and Crowe were sent off for roughing it on the boards. Play was lively and wide open and Starr scored the final two, one unaided and the other after passes from Wright and Heal. Belleville kept battling to the end but hadn't a chance the way the Colts were flying in this final frame.

The teams:

Belleville: Goal, Carson; defence, Derry and McCreary; centre, Cain; wings, Tompkins and Morgan; alternates, Storms, Rogers, Robinson, O'Neill and Logie.

Colts: Goal, Harding; defence, A. Clark and Jopling; centre, Starr; wings, Heal and Wright; alternates, Kingdon, G. Clark, Brady, Connelly and Crowe. ... ...

Referee, Stan Crossett of Port Hope.

BANCROFT PIRATE OUTFIT BEAT L.O.L.

Victors Rocket In Six In Ding-Dong Third Session For 9-5 Ending

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Feb. 19.—L.O.L. were again dubbed by the Pirates in a game on Wednesday evening which ended with a score of 9-5, before a small but eager and supporting crowd of fans.

Since there was a conspicuous rivalry between the teams, action was fast and thrilling, although not perfectly clean. Both goalies performed their duties very well, the Pirate net-tender showing exceptional brilliancy.

In the first period, the L.O.L. netted two goals, as did the Pirates, while in the second, each team added one. The third showed more spectacular playing, the L.O.L. netting two compared with six for the Pirates.

Pirates are still leading in the league by a goodly margin, and their showings so far indicate that they are well on their way to winning the cup.

Summary.

1st Period—L.O.L.: Tryon (2); Pirates: Elmer Vance, Roy Conlin (Bob Willis).

2nd Period — L.O.L.: Tryon; Pirates: B. McAlpine (C. Munro).

3rd Period—L.O.L.: Tryon (J. Russell), Tryon; Pirates: E. Vance (B. McAlpine), C. Munro, B. Willis (R. Conlin), E. Vance (C. Munro), K. Sprung (J. Munro), B. McAlpine.

TORONTO LEAFS HAND RED WINGS 3 TO 1 DRUBBING

Apps And Broda Prove Too Much For Adams And Upset His Boastings

10,500 FANS OUT

Win Is First In Five Starts Against Detroiters For Smythemen

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—The Leafs handed the champion Detroit Red Wings a 3-to-1 reversal at Maple Leaf Gardens last night.

It was a case of "too much Apps" plus "too much Broda" for Jack Adams and company as the locals rung up their first victory in five starts against the Stanley Cup holders this season.

About 10,500 customers witnessed a grand fight. They saw the Leafs, paced by the scintillating Mr. Apps, shoot into a 2-to-0 lead in the third period; they watched "Turk" Broda turn back Detroit thrusts in sensational fashion during an exciting second twenty minutes; and they screamed with delight when "Buzzer" Boll broke from a Detroit power play, after Sid Howe had scored, to clinch victory for Toronto in the closing stages of the contest.

Leafs' First Tally

The first period was 6.15 old when Apps stickhandled his way around Scotty Bowman and drove home Goal No. 1. Frank Finnigan and Bobby Davidson also figured in the goal. Apps had taken a pass from Davidson and circled the net prior to his successful shot.

Just twelve minutes had elapsed when Mr. Apps rattled in his second of the game. Taking a pass from Reggie Hamilton far down the ice, "Syl" dashed down alone. He worked his way around two or three wings before being checked close to the net by Johnny Sorrell.

Another brilliant move left Sorrell in the air, and Apps manoeuvred into position. He unleashed a hard drive that deflected into the net off Smith's arm.

For the first seven minutes of the second period, "Turk" Broda experienced probably the busiest session of his career as a Leaf. Sid Howe, Marty Barry, Herb Lewis, Ebbie Goodfellow and Johnny Sorrell tested the Toronto goaler with "labelled" drives from close quarters but the jumping, sprawling, diving Broda stopped them at every turn. It was phenomenal playing on the part of the youthful guardian.

Draw Major Penalties

Close to the end of the period Davidson tangled with Larry Aurie. They applied holds to each other and remained in a clinch for several seconds. Then, for some strange reason, major penalties were tacked onto each.

The third period was more than 13 minutes old when the Detroit attacking finally gained results. Howe took Pettinger's pass and dashed in. Broda rushed out to block, and the little winger cut around him and whipped the puck into the open net.

But the visitors' renewed hopes were set right back again when Boll broke loose from a power play. The "Buzzer" took Jimmy Fowler's clearing pass and raced down alone. Close in on Smith, he rifled an angle shot that caught the top of the net.

On the next play, Boll rushed in again, and seemed headed for another goal when knocked over by Lewis. The latter was banished, and a penalty shot awarded. Gordon Drillon was called upon to take the "free drive," and let fly directly into Smith's pads.

One of the game's features was the manner in which the "checking line" of Davidson, Metz and Finnigan took care of the Detroit sharp-shooters—Barry, Aurie and Lewis.

Adams continually was trying to get his "Big Line" on against the main Toronto threats, Apps, Dillon and Parsons, but Dick Irvin was ever on the alert. In the third period Referee Bill Stewart had to inform the rival bench-manager to cut it out and play hockey.

Leafs—Goal, Broda; defence, Day and Hamilton; centre, Thoms; wings, Kendall and Boll; alternates: Apps, Drillon, Parsons, Metz, Shill, Davidson, Finnigan, Fowler and Horner.

Detroit—Goal, Smith; defence, Goodfellow and Bowman; centre, Pettinger; wings, Howe and Bruneteau; alternates: Barry, Aurie, Lewis, H. Kilrea, W. Kilrea, Sorrell, Kelly, Macdonald and Orlando.

HAVELOCK

COMBINES LOSE TO BELLEVILLE IN 5-3 BATTLE

Rogers' Penalty Costs Game When Teams Go Into Overtime

OUTFITS WELL MATCHED

Melee In Third Sees Spectators Join Fracas Among Players

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 19.—The Norwood-Havelock "Combines" au another loss last evening, at the Norwood Arena, when Belleville, in their first and only appearance here this season, managed to pull out a 5 to 3 win, in overtime, snatching the very important four-point match from the locals, to put them well on top in the Trent Valley Hockey League. The score certainly did not indicate the play, the "Combines" with the return of Hagerman and strengthened by the addition of Eddie Bush and Lambert to the line-up were flying and more than deserved a win or at the least a tie. The game was one of the best witnessed by local fans this winter, and although handicapped slightly by soft ice, an excellent brand of hockey was displayed.

The locals almost scored from the face-off, Bush missing the open net by inches. Then a few minutes later Voyer notched the first counter for the Combines, Godin adding another in less than two minutes to put them two up. This was a hard-earned tally although somewhat freakish, the puck rolling down the goalie's back and into the Belleville cage. With a few minutes to go, Brunton drew a penalty to pave the way for the first Belleville counter.

Belleville opened the scoring in the second, Day notching one shortly after the bell. Voyer then made a spectacular play, sifting through the Belleville defence and breaking in alone on the goalie, but was tripped from behind, just as he shot. The drive completely fooled Henton, but the goal was disallowed as the play had been called. A penalty shot was awarded however, but Hagerman as marksman failed to place the rubber behind the Belleville goalie.

Tempers began to flare in the third stanza and halfway through the period there was a general melee, spectators pouring on the ice to do battle with the players. Belleville went into the lead for the first time on a goal by Howie, but Eddie Bush soon tied it up again for the locals.

One Costly Penalty

Forced into overtime the Combines carried the play to the visitors surging around the Belleville net, but without any success against their airtight defence. Penalty to L. Rogers gave Belleville the break and before the locals could get organized they had whipped in two fast goals to put the game safely on ice.

The Combines' first line of Hagerman, Voyer and Bush, with their smart passing attack and Lambert turning in a performance on the defence were most effective for the locals. For Belleville, their mainstays were the two Ethier brothers, defence duo; and Henton, their goalie. The teams:

Combines—Goal, J. Davidson; defence, R. Webb and L. Rogers; centre, B. Hagerman; wings, J. Voyer and E. Bush; alternates, S. Lambert, J. Rathwell, P. Rogers, W. Brunton, and E. Godin.

Belleville—Goal, Henton; defence, G. Ethlier and W. Ethlier; centre, Howie; wings, Semark and Harvey; alternates, Voyer, Henn, Day, Hammett and Maguire.

Referees.—A. Weir and R. Ennis.

ROARING BRUINS LACE MAROONS 2-1

Boston Runs Streak Of Victories To Four In Row

MONTREAL, Feb. 19 (C.P.)—Boston Bruins ran their National Hockey League winning streak to four games last night with a 2-1 victory over Montreal Maroons.

A penalty to Jerry Shannon paved the way for Bruins' winning goal at 10.10 for the second period. On a five-man ganging attack with the edge in power, Ray Getliffe took Bill Cowley's pass to whip a shot from five feet away past Bill Beveridge. That goal brought an end to Maroons' unbeaten sequence of six games.

Bruins had come from behind to go into the second period all even. Late in the first Russ Blinco set his stick on a goalmouth pass from Earl Robinson and pushed an easy shot under "Tiny" Thompson's stick.

Little more than a minute later, at 18.56, "Dit" Clapper scored on a three-way passing play with Jack Portland and Schmidt.

For the most part it was a dull game for some 6,500 fans. Checking was tenacious all the way, and Bruins' terrific body-checking slowed Maroons to a walk. Thompson had a minimum of work in Boston's net, as his big rearguards blocked perfectly.

Boston.—Goal, Thompson; defence, Shields, Portland; centre, Welland; wings, Goldsworthy, Beattie; subs, Clapper, Smith, Cook, Hollett, Dumart, Schmidt, Getliffe, Cowley, Sands.

Officials—A. Smith and Duke McCurry.

First Period

1—Maroons, Blinco (Robinson) 17.18
2—Boston, Clapper, Portland, Schmidt) 18.56
Penalty—Shields.

Second Period

3—Boston, Getliffe (Cowley) .. 20.10
Penalty—Shannon.

Third Period

MADOC TROUNCES STIRLING BY 3 TO 2 FOR PLAYOFF SPOT

Five-Minute Penalty To Losers' Goalie Sees Winning Tally Scored

ONE FIST BATTLE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 19. — In one of the most exciting games that have been seen in Madoc this year, Madoc defeated Stirling 3-2 on Wednesday night. Stirling strengthened by the addition of Ingram to their team, put up a stiff battle, determined to eke out a win in order to get into a playoff berth.

Play opened fast, with both teams setting a blazing pace. Wide-open hockey was the feature of the first period. Stirling opened the scoring when Robinson snatched the puck from behind the Madoc net and circled to the front of the net, completing a pretty play by driving the first counter past Nickle, the Madoc goalie. Madoc put on the pressure, and the break came when Akey received the puck at centre ice, broke to the left boards, then with a burst of speed swerved to the right, leaving both defence men flat-footed as he coasted in on Fox in the Stirling net to pick the corner of the twine in the prettiest goal of the season.

Feeling was running high as the gong rang to end the first period. Score 1-1.

The second period was closer with both teams covering up waiting for a break. After the five-minute mark Akey passed to Alexander, and on a pretty criss-cross play the puck was netted by Akey. Play opened up with heavy bodying by both teams, resulting in little feuds between the different players, and the trouble came to a head when Akey was slashed by the Stirling goalie. Fists began to fly and before the referees could get into action the players had squared off and were trading punches in a real free-for-all. The combatants were separated when the police came on the ice. Akey and Fox received five-minute penalties and the game continued with Morton between the posts for the Stirling team. Much credit is due Morton for the fine way he covered himself with glory by making several sensational saves, being obliged to leave the net several times to break up plays. The period ended with no further scoring — 3-1 for Madoc.

The third period opened with Akey and Fox still in the cooler. Madoc pressed hard and after 40 seconds of play Smith scored for Madoc from a scramble at the Stirling net. Both teams were again at full strength, with Stirling fighting hard to overcome the two-goal lead. Four men attacks led by Ingram finally resulted in a goal from close in, Ingram getting the count, assisted by Robinson.

For Stirling, Robinson, Ingram, and Fox were best; while it would be impossible to select stand-outs for Madoc. Every man played bang-up hockey to gain them their win.

The Summary.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Card of Thanks Deaths

BORN

HAYWARD.—To Mr. and Mrs. O. Jack Hayward, Wednesday, February 18th; the gift of a daughter.

DIED

GIFFEN, Perry Judson.—At Nicholls Hospital, on Friday, February 19, 1937, Perry Judson Giffen, the beloved husband of Katharine Mailing of 380 Belmont avenue, Peterborough, in his 42nd year. Remains are resting at D. Bellegham and Sons' Funeral Home until 11 a.m. Saturday, following which services will be conducted at Trinity United Church, at 2 o'clock p.m., by the Rev. George S. Easton. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

McBRIEN, Sarah. — Died in Millbrook on Thursday, February 18, Sarah McBrien, in her 90th year. Funeral from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wilson, on Saturday, February 20, at 2 p.m. Interment in Fallis Cemetery, Manvers.

IN MEMORIAM

WOODBECK.—In memory of Arthur Woodbeck, who passed away on February 19, 1930.

'Tis seven years since that sad day
The one we loved was taken away;
Our loss was great, we'll not complain
But trust in Christ to meet again.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Children.

Peterborough Has Lost a Friend in Mr. Perry Giffen.

PURITY BAKERIES.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Reid and family wish to thank the attending doctor and nurses, also Rev. J. D. Paterson, and the many friends and neighbors for expressions of sympathy, and all those who sent floral tributes during their recent sad bereavement.

The family of the late J. H. Pallin wishes to thank their many kind friends for floral tributes and expressions of sympathy extended to them during their recent sad bereavement.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:

In Hollywood following an ingenious maneuver on the part of his young wife, Janet, Joel Paynter, second-rate Broadway actor, begins work under a short term contract. Meanwhile Janet makes a point of cultivating the right people, joins a tennis club and meets Vernon Chester, an important director. Chester asks her to play tennis and have lunch with him. Chester likes Janet and learns inadvertently that she and Joel have been reading a best-seller about to be screened by Chester.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 15

JOEL WAS beginning to get anxious. His contract was up and the studio officials hadn't said anything about picking up the option. Meanwhile he was still working on the picture "Husband Hunter" with Tania Jarrett.

Janet was anxious, too, but she would not let Joel know that. She had been anxious ever since the day that Vernon Chester had been to their home nearly three weeks before. She hadn't told Joel about it. She hadn't even told him that she had lunched with the director at the tennis club.

There was no more tennis with Chester. He was working now, assembling his cast and working on the script for the ambitious picture and Janet had no way of knowing what had been in his mind after he had left the house that day.

She could only hope that he would not hold it against Joel that she had been overly ambitious for him. She vowed that she would never do that again.

Yet with the vow fresh in her mind, she called Laura Crowell and asked her to lunch with her. Laura was the private secretary of Max Browne, a powerful agent. Laura always knew what was going on and Janet had her little way of drawing it out.

"Do you think Joel should have an agent?" Janet asked Laura.

Laura thought it over before she answered, "Yes and no, Jan. If he were big enough to have a worth while agent, his agent could do a lot for him, but Joel hasn't distinguished himself—" Janet felt her ears burn but she held her tongue. It wouldn't have done any good to point out to Laura that in six months a young actor wasn't likely to get much of a chance—"but when he does, I probably could get Max interested in him. Of course, today, Max can't afford to handle anything but big stars. He has so many of them!"

Right then and there Janet decided that some day Max Browne would want Joel.

She didn't know how soon it was to come.

The very day after that luncheon, Joel telephoned her from the studio. "Come down at once, darling," he said. "Something pretty important has come up and I want you to be here."

The excitement in Joel's voice was a happy excitement.

Janet dressed very carefully in the little black thin wool suit that Joel's tailor had made for her, made certain that her blouse was crisp and fresh, her shoes and gloves immaculate, and got in her little car.

"Mrs. Paynter," she said to the gateman and after a few moments swung the car up to the portals of the executive building. She was there at the moment Joel had asked her to be.

Joel was waiting for her in the corridor. His hair looked mussier than usual and his dark eyes burned feverishly. That half shy grin of his broke all over his face when he saw her.

"Blakely has sent for me, Jan," he whispered, "and ten minutes ago Chester's secretary came down to me on the set and told me that Chester wants to see me immediately after my interview with Blakely!"

Chester had sent for him! Did that mean....

Janet was very calm, "Joel, why did Blakely send for you? And should I be here?"

"There's only one reason. He's going to pick up my option and I want you to be there. I'm not going to let him put anything over on me."

"Wait a minute, darling," she said slowly. "What makes you so sure he is going to renew your contract?"

"Because Chester wants to see me immediately after. The directors around here, my little innocent, don't call for actors to say goodby to them."

They were walking down the corridor toward Blakely's office.

Janet halted, "Joel, what did you mean about not letting them put anything over on you?"

"Well, if they've got something big for me to do and think they can get away with offering me a measly little three hundred a week they'll...."

"You'll take it, Joel! Three hundred a week is a lot of money and we're living very well. I'm glad you asked me to come with you."

An hour later Janet, sitting so small, so self-consciously in the big leather chair a goodly distance away from Mr. Blakely's desk, saw the lines of stubbornness settle around Joel's mouth.

Blakely had just told them that he was going to renew Joel's contract for two years at five hundred for the next six months and seven-fifty for the next year.

Janet watched the danger signals in Joel's face. Joel, she knew, had sensed that the producer was not offering Joel that money unless there was something afoot for him that was worth while to the studio. And Chester had sent for him. Janet put two and two together. She prayed that Joel would not spoil the thing that she saw they had to do.

Joel opened his mouth. He said, "Seven-fifty a week...."

Very gently and very firmly, Janet said, "Joel"...and turned to Mr. Blakely who looked as though he was only then aware of her presence. "Mr. Blakely, if you please, Joel and I have talked this over. Your option is only for six months more. Now, we thought"—she spoke very softly—"that if you were to pick it up at the same price, three hundred a week for the next six months we both could see in that event what turns up. You wouldn't want Joel to tie himself to a contract if he is not likely to show himself worth it, would you?"

The astonished Mr. Blakely forgot himself and lighted a cigar. Joel appeared to be paralyzed by what she was saying.

"And I'm sure that if, at the end of that time, Joel has proved himself a good person for you, you'd want to offer him the right salary. It's because we trust you that we are willing to sign again for three hundred a week."

Blakely thought: Women!

This one had him and she knew it. She said, "Shall we each think about it overnight?"

Think about it over night, reflected Blakely, and have her discover that Chester was giving the part of Jan to her husband? Not if he knew it!

"I'm afraid not, Mrs. Paynter," he said, picking up the legal form. "I think you kids are foolish, but if those are your terms we'll settle for a renewal at the same price and a three-year option at the conclusion."

He had added two years to the option period, Janet note satisfactorily.

Joel picked up the pen as though he were in an unhappy trance.

His feeling of unhappiness was not mitigated even when he heard that Chester had cast him for the role of Jan in "The Dance Was Long."

"But don't you see?" Janet said eagerly. "Blakely was trying to do the very thing you didn't want him to put over you! he wanted you to sign now for five hundred and next year for seven-fifty. This way, you'll come out much better because, Joel Paynter, you're going to give that role everything you've got! It's not

UNCLE WIGGILY FROZEN IN

"Oh, Wiggy, dear, see here! See here!" cried Mrs. Longears in the hollow stump bungalow one day.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily in his jolly voice. "You sound like the three little kittens who lost their mittens."

"I mean: come here, come here," said the rabbit lady. "I just had some dreadful news over the telephone."

"Is it the Weather Man broadcasting about another big snow storm," asked Uncle Wiggily. "If it is I don't want to listen until he begins to sing about Spring. The way Twisty and I were lost in a snow drift house was enough for me."

"I should think it might be," said Mrs. Longears. "But this is nothing about snow. It's about hot soup."

"Don't tell me it is raining hot soup!" exclaimed the rabbit uncle as he hopped to the telephone over which his wife had just been talking.

Poor Mrs. Longtail

"I think it is going to rain, for it is getting warmer after the big snow," said the rabbit lady. "Always about this time of year there is a thaw. But I was just talking to Mrs. Twistytail on the telephone. It seems Mrs. Longtail, the mouse lady, has been ill. They are quite poor, you know, being Church-Mice, and Mr. Longtail is on relief, so I was thinking it would be lovely if you would take them a big thermos bottle of hot soup."

"Turkey soup?" asked Uncle Wiggily, suspicous like, for he had to eat a lot of turkey soup after Christmas and New Year's.

"No, not turkey soup!" laughed Mrs. Longears. "It is vegetable soup, flavored with Parmesan cheese, of which the Longtail family is very fond. Will you take the thermos bottle of soup to them?"

"Indeed I'll be most happy to," said Uncle Wiggily. "I haven't been out today and it will be an adventure for me."

"Wear your rubber boots!" called Nurse Jane. "They'll be just right for taking the soup in."

"Soup in rubber boots? The idea!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, you know I don't mean that, I mean as the snow is melting and thawing you'll need rubber boots," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I'll put the soup in our big thermos bottle. It will hold enough to last Mrs. Longtail several days."

Off He Went

Soon Uncle Wiggily was hopping on his way to the mouse house, which was a knothole in a fence but nicely boarded over to keep out the cold.

On his way to the Longtails, Uncle Wiggily stopped to watch some of the animal boys sliding on the duck pond. The ice was half under water because of the warm, thawing weather, but the animal boys didn't mind that. They were splashing away and having fun.

Uncle Wiggily stood a long time watching the animal boys. At last they grew tired of sliding and all ran away. Mr. Longears looked to make sure he had the thermos bottle of hot soup in his fur coat pocket and then he started to hop on to the mouse house.

But he couldn't hop!

Uncle Wiggily couldn't lift either of his feet which were inside big, warm rubber boots to keep them from getting wet.

"What's the matter here?" asked the rabbit gentleman to himself, as there was no one else to whom he could talk, the animal boys having gone. "Have some of the Bad Chaps got hold of my feet?" Uncle Wiggily looked up.

Then he saw what had happened He had stood so long in one spot that, when the weather suddenly turned cold, as it did, he was frozen in. Mr. Longears was frozen fast to the ground. Oh, dear! But don't worry.

If the tomato juice cocktail will stop getting red in the face every time it looks in the glass, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily thawing out.

MAY YOHE IN JAIL LAUGHS AT CURSE OF HOPE DIAMOND

Aged Actress Who Once Wore It Tells Police Weird Story Of Gangsters

TRIES LEAP OFF BUS

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 19.—(AP)—An elderly woman who identified herself as May Yohe, stage star of the gay '90s, and once wearer of the famed Hope diamond, rested at police headquarters to-day after telling a weird story of menacing "gangsters."

Detective Captain Joseph Keegan said she related how gangsters took over a bus on which she was riding to Portland and began shooting at traffic officers. She was taken from the bus after the driver said she tried to leap out.

Miss Yohe, now 67, wore the fabulously valuable Hope jewel, a 44½ carat stone, after marrying Lord Francis Hope before the turn of the century.

Scoffed at Curse.

The woman in jail scoffed at the legendary curse attached to the diamond when questioned here by interviewers.

"The curse business is the bunk," she said. "Everyone has their ups and downs in life; you can't blame it on a rock. It's a bum enough looking stone as it is without adding that to it.

"I wore it once when I was presented to Queen Victoria."

Captain Keegan quoted the woman as saying her present husband is Captain John Smuts of Boston.

Captain Smuts telegraphed from Boston to "arrange for her welfare until further instructions." He told the police to notify H. G. Lawson of Victoria, B.C., "in the event of an emergency."

Following a divorce from Lord Hope, Miss Yohe married Captain Bradlee Putnam Strong. She became Captain Smut's wife after a second divorce.

THINK SCAFFOLDING UNSAFE ON BRIDGE

State Accident Official Tells Of Protesting To Contractors Before Ten Men Killed

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19 (AP).—The question whether scaffolding on the world's longest suspension span, the Golden Gate Bridge, had been declared unsafe stood high today among those for which investigators sought an answer in explaining the 200-foot death plunge of 10 workers.

Frank McDonald, State industrial accident commissioner, said Inspector A. F. Mailloux twice made such a protest to several construction officials. McDonald pointed out that the commission and bridge authorities were approaching the $35,000,000 structure for another inspection of the 4,200-foot span when the scaffolding collapsed Wednesday.

The workmen were stripping away forms into which concrete was poured for the bridge's roadway. A 10-foot moveable scaffold was carried along as the work progressed, suspended on wheels under the giant span. One wheel slipped from a girder on which it ran. This tilted the scaffolding into its fatal plunge.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. H. Jamieson at the close.

Personals

Mr. Hubert Lowes met with a painful accident on Tuesday while cutting wood. The axe slipped and cut his foot badly, fifteen stitches being necessary to close the wound. Mr. Lowes will be confined to the house for some time.

Mr. Alex. Tully went to Toronto on Tuesday, where it is expected he will undergo an operation. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

U.S. MAY BE FORCED TO INCREASE NAVY

Uneasy Lest British Plans May Give Her Superiority

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP).—The navy high command studied British building plans to-day to determine if three new battleships would be required to keep the United States' navy second to none.

"It is a fair presumption," said the navy's ranking officer, Admiral William D. Leahy, "that if any other power expands its fleet, the United States may find it necessary to do likewise."

Britain's re-armament program announced yesterday, included three battleships. If they are intended only as replacements for outworn vessels, officers said, the United States might hold its own without additional new construction.

With 69 warships of 321,310 tons under construction, Britain's proposal to add three battleships, seven cruisers and two aircraft carriers would give her unquestioned superiority, naval men said.

The United States is building or planning 94 warships, including two battleships. Japan has 31 warships under construction, and has announced its intention of building a number of others.

The United States' fleet at present consists of 305 ships of 1,046,475 tons. The number of vessels is greater than Britain's 279, but the latter's tonnage is higher—1,102,103. Japan has 192 ships of 794,672 tons.

GAS TRICK BOON TO WAR PLANES

Allows Take-Off In 4 Minutes In Winter By Diluting Frozen Motor Oil

DAYTON, O., Feb. 19 (AP).—The United States army air corps practically eliminated winter as a potential ally of flying enemy raiders yesterday.

Ordinary gasoline, ingeniously used to dilute almost-solid motor oils at sub-zero temperatures, will permit defensive squadrons to take off within four minutes after receiving an alarm.

Heretofore, warm-up periods of a half-hour or so have been required, during which the enemy conceivably could bomb the earth-bound defenders into submission.

Originated by Weldon Worth, material division engineer at Wright Field, and tested in actual service operations, the device was disclosed with the prediction that it would become standard equipment on all army planes.

All the pilot has to do is push a button; the rest is automatic.

MOTHERS, DAUGHTERS

NO need for women or girls to suffer every month from periodic pains, headache or sideaches. In girlhood Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a very beneficial tonic. This is what Mrs. Sarah Jordan of 32 Darling St., Brantford, Ont., said: "At one time I was so sick I could hardly hold my head up and I felt nauseated. I was frightfully upset, hardly slept a wink at night and any effort would leave me ready to cry. Also, I had pains in the back of my head. I had used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription only a short while when it helped me wonderfully. The nausea no longer troubled me and the headaches and pain disappeared." New size, tabs. 50c.

POOR YOUNGSTER!

Her Mother Forgot to get PENETRO!

Don't be careless about your child's cold. Treat it at once. A simple cold may develop into dangerous illness.

A safe, effective home remedy for colds is PENETRO—made with a mutton-suet base, like our grandmothers used. But now medical science has combined modern medicaments of proven worth with this base to produce this marvellous, effective remedy.

PENETRO works in two ways to relieve cold. First, when rubbed on chest and throat, it penetrates to the congested areas, relieving the inflammation and easing the pain; and, second, it releases volatile aromatic vapours which soothe and heal the irritated nasal passages.

Never be without this great family remedy. It is useful, too, in the treatment of muscular aches and pains, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Pure white, it does not discolor fabrics. At any druggists, 25c. 17

Program Solely For Canada's Defence—Aid To Britain At Same Time

OTTAWA, Feb. 20 (CP)—While Canada's defence program is solely for the defence of Canada it is the most effective contribution this country can make to the security of the British Empire and all countries with like ideals and like institutions, Prime Minister Mackenzie King believes.

After a vigorous defence of the government's increased appropriations for the military, naval and air forces of Canada, Mr. Mackenzie King saw the entire Liberal and Conservative membership in the House of Commons line up last night to defeat a want of confidence motion proposed by the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation.

The vote was 191 to 17 and the only support the C.C.F. obtained outside its own following was from the Social Credit party and Miss Agnes Macphail (UFO - Labor, Grey-Bruce). Several Liberals were critical of the defence estimates but none deserted the government on the vote.

John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, and three of his followers voted with the government while 10 others voted with the C.C.F.

Solely For Canada

"In the course of this debate," said Mr. Mackenzie King, "it has been necessary at different times from this side of the House to repeat that what we are doing was for Canada and Canada alone.

"That has been necessary for this reason, that an impression has been created that what we were doing had reference to some expeditionary force which would be sent overseas.

"When we have said that what we are doing was for Canada alone we mean that we are doing it for the defence of our country within the coasts of our country as our part in the defence of Canada.

"But I hope it will not be thought that because we have laid emphasis on the fact that we are doing what we are doing for Canada we are not thereby making some contribution towards the defence of the British Commonwealth of Nations as a whole or that we are not making some contribution to the defence of all English speaking communities, that we are not making some contribution to the defence of all democracies, that we are not making some contribution to the defence of all those countries that may some day associate themselves together for the purpose of preserving their liberties and freedom against any aggressor, come from wherever he may.

"I say that, while we are doing what we are doing for Canada, we believe that in this way we can make the most efective contribution towards the security of all

Mr. Flye advocates full enforcement of the Sunday closing law.

FARM HAND VICTIM OF MOIRA RIVER AS ICE GIVES WAY

Ross Sills' Body Is Swept Away As He And Employer Fall In Near Latta Mills

LATTER IS RESCUED

TWEED, Feb. 20.—Tragedy lurked on the Moira River on Friday afternoon, when Clarence Morris, aged 25, hired employee of Ross Sills, was drowned near Latta Mills, a few miles south of Tweed, shortly before one o'clock, when he was precipitated into the chilly waters of the river, while crossing the ice towards his home. His companion, Ralph Sills, who accompanied him across the ice, was also thrown into the river when the ice gave way but was able to hang onto the edge of the ice block until he was pulled out by the remainder of the ice-cutting crew, who ran to his assistance. Morris was swept under the ice and his body was not recovered until 2.30 p.m., and Dr. C. H. Wilson of Roslin pronounced the man dead. No inquest will be held.

Following his narrow escape from drowning, Sills was rushed to his home and later assisted the Provincial police in grappling operations, which was hampered by the four inches of ice that covers the river at that point.

On Way To Tend Stock.

It appears that Sills and Morris had started across the river from the south side to tend the stock at the house, and when about thirty feet from the opposite shore, the ice gave way, throwing both of the men into the water. Both went down and Sills, on coming to the surface, grabbed hold of the ice, but lost his grip and went below the surface three times before he managed to get a good hold. Morris did not appear on the surface after he went down the first time.

Morris had been a resident of the community for some time and leaves to mourn his loss a wife and two children.

Ralph Sills was saved mainly through the efforts of Harold Harrison. A dog owned by Mr. Harrison commenced to bark when the two men went under, and Mr. Harrison dashed to the scene with a long plank and a pike pole. Roy Dougherty, who went to the scene to assist in the rescue with Mr. Harrison, also fell into the river, but was soon brought out when he grabbed the pike pole. On being removed from the water Sills was rushed to his home on the north side of the river.

Annual Ice Harvest Produces Good Crop On Trent Canal

The above layout gives some idea of the daily scene of activity in the vicinity of Peterborough golf links on the Trent Canal where the annual ice harvest is in full swing. The ice harvesters who are taking ice out at the rate of over 5,000 blocks a day work to a well thought out system. Carelessness on the part of any one of the sixty and more men employed might well result in a serious accident or a ducking for some of the workers at the least.

MADRID STRATEGY SWINGS PRESSURE FROM THE SOUTH

Government Troops Capture Coveted Heights Of Aravaca In Four-Hour Battle

83 REBELS CHANGE FLAG

MADRID, Feb. 20—(A.P.).—Government troops feinted at insurgent siege lines northwest of the city in an effort to divert fierce pressure to-day on her southeastern defences, in preparation for renewed government assaults.

The government's thrust to the northwest drove the insurgents from coveted heights near Aravaca, only a few miles from Madrid, and brought a concentration of insurgent troops there along the Coruna highway.

A fierce four-hour clash yesterday preceded the government victory on the northwest. Insurgents were forced from Las Perdices Hill and other heights from which they had dominated the Coruna road.

The victory placed the government in position to capture a railway skirting Aravaca and the Coruna highway. The government formerly operated an armored train over this line.

Eighty-three insurgent soldiers, captured Jan. 19 in an attack on Cerro de Los Angeles (Angel Hill) just south of the city, traded uniforms and marched off to the front to fight with, instead of against Madrid.

Acquitted on charges of rebellion, the men were incorporated into the "People's Army." One of them appealed by radio to former comrades in the insurgent forces to come to the government's aid.

Nearly half the rice crop in the Dominican Republic was destroyed by recent torrential rains.

Oshawa Strikers Agree To Try New Schedule

Six-Man Committee Arranges Two-Week Test For Metal Finishers

ONE-DAY WALKOUT

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—(CP)—Prepared to try the increased production schedule, striking employees of General Motors of Canada Limited returned to their jobs today. They went on a one-day strike which ended yesterday after negotiations with company officials.

The walk-out affected from 140 to 230 metal finishers who claimed they were not receiving as much salary as before speeding up of production, despite the fact wages were advanced. They agreed to return to work for a try-out of the new schedule of work after negotiations between a six-man committee and Harry J. Carmichael, vice-president and general manager of the firm.

Late Thursday the metal finishers quit their jobs, demanding a new wage schedule. Mr. Carmichael addressed a mass meeting Thursday night when he informed the workers the increased production plan was necessary and urged them to test the scheme until the end of the month.

Louis Fine and O. E. Jennette of the Ontario Government's Labor Department entered negotiations yesterday. It was finally agreed the test of the schedule would be made for two weeks after which, if dissatisfaction still prevailed, negotiations would be resumed.

Agnes Urges Bagpipes To Keep Enemy Away

Ottawa, Feb. 20. (CP)

MISS Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Lab., Grey-Bruce), speaking in the House of Commons last night, suggested bagpipes be played to drive away any enemy from Canadian soil.

A protest was voiced immediately by Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster), the Piper of Parliament Hill.

"I did not say who should be playing them," Miss Macphail replied.

TWO ARE INJURED AS TRUCKS COLLIDE

Ice-Laden Trucks Are In Double Smash—Injuries Not Serious

Two persons were injured in a spectacular crash at Park Hill and Armour roads on Friday afternoon involving three motor trucks. The smash occurred around 4.30 p.m.

According to police report, Hector Bradley, 302 Aylmer street, was driving an ice-laden truck west on Park Hill road when the vehicle was involved in collision with another truck being driven by Frank J. Leahy of Douro Township.

As a result of the impact, police alleged the Leahy truck was carried for a distance of 51 feet, and the driver sustained injury to his left hand requiring three stitches, and bruises to his left knee.

Leonard McMurray, a passenger in the Leahy truck also sustained two fractured ribs. Both the injured men were attended by Dr. W. A. Baker.

In an unsuccessful attempt to avoid becoming tangled up with the other two trucks, Bob Hamlin who was also transporting ice from a section of the Trent Canal, where ice harvesting is in full swing, swerved at the rear of the Bradley truck. His truck skidded into a fire hydrant, breaking it off and then continued on to come to a halt after colliding with a Hydro pole.

Each of the three vehicles was badly damaged.

FIXES OWN TERM

Asks 80 Days So He Can Get Out For Fishing Season.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 20 (CP.).—Clyde (Shine) Meyers, 54, meekly accepted a workhouse sentence scheduled to terminate when fishing season opens.

"Well, Shine, how many days do you want this time?" Judge John W. Finehout asked the habitual offender.

"Oh, 'bout 80, I guess," said Shine sheepishly. "I've got a job beginning May 5, and I want to start it sober. It's in a boathouse during the fishing season."

"Hmm," said the Judge, pencilling some figures, "I think 75 days will do."

PICTURE ETHIOPIA WAR

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20 (AP).—About 200 men, identified by authorities as Italian civilians and sailors from an Italian man-of-war at anchor here, stormed a motion picture theatre today, routed the audience with gunfire, ammonia bombs and clubs and then fled.

They slugged two Russian film projection operators showing a Russian-made picture dealing with the Italian conquest of Ethiopia and seized the film. One suffered a broken arm, the other a gash on the head.

DONATES CHAPEL

BOSTON, Feb. 20.—(AP).—President Franklin Winslow Johnson, of Colby College, to-day announced George Horace Lorimer, '98, former magazine editor (Saturday Evening Post), had donated a $200,000 chapel for the new campus.

The chapel will be a memorial to the donor's father, the late Rev. George Claude Lorimer, pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, in the 1890's.

Man 78 Eats First Meal In 10 Years

Seattle, Feb. 20 (AP)

CARL L. Peterson, 78, told today how it felt to eat his first meal in ten years. Said Peterson: "It was great!"

More than ten years ago he underwent a throat operation and thereafter was unable to swallow. He had to take his nourishment, a milk diet, through a tube inserted in his side.

After two more operations he was able to eat some mashed potatoes today.

WOMAN SENATOR APPROVES WIDER DIVORCE GROUNDS

Cairine Wilson Thinks None For First Five Years On Any Grounds, Excellent Clause

AGAINST 'MENTAL CRUELTY'

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—(CP).—Senator Cairine Wilson to-day expressed approval of more liberal divorce laws contained in a bill now before the British House of Commons.

Senator Wilson, mother of eight children, said the grounds of desertion over a period of three years, cruelty, incurable insanity or a communted death sentence, which would be added to adultery as grounds for divorce in England, are reasonable causes for petitions for divorce.

Another clause in the bill which would make it impossible to obtain a divorce on any grounds during the first five years of marriage would, Senator Wilson felt, lessen the tendency of young people to rush for a divorce after the first serious quarrel, and would encourage more serious consideration before entering marriage.

Women are freer, more independent to-day and will seek an escape from an unendurable marriage, whereas the former generations of women had to endure what they got, she said. More liberal divorce laws would create the escape from such impossible situations as those caused by conditions mentioned in the bill.

Keep Canadians Home.

Such a bill might also lessen the practice of Canadians obtaining divorces in the United States and then returning to live in Canada in a married state that is not legal under Canadian law, Senator Wilson said.

The grounds of mental cruelty suggested by Miss Mary Duncan, convenor of the Laws committee of the Calgary Local Council of Women would allow too much leeway to be included and would be used perhaps more by women who are not as good sports as men in married life," she felt.

Senator Wilson said she would favor a strict system of granting divorce under such laws and is opposed to the clause in the bill which does away with the six months interval between the decree nisi and the final decree.

Navies Of Six Powers Will Patrol Entire Peninsular Coastline

27 NATIONS IN LINE MAR. 6

Breach Of Volunteer Ban To Bring Stiff Penalties—Prison Says Italy

LONDON, Feb. 20 (AP) — The nations of Europe clamped down an embargo on fighting men for Spain today to halt the menace of the civil conflict converting the continent into its battlefield.

Even while they timed their stringent measures—long term jail sentences in some cases—to take effect at midnight tonight, 27 nations were pledged to impose a workable war blockade by land and sea around the peninsula by March 6.

Portugal alone of the members of the international non-intervention committee remained to be converted entirely, but informed observers felt her objections to foreign observers on her soil would be overcome over the week-end.

This last stumbling block was expected to be met by a compromise allowing British inspectors to see that Portugal keeps her pledge not to send arms or guns to her war-torn neighbor.

The Italian ban on volunteers, announcing "penal measures" as punishment, was published officially last night.

Czechoslovakia took radical measures to prevent her nationals from fighting in Spain. A bill to enforce Belgian non-intervention was put up to the cabinet council yesterday.

Severe Punishment

The Hungarian cabinet prohibited by decree recruiting by either side of the struggle under threat of severe punishment and the Irish Free State passed on second reading a bill to the same effect.

Germany already has outlawed volunteers on pain of prison, along with France and Britain, and recalcitrant Portugal has pledged herself to the principle of non-intervention.

The naval cordon will be drawn about the peninsula by the combined navies of Britain, France, Russia, Germany, Italy and Portugal, dividing the Spanish waters into patrol zones as follows:

Bay of Biscay—France and Portugal.

Northwest coast — France and Russia.

Southern coast—France, Russia, Britain and Portugal.

Eastern coast — Italy and Germany.

Baleario Isles—France.

The final draft of the Anglo-Portuguese compromise frontier plan is expected by Monday when the sub-committee of the six most interested nations meets.

ROMAN VICEROY WOUNDED BY BOMB

Rebellious Ethiopians Hurl Bombs As Graziani Hands Out Gifts At Addis Ababa

ROME, Feb. 20.—(AP).—Marshal Rodolfo Graziana, Viceroy of Ethiopia, was slightly wounded by a hand genade, an official communique announced to-day, when rebellious natives at Addis Ababa attempted to assassinate him as he presented them with gifts.

Many others, including the Abuna Cyril, coptic bishop of Ethiopia, were gravely wounded, the announcement said, when the natives hurled the grenades during a celebration of the birth of Prince Vittorio Emanuel.

The Ethiopians pentrated the gathering at noon yesterday, the communique declared, as if coming up for gifts distributed in the baby prince's honor. As the ceremony was about to end, they drew the grenades from beneath their white shammas and threw them at the group surrounding the Viceroy on the rostrum.

The officials were knocked off their feet by the force of the explosions and when Graziana picked himself up he found he was slightly wounded by the fragments. Confusion covered the escape of the bomb throwers.

ACTION DEFERRED ON $27,000 PROJECT

Opposition In Lindsay To Expenditure For Alterations To Pumphouse

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Feb. 20.—The local Water Board has decided to defer action on the proposed expenditure of $27,000 on alterations to the pump house with a view to improving the condition of the water served the citizens. There has been opposition to the scheme on the part of a great many citizens. While the town water grades high, it is unpalatable a great deal of the time. It is pointed out by the Provincial Board of Health that grade is not everything.

MUSICAL MOUSE LOST

Believed To Have Been Stolen From Its Cage.

DETROIT, Feb. 20 (CP)—"Be on the lookout for anyone trying to sell Pee Wee, a singing mouse, valued at $500" ran a police teletype message after Mrs. Louis Ravus notified authorities her musical mouse had been stolen from a cage in the basement of her home. No word has been received from the kidnapper.

Mounties Consider Blocking B.C. Party On Way To Spain

13 Are Known To Be Avowed Reds—Others Serbs, Russians And Greeks

GATHERING IN NEW YORK

VANCOUVER, Feb. 20 (CP)—The Vancouver Daily Province in a newspage story yesterday said that Royal Canadian Mounted Police, investigating reports that 25 Vancouver men have left Vancouver recently to enlist with Spanish government forces, may take steps to prevent the party's sailing from New York.

The paper continues:

"Many of the volunteers, it is stated, were on relief in Vancouver. Several are well known in left-wing circles.

"More than half the party travelled via Seattle by bus because it was feared that legislation now pending in Ottawa might prevent their departure from Canada. The rest left by boat, some working their passage to Europe.

"Thirteen of the adventurers are avowed Communists and the remainder a group of Russians, Greeks, Serbians and one or two from other Balkan countries."

"Thirteen of the group," the Province said, "are travelling together and expect to board the same ship from New York next week."

No confirmation was obtainable from official sources in Vancouver that a group of men had left the city to enlist in Spanish government forces.

Husband's Affections Worth Just Six Cents

New York, Feb. 20. (AP)

SUPREME Court jury awarded Mrs. Blanche Kennedy, Brooklyn school teacher, six cents damages yesterday for the loss of her husband's affections.

She had asked $200,000 from Mrs. Zoe Aston Jones, attractive Brooklyn widow, whom she accused of having been more than friendly with her attorney husband, Herbert Kennedy.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Amery Says Each Dominion Should Realize Its Duty—Not Leave It all to Britain

PORTSMOUTH, England, Feb. 20—(C.P. Cable).—Each Dominion should realize its own imperial responsibilities and the defence of an empire scattered over the world should not devolve upon a small island, Leopold Emery, former Dominions Secretary, declared in a speech supporting the government's defence program here today.

He said he refused to subscribe to the belief that rearmament meant war and declared it was a great mistake to regard the defence measures as directed against Germany. "When everyone else is putting their treasures into iron vessels can we afford continually to keep ours in brittle, earthenware jars?" he asked.

STUDENTS AIDED BY GHOST WRITERS

Professor Charges They Guarantee At Least Grade "B" Or No Money Taken

TORONTO, Feb. 20.— (CP).—"Ghost writers" ply their trade among students of the University of Toronto campus, Prof. G. S. Brett, Dean of graduate studies, said in an address here last night.

Students at Toronto "U" have access to special tutors and ghost writers who will turn out essays and other academic exercises for a fee and will guarantee their efforts will get the students Grade "B" or better. If they don't nothing is paid. Special intensive coaching is also available on the same terms, said Prof. Brett.

Existence of such a system is evidence of the need for more selectivity in admitting students, Prof. Brett said.

"Twenty per cent. of University students have no right to be there and should be weeded out," he said.

A system to keep out of University those unfitted for and unresponsive to higher education should be devised, he said. A natural sequence to this would be the assuring of higher education to those specially fitted for it.

Office "Chucking" Incident Stirs Denial From Hepburn

Says Cabinet Happy Family As Heighington Hints He'd Like To Referee Future Bouts

LATTER WANTS FAIR PLAY

TORONTO, Feb. 10 (C.P.).—Premier Hepburn said yesterday his Cabinet was "a happy family" in telling the Ontario Legislature that a report two Ministers recently engaged in an altercation, one "chucking" the other out of his office, was incorrect.

Attention of the House was called by Wilfrid Heighington, Conservative member for Toronto St. David's, to a story in an evening paper which said "Queen's Park is buzzing with the news that one Hepburn Cabinet Minister took another Minister by the neck recently and chucked him out of his office."

"I have heard rumors of dissension in the Cabinet, but I sincerely trust it has not gone this far," said Mr. Heighington. "There should be someone there to see fair play. I wouldn't like to see the heavyweight Minister of Agriculture (Hon. Duncan Marshall) take on the lightweight Minister of Welfare (Hon. David Croll). Is it possible we can see it on the Cabinet?"

Premier Hepburn denied the reported incident occurred. "Using the words of the Leader of the Opposition in describing his group, I might say we are a happy family," said the Premier. He mentioned that the story stated Hon. Peter Heenan denied having a part in the reported affair.

Must Have Calm Sea For Russian Warships

London, Feb. 20 (AP)

RUSSIA'S aged warships created another worry last night for diplomats trying to weld a blockade of all Spain. Neutrality negotiators assigned Russia, with Portugal, patrol of the Basque Coast along the Bay of Biscay. Russia protested her ancient war-era! probably couldn't take the buffeting of frequent Biscay storms, and asked for duty on the calmer Mediterranean. Neutrality committeemen said they would ask their Governments to think it over.

France Spreads Net Of Troops to Cover Roads Over Pyrenees

Over 500 Recruits Pass Through City Of Perpignan Alone On Last Day

11,000 SINCE JULY

Majority Bound For Spanish Government's International Brigade In Madrid

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 20 (A.P.). — Last minute volunteers to Spain rushed toward the heavily-guarded Franco-Spanish border today in a scramble to beat the midnight non-intervention deadline. To-day's flow of recruits through this city alone was expected to reach 500.

Meanwhile picked platoons of mobile guards and gendarmes hurried to their posts to dam the stream of fighters for both insurgent and government armies in the peninsula's civil conflict.

A thin net of more than 1,000 men was stretched across the Pyrenees, covering all roads, railroads and mountain passes from the Bay of Biscay to the Mediterranean. Barriers were erected to halt travellers for questioning.

The volunteer mobilization centre here, a former hospital, operated by an anti-Fascist committee, hurriedly received the last day's crop of prospective warriors, furnished them with their papers and packed them into busses for the short trip across the frontier.

Officials felt the effectiveness of the measures at Perpignan would determine largely whether the ban is to be successful. About 11,000 volunteers of several nationalities were authoritatively estimated to have passed through here since last July when the war started.

Most of them were bound for the ranks of the Spanish government's international brigade.

SIX-HOUR DAY URGED

Mothers Sick And Tired Of Long Hours At Housework.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 20 (AP)—A six-hour day for mothers was urged today by Mrs. Laura Chassell Toops, faculty member of Ohio State University.

"An apprenticeship of girls with a program of supervised homework for children would be a great help to the mothers of America," she told the convention of the American Council of Dance and Personnel Associations.

"They are sick and tired of working long hours at dishwashing, clothes washing and housework."

CORONATION OATH GREATLY CHANGED

King George's Pledge Will Recognize Separate Nationhood Of The Dominions

LONDON, Feb. 20 (C.P.). — King George, when he takes the solemn oath of the Coronation, will recognize the separate nationhood of the Dominions.

Conforming to the new constitution of Empire as embodied in the Statute of Westminster, the oath will call upon the King "to solemnly promise and swear to govern the peoples of Great Britain, Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and the Union of South Africa, of your possessions and other territories to any of them belonging or pertaining, and of your Empire of India, according to their respective laws and customs."

The form of the oath was reached after consultation with the Dominions, it was announced last night. It differs greatly from the oath at the last Coronation, of King George V. in 1911, when he was asked to "solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the Dominions thereto belonging...."

It was shown in publication of the new oath that the King's profession of faith had been changed to make it clear all references to the Church of England and its settlement were confined to the United Kingdom.

The King's title will be referred to in the oath without the phrases "By the Grace of God" and "Defender of the Faith." The title will thus be the same as that used by Edward VIII. in his instrument of abdication:

"George VI., of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Emperor of India." The former form was "(The King's name), by the Grace of God, of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

TORONTO MEMBERS OBJECT TO CUT IN CADET TRAINING

Strong Objection Is Taken To $10,000 Reduction For Training Cadets

ITEM IS HELD OVER

OTTAWA, Feb. 20—(CP)—Reduction of $10,000 in the appropriation for cadet services drew such objection from two Toronto Conservative members in the House of Commons last night that Defence Minister Mackenzie decided to give that item further consideration and the House adjourned.

Before he got to that item, the House had voted on four others totalling $442,651 for the book of remembrance, battlefield memorials, Arctic radio service and war claims adjustments.

When Mr. Mackenzie announced $140,000 for cadet services, contrasted to $150,000 last year, J. R. MacNicol (Cons. Toronto-Davenport) and T. L. Church (Cons. Toronto Broadview) at once questioned the reduction. The Minister said it would not result in any decrease in services; the reduction this past year had been coincidental with an increase of 400 in the total of cadets to 82,797, despite the fact several units had been closed.

Not Militia Service.

If a skeleton militia was desirable, Mr. Church suggested some complimentary services must also be desirable, although the cadet service was not to be considered a military service.

A citizen's first duty, he declared, was to protect his country. "We're getting like Christian Scientists," he said. "We're refuse to use the means the Lord has given us to cure our ailments."

He contended if youths were encouraged to take part in cadet training to a greater degree, they would acquire a discipline and general benefit which would be an asset through life.

SURVEYORS BUSY ON MARMORA ROAD

Material For Paving Prepared On No. 14 To Foxboro—Work Also On No. 7

MARMORA, Feb. 20. — Surveyors of the Ontario Department of Highways have been working on No. 14 Highway between Marmora and Foxboro, and also on No. 7 Highway for the past few weeks.

Material has been piled along No. 14 Highway to pave the road. It is also understood that strong appeals are being made to have a considerable part of No. 7 Highway between Marmora and Peterborough paved this year. With the much increased traffic over these roads and the frequent need of repair such as the present thaw will occasion, it will be deemed a decided improvement in more ways than one, as the paved surface is laid.

63,800 EMPLOYED BY TEXTILE FIRMS IN 1936 IN CANADA

Only Dominion Woollens Showed Profit Of 13 Plants Says Companies' Defence

ALL INCREASED STAFFS

OTTAWA, Feb. 20—(CP)—Extent Canada is dependent on the primary textile industry was emphasized to Justice W. F. A. Turgeon's textile commission here yesterday by Roy L. Kellock, Toronto, counsel for the industry. A total of 63,800 persons were employed in 1936 by the group of companies he represented, said Mr. Kellock.

After a year's probe during which all their affairs have come within the spotlight, the companies yesterday opened their "defence."

Commission counsel J. C. McRuer had said frequently one of the commission's tasks had been to establish the responsibility of the industrialist to maintain employment during periods of depression.

"I don't find in any of the briefs filed by either of the commission counsel any illustration of that being done," commented Mr. Kellock. He suggested that several facts in the exhibits filed with the commission might well have been noted by Mr. McRuer.

The J. R. Moodey Co., of Hamilton, for example had increased employment during the depression, said Mr. Kellock. This company had experienced losses from 1931 to 1935.

Profit for Dominion Woollens

The Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Co. had also increased employment during the depression years, he said. In only one year had it made a profit—one of $15,000 on sales of $3,574,594. Its payroll in 1931 was $749,714, representing wages to 1,001 workers. In 1936 a total of 1,624 workers received $1,135,969.

The Mercury Mills, Hamilton, the Barrymore Cloth Co., Toronto, Dupont Textiles Co., Toronto, Hield Bros. Ltd., Kingston, St. Johns Textile Mills, St. Johns, Que., The Harding Carpets Ltd., of Brantford, the Allen-A Co., Hamilton, the National Hosiery Co., Ltd., Hamilton, the Regent Knitting Mills, St. Jerome, Que., the George Pattinson and Co., Ltd., Preston and the Tayside Textiles Ltd., Perth, were some of the companies who had increased employment during the depression, while at the same time their shareholders were receiving no return on their investments, said Mr. Kellock.

TORIES SUPPORT LIBERALS IN VOTE

those other countries that may have like institutions, like ideals, like principles to preserve as ourselves."

Held Up By Oil Sanction

Had it not been for the critical international situation prevailing last year and misunderstanding of Canada's attitude to oil sanctions against Italy in the Ethiopian dispute the House might have been asked to vote the increased estimates then, Mr. Mackenzie King said.

The government on taking office in 1935 had found the defence establishment weakened by the economies effected during the depression, he said. He did not criticize the Conservative government for this but he regretted it had been necessary for Defence Minister Mackenzie to reveal the weakness.

Woodsworth's Protest.

The debate closed with a passionate protest against the estimates from J. S. Woodsworth, veteran C.C.F. leader, who demonstrated the strength of his Pacifist convictions during the Great War. He said he had never been ashamed of the stand he had taken then in opposing conscription, resigning from the Methodist ministry and giving up a position with the governments of the Prairie Provinces.

"More than ever before in the last 20 years I am convinced of the futility of war," he said. "I am more than ever before convinced that armaments are no insurance against war.

"Today it seems to me we need men of vision and faith who will strike out along altogether different lines. We today are proposing to travel the same old road over which the nations have travelled for centuries and which had led inevitably to disaster."

He would not despair if the House passed the defence estimates, said Mr. Woodsworth. He knew there were many thousands of people in Canada who wanted a different approach to world problems. He knew there were people working for peace in all countries, even in Germany and Italy.

Agnes is Curious

Curiosity as to when Defence Minister Mackenzie and other government members became suddenly aware of Canada's dangerous position was expressed by Miss Macphail.

"I don't recall the Prime Minister saying anything a year ago about Canada's precarious position," she said. She had heard no talk then of bombs being dropped on western wheat elevators. In fact at that time it might have been a good thing if a few bombs had been dropped on elevators as a way of solving the wheat problem.

If a bomb had been dropped even on the House of Commons, she was not sure the public would consider that such a calamity after this week's debate, she said.

She commented on the Prime Minister's "eloquent" address of this afternoon. "I didn't like it, but it was eloquent," she said.

She feared increased arms would not be used only for defence, but would make Canada much more liable to be drawn into a war at the beck of Britain.

Of the contingent going to the Coronation Miss MacPhail said anxiety to make a good appearance at the Imperial Conference following that ceremony seemed to warrant a pessimistic attitude regarding the Government's future defence plans.

The Defence Minister, she said, had made one "boner" in his address in pleading for protection of women and children. There was only one worse phrase, and that was to talk of protecting the widows and orphans.

The Ottawa Relief Situation.

Miss MacPhail reminded the Government, regarding social service expenditures, that in Ottawa 390 families on relief lived in one room each, and 687 families lived in two rooms.

Miss MacPhail quoted social surveys made in Montreal which revealed "terrible conditions" existed among many sections of the poor.

"There is no common sense talking of defence of women and children who are left in conditions such as these," she said.

Those Smoke Eaters must have used tear gas on the Moose Snipers and for the second time this season made it two straight with a margin of two shots. Games 4-0. Score 21-17.

The Moose Herd fell victims to the No Surrender squad who finished the round by taking two games and doubling the score.

East City Decorators failed to do a job with the fighting Parsons and received a good trouncing for their efforts.

In a local derby the C. P. Trimmers took a lesson in trimming from Curtis' Brick Yard gang.

Any skip able to play games not scheduled are requested to do so.

Cridlands Meat were extended to beat East City Decorators. Taking the first by a margin of one shot coming up from behind with 2 to 6, the fifth frame on the second game four ends overtime were played. Cridlands taking the last two ends for the count of one and three.

Toronto Peterborough transport and the C.N.R. Freighters took on a nice race, dividing the first two. In the last lap C.N.R. lead 4 to 1, then collapsed to lose 7 to 4.

OBITUARY

MRS. GEORGE HERRINGTON
(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 20. — The funeral service for the late Mrs. George Herrington, whose death occurred on February 15 at Cobourg General Hospital, was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Grey, Roseneath.

The service was conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott, pastor of Roseneath United Church. He based his address on portions of Scripture found in the 3rd and 47th chapters of Genesis and emphasized that it is not the number of years one lives that counts, but the quality of one's living.

He also read three hymns, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "Rock of Ages," "Abide With Me."

Mrs. Herrington, before her marriage was Miss Etta Deviney, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Deviney of Haldimand Township. She was 66 years of age, and had been ill for some time. She was a member of Roseneath United Church, and a well-known and highly-respected resident of Alnwick township.

Surviving are two children; a son Max of Toronto, and Mrs. James Grey of Roseneath. She is also survived by one brother, Arthur of London, Ontario, and two sisters, Mrs. T. C. Lapp, Cobourg, and Mrs. William Waldie, Roseneath.

Interment was made at Bethany cemetery, with the following acting as pall-bearers: Messrs. Andrew Brown, James Nattress, J. W. Pacey, H. Blodgett, A. Halstead and G. Watt.

MRS. CHARLES WATSON.

The death of Mrs. Charles Watson, 549 Patterson Street, occurred suddenly at St. Joseph's Hospital on Friday. In her 48th year, she had been ill only a few days.

She was born in County Derry, Ireland, and came to this city from Ireland 11 years ago. Formerly Mary Martin, she was daughter of the late Robert Martin and Mary McConnell. She was active in the work of Knox United Church.

Surviving besides her husband, who is proprietor of the Watson grocery on Patterson Street is one daughter Patricia, at home, one son Robert at Kirkland Lake, and one sister, Mrs. Lillian Stewart, of this city.

The funeral will be held at 2 p.m. on Monday from the Nisbett Funeral Home to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. George S. Easton officiating.

MRS. PATRICK HEALEY.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Patrick Healey took place on Friday morning from her late residence in the village to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. The Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. E. Welsh, who also preached the funeral sermon. Large numbers of friends and relatives were present to show a last tribute of respect. The deceased had had poor health for many years and had suffered greatly, but bore her sufferings patiently and without complaint. Her husband predeceased her five years ago. Several brothers also pre-deceased her, two of them, Cornelius of Furnace Falls, and Patrick of Chapleau, having died within the past three months. She is survived by two sons, James and Leo, and six grandchildren.

Pallbearers were six residents of the village, Messrs. James Casey, William Quinlan, G. G. Towns, Harry Ayotte, David Garvey and Michael Sheehan.

Those from a distance who attended were: Messrs. Frank Hughes and Hal Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen O'Toole, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Garvey and son Leo, all of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bell, Dummer, Mr. John Healey and Miss Healey of Westwood, Mr. Wilfrid Quinlan and son Earl, Mr. and Mrs. William Cavanagh and son Howard.

Local Collegians Win Cage Contest

(By Eric West).

On Friday evening, the senior P.C.I. boys took a 33-24 interscholastic basketball fixture from Cobourg on the latter's floor. It was a fast, rugged game due to the confined space of the Cobourg "bear pit," but play was kept under control. There were 24 fouls called, 14 on the visitors, with the winners capitalizing on five free throws to four for the homesters.

The score was a good indication of play, with the count tied at 12-all at the halfway mark. Galley played sensationally in the second half to score 16 points, bringing his total to 20 for the contest. Davern and Gemmell, although handicapped by injuries, played a hard-checking style and showed neat passing. Gunsoluos got two nice baskets on long shots and one free throw. The latter and Kelly on defence kept the enemy snipers fairly well in check. Johnston went good, too, while Turner had to leave with four fouls. The losers' scoring was more spread around with Payne, who got seven, and Lucas with five, being outstanding. Ravensdale got two long ones, Bennett looked fair, and Brash scored from centre as the last whistle blew. The teams:

P.C.I.—Gemmell, Johnston, Galley, Davern, Turner, Laing, Gunsolus, Kelly, Smith.

Cobourg—Bennett, Payne, Lucas, Drury, Gay, Ravensdale, Eagleson, Brash.

Referee—C. R. Ostrander of Cobourg.

SMALL BOY CUT BY FLYING GLASS

Mrs. John Thill Is Fined For Failing To Halt At Stop Sign

Mrs. John Thill, 56 Lombard street Lancaster, N.Y., was this (Saturday) morning fined $7.50 and costs on pleading guilty before the magistrate to a charge of failing to halt her car at a stop sign in the city.

Held by police after her car was involved in collision with another automobile being driven by E. J. Blackwell of R.R. 2, Peterborough at Reid and McDonnel streets on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Thill was released on bail of $300 to appear this morning. When she drove her car west on McDonnel street through the stop sign, the Blackwell car which was coming down the hill from the north ran into the side of the American car and 5-year-old Eric Blackwell was cut about the face by flying glass from the shattered windshield of his father's car. One stitch was inserted by Dr. A. G. Howson at the Clinic to close the wound. Both cars were extensively damaged. The American car took the force of the impact on the right hand side, while the Blackwell car was extensively damaged about the front including the radiator and engine block.

Passengers in Mrs. Thill's car were: Mrs. B. V. Coleman and Francis Curvin, both of Port Hope.

"I gained 10 pounds .. and everybody says my complexion is really grand!"

MANY young girls shoot up in height, yet stay as thin as a rail. Miss Mary B——* was like that until recently. She says:

"I was awfully tall and thin for my age so Mother got me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and now I have gained about 10 lbs. And everybody says my complexion is really grand."

When young people are growing, or when adults are underweight, nature must have the proper materials or the body won't gain a pound. Very often the body building material required is iron. As soon as Mary B——* began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, she gained in weight and in health, because this remedy provided the iron she needed. Note how her complexion improved, too!

If you are too thin or if you are rundown, nervous, have no pep and get moody at times, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will tone up your health and build up your body; give you back your pep and good spirits. And this better health will be reflected in a clearer, rosier complexion. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are 50c everywhere.

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills regularly for a while; and if you don't feel better, stronger and healthier, your money will be returned to you.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20. — Bullish weathe reports from the south-west imparted price firmness to wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, but did little to enliven a dull day. The close was ⅛-¼ cent higher, after a session in which the trading range was restricted to little more than a cent.

Reports of dust sweeping the American winter-wheat area encouraged late recoveries from opening practical setbacks, but so slow were operations that five minutes elapsed between trades at times.

Export sales of wheat totalled less than 250,000 bushels, which with the subdued buying in pre-closing dealings sufifced to absorb scattered selling with little difficulty. Prices at Chicago moved ahead toward the last, aiding Winnipegs sluggish recovery. Liverpool was up 1¼d, responsive to improved United Kingdom demand for Argentine wheat.

Cash grains continued inactive. Coarse grains prices were quietly firm with wheat.

Canada Celebrating Moody Centenary With Special Services In Many Cities

Great Evangelist Visited Dominion On One Of His Tours

By HOWARD GERRING
(Central Press Canadian Writer).

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Hundreds of thousands of people throughout Canada and United States have been and will during the next few weeks assemble to celebrate the centenary of the birth of Dwight Lyman Moody, world-famous evangelist and reputed "saver of a million souls."

Generally recognized as the most forceable religious speaker of his century, Moody was born a poor farm boy in Northfield, Mass., on February 5, 1837. At 19, fired with religious zeal by a Congregational Sunday school teacher, he left a $5,000 a year job as salesman in a shoe shop, to go to Chicago, later the scene of many Moody prayer meetings.

Sincerity Was Convincing.

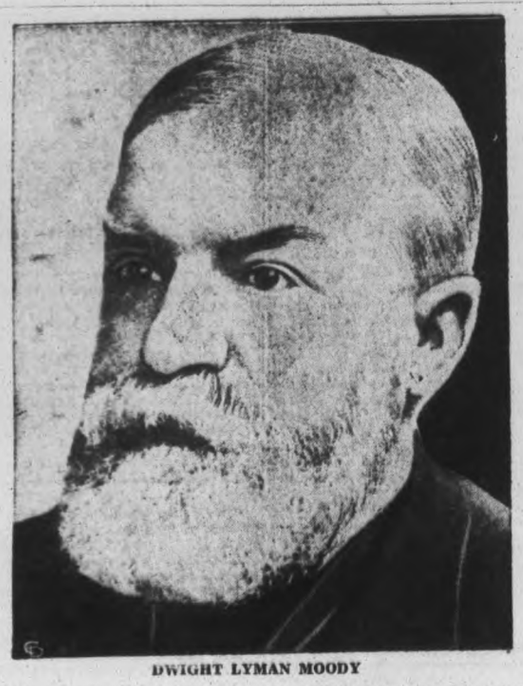
Short and stout, Moody converted many people, not through his ability as an orator, but through the sincerity of his words. This fact was obvious to most people and after his death on December 22, 1899, Gamaliel Bradford, the historian, wrote:

"It was the forcefulness with which Moody spoke, more than what he said, that impressed his hearers. The man's deep-rooted convictions were so a part of him that it was impossible to doubt his sincerity. There was nothing dramatic about Moody. His earnestness was so great that to hear him was to believe. In telling stories of pathetic happenings, his eyes would fill with tears, his voice would break, but he would go right on."

For many years he was known to the newspapers of Chicago as "Crazy Moody" because he would stop strangers on the street and ask them, "Are you a Christian?" During the American Civil War he became known for his work among the soldiers of the Union army, "saving" hundreds of them. In this regard, it is said, he refused to fight, but rather, followed the troops as they moved southward. Critics said he revived dying men with brandy to get them to surrender to Christ and Dwight Lyman Moody.

Joined With Sankey.

Early in 1870, Moody met Ira D. Sankey, singer and collector of internal revenue. Together the two men visited England, Scotland and other countries holding religious meetings which are said to be second in enthusiasm only to those of Whitefield and Wesley. While touring the British Isles they preached and sang before 2,500,000 people.



DWIGHT LYMAN MOODY

Upon their return to America the men visited Canada and later made a nation-wide tour of the United States. While their time was taken mainly with revival meetings, they composed many hymns, now popular the world over. It has been said that at one time they earned $35,000 in royalties from these hymns within a few months. Whether this is true has never been verified; Moody left only $500 when he died.

Founded Bible Institute.

He inaugurated the system of conventions and conferences for religious organizations and forwarded the movement of publishing houses for religious literature. In 1886 he founded the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, which has grown to be the foremost school of its kind in the world. It was through this organization that he and Sankey published many of their books on religious subjects and Bible study.

Though the American and British press often accused him of profiteering from his work, Moody gave away most of the proceeds from extensive book sales, to worthy causes. It was Moody who began the East Northfield schools of Massachusetts.

Proof of the success of his strong convictions and hard work are seen today in the fact that people the world over are celebrating his birth, though the famed evangelist has been dead for over 38 years.

LAKEFIELD

MISSION CIRCLE HAS GOOD PROGRAM

Regular Monthly Meeting Of United Church Organization Is Success

(Examiner Correspondent.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 20.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Mission Circle held at the home of Miss Cora Charlton on Wednesday evening, February 17, the general theme of the program was: "Jesus, the Pioneer of Life—the Leader in Adventure."

The meeting opened with the hymn 'Ye've a Story to Tell to the Nations.' After the business, Mary Webster read the Bible lesson, the First Psalm. Four of the girls led in sentence prayers: Mae Webster, Eva Hendren, Mrs. W. J. Charlton and Mary Webster. The fourth chapter of the study book, "Men and Women of Far Horizons," was given by Misses Mildred Garbutt and Thelma Bullock, who stressed "Recreation" and "Reaching New Groups in Japan."

Cora Charlton gave a reading.

Misses Eva Hendren and Mildred Garbutt are in charge of next month's meeting, which is to be held at the home of Mrs. W. W. Leonard, who kindly offered her home for the occasion.

A National Message

"And they shall call them, The holy people, The redeemed of the Lord: and thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken—Isa. lxii, 12.

The Holy people are still in existence, and shall be even to the end of the world. They shall be CALLED again, the Holy people. They are the redeemed of the Lord, but are not now known as such to the nations generally. But they shall call them, the redeemed of the Lord; and thou shalt be called SOUGHT OUT CITY NOT FORSAKEN.

One's mind irresistibly turns to Jerusalem in Jesus' day when He wept over the city and cried: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold; your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, ye shall not see me henceforth till ye shall say, Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord."

Perhaps the saddest thing that was ever spoken of Jerusalem were the words which commence the next chapter, "And Jesus went out and departed from the Temple." That great tragedy was in the same class as that which is so graphically described by Ezekiel, namely, the departure of the glory of God from the Temple and the city. So the city was forsaken indeed.

But now the curse is to be removed. The glory of the Lord is about to return. Jesus is coming to save the city once more; when men shall say indeed, "Blessed is He who cometh in the name of the Lord, and Thou shalt be called, Sought out, A city not forsaken."

Thus the State and thus the Church must work together for the glory of the Lord and the salvation of the people and the estbalishment of the final phase of the Kingdom of God.

The Power of Jesus Over Death

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for February 21 is John 11: 1-12: 11, especially 11: 23-26; 32-34, the Golden Text being 11: 25—"I am the resurrection and the life.")

"What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and griefs to bear;
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer."

Jesus Friend of Sorrowing.

Mary and Martha, Jesus' friends in Bethany, turned instinctively to Him in the hour of their sorrow over the sickness of their brother Lazarus, and "sent unto him, saying, Lord, behold, he whom thou lovest is sick. But when Jesus heard it, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby." So, no affliction of a Christian is a matter for despair, but for waiting for the revelation of God's glory. God may seem to delay the answer, but his delays never imply his desertion: "When therefore he heard that he was sick, he abode at that time two days in the place where he was." And when at length he started for Bethany to raise Lazarus from the dead, what a beautiful picture of death he gave the Christians: "Our friend Lazarus is fallen asleep; but I go, that I may awake him out of sleep...now Jesus had spoken of his death." How slow, to this day, are his disciples to see death as He pictured it.

Jesus the Resurrection and Life.

Both Martha and Mary used identical words when first they realized Jesus' presence with them in "the valley of the shadow of death": "Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died." So, with innumerable "life" as unjustified as theirs, we needlessly torment ourselves in life's bereavements. Was not Jesus with them in spirit during those two days he tarried beyond Jordan as death hovered over the house of his Bethany friends? His tarryings are always timed in love for His friends. And when He comes to confront death with His superior resources of life, He voices the most tremendous and significant claim this world has ever heard: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die. Believest thou this?" This is unquestionably the voice of God, for no mortal dare speak such words. Martha's conclusion is the only logical conclusion to which anyone can come: "Yea, Lord, I have believed that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, even he that cometh into the world."

"Jesus Wept."

Jesus' tears at the tomb of His friends are the proof of the depth and genuineness of his sympathy for us in our hour of sorrow, whether He went because His friend Lazarus had died, or, perhaps we may more reasonably infer, because he was about to bring His friend back again into this vale of tears after having tasted of something far better on the other side, in "the house of the Lord." However, that may be, his "Lazarus, come forth," and its resultant turning of death into life, justify our faith and hope and joy as we anticipate its repetition in the case of our loved ones and ourselves when Christ fulfills His promise: "The hour cometh, in when all that are in the tombs shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." "Thanks be to God, who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

TheGolden Text

John 11: 25—"I am the resurrection, and the life."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

If we exist from everlasting unto everlasting; if we already existed before we appeared on this earthly scene, why do we not remember? On the surface this is a fair question, but in reality it is based upon the ignorance of the majority in regard to their own nature and an ignorance of the basic reasons of earthly existence. Memory is a big thing, how big it is difficult to define. It is really a part of the subjective mind in which is stored to the uttermost detail everything which we have thought, said or done, even from the beginning.

Our forgetfulness of these details only means that generally they lie far below the threshold of consciousness, and are difficult to consciously recall, but none the less their memory remains. So that we may say that there is an unconscious as well as a conscious memory. In addition there is also a spiritual or superconscious aspect of memory embracing not only this life, but the entire history of the personality from the very beginning.

Of course these terms, subjective, conscious and superconscious are but terms, for the mind cannot be ruled off into arbitrary divisions. The level of consciousness is not a fixed thing, but is constantly fluctuating and one form merges insensibly into another without our being aware of any change. But the chief reason we do not remember other lives is that from the moment of birth we fall deeper and deeper into objectivity. All the training of the child, all its "education," material life itself in fact, develops the objective side until the link between Soul and self is all but obliterated. If a babe could but express itself, could but convey to us what it sees and hears as it lies happily in its cradle, if we could but see its playmates, unbelief and doubt would vanish from the earth instantly. But alas, it cannot, it is helpless in a strange body, it has not mastered the mechanism in which it has to dwell. The mechanism itself is too feeble, the babe cannot formulate and express itself, and by the time it can, it has forgotten.

The memory though has not perished, it still remains deep buried and it can be recaptured to the exact extent in which we succeed in building up the Way between Soul and self. In this respect at least, we must, as the Master said, become again as little children. We cannot drag the Soul down to our level, for it is of God, but we can raise the self to the point where we can contact the Soul. People speak glibly and for the most part unknowingly of the Soul, they habitually confuse the higher emotions of the personality with the Soul itself. No one who has ever seen the glorious Image and Likeness of God, which is the Soul, can ever again mistake it for their personalities, no matter how high or lofty the latter may be. Nor can they ever in themselves be quite the same again. Even as Jesus did, they realize that they of themselves are as nothing, of themselves they can do nothing, that in themselves they have no goodness, no righteousness, no anything. That all belongs to God, is God, working in, through and by them.

Thus at one stroke the vase stripped of all self-pride, and all self-righteousness, all self-advertisement, all bigotry. They see no evil, do no evil, speak no evil, for all is transmuted into good. They walk with God in the brotherhood of Jesus the Christ, for in His Name they have conquered self.

The Power of Jesus Over Death — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 11

Lazarus, the brother of Mary and Martha, was sick and they sent word to Jesus, beyond Jordan, saying, "He whom thou lovest is sick." After two days Jesus started for Bethany to raise Lazarus from the dead.

When Jesus met Martha he said, "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die."

Coming to Lazarus' tomb "Jesus wept", and the people said, "Behold, how he loved him." Then Jesus prayed, thanking God for hearing him and for giving him the power he was about to exercise over death.

Jesus cried with a loud voice, "Lazarus, come forth." And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with graveclothes. Thus Jesus showed his power over death.

A Break in The Family

The World War was officially over in November of 1918, but for Perry J. Giffen, managing director of The Examiner it ended in the early morning hours of Friday, February 19, 1937. That was a long time for war injury to wait before finally pressing its claims to ultimate conclusion, but Perry J. Giffen was a war casualty just as certainly as though he had fallen in action with the Nova Scotia Highlanders with whom he enlisted. He had borne much illness within recent times, an illness which had within it pain which was persistent in asserting its presence.

It is not possible for a newspaper family to lose so great a friend and associate as Perry J. Giffen without feeling the loss. It is difficult to reduce that feeling to words which will tell in plain type the difference between the day when he was last here and the time when he is to be here no more. We know that if Perry Giffen had his way there would be little said of him. He was like that. He was interested in so many activities and yet he had a dislike which seemed to amount to something akin to fear that he would be mentioned in the paper.

Mr. Giffen was in many ways the ideal business executive. Always quick to recognize and approve of worthy effort, and always able to bring a practical mind to bear on the solution of any problem, he brought with him a sense of leadership which made certain that the followers would be close to him when the movement started.

That feeling of sane but ever-present optimism which he had was a great source to which to have access when things were not going right. It was not of a superficial fabric, but had within it a sensible sort of hope which could see a better road just beyond the present obstacle. Not only was that feeling his in generous measure, but he possessed that rare faculty of being able to impart that feeling to others. It was not a driving force, but rather an energy which made concerted action so certain and so real.

There is in The Examiner family today a collective and also an individual feeling of loss. The loss of an able counselor and the loss of a personal friend. At the moment it is hard to believe that Perry Giffen will be here no more.

This Is Unfortunate

The rescue of Dr. D. E. Robertson and Alfred Scadding from the caved-in mine at Moose River has become a matter of history until two leaders of the rescue crew turned up in Toronto to confer with Red Cross officials. They had come to protest regarding the way in which funds had been distributed and awards had been made. One of the rescue miners who made the trip cannot be accused of selfishness because he has received his award, but claims others have not. From his statement we learn the government has been accused of failing to carry out its pledge in mailing the medals to those recognized for their bravery.

Unfortunate indeed that such a chapter of bravery and unselfish devotion should have anything like a dispute written into it. The money was made available because people wanted to show their appreciation of a great service by a great people. They were not paying these brave men for work they had done, but rather seeking to show in some tangible way evidence of admiration. Nor was it their thought or desire that any man should have occasion to feel he had been slighted. If there has been tardiness in winding up the business of making awards or sending out medals then it is time some person in authority sat up nights until the work is completed.

He Deserves Consideration

We must admit that we are inclined to support the protest of the Toronto Trades and Labor Council against the announcement from Hon. David Croll that the relief recipients of the province are alone to share in the benefit of the jobs to be created by the government's housing scheme.

The simple truth is that there are many men in the building trades who have managed to keep off the relief lists during the depression years only by sacrificing their savings and exerting almost impossible economies. It has been a long battle, almost lost time after time, but these citizens, many of them paying taxes to help support the folk on relief, have won through up to the present. To say that now, when, through the aid of the state, some measure of employment in their own field is to be provided, they are not to be allowed to benefit by the opportunity because they are not on relief, seems to be a sorry return for the spirit of independence these men have displayed in taking care of themselves when others were seeking the easiest way out.

Probably that aspect of the situation has not presented itself to the Minister of Public Welfare and that the protest of the Toronto labor body may be enough to cause a change in policy. Certainly the plan as announced is discriminatory against a class of citizen who has measured up to the finest meaning of that term during a period in which it would have been so easy to have followed the line of least resistance instead of battling the depression the hard way.

The Danger of Fast Driving

It is most significant that a committee of the United States government commissioned to study the problem of motor fatalities should find it necessary to bring in a recommendation that the engine power of automobiles should be regulated to protect "reckless motorists against their own folly." The studied opinion of the committee is that speed is the most powerful factor in causing traffic mishaps.

That view runs foul of the feeling on the part of many drivers that modern cars are so constructed and equipped that fast driving except under unusual circumstances is perfectly safe and justifiable.

They have no hesitation in stepping along the highways at express-rate speed and they as a rule most vehemently oppose the suggestion that driving at such a speed carries any great element of danger. The weight of the evidence as compiled from a study of hundreds of automobile accidents has of course been strongly against them. Now along comes this carefully considered suggestion from an official committee that fast driving is so serious a cause of disaster on the highway that the time has come to take responsibility out of the hands of the motorist and to make it mechanically impossible for him to attain a rate of speed that the experience of recent years has demonstrated to be a potent factor in the death toll from automobile accidents.

Why Tax Such Effort?

It seems strange that when a citizen undertakes something that will hold the moisture in the soil of a district, increase its fertility, stop the discomfort and damage from winds and floods, increase bird life, provide cover for wild flowers, give employment and revenue through the winter months and make the country beautiful and prosperous, a grateful community should immediately clap a tax on his enterprise.

The growing of trees produces all of these benefits and yet trees are the only crop raised in Ontario that is taxed under the Assessment Act.

Monroe Landon of Simcoe pointed out that fact at the annual convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association the other day and he called the legislation vicious and argued that it should be remedied. On both counts we have little hesitation in saying that the Simcoe man is right. Instead of being discriminated against by being taxed the citizen who realizes the desirability of reforestation and does something about it should be handed a bonus. He is a public benefactor and should be treated as one because his enterprise is designed to help not only his own property but the whole district in which it is located.

They Saved Their Heads

Germany has a way all her own in dealing with citizens who make an attempt to have their money placed outside the country for purposes of investment or safe keeping or with the idea that they can thus escape any demands of the government for the use of their cash.

Notice was served on Germans generally several months ago that they would be given until the end of January to get their money back home. If they did not they would be subjected to what was termed a "special trial." That is not as exclusive as it sounds, for the literal interpretation of that "special trial" is that those found guilty would have their heads cut off.

Facing that strange option most of the Germans who had been hoarding money abroad have brought it back to the Reichsbank. They were not enamored of the prospect of having their heads cut off for the sake of keeping their cash safe in some other land. When this source of bringing money back to the country is exhausted the next move is in the lap of the gods. Germany has been spending at a terrific pace for armaments and her funds are sadly depleted.

How to Find Minerals

James S. Dobbie was addressing a meeting of the Association of Ontario Land Surveyors in Toronto when he made the claim that men digging wells or doing other excavation work in Northern Ontario centuries from now are likely to stumble on mines of great mineral wealth. Mr. Dobbie believes there are great mineral lands but they are covered by what he terms "overburden," and it will be only by chance this will be removed or penetrated and the mineral body exposed.

We are inclined to believe it would be well to put that little piece from the newspaper over to one side and just keep it handy until some salesman comes along who has a new mine in which he wants to sell shares. If he claims he or his company is going to strike right straight down into pay dirt at once then we will grow suspicious. If he says his folk are going to dig a well or excavate for the building of a house then we may pay some heed to what he has to say. The digging of a well is the one thing which will make certain that a good sized hole will have to be gouged in the ground and when that is done there will be splendid opportunity for the folk to go down and have an intelligent look at the surroundings.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Hon. Mr. Howe's transport bill is apparently not causing the country to go into transports of delight.

Premier Mussolini proposes to demand more funds for further Italian armaments. Every day in every way the world is getting madder and madder.

Mary Astor, screen star, has married her third husband. He happens to be an insurance agent so that he is used to taking risks.

The lining of highways with special type of trees has been suggested. Weeping willows might appropriately be used on curves and hills.

An umbrella caused a jam in London's underground railway system. That could not happen here because we have no underground and very few umbrellas.

There are rumors that the Federal sales tax may be increased to ten per cent. in the new Budget and that certainly was not one of the things we were told about in the last election campaign.

A news picture shows the Dionne quintuplets getting a lesson in snowshoeing. There may sometime or other come along a winter when the art will prove useful.

Hon. H. H. Stevens made a speech in the House the other day and that was the first appearance of the Reconstruction party on the political stage for many months.

Awnings in Edmonton henceforth must be at least seven feet above the sidewalk and we unhesitatingly forward that suggestion to the Peterborough city authorities with a plea for action.

With the suggestion of Hon. Geo. S. Henry that it might have been better to have issued beer licenses to certain types of restaurants than to the places that now operate under authorities, many people are likely to take issue.

Hon. Dr. Cody expresses the opinion that the jazz age is beginning to move off the stage. The head of the University of Toronto cannot sit up very late at nights, especially in front of his loudspeaker.

Col. Drew is the latest public man to announce that Canada is the most overgoverned country in the world. The unfortunate feature is that no one seems to have hit upon a way of correcting the situation.

Even though Canadian Communists showed no inclination to rush to Spain to fight for their comrades there when the way was open they propose now to oppose the bill that will prevent Canadians from enlisting with foreign forces.

Sir Basil Zaharoff continues to mystify the world even after his death. His estate in England is now reported to have been less than a million dollars which leaves a lot to be explained as to what has become of all the money he was supposed to have made.

Governor Hoffman of New Jersey has issued a warning that the entire resources of the state will be called into action to prevent sit-down strikes which he terms "absolutely lawless." They were that in Michigan too but the strikers got away with it.

Edmonton has decided not to collect taxes on a door-to-door plan. The city authorities probably feared too much competition from brush men, vendors of shoe laces and the fellows who are putting themselves through college by selling magazines.

SATURDAY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When it comes round to Saturday, I like to quit and get away, of rest I feel the need; so I'll lie down and have a snooze, or for the Sabbath shine my shoes, or for an hour I'll read.

¶ And so I shove all things aside, I start for home with goodly stride, my mind is filled with peace; and for a spell I will not work, upon the morrow go to kirk, my toil begins to cease.

¶ But when I reach my humble home, I find the hound now craves a bone, he hasn't got a thing; for bones he buried in the fall, he can't get at them now at all, nor will he till the spring.

¶ There's ashes heaped down stairs I know, I should not let them stay and grow, it is a shiftless way; the furnace pipe is loose I find, that sort of preys upon my mind, won't hold another day.

¶ I do these chores up one by one, then find some shopping to be done, a few things have been missed; I take a pencil and I write, so I will do the shopping right, and it makes quite a list.

¶ That's how I rest on Saturday, when I knock off three hours away, I sigh when I get through; one hope stays wedged within my mind, I may get home some day and find—there are no chores to do.

He Wants To Come Back To Fish

(Kirma Denies Any Black Art.)

EDITOR Examiner:

Sir: The matter of a letter published in the Examiner written by one Geo. A. Chambers has been brought to my attention.

It is evident from his letter to you that his words diabolical, devilish and devil apply directly to myself or my activities while in the city of Peterborough.

Frankly, I was under the impression that my services to your local Kiwanis Club in their efforts to raise funds for flood relief would be helpful and understood by all of your community. Although I received not one cent of the funds contributed for the purpose, I have spent as much as three or four hours of my time each night writing the answers to those questions.

It has been my object to make the nature of my work understood, in as much as it pertains to nothing of the supernatural, but is purely scientific and that in rendering my advice to the various queries, I give only a first impression which in most cases have proven right.

Incidently, I feel that had my advice been instrumental in reuniting only one husband and wife during my stay in Peterborough, that, my stay there would have been well worth while and certainly not deserving of the term diabolical as Mr. Chambers chose to put it.

Further notice is taken of his term, 'foreigner" as he applied it to myself. Allow me to remind Mr. Chambers of an old Biblical saying, "We are all children in the Kingdom of God." Surely one who has the egotism to confer upon himself the blessing of righteousness would not permit his love filled soul to become so enwrathed as to forget that our Savior drew no lines of nationalities.

As for my female subject lying exposed to the sight of men and women alike for 24 hours. That must have been a horrifying sight to Mr. Chambers. I am sure however, that the wholesome minds of the majority of Peterborough saw no wrong in the demonstration and accepted it in the same scientific manner in which it was rendered. "There is nothing right or wrong in the universe, only as one's own mind conceives it."

The same spell which Mr. Chambers termed as diabolical, or the work of the devil has been successful in saving the lives of 21 persons last year in the Mayo Bros. Hospital, in Rochester, Minn. The patients were unable to undergo the regular course of anesthesia and were hypnotized to make major operations possible.

According to Mr. Chambers, I am supposed to represent some form of "Black Art," which I am sure the belief of which, died many years ago. It seems from Mr. Chamber's views of "Black Art" and Magic Men, that he has not progressed with the day of science in the mental field and should he care to broaden his scope of reasoning along this line, I will be only too happy to be of assistance.

About the Christianity of Peterborough. I might suggest that instead of telling the good people of the community that they were going to hell, to try teaching the "Love of God," rather than to picture Him as a great monster, ready to cast His children into fire and brimstone for eternity, for patronizing a beer parlor—or asking a mind-reader a question, perhaps.

I can only add that it is very disappointing that Mr. Chambers chose to wait until I was well on my way from Peterborough before he offered his letter for publication, accusing me as a representative of the devil. Otherwise, I may have been in a position to more vividly impress my verbose friend with the old adage, "Let he who is without sin among us cast the first stone."

Yours for reason,

KIRMA

P.S. Hope no one else shares Mr. Chambers' belief that I should be put to death as I expect to come back to Peterborough this summer —fishing.

Exploiting Simpson Home

(From the New Yorker.)

NEXT month, if all goes well, the house at 212 East Biddle street, Baltimore, where Mrs. Wallis Simpson spent part of her girlhood, will be formally opened as a shrine. We learned about this last week, when an artist we know told us that a Mr. Schleisner, from Baltimore, was in town, looking for somebody to do a set of murals for him.

We dropped all our other business, got on Mr. Schleisner's track, and made him tell us about the project. Mr. Schleisner, who is 37, red-headed, and sentimental, is the power behind the 212 East Biddle Street Corporation, which owns the house. The idea was Mr. Schleisner's, and he's attending to all the details, the most pressing of which, at the moment, is getting in touch with a lady to serve as hostess, or curator, of the place. Qualifications for the post are rather strict: she must equal the future Duchess of Windsor in charm, she must be a lady of title, (though not necessarily an English title), and since all three floors of the house will be open to visitors, she must be spry enough to cope with the stairs.

We inquired about the murals, and were told that these were to be on the first floor, and would depict the principal characters in the recent drama. The official name of the house will be 'The Baltimore Home of Mrs. Simpson." Admission will probably be a dollar, plus tax.

Trying vaguely to begin at the beginning, we asked Mr. Schleisner how he came to think of all this. He said he didn't know, exactly; just one of those things. It isn't as if he were idle, either; he's head of the Schleisner Company, retail clothing store and has his hands full with that.

The venture at 212 East Biddle street isn't primarily a money-making scheme. "It's more of a hobby," Mr. Schleisner told us. Without any special reason, he is an ardent, almost feverish, royalist, and definitely pro-Simpson. He has dreams of Edward's reigning again, which would be swell for business.

In general, Mr. Schleisner told us, there will be an effort to retain the atmosphere of the charming old house as it was when Mrs. Simpson lived there, but tucked into corners here and there will be the world's largest collection of Simpsoniana: newspaper files, in all languages; portraits and photographs; letters, autographs, original manuscripts of articles written about the affair, including some unfavorable ones ("I want history to prove the negative opinions were wrong," says Mr. Schleisner); a scale model of Fort Belvedere; reproductions of the English crown jewels; and, out in the back yard, a reproduction of an English garden.

Upstairs there will be a marionette theatre. The marionettes, it seems, are to act out "some of the more epigrammatic aspects of the affair." "My idea," Mr. Schleisner told us, summing it all up, "is to get away from the journalistic crudeness that has been so inimical to fairness."

SMILE MORE.

(Kitchener Record)

MOST of us know of certain places of business we like to visit because of the wonderful reaction one receives from contagious smiles. Girls and men employed there greet a caller with a cheerfulness that lifts the morale and gladdens the heart. One never departs without that fine feeling that all is well with and within the world.

How easy it is to smile! Yet how much it means to all of us. We say it is easy when we recall the words of an anatomical student: "It takes 65 muscles to make a frown and only 13 to make a smile. Why work overtime?"

Anything that will lighter the day's burden and chase away worries is worthwhile. A smile will do that more quickly than anything we know. So let's keep smiling.

To The Editor

ON THE TENTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Many congratulations on the fine showing your paper has made in comparison with many others, some from cities much larger than Peterborough.

Out here on the Tenth Line we appreciate very much the fine service you have given us. The roads have been very icy a great deal of the time but your delivery of the paper was splendid. Perhaps all that early training of being made to plant the potatoes in a straight line, and other work done properly did unconsciously instil in the mind a strong sense of duty which continues through life.

Speaking of potatoes, there is a little place in Northern Michigan, seems to me the name of that place is Alba, but I am not sure, where the soil is just right to grow a certain kind of potatoes that brings a very high price when shipped to Pennsylvania. In the fall the children are taken out of school for a couple of weeks and father and mother and the children all take in the valuable crop and ship them by the car load. Some men have made quit a lot of money in that way.

Out here on the Tenth Line the sound of the saw cutting wood is also heard these days, the distant rumble of tractors too, all having a tendency to speed up the winter work in preparation for the busier season just ahead.

We were delighted to read your story about the large egg which came from this farm.

In Roberta's column she tells about her embarrassing moment falling down. I suppose she felt something like I did when I was at a church supper waiting on table. We always try and give the ministers the very best, and I, seeing some (what I thought was) rich yellow cream, in a jar, poured it in the minister's tea, but it turned out to be salad dressing!

Yours truly

Splendid Report By Victoria Trust & Savings Co.

Encouraging Progress Shown By Annual Report--Directors Look To Future With Confidence And Optimism

Directors Report.
Forty-First Annual Meeting.

The Directors of the Company have pleasure in submitting herewith the Forty-First Annual Report for the year ending December 31st, 1936, duly audited.

The net earnings for the year, after deducting interest paid, cost of management, taxes, etc., amounted to $62,436.14. Adding to this the balance in Profit and Loss Account, gives a total for distribution of $71,298.84. Out of this amount $48,600.00 has been paid in dividends, $7,000.00 reserved for Federal Taxes, and the balance of $15,698.84 carried forward.

The increase in the Company's business for the year 1936 was greater than for several years past, amounting to more than a quarter of a million dollars. We are also pleased to record that the improvement in interest collection noted a year ago still continues, the amount collected during 1936 in excess of 1935 reaching $16,000.00. The rate of interest paid on our Guaranteed Investment Receipts continued during the year at 4% and we trust it may not be necessary to make any further reduction in the rate on this popular from of investment.

Our Cannington branch, under the very capable management of Mr. Shipman, has made its full contribution to the year's substantial gains.

Agriculture has experienced a most difficult year due to the very serious destruction of crops by drought in July. However, as similar conditions prevailed throughout the principal grain-growing countries, resulting in the surplus of carry-over being practically wiped out, it seems safe to predict that prices for 1937 will be good and that we are now entering upon a period of more reasonable prices for farm products, a condition to be most earnestly desired.

We are pleased to be able to report another very successful year in our Estates Department.

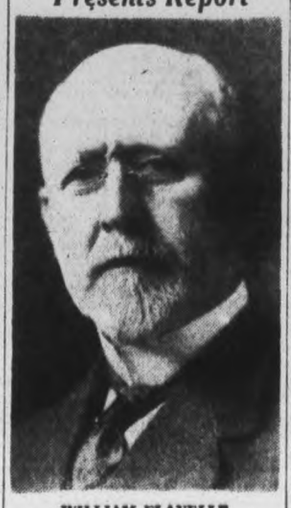
The duties of our officials and staff continue to be discharged in a highly satisfactory manner.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM FLAVELLE,
President.

Lindsay, January 15th, 1937.

Presents Report



WILLIAM FLAVELLE
President Victoria Trust and Savings Company, whose annual report is published today.

Mr. Flavelle was born in Peterborough and went to Lindsay in the eighties, when he engaged in general merchandising business, being associated with the firm of Dundas and Flavelle, Ltd. This firm was Lindsay's leading store until they sold out to the Canadian Department Stores, Ltd.

On the organization of Flavelles, Ltd., in 1904, Mr. William Flavelle became president and has been president of this concern ever since. The firm own and operate one of Ontario's largest cold storage plants.

Mr. Flavelle became president of the Victoria Trust and Savings Company in 1900, and has continued as president up to the present time.

Mr. Flavelle has taken a leading part in the life of Lindsay and his influence has been always given to any cause for the improvement of community life.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE FORTY-FIRST ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

MR. WILLIAM FLAVELLE

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The foreword in our statement of 1936, together with the balance sheet gives in condensed form the result of last year's operations, showing net profits of $2,000 odd dollars, a sum slightly better than that of 1935 and one that I am sure will carry the favourable judgment of our Shareholders, particularly in view of conditions that we are all more or less familiar with.

I am pleased to say that I can assure you that our statement is a most conservative one, as we have taken care of important adjustments, and allowances considered desirable, including allowances made in co-operation with Provincial and Municipal Corporations in tax adjustments, etc., so that the statement presented to you as I have already said is a most conservative one.

I feel that any consideration of future prospects would be incomplete, and any basis for optimism would be ill-founded, that did not give an outstanding place to the prospects of agriculture. In my opinion the chief problem of our farmers during the past five or six years has not been one of crop failure but of price failure. If I am correct in this diagnosis of the past, then we may quite confidently anticipate a much brighter future because the world wide crop failure in 1936 has depleted stocks of both wheat and coarse grains to such an extent that good prices for 1937 and even a longer period seem assured. Concrete evidence of this is seen in the fact that wheat contracts are now being made at from $1.06 to $1.10 for October delivery.

Babson, the recognized outstanding America forecaster of business and finance, says in a recent circular letter, that "The Dominion of Canada is entering a period of prosperity, which will exceed anything she has ever known before." This is a pretty strong statement for one of his standing.

The Hon. Chas. Dunning, our Minister of Finance in Ottawa, has recently said "Perhaps the most striking fact in the situation of today, is the prevailing spirit of confidence, based on the clear evidence of our recuperative powers. Depression psychology is passing, and the old qualities of enterprise, self-reliance, and courageous foresight, which have been responsible for Canada's upbuilding, are beginning to re-assert themselves." He further states that Canada's new source of wealth flowing from our mines now totals almost a million dollars per day.

The Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines in the late Ontario Government says business improvement of 1936 augers well for the new year. Increased dividends, resumptive dividends, bonuses, increased employment at higher wages, production of more goods, and greater buying power to consume them, will result in benefits to industry, agriculture, transportation, construction and trade and commerce in general.

Companies like ours do not feel the blight of depression as early as many other businesses, as is shown in our statements of 1931 and 1932 but they are among the last to experience the benefits of recovery but we are now in step with Trade and Commerce expansion, that has come to us particularly in the last quarter of 1936, justifying our confidence of better days and earnings for 1937. With shortage of stocks in most lines that must be made up, it is only reasonable to look for some years of active business, with corresponding good prices for most products including agriculture.

With these somewhat limited remarks I will leave the more intimate working of the Company's business to our General Manager Mr. Weeks to enlarge upon and will simply move the adoption of the report which has been read in your hearing, and subsequently ask Mr. Weeks to address you.

MR. C. E. WEEKS

Mr. C. E. Weeks, General Manager, then spoke in part as follows:

"My first word is one of congratulation to you, Mr. President, for your excellent address in which progress is the key note and brevity a distinguishing feature. You gave us in a nutshell all the more important and stand-out features of our Annual Statement and at the same time set forth very clearly and definitely the actual and visible signs of business improvement and recovery that marked 1936 as the opening year in a new era and the year in which we have at long last turned that elusive corner where we have been told over and over again that "good times" were awaiting us. We may have to wait another year or two before we actually reach this happy state but already the vanguard of the forces of progress as you have intimated, Mr. President, has now arrived and the years immediately ahead will witness a sure and steady improvement in the affairs of the Company and general business conditions throughout the country.

My second word is one of congratulation to the shareholders for the splendid statement we are able to present to them today; a statement which is all the more noteworthy because crop conditions locally were the worst last year our farmers ever experienced.

My last word by way of introduction is one of appreciation and thanks to our depositors and debenture holders for the liberal and loyal patronage and support they continued to give us during the past year. Without that support we could not have accomplished the splendid results shown in our statement. I fully recognize that a large measure of this support was given to us through considerations of good will, but it is of great satisfaction to know that our depositors and friends did not lose anything through their loyalty and good will to us as they received a service and interest return on their money equal to what they would have received from any other institution. The benefit from these business relations was therefore mutual and it is only on the basis of mutual advantage that good relations and good will can be successfully maintained. In other words, we can only hope to retain this good will so long as we continued to deserve it. That has always been and will always continue to be a guiding principle in our relations and dealings with the public.

The Annual Statement for the year just closed which is the main purpose of this meeting will be the subject for any further remarks I may have to make. In this connection I might just point out that the statement gives the results of the year's business in figures that are self-explanatory but does not give the operations by which these results have been achieved. It is these operations and some comparative figures in connection with the Annual Statements of 1936 and 1935 I wish particularly to dicuss with you.

Our total assets at the end of 1936 as you will see from the statements are in round figures $9,268,000, while at the end of 1935 they were $9,008,000. These figures are most impressive taking local conditions into account, such as I have referred to, and need no elaboration.

Our liquidity percentage increased from 49 per cent. at the end of 1935 to 54 per cent. at the end of 1936.

We sold over $100,000 of properties of which $20,000 were situated in Saskatchewan at a loss under $1,000.00.

Our cash interest collections and other gross earnings in 1936 were $16,000 over those of 1935 and even Saskatchewan, with the poorest crop in its history contributed a small amount to this increase.

In the face of these increased collections and earnings you will naturally inquire why we only show an increase in profits of around $1000.00. The explanation is that instead of adding these increased earnings to our profits we wrote off around $40,000 of arrears of interest.

The drought of last year was so extreme and widespread throughout the Prairie Provinces that the Saskatchewan Government, be it said to its credit, mapped out an area which had suffered from drought to a greater extent than other sections and designated it the "drought area." For this area they considered some special adjustment had to be made to lighten the burden of debt the farmers were carrying and place these hard-pressed but stout-hearted farmers on a financial footing where they could pay their way and look forward with some degree of hope and confidence to the day when they would have their homes and farms free of debt. Accordingly the Government called into conference with them all the loaning institutions including trust, loan and life insurance companies and the municipalities in this area and through the co-operation of all the interested parties and in a spirit of fairness, where selfishness was for the time largely forgotten, worked out a plan of settlement known as the "drought area settlement plan."

This plan has been received with grateful appreciation by the farmers in the area affected and already it has been put into effect and new agreements embodying its provisions executed to an extent that makes its success assured and it is confidently expected that within two or three months the plan will be in full operation. It provides: (1) that all interest in arrear prior to January 1st, 1935 shall be cancelled, (2) that all taxes in arrear prior to the same date will be completely wiped out and (3) that all government liens, Federal and Provincial, will be forgiven and forgotten.

For the farmer this settlement plan means all gain and no loss and nothing has to be entered on the debit side of the ledger.

For the companies both sides of the ledger have to be considered. On the debit side is the loss of all arrears of interest prior to January 1st, 1936 but as we had already practically written off all these arrears and discounted the action of the government we suffered no actual loss whatever. On the credit side let me just repeat the important gains: (a) all arrears of taxes down to the last two years have been relinquished which means the discharge of a lien prior to the Company's mortgage; (b) all government liens have been entirely written off; (c) the principal of the Company's mortgage in full with two years' interest added forms a new loan in good standing renewed by the borrower and secured by one-third of his entire crop and (d) instead of a discontented and disheartened borrower the Company will now have a satisfied, hopeful and grateful farmer to deal with.

Outside the drought area excepting a few odd loans that will require special adjustment the bulk of the Company's loans will be quite capable of taking care of themselves.

I have gone into the Saskatchewan situation at some length because I know to some of you our loans in that Province have been a sort of bugaboo and looked upon as the weak point in the Company's armour. I do not hesitate to say, however, that our Saskatchewan loans have never been in better standing and better secured than at the present time and, given normal conditions, will be able to take as good care of themselves as any group of loans we have on our books.

From what I have said in regard to last year's statement I am sure you will agree that 1936 has been a year of real achievement and progress.

Before closing my remarks I wish to briefly refer to our Cannington Branch and to our staff. Cannington I am pleased to say has contributed its full quota to the increase in the Company's assets for the year 1936 and I wish also to bear testimony to the popularity, personal influence and splendid business qualities of our Manager, Mr. G. H. Shipman. Personally I feel very greatly indebted to him for the assistance he has given me in matters of business policy and banking practice in which he has had many years of experience.

Concerning our staff I cannot speak too highly. There is a tremendous amount of detail in our business and it often happens, too often perhaps, that we have to work overtime to clean up the day's business and keep abreast of our work. I think I can honestly say of every member of our staff that they do not work by the clock but for the interest of the Company and that they do not consider their day's work is done until the day's business is all written up and finished. I am pleased to have this public opportunity before the friends and customers of the Company to pay a well-deserved tribute to the faithfulness, efficiency and loyalty of our staff.

I do not like to end on a personal note but the temptation is so great that I cannot resist it. I am reminded that twenty-five years ago today was the first annual meeting of The Victoria Loan and Savings Company that I attended and it has been my privilege and good fortune to attend every annual meeting without interruption from then until today. It has been my pleasure to present some annual statements of which I could speak a little more boastfully but there has been no single statement that has given me more satisfaction than the present one because of what lies behind it of hard times and depression and what I am confident lies before it of good times and opportunity.

T. H. STINSON, K.C.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It gives me a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction to have the opportunity of seconding the motion for the adoption of the 41st annual report of The Victoria Trust and Savings Company. To have 41 years of honourable record in one community in which each year has shown some progress in the growth and stability of the Company, is something to be proud of. It is something to be proud of, to be able to say that the Company has never passed a dividend since the year the first dividend was declared and has never had to take any money from its reserve for dividend purposes.

This Company has had a record that your Directors and Officers feel proud of and we want every shareholder and every depositor to share that pride with us. We think we have rendered a real service to this community in providing a safe depository for the earnings and savings of the people of this community. To have gathered together in a small community such as ours over $9,260,000.00 is a real feat and something worthy of mention as it reflects credit on the calibre of our people—for industry, sobriety and accumulation of wealth. It reflects credit on the productivity of our community and it reflects credit on the management of the Company in attracting so much wealth to be deposited in one place.

$9,260,000.00 means an accumulation of $225,124.00 each and every year over the entire 41 years that the Company has been in existence. That is the best evidence that the Company enjoys the confidence of the entire district and it is the aim and desire of the management and Directors to so manage your Company in a way that will merit that confidence and continue to build up such a confidence that makes for the success of any financial institution.

Canada is a virile young nation which has accomplished more with ten millions of people than any other nation in the world with a similar number of people and her money institutions stand as high as any in the world for soundness, success and stability. Our banking institutions are the admiration of the people of the United States. The surest foundation for all our bank institutions is that of the Trust Company which is built upon a foundation making for safety and trust and which foundation eliminates speculation and large profits but does give you safety and trust and a steady and sure income on your savings consistent with the value of money under the conditions that prevail from time to time in your country. There are times when money is worth more than at other times depending upon the demand for money and the work that money can produce or make available for the people of the country. In these years of depression money has had less value by reason of less business and less use for it and those of you who have money to hire out have had to take less for its use just as the farmer has had to take less for his wheat and products by reason of there being a very substantial surplus of these products. Loans from our banks have dropped a billion one hundred and twenty-six million dollars in the last few years. In the report of one of our chartered banks I noticed they had deposits of $32,977,964 upon which it pays no interest. Deposits bearing interest are $78,617,908 and part of this belongs to organizations and corporations which bear interest at ½ of 1% and the balance at 1½%. During this period of depression, criticism against banks, money institutions and men of wealth has been general. The criticism has come largely from those who could not get the credit they thought they deserved. Seldom, if ever, has criticism come from depositors. Borrowers from banks number three hundred and ninety-four thousand; depositors in our money institutions number five million so the criticism comes from a very small minority.

Here is something that is interesting to know. Six million in Canada have passed their 20th birthday. Five millions have deposits in money institutions which aggregate $2,000,000,000; three million five hundred thousand Canadians carry $6,000,000,000 of life insurance; 4/5ths of the farms in Canada are owned by the people who work them and more than 4/5ths of the storekeepers own and operate their own retail shops.

Canada is sound—her money institutions are sound and her people are becoming sound once again and believe that accumulative wealth is essential to national progress. Those who have accumulated wealth through production have in the process created employment and as year succeeds year they continue to use that wealth for the benefit of the many. It is surprising how little of that wealth can be used by the owner of it for his own personal gratification. Every person benefits when there is a maximum creation of real wealth. It is a duty of each of us to bring home to all people that fads and furbelows never get you any place, economically, but each can add his quota to the development of the nation if he will only do so.

Canada is richly endowed with natural resources. Our troubles will be solved by using our natural resources and by using our brains, our brawn and courage to develop them. Our salvation will not be found through arbitrarily destructive laws or repudiation. It will be found in progressive thinking and determination to build a better and greater Canada. Let us today determine to to build a better and bigger Victoria Trust and Savings Company and enable it to do its fair share in the development of Canada, our country, which should be near and dear to the hearts of all of us.

There is a real pride in being connected with any institution that is fulfilling a useful place in the progress of our country.

Now in conclusion I want to say a few words in connection with our Estates Department. In 1924 the Victoria Loan and Savings Company was created into The Victoria Trust and Savings Company which gave us the right to administer estates. In the twelve years in which we have been administering estates you will see from the report that we have accumulated some $967,000 of estates assets. If you divide this by twelve you will find the Estates Department increasing by about $170,000 annually. For a small community such as we have here almost a million dollars has been accumulated in the Estates Department.

The question of investment business is becoming more technical and difficult each year and an estate which consists of mixed securities requires real attention. After all, the person who is dealing with the management of estates every day has a much greater opportunity of handling them successfully and to the benefit of the beneficiaries than some one who may only act as an executor once or two in a lifetime.

Estates are growing in this country. If you will look at our bank statements you will see that deposits have increased since 1929 by two billions of dollars and I am sure that there is an opportunity of giving real service in the administration of estates by this Company because in making use of the Company you are leaving your estate with people who are dealing in the buying and selling of securities all the time and who can realize more for the estate than the ordinary individual who has not the same experience. In making use of the Company as your executor you will provide a safe depository for your securities and receive a real service in the administration of your estate.

I have great pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report.

MR. H. L. LYTLE

Forty-one years ago I became a Director of this Company and I think that gives me the privilege of reminiscing for I am now the only original Director. There are just a few things I would like to say.

Our first annual meeting was held in a room about twevе by fifteen feet and there were perhaps a dozen shareholders present. We did not have anything like the money we have now. Our staff consisted of the manager who was also teller and accountant and the stenographer of our founder, the late R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., came in twice a week to post our books.

In 1893 our Capital was $100,000, in 1900 it had increased to $100,000 with a reserve of $3,000. In 1906 we had increased our Capital to $150,000 and our reserve to $34,000. In 1910 our Capital was $270,000 with a reserve of $38,000. In 1913 our Capital had increased to $400,000 and our reserve to $160,000. By 1920 Capital stood at $600,000 with a reserve of $362,000 and now our Capital is $810,000 with a General Reserve of $500,000 and an Investment Reserve of $385,000.

I would like to point out to the shareholders that your Directors hold almost one-quarter of the Capital Stock of the Company and I think this should convince you of their faith and belief in the Company. It has been a great pleasure for me to be associated with the Company through all these years and to watch its growth and progress for over forty years.

MR. H. J. McLAUGHLIN, K.C.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is always a pleasure to me to come down to the Annual Meetings of The Victoria Trust and Savings Company and I enjoy it more every year. I think this is a very notable meeting and I believe we have a larger number of shareholders and customers present than we have ever had before. This should be a great satisfaction to the officers of the Company.

In this respect the meetings of The Victoria Trust and Savings Company are unique because they are so well attended. In the city it is not usual at annual meetings to have more than a handful of shareholders present.

This meeting is also notable because it marks the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Mr. Weeks' connection with the Company; a connection that has been of great advantage to us in every way.

I am always interested in the analyses of the Annual Statements which are given by our President, our Vice-President and our Manager. I want to express my satisfaction in our statement for this year. In Trust Companies we do not expect anything spectacular but like to have them sound and conservative and this is what is before you today.

I am expected to speak about the Toronto business and so far as property is concerned there has not been any great change. People are returning to work and general conditions are better but there has been no large increase in construction. At the last Annual Meeting I said something about construction and the help it is to loaning companies. During the depression builders were able to employ labour at very low wages with the result that good houses were being erected at scandalously low prices. The effect of this condition was the lowering in values of houses already existing. I understand now that construction costs are up about nine per cent. and the result is a corresponding increase in the value of existing houses on which your Company holds mortgages.

We are fortunate that we live in a country with democratic institutions and responsible government. We are sometimes offered new choices of government but I am sure there are none of us who would like to try the experiments being made in countries abroad. It is important that we impress upon ourselves and our friends a desire to carry on in a normal sane way especially now when we are riding along to what I believe are more prosperous times.

MR. G. A. WEEKS

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

For many years it has been my privilege to attend the annual meetings of The Victoria Trust and Savings Company. During the past ten years this privilege has been a combined duty and pleasure, but in all the years that I have attended the meetings, each year the Company's report has surpassed the report of the previous year.

In 1924 the company enlarged its field of operation by applying for and receiving a charter as a Trust Company. Since that time the Estates business has also been able to show an increase at each annual meeting. However, estates business, by the very nature of its source is bound to vary greatly from year to year and I feel that we cannot fix any amount as a normal yearly increase, but can only set a goal at which to aim. During the year under review new business was slightly in excess of 1935. There were fourteen new estates and agencies with assets aggregating $129,000.00, and during the year distribution amounted to $150,000.00.

I know that the shareholders wish to know something about the profits from this department, and may I say that the department has been self-supporting every year since the second year of its foundation, and in every year including 1936 has contributed something to the general profits of the company.

The Estates Department is equipped to take care of a considerable increase in business without any additional expense and I believe if we are to increase the estates department it will be necessary to go farther afield than the Town of Lindsay and County of Victoria. We have wills on file in the office and have been informed of other wills where the Company has been appointed executor by many of the prominent and wealthy citizens of Lindsay and Victoria County, but to substantially increase the estates business it will be necessary, as I mentioned before, to go farther afield, and I believe that the City of Peterborough where there is no trust company, offers a splendid opportunity to the company to develop the trust business. This cannot be done without some expense and advertising.

The trust department offers to the public a service that cannot be valued in dollars and cents. In the administration of an estate the important factors are security and the application of sound business principles. These two things the company is able to offer.

To have security the executor must be solvent, and in few cases could an individual compete with a company in this respect. In the case of executorships the law does not require that an executor give security for the faithful performances of his duties and if the executor, through dishonesty or mismanagement causes a loss to the estate under his control, the only redress which the beneficiaries have is against the executor, and if the executor has no private means then the estate must suffer the loss. Where The Victoria Trust and Savings Company are acting as executors the beneficiaries are assured of honest and faithful administration with the added protection of all the resources of the company.

In the actual handling of an estate by the trust company, the business is conducted by persons trained in estate work and every individual estate receives the benefit of the experience of the company's directors, which is wide and varied. Investment and management policies are determined by the directors. In private executorship the responsibility rests usually with one executor who in many cases may be administering his first estate. In trust company administration each estate benefits from the aggregate knowledge and experience of all the officers and directors of the company. These benefits are without additional expense as the remuneration allowed an executor is exactly the same whether it be private or company executorship.

Madrigal Singers' Concert in Toronto.

The Toronto press, in a foreword printed some time ago, comments as follows on the concert to be presented this (Saturday) evening in Toronto:

"A very choice program has been arranged for the concert in Eaton Auditorium, Feb. 20, by the Madrigal Singers of Peterborough, under Dorothy Allan Park, and the New World Chamber Orchestra under Samuel Hersenhoren. The orchestra will play a Concerto Grosso by Francesco Geminiani and a group by Sibelius, Dubensky, Debussy and Grainger, as well as accompanying the choir in a group of Italian airs arranged by Deems Taylor, and numbers by Brahms and Schubert. The Madrigal Singers will also present a charming old Tudor group, and an equally charming folksong group, all the items being refreshingly unhackneyed.

Among those expected to attend the concert in Toronto is the following list from the Toronto press: Sir Ernest and Lady McMillan, Lady Mann, Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Fricker, Dr. and Mrs. Healey Willan, Dr. and Mrs. Alex. Mackenzie, Mrs. Erichsen Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Staples, Mrs. D. B. Hanna, Mrs. Forbes Allan, Mr and Mrs. W. H. Piersol, Rev. and Mrs. F H. Cosgrave, Mr. and Mrs C. L Foster, Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs Bertram Brooker, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davies, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bethune, Miss Muriel J. Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

After attending the Lenten service in the church, the members met in the Parish Hall, for their weekly meeting. In keeping with the work program of the A.Y.P.A., the evening was spent in filling scrap books to be sent to the Indian Mission School in the West.

Edwin McDonald, president for his second term, tendered his resignation, which was accepted owing to other duties.

Gordon Clegg former vice-president was made president and Roy Pitchford was elected to the office of vice-president, both being installed into office by Rev. R. T. F. Brain.

A special feature of the evening was a presentation to George Nicholls of a smoking stand and magazine rack combined, also a photograph of the group of the "Minstrel Show' in which he was instrumental in making such a success. Mr. Nicholls very much surprised, suitably acknowledged his gift.

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH

There was no regular meeting of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. last Monday owing to the district Council Lenten rally at Omemee.

The following people represented All Saints: Misses P. Hill, D. White, U. Allen, Messrs. Doug Weir, L. Cavalier, K. Gibson, L. Barry, C. Thompson, R. Charlton.

Business Women Sponsor First Style Revue of Spring

SMART ACCESSORIES

The opening Style Review of the season was a smart event in smart surroundings, held on Friday evening in the George street clubrooms of the Business and Professional Women of the city, with one hundred and fifty women in attendance.

The affair was well planned and well carried out, with Mrs. L. M. Lockington as convenor, assisted by a corps of energetic club members, who served refreshments of coffee and sandwiches at the close of the evening, after two hours devoted to a showing of modish styles for women and juniors. The large rooms made an ideal setting for the show, with handsome window drapes, lamps, rugs and furniture from McBride & Franks; a profusion of flags of various nations as wall decorations, lent by Mrs. H. Dunford of the Canadian Flag Manufacturing Company; lovely ferns and flowers from the stock of the Peterborough Floral Company, and interesting displays by club members. These were two small tables in the main auditorium, showing dainty Elizabeth Arden toiletries from Miss Greta Giles' store, and a selection of the new printed bags and other dress accessories from the Smart Set Shop. The mannequins' outfits were made very beautiful by the lovely accessories from this shop, and the evening gowns were accented by the costume jewellery and hair ornaments from the Elsie Bennett Gift Shoppe. Miss Bennett displayed table silver also in one of the small alcove rooms, where a lace-draped table shone with silver and was adorned with cream candles and a gorgeous floral centerpiece of Spring blossoms. On a side table covered with pale blue satin glittered pearl necklaces and costume jewellery, backed by an oval of blue mirror glass.

The models paraded on a long rug in the main hall, to soft music played by Miss Anne Deyell at the piano. Under the bright lights their lovely gowns glowed and rustled, and the audience showed by appreciative applause how much they admired the gowns and coats and hats. The president of the club, Miss Trucie Pearson, made the announcements.

Varied Showing

The frocks, coats, suits and knitted wear displayed models from Lyda Telfords' Specialty Shoppe, while the hats were from Miss Jane J. Horsfield's Millinery Parlors and the Junior styles from Miss Gladys Costello's Tiny Tot Shoppe.

The adults mannequins included the Misses Lenore Lyle, Evelyn Tudhope, Helen Morrow, Kathleen Swain, Marita Collins, Margaret Walker and Marjorie Horsfield (Port Hope), while the Junior things were worn by Frances Belleghem, Beverley Hughes, and small Lois Bearne and Andre Picard.

The children's things made a brief initial showing, the small girls and the tiny boy and girl getting a big hand for their demure and clever ways and their modelling of quaintly pretty and trig little garments. The Coronation note was sounded in a frock of bittersweet red with white braiding, and Princess Elizabeth dresses, while the little boy's sailor suits and the girls' dainty gowns of georgette crepe and print all carried out stylish Junior models of the moment in their simple lines and hand-smocking trimmings and soft colors.

Balck satin pyjamas with bright tops in crimson, gold and green, were the first items in the show, followed by snugly-fitting knitted suits of ribbed and boucle weaves; a navy blue with red hat, a dark brown boucle with yellow blouse, and a navy blue with white blouse, being included in the lot.

Suits were interesting, ranging from the youthful model in flamingo willow-corded boucle, made with hip-length 'baby swagger' coat with flaring back and small collar, to the mannish tailored model developed in soft grey woollen material, worn with a red scarf and tightly-fitting little red hat.

Coats were striking in their gay simplicity of line and treatment. One very smart example was a soft Kasha cloth in bright Coronation gold with a long back panel and rounded yoke, a collar shaped like a tulip and brown bone buttons. It was worn with a hat of the same shade of gold. Coronation green made another coat with rippling 'aeroplane' collar and narrow belt, while an odd coat of dusk-blue shade that reached to the skirt hem was made with flaring skirt, wide rever collar and rose-pink buttons.

The Gown Theme

The gowns, of course, had the spotlight in interest and were worn with smart little close-fitting, 'off the face' and 'muffin' models of the mode, many of them using circular veils that shaded the eyes. One little 'muffin' hat of green straw with a veil combined navy blue in its crown, while a 'rancho sombrero' went beautifully with a lovely gown of dark brown, made with bolero jacket that was bordered with applique flowers of the same type that appeared in the front panel of the frock. And a lovely flaring red felt hat of dashing type harmonized with the embroidered red chenille butterflies that made an all-over patterning on a swish black taffeta model with flaring skirt, little high collar and fitted bodice.

A 'Joan Crawford' dress had a plain black skirt bordered with the white and black and printed material that made the gay little jacket with short puffed sleeves; a soft dove grey gown worn with an 'off the face' hat of wine felt and a matching shoulder flower had a 'sawtooth' edging to its high soft collar, its short sleeves and the floating over panels; a Spanish sash and collar bow of green and yellow struck a high note for a Persian printed frock of demure type, and there were many of the gay and giddy flower prints, including one evening gown of solid large bright flowers that wore a quiet little jacket to conceal the backless top beneath, outlined by navy velvet ribbon.
